HUNT RACES ATTRACT BIG ENTRY LIST

The first annual steeplechase and flat races held under the direction of Louis Batjer, who formerly conducted race meets at the Linden Park racetrack, Elizabeth, will be held at Stelton, Middlesex county, this state, on Saturday afternoon, May 20. The meet will be held under recognition of the hunts committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association.

The usual good sport will be furnished. The entry list is an excellent one, and society folk from New York, Newark, the Oranges and this city, are expected. The winner in each event will receive an appropriate cup.

Seven races are carded, as follows:

First race—The Dalaval Cup, presented by Harry Durand; for hunters and hacks; four years old and upwards; one mile on the flat.

Second race—The Meadow Lark Cup, presented by James Smith third, for qualified hunters, five year-olds and upward; about three miles over a brush.

Third race—The Fancy Cup, presented by Peter Hauck, Jr., for Galloways; four furlongs.

Fourth race—The Wexford Cup, presented by David Dows; for four-year-olds and upward; about two and a half miles, over a brush course.

Fifth race—The Loudon Light Trophy, presented by E. H. Hammond; for three-year-olds and upward.

Sixth race—The Sir Gaze Cup, presented by George Chipchase; a steeplechase for four-year-olds and upward; about two and a half miles.

Seventh race—For farm horses owned in Middlesex and Union counties; to be ridden by boys working on farms.

THE HOME SONG SUNG IN ALLEGORICAL PLAY.

When God made the World of Woe
Where mortals roam,
He built just one resting place
And called it Home.

When man sails the Sea of Strife
Where billows foam,
He finds but one peaceful port
And calls it Home.

The soul seeks its paradise
In starry dome,
But God planted Heaven on Earth
And called it Home.

The score is the work of Mr. George Whitefield Chadwick, the most famous of America's symphonic composers. The number has attained great popularity. It is published by the P. B. Harms Music Company.

UNION COUNTY C. E IN ANNUAL SESSION

Representatives from six Christian Societes of this city, attended the annual meeting of the Union County C. E. Union, at the First Baptist church at Elizabeth last night. The meeting was one of the best in history of the society. The attendance banner was won by the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Society of Elizabeth, with a percentage of 89. The Methodist Society of Aldene, was second with a percentage of 83.

The feature of the evening was the address by Rev. Mr. Fosdick, pastor of the Baptist church, of Montclair. Fred C. Lounsbury, Jr., of this city, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the following nominations, which were elected:

President, Charles A. Springstead, Westfield; vice presidents, Rev. Reid S. Dickson, New Providence; Frederick L. Mintel, Rahway; Louis Allison, Elizabeth; Frank Stewart, Plainfield; secretary, Miss Florence Matthews, Elizabeth; treasurer, Purdy F. Benedict, Roselle.

NEW JERSEY EDITORS PUT WILSON IN OFFICE

About 200 members of the Women's Federated Clubs of New Jersey are in session in the First Methodist Episcopal church at Atlantic City. The principal address yesterday was delivered by Dr. Stephen S. Wise, of New York, his subject being "The Moral Power of the Press."

Doctor Wise paid a high tribute to Governor Wilson, whose election, he said, was brought about by the New Jersey newspapers. He charged that the yellow journal was governed by gold, and gold alone. He added further there should be muckraking as long as there were muckrakers.

Mayor T. Frank Appleby made the address of welcome to which response was made by Mrs. Pattison, the president. The balance of the day was taken up with reports of committees. The following new clubs were admitted to membership.

Beta Livery Club, of Metuchen; Tuesday Club, of Bridgeton; Colonial Civic Club, Colonial Home Economy Club of Essex county; Mendelssohn Choral Club, of Little Falls, and the Women's Apxiliary of the Columbian Club East Orange. Report of the officers showed a flourishing condition of the federation and a general inclination of the clubs throughout the State to acquire membership.

Mrs. Floersch Improving.

Mrs. Peter Floersch, wife of the proprietor of the Queen City Hotel, was reported this morning to be rapidly improving. While she lost considerable blood from the chisel cut in the ankle her strength is being rapidly recovered.

'ROOSTERS' PLAYING THE 'FLAT-DWELLERS'

Among the interesting events in local sports today is a baseball game this afternoon on West Seventh street, between a team made up of Plainfield commuters and an aggregation of New York business men. The game was called at 2 o'clock so that it may be finished before dark. Councilman C. C. Randolph is the captain of the Plainfield team, and expects to pitch for part of the game. Mr. Randolph, when a young man, (many years ago) was noted as a twirler and he says that he has not forgotten the trick, even though he is old enough to be a hard-working city father.

Among the other local players are Norman Stringham, Walter Manning, Thomas Hylan, Irving Lyle and Everitt Morgan. It is said that the visitors will bring some crack players with them, so that there will be no question of victory.

PRINCETON STUDENT BLOWS OUT HIS BRAINS

Hamilton Brown, of 401 West 148th street, Manhattan, New York city, and a member of the junior class of Princeton University, was found dead yesterday afternoon in his room in the upper Pyne Building at Princeton University, with a bullet hole in his right temple. Coroner Daniel V. Bower said that it was a plain case of suicide.

Brown attended classes during the week, appeared cheerful and seemed to be in good health. He was found by fellow students who room in the building. Dr. J. M. Carnochan, the university physician, was summoned from the college infirmatory, but Brown was dead when he arrived.

Brown, who was 20 years of age, entered Princeton in the fall of 1908. He was studying for the Litt. B. degree and would have been graduated in June, 1912. Hewas a close student and a member of the swimming team and was well liked by his mates. Brown held the intercollegiate mile record in swimming and ranked twelfth among college swimmers. He participated this year in the 220-yard race and made a good shewing.

Mrs. Margaret Sweeny, of Liberty street, left today for Springfield, Mass., where she will be the guest of Miss Jessie Stewart, formerly of this city. Mrs. Sweeny will also visit her son, Joseph M. Sweeny, who resides there.

John Boulton, James Sinclair and William Bottomley, of this city, left today on the White Star Liner Cedric for their home in Liverpool, where they will remain for some time. They secured passage through Mulford Estil's agency.

STRIPPED AND FLOGGED.

Fearful Ordeal of the Ackou Binat In the Sudan.

Is the black man more stoical or merely less sensitive than we are? "At a fantasia in the Sudan," says Mr. Edward Fothergil in "Five Years In the Sudan," "I have myself seen the part that a young man plays of his own free will in order to obtain the title of ackou binat (the brother of the girls). This ceremony would turn a reformer's hair gray.

"The men and the women of a village sit round in a circle, leaving a space in the center of some six yards in diameter. I describe it as I saw it myself. The strongest man in the village is then picked out of the crowd and, armed with a whip of hippopotamus hide, he and the young man who is to strive for the title enter the arena. The women beat their drums, and the men clap their hands to the tune.

"The candidate for honor is stripped to the waist. He stands with his arms folded in the center of the ring, and the strong man dances up to him to the tune which is being played. He brings the whip round with all the force of which he is possessed and lands it on the bare back of the man in front of him. He dances away; again he advances, and the operation is repeated. This goes on until the number of strokes previously agreed upon have been dealt. In the particular case I saw it was twenty-five. If the man who is being flogged winces, if he so much as moves an eyelid as the whip descends, he is disqualified and branded as a coward until such time as he may choose to undergo the operation a second time.

"On this particular occasion he went through with it like a Trojan. Indeed, the man who was delivering the blows got tired first, and the last three cuts of the twenty-five were unsteady and flickered round the ear and neck of the 'brother.' I leave my readers to imagine the state of his back when all was over, but he appeared to be as happy as a king, and certainly he was accorded a great ovation by the assembled crowd of women."

STAKED HIS HEAD.

The Wager Sir William St. Clair Laid With King Robert Bruce.

Edwin Noble in "The Dog Lover's Book" recalls the historic story of the two famous deerhounds Help and Hold, a monument to which can be seen to this day at Roslin chapel.

The legend is that King Robert Bruce while hunting upon the Pentland hills had several times started a white deer, but had hitherto been unable to capture it. It had always so quickly outdistanced his own hounds that he began to imagine that it was gifted with supernatural powers and could not be overtaken by mortal dogs. Naturally his nobles agreed with him, as there was no one bold enough to affirm that he owned hounds which were better than those possessed by his sovereign.

There was, however, one exception, William St. Clair, who wagered his head that his two favorite hounds, Help and Hold, would kill the deer before she crossed the Pentland brook. Bruce accepted the challenge and wagered the forest of Pentland moor against Sir William's head.

The white deer was roused by a couple of bloodhounds and given a fair start before St. Clair released his two favorites. After a long chase, followed by Sir William and Bruce on horseback, the deer reached the brook, and Sir William, feeling sure that he had lost his wager, prepared to give himself into the hands of Bruce, but before the deer could get farther than halfway across Hold had seized her, and, Help coming up at the same moment, they forced her to turn back. In the end she was killed within the stipulated boundary.

A German Title.

In the matter of titles the Germans show more courage than we do. On a card which reached London the other day the sender describes herself as Frau ——, Rasiermesserhohlschleifeidirektorswitwe. Would any English woman venture to describe herself as widowofthemanagerofthrazorbladegrindingworks? When this was shown to a German friend he produced a card on which the sender was entitled "Staatsschuldentilgunsbureauausgeher s w i t we," a description which she held to be her due as the widow of an official in the national debt office.—London Chronicle.

More Territory.

"I envy you," says the very thin man. "I wish I had your weight. Here I am, a skinny, dyspeptic creature, suffering half the time with stomach ache."

"Envy me!" chuckles the very fat man. "Why, what if you do have the stomach ache half the time? Think what a little bit of a stomach ache you can have. Now, when I have the stomach ache it amounts to something."—Life.

Perfectly Natural.

"The supposed young millionaire bought an airship just before he was declared bankrupt."

"That was a perfectly natural proceeding."

"How so?"

"Most people do buy airships before they go up."—New York Journal.

BASEBALL GAME AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

The boys' tournament for the Metropolitan Junior Championship will be held at the Plainfield Country Club on Tuesday, September 19. Edwin S. Hooley has generously contributed two of the prizes which the local club will give and Clifford E Dunn has contributed another. This tournament is open to boys under eighteen years of age, who have playing privileges at Metropolitan Clubs. A good many prizes will be offered and the boys will all have a chance.

The trustees have appointed a baseball committee consisting of J. Hartley Mellick, chairman; H. T. Eaton, H. L. De Forest, Wylie Brown and M. J. Dumont. A diamond is to be laid out immediately, and games with other clubs will be arranged.

Work is progressing on the completion of the new fifteenth hole and the lengthened course will be in commission by the end of the season. Work is also to be started on a new tennis court.

A permanent roof is to be built over the open "deck" piaza in such a way that it can be extended when the men's locker room is enlarged. That work has been deferred, so as not to inconvenience the golfers and tennis players during the active season. The women's locker room has been moved up stairs, and the room on the first floor has been turned into an ample cloak-room, and has been entirely renovated. The small reception room has been redecorated.

The trustees have authorized a pipe line to connect with the city water supply; although this is intended as an emergency supply in case of a breakdown at the club's plant.

Four new sheds have been erected to be used for horses only. The old sheds will be exclusively for automobiles.

MEXICAN NAMES AND THEIR PRONUNCIATION.

It cannot be expected that writers about Mexican troubles and readers of the news should all know Spanish as she is spoke, but some of their efforts sound comic to ears more familiar with the language. A newspaper poet the other day had the insurrectos charging to the slogan, "Viva Libertad." A pretty sentiment, but the phrase is not Spanish—not even Mexican, according to the New York Mail.

A Mexican, if he wished to say it would remark, "Que Viva la Libertad." The same poet makes "tamale" rhyme with "rally." The last two syllables of the Mexican dainty's name sound more like "ah-lay."

Another Saxon tortured Juarez to be consonant with "war is," the only thing wrong about that being that the town across the Rio Grande from El Paso is pronounced "whah-ress," first syllable accented. Incidentally Grande does not rhyme with "land" or "candy." The e is pronounced "eh," but very short.

Also the President of Mexico pronounces his name "Dee-ass," not "Die-as." Both syllables are short and the first is accented. There is no z as in "buzz" sound in the Spanish language. The Castillian gives it a "th" sound, but the Mexican makes it a sharp "s."

Spanish-speaking persons are particular in dividing syllables. For example, a man named Blanco is not called "Blank-o," but "Blan-co." In like manner, "Gringo," the derisive Mexican name for our folks who visit their country, does not rhyme with "jingo," but is spoken "Gringo." First syllable gets the stress.

There once was a horse, and a good one, on which a good many persons placed bets. The horse was named for Aztec war god, Huitzilopochtli. Layers and players alike gave it up, and called the nag "Old Hutch." But the announcer of the betting ring, when the horse was in the money, was not stumped. Crowds used to gather to hear him shout, "Weet-zeel-o-poachedly," and he was exactly right. Accent on penultimate, please. "Poached," same as eggs that way.

F. B. Newell, of West Seventh street, the general export agent of the Washburn-Crosby Flour Company, left today on the Ward liner Havana, for Havana, Cuba, on a two weeks' business trip. He will be accompanied home by two Spanish business men, who will visit the company's plants at Buffalo, N. Y., and Minneapolis, Minn.

ELKS CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN JULY

With several governors and ex-governors, half a dozen or more of the members of the United States Senate, and between forty and fifty of the members of the House of Representatives who wear the antlered button, in attendance, the twenty-fifth grand lodge reunion of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, to be held at Atlantic City from July 10 to 17, will bring together a notable galaxy of distinguished Americans, as well as an enormous host of the best people on earth.

Aside from those mentioned, the Hon. William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska, and Judge Ben Lindsay, father of the juvenile court system which has spread throughout the land, a means to the salvation of many of thoughtless small boys, will be "among those present." Both are to address the international convention of Christian Endeavor Societies, which meets at Atlantic City during the week, prior to the coming of the antlered fraternity, and as both are loyal Elks and proud of the fact, they will remain over to greet their brethren from the Aalantic to the Pacific.

Governor Wilson, of New Jersey, who is expected to welcome the grand lodge, at its opening session on July 10, and practically every branch of the State government, will be represented. The presence in the big Music Hall at the extreme end of the steel pier of men high in the counsel of nation and state, will be a striking demonstration of the far-reaching influence of a typicallly American order.

Committeemen in charge of the innumerable details of preparations, are working like beavers. While lodge delegations and small parties are being quartered through the hotel agency established by Atlantic City lodge. The beauty of this plan is found in the fact that there will be no increase in rates because the hotel men who were instrumental in prevailing upon the grand lodge to vote for Atlantic City at Detroit, a year ago, have contracted with the local committies to deal with the invading host fairly and squarely.

Word came from the south during the past week, that this growing section will be more bravely represented than at any grand lodge reunion for several years. New Orleans has already promised a delegation of 250, with a large marching corps. Atlanta will send some of its best known citizens to the convention with an exhibit portraying some of the resources of the southland.

Honolulu and Alaska will have their delegates on the convention floor and marching representatives in the big parade on Thursday of convention week. A great deal of interest is manifested in Elkdom over the fact that Honolulu Lodge No. 616, which had a great carnival in its home early in the year, is preparing to erect a magnificent home. Atlanta lodge is also building a lodge home to cost $11,000, when completed.

Reports indicate that the question of accepting plans for the building of a new National Elks' home at Bedford City, Va., at an approximate cost of $300,000, will be one of the big propositions before the grand lodge this year. The proposition also embraces the possibility of the selection of another location than that at Bedford.

Another matter of general interest is the proposition of California lodges that dwindling herds of elk in Wyoming be removed to the Pacific coast states, and that these states be stocked with a sufficient number of the species to insure the perpetuation of the elk. San Diego lodge at a meeting last month, petitioned the grand exalted ruler to start a country-wide movement in support of the proposition among the entire Elks' organization of the United States.

The contest for grand exalted ruler is growing in interest, according to advices received at Atlantic City. The several candidates will establish their headquarters at the shore several days before the convention opens, and wage a lively fight. Frank B. Kingsley, past exalted ruler of Wyandotte (Kan.) Lodge No. 440, has entered the lists as a candidate for grand esteemed lecturing knight.

GEN. COLLINS FAVORS SYSTEM OF PATERSON.

Paterson's system of government by commission was indorsed by General D. F. Collins at a meeting of the Elizabeth Board of Trade Thursday night, and his suggestion that Mayor McBride be invited to address the board was adopted unanimously. He praised the present administration of Elizabeth as economical and efficient, but declared the system was wrong. He urged the board to go slow in indorsing the elective commission system, for he declared he doubted if Elizabeth voters would support it at the polls.

He thought the appointive commission plan in the hands of a capable and conscientious Mayor would prove highly successful, as it had in Paterson.

BIG CROWD SEES BEST MEET EVER

Watchung Hunt Club's Annual Races Furnish Plenty of Excitement.

Perfect weather and a record-breaking crowd combined to make the seventh annual meet of the Watchung Hunt Club a great success on Saturday. The driving park, where the event was held, is in every way better adapted for races, the grandstand and other accomodations being all that one could ask for. It was estimated that there were between 2,500 and 3,000 people at the races, including a great many well-known society folk from all points in the metropolitan district. There was an unusually large number of rail-birds.

Of course, the bookies were out in large numbers and there were many unattached ones, who got away with the money before the races were over. One prominent patron lost $35 in this way on the farmer's race. The betting was open, right under the very nose of the sheriff of Middlesex county and his deputies. No arrests were made.

There was one accident during the afternoon, occuring in the last race, which necessitated the shooting of David Dows' entry, "Al. H. Woods," one of the best horses in the field. The animal was going fine and would have finished better than third but for the accident. Another horse kicked the animal in the hind leg, severing a tendon. It was not noticed until after the race, when the jockey, Cooper, detected that the horse was going lame. A veterinarian was called and he advised the shooting of the animal. Thomas Brantingham did the trick, requiring only one bullet.

Perhaps, the most exciting event on the card was the race for the Watchung Hunter's purse over a post and rail course of about three miles. There were four starters and according to the betting, Frederick Pull's Magnella was a favorite. The mare had fairly got started when she ran off in the woods, back of the grandstand and in fact everywhere but on the course. Appleton, who was up, had no control of his mount.

"Essex B., Peter Hauck,Jr.'s entry in this race, also gave an exhibition of what a horse can do sometimes, by following "Magnella" all over the field. Both horses were soon declared out of the running. During this time, David Dow's "Butwell," was showing the way in fine style with Henry L. Bell's "Tyosa," a close second. Mr. Bell kept at safe distance until the home-stretch, when he let his mount out and when within 100 yards of the finish, "Tyosa" came in about three lengths ahead. Mr. Bell received great applause. In addition to winning the purse, he also received a fine cup, the gift of T. J. Mumford.

Mr. Bell also scored another triumph by riding Allen Pinkerton's "Booger Red," to an easy victory in the race for the Westfield purse. His mount covered the first quarter in 24 seconds and finished in 0:51 2-5, which, it was said, could be beaten by Mr. Pinkerton's horse if pushed.

Henry W. Werner won two races with his entries, "Nosegay," coming in first for the Oak Tree purse, in which there was a large field, and his "Faultless" crossing the wire first in the one and half mile race over hurdles, by a couple of lengths.

The third race, the "Melrose Scramble," for horses owned by farmers over whose land the club hunts, was, as usual o bone of contention. John Terry entered "Miss Nell," which was declared to be a thoroughbred, and there aws a long argument before the ujdges would allow the horse to start. The entry won easily. An added starter was Richard Baldwin's "Prince," with John Fort, of Newark, a stripling of a lad up. He finished third, and some say that with "Miss Nell" out of the race, he might have won. The lad received all kinds of compliments.

The races were all top-notchers and furnished fine sport. They were run off on time, there being no tedious delays and not a rider was injured. The club deserves great credit for the success of the affair. Among the noted people seen on the grounds was C. H. Mellen, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, and a party which came here in Mr. Mellen's fine big touring car. Others noticed in the crowd were:

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hartjer, Chas. Pfizer, H. A. Bourne, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Waring, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Runkle, Frederic Bull, George P. Mellick, Miss Helen Timpson, Miss without compensation. It adds: "Such a spirit of love and interest in our church is inspiring, and should be an incentive for work to all. In this connection we wish to state that Mr. Young, the tenor, gives his efficient services for only a very nominal sum,and is prompted by the same spirit."

In recognition of Mr. Cutter's faithful services, the Ladies' Christian Work Society of the church has presented him with a beautiful electric reading lamp for his library at home. The gift is greatly appreciated.

MRS. MOSES D. BROWN DIES IN 82ND YEAR

Mrs. Anne Maria Brown, widow of the late Moses D. Brown, died at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Miss Mary A. Brown, of Washington avenue. Mrs. Brown was a daughter of the late Stephen Pangborn, of this city, and was eighty-one years of age. She was a resident of Plainfield for nineteen years and prior to that time resided at Dunellen.

Mrs. Brown had been ill a long time and was a great sufferer, but through it all was patient. She was a sincere Christian woman. She is survived by three sons, Stephen P. Brown and Jeremiah D. Brown, of this city, and Frank W. Brown, of Brooklyn, and four daughters, Mrs. L. J. Denton, Mrs. L. C. Hurtt, Mrs. J. T. Armstrong and Miss Mary A. Brown, all of this city. There are also twenty-three grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. The funeral will be held at the late home on Washington avenue tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. BALDWIN SATURDAY.

Mrs. Susan Baldwin, aged about 84 years, a sister to Mrs. J. C. Buchanan, of Duer street, whose death occurred on Wednesday, was buried on Saturday, at Cherryville, Hunterdon county. She died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lyman Hoffman, at Sidney, Hunterdon county, after a short illness, and the funeral was held there. Mrs. J. C. Buchanan, Dr. and Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan and their daughter, Mary Buchanan, of Duer street, attended the service.

Besides those mentioned, Mrs. Baldwin is survived by another sister, Mrs. Joseph W. Cain, of Raritan and a brother, Joseph Rea, of Quakertown ;also four grandchildren, Mrs. Fred Tallamy, of this city and Miss Anna Baldwin, Mrs. Clarence Carman and Mrs. Thomas Beck, of Dunellen. Mrs. Baldwin was born and always lived near Sidney, and the officiating minister at the funeral referred to her as one of the old landmarks of the county. She was a member of the Baptist church and possessed a strong Christian character.

William W. Hall.

William W. Hall, a former resident of this city, died Saturday at his home 65 Marion avenue, Newark. He was sixty-five years old and leaves a wife and one daughter, Mrs. Chas. Vail, of Newark. The funeral will be held at Trinity Reformed church tomorrow afternoon and burial will be in the cemetery at Samptown.

Rasores to Meet.

The Rasores will hold its last meeting of the season tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. L. N. Lovell on Crescent avenue. There will be a report of the convention of the State Federation of Women's Clubs held at Asbury Park.

SENIORS IN A PLAY

High School's Graduating Class Presents 'Twelfth Night' at Theatre.

MISS ALICE MEHL SCORES.

The Entire Cast Reflects Credit on the Coach, S. B. Howe, Jr., who Receives a Token From the Amateur Thespians.

A performance of "Twelfth Night" which reflected great credit on the senior class of the Plainfield High School was given in the Plainfield theatre Saturday night before a large audience. The star of the play, Miss Alice V. Mehl, displayed a talent seldom equalled in an amateur and easily won the honors of the evening. Her interpretation of the part of Oliva's maid was exceptionally clever and so natural that one was led to believe that Miss Mehl had been accustomed all her life to taking part in Shakespearean plays.

J. Sewell Ulrich, as Malvolio, did well as did Sidney Karr, who personated Sir Toby Belch. Luther Banks made an admirable Sir Andrew Aguecheek and Miss Margaret Hutchinson took the part of page with admirable coolness and adaptation.

Between the second and third acts Sidney Karr presented to Samuel B. Howe, Jr., the coach, a tribute of respect and admiration handing him a purse of gold. During the performance the individual players received applause for their efforts. The applause was deserved in every instance, and particularly was this true in the case of Miss Mehl and Mr. Ulrich.

The cast follows: Viola, Miss Thyra Stiles; Sea Captain, Alfred Manley; sailors, J. Wilbur Tovell and Herman L. Shrager; Sir Toby Belch, Sidney H. Karr; Maria, Oliva's maid, Miss Alice E. Mehl; Sir Andrew Aguecheek, Luther Banks; Duke Orsino, Gordon V. Moy; page, Miss Margaret Hutchinson; Curio, Miss May V. Day; Valentine, Herbert L. Terry; courtier, Herman L. Shrager; Feste, a clown, Alfred Clarke; Malvolio, J. Sewell Ulrich; Countess Oliva, Miss Louise Bird; Sebastian, Miss Ruth I. Wean; Antonio, Benjamin Harris; Fabian, Frederick T. Van Hoesen; an officer, Alfred S. Manley; soldiers, Wilbur Tovell and H. L. Terry. The "ladies of the court were Misses Margare: Hutchinson, Edna M. Bird, Elizabeth Hardwicke and Edith D. Whitman.

The executive staff of the play was composed of Samuel Silbert, A. F. Clark, Nathan Wilson, A. S. Manley, Frank V. Schwed, Benjamin Berse and Lewis T. Matlack.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS HOLD A CELEBRATION

Beginning with a song service in the church last night the Epworth League of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church celebrated its twenty-second anniversary. Following the song service the new officers of the league were installed. They are: President, J. Archibald Thompson; first vice-president, Harry B. Sawyer; second vice-president, Miss Ruth I. Thompson; third vice-president, Miss May Stafford; fourth vice-president, Miss Gertrude Gray; fifth vice-president, N. Mansfield Smith; secretary, Miss Mary J. Mathews; treasurer, Frederick Jacobs.

Rev. Wallace B. Fleming made the address of the evening praising the work of the league. Mr. Fleming is pastor of the Maplewood M. E. church, Maplewood, N. J. Special music was furnished by a male quartet.

The anniversary of the Epworth League, Chapter No. 1, of the First M. E. church, was appropriately observed at the evening service, last night. Arthur Humble, president, had charge of the services, and he was assisted by Harry Gee, who offered prayer. Mr. Humble also presented a brief resume of the past year's work.

The quartet choir, under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist, rendered several anthems, which added to the enjoyment of the service. The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, district superintendent, who took for his subject, "God, Liberal and Up-to-Date."

The Epworth League at Grace M. E. church observed the anniversary of the day and listened to an appropriate and interesting address by Rev. C. C. Caine. Special music was rendered by the church choir. The attendance was large.

ARRAIGN AUTOISTS

In Police Court Mayor Gives Notice That 2nd Offense Means $100 Fine.

SUSPENDED SENTENCES GIVEN.

Crap Shooters Promise to Stop Gambling and Are Allowed to Go—Two Fined for Riding Bikes on Sidewalks.

Mayor George W. V. Moy presided in the city court this morning in the absence of Judge DeMeza. There were a large number of cases to dispose of including several automobile drivers, who were accused of exceeding the speed limits in the streets of the city. Among these were James E. Parker, of North Plainfield, Benjamin Cookhart, of the west end, and Miss Adelaide Ball, attendance supervisor for the Board of Education. W. J. Buttfield's hearing was postponed until tomorrow afternoon at his request. None of the speeders denied the charge and all were given suspended sentences. The Mayor announced that a fine of $100 would be imposed on speeders arraigned for a second offense. He declared that speeding must be stopped in the city and that he would do his utmost to prevent it. He asked those arraigned to help him in protecting the citizens of Plainfield and all promised to be more careful in the future.

Michael Gilman and Louis Cioocci, accused of riding their bicycles on the sidewalks were fined $2 a piece, Gilman being given a week in which to pay his fine. Cicocci paid his.

Edward Walker, Edward Hallowell, Frank Hubbard, Joseph Konesky and Michael Gilman were arraigned on charges of gambling on Sunday, May 7. They none of them attempted to deceive the court and after receiving a severe lecture they were allowed to go with suspended sentences. They promised Mayor Moy to prevent gambling if they saw any more of it and also averred that they would never shoot craps again themselves.

Accused of being drunk and disorderly and drawing a knife on John Basto, John Wadle, of the east end was fined five dollars on the first charge and another five on the second, in default of which he will have to go to jail for ten days. Patrolman Sweeney made the arrest. Patrolman Saffron, Messler, O'Keefe and Detective Sergeant Flynn made the arrests in the speed violations.

RT. REV. DR. KINSMAN CONFIRMS CLASSES

Right Rev. Fred C. Kinsman, D. D., Bishop of Delaware, confirmed a class of twenty-three young people of Grace church yesterday afternoon, acting for Bishop Scarborough, who is at present incapacitated by recent illness. He preached from the text St. John 1-47-41.

The bishop compared Nathaniel the Christian disciple, with Jacob his type in the Old Testament, showing how Christ becomes the ladder reaching from earth to heaven, joining man and God which which was prefigured in Jacob's dream and made known to Nathaniel when Christ said to him, "Hereafter ye shall see heaven open and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man."

The bishop said faith strong and enduring was what was needed for true discipleship; he described it as a venture with God, but a venture which we always found brought abundant reward.

The bishop illustrated his this point by a story told by the present Bishop of London, who once saw a boy flying a kite in a London fog. The bishop asked the child why he was flying a kite on a day like that when it was impossible to see it through the murky atmosphere. "I cannot see it," replied the boy, "but I can feel the pull."

In closing Bishop Kinsman urged the candidates for confirmation to be strong in this faith in God and He would always answer with His blessing.

At St. Stephen's church Rev. Elory G. Bowers, rector, Bishop Kinsman confirmed two children, Kenneth Platt and Homer Scruton, S. Frederick Smith, organist and choirmaster of Grace Episcopal church, rendered a special musical service assisted by a number of the choir boys of Grace. The confirmation service took place at 8 o'clock last evening.

KNIFE HIS WEAPON

Patsy Paye Gets Ninety Days for Alleged Attempt to Carve George Kruse.

WAS CHASED BY A MOB.

Store of Meyer Pushkin Raided in Chase of Man Who Insulted Two Young Women—Mayor Moy Scores Offender.

Patsy Paye, an Italian, was given ninety days in jail by Mayor Moy this morning for carrying concealed weapons and threatening to kill two youths who were endeavoring to protect Misses Edith and Lizzie Norway, of the West End. According to the story told in court this morning by George Kruse, George Huff and James McNamara and the two young women, Paye followed the Norway sisters for over an hour on West Front street while they were waiting for a friend to see them home.

George Kruse, who went to the rescue of the girls, said that he saw the Italian seize Miss Edith by the arm at the same time taking off his hat and saying something to her. Miss Lizzie then called to him to come across the street and protect her sister which Kruse gallantly did. Kruse told the court that Paye drew a five-inch bladed knife from his pocket and made a lunge at him. He avoided the stroke and called upon some passersby to get the Italian.

Then followed a chase through Central avenue to West Third street, where Paye took refuge in the store of Meyer Pushkin at the same time exchanging hats with the storekeeper. He made his escape through the rear door while a mob of young men stormed the front, breaking in the door and smashing several windows. While running away the second time Paye threw away the knife which was shown in court. It was found by McNamara a short distance from Second street and Central avenue.

George Huff practically corroborated Kruse as to the attempted use of the knife. He said that when the weapon was drawn it looked like a revolver and everybody hunted for cover, but when it was known to be a knife a rush was made for the Italian. As the young men ran the number increased until fifty or more young fellows were chasing Paye.

Counsellor Francis J. Blatz, who defended Paye, acknowledged that the prisoner was drunk, but denied the disorderly charge. Mayor Moy in sentencing the prisoner declared that the citizens of this city must be protected and deplored the practice of carrying knives and revolvers. The trouble started on West Front street shortly before 11 o'clock on Saturday night.

TESTIMONIAL DINNER FOR C. E. BRODHEAD

A testimonial reception and banquet will be tendered to Assemblyman Calvin E. Brodhead at the Waldorf Hotel in the early part of June. Among the speakers to be present on that occasion are Senator James E. Martine, Congressman William Hughes, State Senator Harry Osborne, Ray E. Mayhew, president of the State Federation of Democratic Clubs: Mayor George W. V. Moy, Speaker Edward Kenney and Assemblyman Elmer Geran. The committee of arrangements consists of P. J. Reville, chairman; J. H. Connolly, Frank Shattle and Edward S. Lynch. The reception committee consists of James E. Prindle, chairman; Edward Fluck, John J. Hickey, Jeremiah Callahan.

The Plainfield Democratic club will hold an important meeting in their rooms tonight. Action will be taken regarding the re-districting of the city under the Geran law. Officers will be selected to act at the next city election and some discussion is expected on the commission form of government. All members are urged to be present.

DOCTORS AND DOMINIES WILL MEET ON DIAMOND.

The physicians and ministers of the city are planning for a baseball game to be played on Crescent Oval in the near future, the proceeds from which will be used to purchase surgical instruments for use at the hospital.

Dr. B. VanD. Hedges has been picked as captain for the medicos, and Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, the captain for the men of the cloth. The date for the game and the lineups will be announced within a few days.

William Palmer Smith, Jr., gave a luncheon at the Baltusrol Golf Club for sixteen, including Carl and Udo M. Fleischmann, Miss Fleischmann, Alfred Maclay, Miss Edith Smalley, Miss Alice Hoadley Smith, William Palmer Smith and Lawrence Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Wesley Holland had for their guests Mrs. William Marquette, of Germantown, Pa.; Mrs. Laidlaw, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Beebe and Sherman Mills, of New York. This party had supper in the evening at Pedeflous.

Rufus C. Finch and Harry Finch entertained a party of twenty at luncheon at their Park avenue home The guests included Mr. and Mrs. George W. Elkins, Jr., of Philadelphia; Miss Rosalie Jones, Miss Helen Henderson, Miss Adelaide Gardiner, Arthur Ludington, Ezra P. Prentice, Stewart Hollis, J. J. O'Donohue, Arthur Conger, Miss Louise Curtis, Miss Madeline Wemple and Edward R. Finch, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hildreth, of Morristown. T. J. Mumford also entertained a party of friends at luncheon prior to the races.

Immediately after the race for the Watchung Hunters' purse, a picture was taken of Mr. Mumford presenting the handsome silver cup to Henry Lawrence Bell whose entry won the race.

MISS MABEL HOOLEY TO WED ON JUNE 14

The marriage of Miss Mabel B Hooley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Hooley, of Rockview avenue,, and Brown Rolston, son of William H. Rolston, of New York, will take place on Wednesday, June 14, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hooley. Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, will perform the ceremony. The affair will be a quiet one.

Miss Hooley is prominent in society here, and is also known as an expert horsewoman, having exhibited her thoroughbred horses at the local and New York horse shows. She is also a member of the Plainfield Country Club and Park Golf Club. Mr. Rolston was graduated from Princeton University last year and while in college was president of the famous Triangle Club. He now holds a fine position in New York with the firm of which Mr. Hooley is a member.

Mr.Hooley is now building a handsome residence for his daughter on land adjoining his own on Rockview avenue and the couple will reside there.

FSCAPES LIGHTNING THAT FIRED HER HOME.

Asbury Park, May 14.—Lightning during a heavy shower on the coast Friday night struck Frank J. Hurst's house in Main street, near Woodland avenue, Avon. The bolt passed into the room in which were Mrs. Sager and her baby. The other children and Mrs. Sager's sister were also occupants of the cottage.

The bolt passed over the bed in which Mrs. Sager was asleep with her baby and struck an umbrella in the corner of the room. It caught fire and soon the blaze extended to the roof. The Avon fire department was called out and the fire was extinguished before the cottage was seriously damaged.

"HENRIETTA" SCENERY ARRIVED HERE TODAY.

The special scenery to be used in the forthcoming production of "The Henrietta," by the Park Comedy Club, at the Plainfield theatre, May 18 and 19, arrived today and everything points to successful performance of this well-known comedy. Another rehearsal will be held this evening.

The cast, which has already been published, is considered one of the best ever selected by the club and each member has been doing exceptional work. The play is to be given for the benefit of the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

C. E. Congress to Meet.

The Congress of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union will meet at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Several matters of importance will be considered, among them the question of sending a delegate to the International Christian Endeavor convention at Atlantic City July 6-12.

DR. CHAMBLISS HAS RESIGNED

Scholarly Pastor of the First Baptist Church to Retire From Active Ministry.

Rev. Dr. John A. Chambliss, who, for nearly eight years has been pastor of the First Baptist church, presented his resignation at the close of the morning service. The statement, which had been prepared by him, was read by L. V. F. Randolph, president of the board of trustees and created a profound impression. Afterwards George A. Chapman moved that the matter be referred to the board of trustees and deacons to be reported for action at a church business meeting on May 24.

Dr. Chambliss suggested in his statement that the resignation become effective September 1, it being understood that in the meantime arrangements can be made for his successor. This will probably be done. At the approaching business meeting a committee to secure a successor to Dr. Chambliss will probably be named.

Nearly all of Dr. Chambliss' ministry has been spent with four churches, at Richmond, Va., Charleston, S. C., East Orange and this city respectively, and each has been a happy and highly seuccessful one. The last year ending May 1 has been one of the best in the history of the church. All departments are in a healthy condition, while the Sunday-school is very large, the prayer-meetings largely attended and greatly enjoyed.

Forty-three members have been added during the year just closing. The total received during the present pastorate, which began November 1, 1903, is 357, of which 203 were by baptism. There have been 118 deaths. The total money raised for congregational expenses in round numbers was $115,000; for benevolent objects, $85,000, including certain individual donations, and in addition some $50,000 has been given to mission boards direct by a member now deceased.

Dr. Chambliss was born in Athens, Ga., in 1840, and he had received his first call as pastor when the Civil War broke out. He enlisted as a chaplain, serving with Gen. Lee. At the close of the war he resumed the ministry. When not engaged in active ministry he was a professor of Latin and literature in the Maryland State College, and was elected to the Presidency of Washington College at the time he was called to East Orange. He accepted the latter call, remaining at East Orange ten years. Dr. Chambliss is a man of the highest literary attainment, his writings having attracted widespread attention. The statement presented by Dr. Chambliss yesterday, follows:

To the First Baptist church of Plainfield:

My Dear Friends:

The time has now come when it appears to me to be the dictate of wisdom that I should retire from pastoral service. My seventieth birthday has passed, and the fiftieth anniversary of my ordination comes next month. Within my circle of acquaintance there is not another man of seventy years who still holds the pastorate of a large church. It would thus seem to be the consensus of opinion among ministers and churches that, under conditions of life today, seventy is about the farthest limit for best service in the pastorae office. You have given me no reason to believe that you regard me as a poorer preacher than when you called me to your pulpit in the fall of 1903; on the contrary, your gracious expressions of appreciation were never more frequent and encouraging than now. But the pulpit

MANY NEW FEATURES WITH WELL KNOWN SHOW.

Frank A. Robbins special circus train, of a score of cars will roll into Plainfield on Tuesday morning, May 16, and the big wagons, bright and fresh from the paint and repair shops at Jersey City, where the show winters, will be unloaded and taken to the circus lot, preparatory to a parade and two performances during the day. The show will have been on the road but a very few days when it reaches here, and all of the equipment will consequently be in the finest condition. The Robbins circus is probably better known in New Jersey, especially in the smaller towns, than any other organiation on the roads, as it has wintered in this state for many years. Mr. Robbins is a resident of Jersey City.

There have been many changes in the show since it last appeared in Plainfield, at which time it drew a big crowd at both performances. The number of cages in the menagerie, which is not a small one, have been increased, and some splendid specimens of wild animals will be shown. Queen, which was the biggest elephant in this country, and which was a feature of the menagerie last year, was killed last winter, but Mr. Robbins has replaced her with an equally-fine "Bull," as the circus men call them. There are lions, jaguars, kangaroos, leopards, monkeys and many other animals.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

"I have proposed to Governor Wilson, and the governor has approved of the idea, but said nothing as to the substance that the road law should be amended next legislature so as to provide for building three classes of roads—first, state roads; second, county roads as now, and third, aid to township roads," said State Road Commissioner Colonel Edwin A. Stevens to a reporter.

Continuing Colonel Stevens said: "By state roads I mean such as arrangement whereby the fullest control of such thoroughfares passes directly into the control of the state, and to bring this about I have suggested to the governor that for building such roads the counties pay us one-third of the cost and let us build the roads directly from this office, instead of the state paying one-third of the cost and the counties the other proportion of cost.

"I will show you how this would work out. At the present time there is the greatest pulling and hauling for pieces of roads to be improved which run nowhere entirely, and this results in a portion of some fine and much needed road being improved a certain number of miles, while the continuation of that road, and in many cases to improtant points, is a dirt road and in bad condition until the county can find money to complete it.

"The cause is the anxiety of freeholders to get a portion of the money raised for road building expended directly in the district of the county from whence the hail. They want something to show to their constituents for their labors on the board and with the state road department. This is politics, I presume, and maybe there should be no criticism of it. But the people want roads which lead directly from one important point to another important point, and there is little utility use in building disconnected parts of roads.

"I understood that there has been an effort made by the department in the past to force the building of roads from county seat to county seat, and from important point to another and equally important point, but the trouble always has been with the freeholders not being able to see the state road problem with the state eyes.

"The remedy as I see it, and how to apply it is to give the state the control of such roads by the state paying the greater cost, and the way to bring it about is for the legislature to amend the law to provide for the three classes of road helps I have mentioned.

"With the law amended so that the state could take over certain roads by paying two-thirds of the first cost of building and this department having full control of the construction, we could lay out state roads from important points to important points, force fair prices for pieces of land wanted to obliterate sharp corners, death traps, for proper grading so that no grade need be more than 5 per cent. on the steepest hills and provide for a correct method of always having these roads in the pink of condition. It must be borne in mind that the repairs on roads have become very heavy for the counties, and were it not for the automobile license moneys which go to taking away much of the weight of this burden from the counties, road repairs would be in far worse condition as a science than now.

"With such a state road law this department would never build a road less than twenty feet wide, even wider roads would be built, for the wide road is the most economical, due to traffic being distributed all over the center, and we could apportion repairs in such a manner that further burdens might be taken off the counties.

"This leads, of course, to determination of the most lasting road building material, the study of which has gone on in this department for many years and conclusions reached which under prevailing conditions of county road building we are unable to force on the freeholders. The state would set the pace for the best and most lasting road building, and naturally the counties and the townships would follow in our footsteps. The force of example would weigh with freeholders and township committees."

AN ORDINANCE

For the Assessment of Taxes for the Year 1911.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That pursuant to the statutes and ordinances and resolutions in such cases made and provided and certifications thereunder there shall be assessed and raised by tax for the year nineteen hundred and eleven for the general purposes of said city, exclusive of school, library, poor, fire and State and County taxes, the sum of Ninety-three Thousand Dollars..... ($93,000),

(this sum includes the sum of Forty-eight Thousand Dollars ($48,000) to be raised by general tax for street improvements, and the sum of One Thousand Three Hundred and Ninety-five Dollars ($1,395) for interest to fall due during said year on street improvement bonds dated September 1, 1907, and the sum of One Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($1,500) for interest to fall due during said year on street improvement bonds dated July 1, 1910, and the sum of Four Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($450) for interest to fall due during said year on street improvement bonds dated September 8, 1908, and July 1, 1909, and the sum of One Thousand and Eighty Dollars ($1,080) for interest to fall due during said year on police station house bonds dated July 1, 1908, and the sum of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) for principal of said police station house bonds maturing during said year, and the sum of Twelve Thousand Dollars ($12,000) for investigation with regard to the acquisition by the city of a water supply and for exploration and testing of sources for such a supply); for the expense of said year for lighting the public streets and places in said city, as ascertained and determined by resolution of the Common Council and certified to the Assessors of said city, the sum of Sixteen Thousand Dollars.. ($16,000); for the principal on such sewer bonds (except obligations payable out of the assessments and temporary obligations) as may mature during the ensuing fiscal year, under and by virtue of the Act of the Legislature entitled, "An Act to provide for drainage and sewerage in cities of this State," approved April 7, 1890, and the several amendments thereof and supplements thereto, and proceedings had and taken thereunder in said city, the sum of Six Thousand Dollars ..... ($6,000); for the support of the city poor, the sum of Nine Thousand Dollars ..... ($9,000);

for interest on obligations of the city issued under the last mentioned Acts, the sum of Nine Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ..... ($9,500);

included in the last named sum is the sum of One Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($1,500) for the purpose of supporting and maintaining such indigent patients as may be sent to Muhlenberg Hospital by order of the city physician, overseer of the poor, or other proper authority of the city, pursuant to Chapter LXXVI, P. L. 1886, payable December 31, 1911, pursuant to contract between Muhlenberg Hospital and the city; for the maintenance of the Public Library and Reading Room, the sum of Seven Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ..... ($7,500); for the maintenance of a fire department, to be under the control and government of said city, the sum of Forty-one Thousand Dollars ..... ($41,000);

for interest for said year on $15,000 Fire House Bonds, the sum of Six Hundred and Seventy-five Dollars ..... ($675); for sinking fund to retire the principal of said $15,000 Fire House Bonds at maturity, the sum of One Thousand Three Hundred Dollars ..... ($1,300);

SPORTS

News and Notes

BASEBALL.

Matty McIntyre, who was recently sold by the Detroit club to the Chicago Americans, is the possessor of a decidedly choice line of sarcasm. While Tommy Connolly and McIntyre are the best of friends, the latter likes nothing better than to put some stunt over at Connolly's expense.

During one of the important series last year between Detroit and Philadelphia, Connolly was in charge of the game. As everything was going against the Tigers, they were a bit out of sorts. Three games of the series had been lost. Realizing that the winning of the fourth would make little or no difference, McIntyre, who was not playing that day, decided to have a little fun at Connolly's expense.

It seems the evening previous a newspaper scribe had been talking in a general way about umpires to some of the Detroit players, and they happened to express a preference for one of the officials. A news item to that effect appeared in the papers the next day. When McIntyre saw the notice it occurred to him that it would aid in playing a joke on Connolly. He cut out the item and pasted it on a telegram blank, and inclosed it in a regular telegraph envelop with Connolly's name on it.

About the sixth inning McIntyre sauntered out to the plate and handed the supposed telegram to Connolly saying that he understood it was very important and that the messenger boy was waiting for an answer. Connolly stopped the game and tore open the envelop in haste. Imagine his feelings when he gazed on the notice. McIntyre was back at the bench before Connolly had a chance to express himself. The Detroit players, knowing the contents of the telegram, fell all over themselves in laughter. Tommy ignored the situation entirely. He decided to wait his chance. Peculiarly enough, it came in the very next inning.

Donie Bush, the diminutive shortstop of the Tigers, is a mighty hard man to pitch to. When at the plate he assumes a crouch that makes it all the harder for the pitchers to get the ball over for him.

Connolly called a strike on Bush that the little shortstop did not exactly agree with. He shook his head, but said nothing. McIntyre, who was coaching at first, took up the burden, however, and yelled:

"That's the boy, Donie! Don't hit at the bad ones. It was outside."

McIntyre's speech did not make a hit with Connolly; but he passed it off just as if he had never heard it. The next one was also a strike, according to Connolly. Bush rather thought it was a trifle high. He said nothing; but again looked toward McIntyre in an appealing sort of way. This time McIntyre took an entirely different way of expressing his disapproval of Connolly's judgement. All baseball fans know that the height limit for a strike is the shoulder. Knowing this, they will appreciate McIntyre's speech, also the attitude taken by Connolly.

"What's the matter with you, Donie? That was a perfect strike, right across your eyes. When you can't hit them there, you haven't a chance."

"To the bench!" thundered Connolly. The umpire's honor had been avenged.

AN ORDINANCE

To Further Amend An Ordinance Entitled "An Ordinance to Establish, Regulate and Control a Fire Department in the City of Plainfield," Approved April 6, 1908, As Amended.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Section 8 of the ordinance to which this is an amendment, be further amended so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 8. The pay of the force is hereby fixed as follows, the said rates to take effect from the first day of January, 1911:

Chief Engineer .....$1,350 per annum
First Assistant Engineer 1,200 per annum
Captains ..... 1,140 per annum
Engineer of Steamer... $2.50 per annum

Drivers, Tillermen and Hosemen shall be divided into five classes according to their respective terms of service as follows:

Class A—Fifth year of service and over.
Class B—Fourth year of service.
Class C—Third year of service.
Class D—Second year of service.
Class E—First year of service.

Provided, That the Common Council upon recommendation of the Mayor may advance any regular Firemen, Drivers, Tillermen or Hosemen from a lower to a higher class for especially good work or meritorious service, whether he shall have served his full time, specified above or not.

That from the first day of January, 1911, the salaries of the Drivers, Tillermen and Hosemen or other regular appointed Firemen shall be as follows, according to their class:

Class A.....$1,000 per annum
Class B.....$960 per annum
Class C.....$924 per annum
Class D.....$792 per annum
Class E.....$720 per annum

The members of the Fire Department known and designated as "Call Men" shall perform at least ninety per cent. of duty at all fires or alarms of fires in each year; and such members shall receive as compensation, the sum of fifty-five dollars per annum, payable in two semi-annual payments of twenty-seven dollars and fifty cents for each of the six months ending June 30th and December 31st in each year, except that when a Call Man shall act as Captain of Hook and Ladder Company No. 1, he shall receive one hundred dollars per annum, payable semi-annually, and when any Call Man shall act as Engineer of Steamer, he shall receive eighty-two dollars and fifty cents per annum, payable semi-annually, but no salary shall be paid to a Call Man until he shall have signed a stipulation that he will render service as contemplated in this section.

Adopted by the Common Council, May 1, 1911.
Approved by the Mayor, May 5, 1911.

Plainfield, N. J., May 15, 1911.

The election of H. H. Pond, the efficient and popular secretary and treasurer of the Plainfield Trust Company, to the presidency of the New Jersey State Bankers' assaciation is an appreciated distinction not only for the man himself and the company he so capably represents, but to the city of Plainfield. We venture to say that Mr. Pond will fill the position with the utmost credit to himself and to his fellow members.

Although it is but meet and right that a man of his years should be relieved of the burdens of his sacred calling, the community sincerely regrets the resignation of Rev. Dr. Chambliss as pastor of the First Baptist church. The regret is deeper because his action means that he will leave Plainfield, whose people have enjoyed his friendship have been directly or indirectly benefitted by his active work in the local Christian field and have admired him for his high character. A gentleman, a preacher and a scholar, he has made his impress upon the community, which we repeat will deeply regret his departure.

work is not all that the office of pastor demands; there is much else in these days for which a comparatively young pastor is better adapted, especially in a church which, like this, is blessed with an unusually large proportion of young people in its membership.

No one of you has said this to me, but I know you must recognize it as a plain suggestion of common sense.

So far as I am personally affected, you will not think it strange if, after so long a period of service, I now feel constrained to seek relief from the cares and labors of the pastorate. I have no wish to give up preaching, and hope to do much of it while my faculties continue unimpaired, but it seems wise that by retiring now I should anticipate the failing of strength which must before long inevitably begin.

Therefore, dear brethren and friends, I place my resignation in your hands today, assuring you with all tenderness and affection that it is positive and final. As to the time when my ministry among you shall terminate, I have no date exactly fixed, because there is nothing urgent in the circumstances, either yours or mine. It has been suggested that as the eight year of my pastorate will be completed in the early fall, there would be a pleasant fitness in my continuing in office till the end of the summer, say September 1. This will be agreeable to me, provided such action be now taken as shall leave the church in the meantime entirely unembarrassed in looking for another pastor.

That this parting will be painful to many of you, perhaps in a measure to all, I cannot doubt, having so many evidences of your affection and your too generous estimation of my services. To me also it is painful beyond words, for no pastor ever loved his people more than I love you, or with more abundant cause. Still more will it grieve you to part with the pastor's wife, who has held you in her heart and been held in yours with beautiful and complete devotion, and whose unstinted ministrations in many forms have won your gratitude and love. But you will be glad of the assurance that in now yielding to the pressure of nature's hand upon me (which means for me our Father's will), turning me aside form service so arduous as is here required, there is in my heart no repining, and no sense of humiliation, but only thankfulness for the mercies of the past, peace in the present, and home for the future.

For your great and manifold kindnesses, never failing from the first day of our coming to you, my wife joins me in begging you to accept the heartfelt thanks which no words could utter. We hope still to reside not far away, and sometimes to see you in the body; but, better still through the grace of God our Saviour, we hope to meet you all where "in His presence there is fullness of joy, and at His right hand there are pleasures for evermore."

JOHN A. CHAMBLISS.

DR. CRANMER HEARD AT TRINITY REFORMED.

Rev. Dr. W. S. Cranmer, pastor of the (Old First) Reformed church, Somerville, preached an excellent sermon at Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning, in exchange with the pastor, Rev. J. Y. Broek. His theme was "The Last Judgment," recorded in the latter part of the 25th chapter of Matthew. Dr. Cranmer held the close attention of his hearers throughout his interesting discourse. He is a grand old man and beloved not only by his own people, but by all who know him.

Miss Blanche E. Atkins.

Miss Blanche E. Atkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Atkins, of Brooklyn, and niece of Mrs. George W. Cole, of West Second street, died on Saturday at her home. Besides her parents she is survived by one sister, Miss Hazel Atkins. The funeral will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the late home, 481 Ninth street, Brooklyn, and the interment will be in this city tomorrow noon.

Funeral of Harvey S. Moore.

Simple funeral services for Harvey Shotwell Moore, the aged Friend, were held at the Friends meetinghouse on Watchung avenue, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, there being a large attendance of friends and acquaintances. A few remarks were made by one of the Friends. The remains were taken to Rahway for interment.

Rev. J. Y. Broek at Somerville.

Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, occupied the pulpit of the (Old First) Reformed church, Somerville, yesterday morning in exchange with the pastor, Rev. Dr. W. S. Cramer, and in the afternoon he made an address on "Mothers' Day," at the same church, before a large audience.

Talk on Mothers.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, at the morning service yesterday, delivered a strong and impressive sermon on the subject of "Mothers' Day," in which he took occasion to speak of the influence of the mother in the home which he said was of incalcuable value, if for good.

Petit Jurors Drawn.

The petit jury for the next term was drawn at Elizabeth, this morning and the following Plainfielders were chosen: Noah W. French, Albert C. Rogers, W. D. Manning, Walter H. Randolph, Edward R. Rowland, William Vogel, I. L. McVoy and John B. Groendyke. Fred Clark, of Fanwood, was also drawn for jury duty.

Lectured on Palestine.

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring continued the course of lectures on Palestine at the First Presbyterian church last evening, showing views of the traditional places involved in the cruifixion of Christ and the surrounding country.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dean, of Plainfield avenue, are the parents of a twelve pound boy, who came to their home last night.

Rev. Mr. Ferguson, of Philadelphia, an evangelist, will speak at the Plainfield Rescue Mission tonight at 8 o'clock. There will be special music.

The Dutch Arms Men's Association, of Trinity Reformed church, will hold its annual meeting tonight for the election of officers. An entertainment and refreshments will be provided.

Fight on Street.

George Gildersleeve, Francis Kenney and Mathew Stewart got into a "scrap" this noon at the corner of Fourth street and Park avenue and were arrested by Patrolman Saffron and Sergeant Overbaugh. They were arraigned before Mayor Moy in the city court at 2 o'clock and advised that fighting in the streets of this city is prohibited. Sentence was suspended in all three cases. Kenney tried to act as peacemaker between Stewart and Gildersleeve and apparently got the worst of the argument.

Reception for New Pastor.

Plans for a reception to be given the new pastor, Rev. E. C. Conover and his wife, the latter part of next week, will be discussed at a meeting to be held at the Temple Baptist church tomorrow night. Frank Stewart is the general chairman and the committee will represent every society in the church.

Scrappers Fined.

James Gillman and Richard Vananan, where arraigned before Recorder Dolliver this morning, charged with being general nuisances on Somerset street, Saturday night. They were engaged in a scrap when arrested. They were fined $3 each.

GOLF SEASON BEGINS AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

The formal opening of the season at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday afternoon and evening was noteworthy. An unusually large number of friends were present enjoying the afternoon tea, followed in the evening by about two hundred diners and a dance which continued until 11 o'clock. The women of the house committee had charge of the affair, and with the assistance of Superintendent John Hilton, made the opening an auspicious one for all. The dance in the evening was attended by a large number of guests and proved a happy incident to the day's pleasure.

The event on the golf course for the day was an 18-holes, medal play, handicap, for Classes A and B, and there were an unusual number of ties in both classes. The leading scores for the day were as follows:

Class A—S. D. Lounsbery, 81, 8-73; C. C. Burke, 88, 15-73; E. P. Goodwin, 88, 15-73; C. B. Morgan, 81, 6-75; E. T. Willson, 86, 10-76; R. G. Morse, 100, 13-87.

Class B—Hugh F. Fox, 90, 18-72; LeRoy H. Gates, 97, 25-72; C. M. Church, 97, 20-77; C. C. Riggs, 97, 20-77; A. W. Kleincke 104, 25-79; C. W. King, 105, 25-80.

ODD FELLOWS ADDRESSED BY REV. EDWIN SHAW.

A large delegation of members from the local Odd Fellows Lodges, Plainfield, No. 44, and Queen City, No. 226, together with their families attended a special service in the Seventh-Day Baptist church last night. An invitation had been extended by Rev. Edwin B. Shaw, who delivered an appropriate address on the subject "The Living Sacrifice," taking his subject from the twelfth chapter of second Romans. It held the close attention of the gathering throughout.

The regular choir of the church rendered a program of music, the members of the church quartet rendering solos. The service was greatly enjoyed by the Odd Fellows and thir friends.

Miss Rachel A. Day.

Many friends will learn with regret of the death of Miss Rachel A. Day, daughter of the late Rev. Mulford and Sarah Thompson Day, on Friday morning, May 12, at her home in New York City. Miss Day for many years a resident of this city where she was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends. Her sterling worth of character and her unselfish interest in others won her the life long regard of her associates and her true womanhood won her the respect of all. She was a devoted member of the First Methodist church and was also a member of the Current Events Club and Monday Afternoon Club during her residence here. She is survived by a sister, Miss Bessie Day, of New York city. The funeral will be private.

Santi Conti's Funeral.

The funeral of Santi Conti, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital, from injuries received in an auto accident on South avenue, last Tuesday, was held in St. Mary's church this morning. A solemn high mass was said by Father Sciola, assisted by Rev. Fathers Bogan and Hogan. It was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, six countrymen acting as pall bearers. An affecting scene was enacted at the grave side through the intense grief of Conti's father and sisters, between whom there was an unusually strong bond of kinship. There were a large number of floral tributes.

Observed "Mothers' Day."

"Mothers' Day" exercises of an informal character were held at the First Baptist church Sunday-school, yesterday afternoon, the school following a regular program prepared for the occasion. James E. Church, superintendent, was in charge. There were songs, concert recitations and a few words from Mr. Church and Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss.

Dumped Rubbish on Sidewalk.

Two men named Terry and Hewitt were apprahended by Chief Marshal Weiss today for dumping rubbish on the sidewalk near Greenbrook road and Grove street. The practice has been going on more or less for some time and people in the neighborhood have been complaining. The offenders will be arraigned before Recorder Dolfiver tomorrow.

The postal shower given the mother of Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, was a great success. She received 289 cards and has sent her thanks to the congregation.

Netherwood.....W. H. Olmstead

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Township Committee appointed Jacob Schackleton, of Park avenue, township recorder, at its meeting Friday night. This will place the township in position to take care of its own drunk and disorderly cases, instead of having them tried before a Plainfield or Westfield Justice, which has been the case since Joseph A. Clark resigned the office.

Scotch Plains defeated the N. Y. Blue Sox team in the game played at the 'Plains, by the score of 8 to 7. The game at times was loosely played, both Slocum, of the home team, and Finnegan, of the visitors, receiving poor support. The 'Plains won the game by a batting rally, in the inith, after Finnegan had walked two and forced a run.

The Mothers' service at the Baptist church yesterday morning was largely attended, Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews preched a special sermon and the men attending the service were all presented with white carnations to wear in honor of the day.

The baseball team has added another bleacher to its seating capacity, on Thoop's field. The new bleachers holds about 150. If the interest in the game is maintained a line of bleachers will be built along the first base line.

A well attended and most profitable meeting of the Epworth League was held in the class room of the Methodist church last night.

A straw ride party of young people from Newark, enjoyed yesterday picnicing on the mountains, near Washington Valley.

John Dingwall, of Park avenue, has returned from a visit of several days with old friends in New York.

The weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held last night in the church parlors.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Newark Y. M. C. A. team proved easy for the Dunellen baseball nine, Saturday, as may be seen by the score, 18 to 5. A much better game will probably result next Saturday when the locals will meet the Rahway Field Club on the Madison avenue grounds. On the following Saturday, Dunellen will cross bats with the Plainfield Club.

The executive committee of the Dunellen Board of Trade met Friday night and discussed several propositions that are to be taken up at the Board of Trade meeting Friday night.

Frederick C. Gladden, who contracted pneumonia while moving from Plainfield to the Woodruff house on Front street, is now greatly improved.

Robert Bogardus, manager of the Dunellen baseball team, will return to his duties in New York tomorrow, after a two weeks vacation.

The Vogel restaurant at Dewey Park is soon to be re-opened by William Taup, of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wiedenhurpt have been entertaining relatives from Brooklyn.

Mrs. John B. Eick, who has been ill for several weeks, is again in a serious condition.

Mrs. Firman H. Gise has recovered from an illness of several days.

SCOUTS COULDN'T FIND THE NETHERWOOD CURVES.

The Netherwood Juniors put it all over the Scotch Plains Boy Scouts team Saturday afternoon at the Highland Park grounds winning their game by a score of 8 to 6. Denny and Huff operated in the points for the Netherwoods while Santhard and Randolph officiated for the Scouts.

Score by innings:

Scouts	0	3	2	0	0	0	0	1	0	—6

WEEKLY COMPETITIONS AT PARK GOLF CLUB

In addition to the weekly competition for the President's and Golf Club cups at the Park Golf Club, Saturday afternoon, the women members enjoyed a tea at the clubhouse, which was in charge of the Misses Moody, who also gave a dinner for twelve in the evening. The social features at the club this season are delightful and serve to attract many members.

The competition for the scratch and handicap cups proved interesting, some good scores being returned as follows:

J. B. Betts, 116, 32-84; Alexander Gilbert, 105, 18-87; J. V. Beekman, 111, 23-88; A. M. Morrel, 115, 26-89; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 102, 11-91; F. G. Tingley, 100, 9-91; C. W. McCutchen, 102, 10-92; Miss Lydie Loizeaux, 107, 12-95; George A. Chapman, 110, 14-96; Rex. C. L. Goodrich, 109, 13-96; Charles B. Morse, 111,15-96; N. H. Morrison, 123, 23-100.

WESTERVELT'S DEFEAT GRANDVIEW AGGREGATION.

The Westervelts and the Grandviews crossed bats on Saturday at the Fairview avenue grounds, Westervelt winning by a score of 10 to 9, two sets of batteries were used by each club and the game was won in the ninth by a timely rally by Westervelt.

Score by innings:

Grandview	0	0	1	1	0	0	1	2	4	—9
Westervelt	2	0	0	0	0	2	0	2	4	—10

An Experiment

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

The lazy man of the village of Rawsonville was Silas White. He had been lazy for many years. There were several old residents who could remember that when he and his wife moved into the village he was a worker and ambitious. Then one day he attended a circus and was kicked by a giraffe. The circus men gave him a dollar as damages and sent him home. A doctor examined him and said no great harm had been done, but Silas took it into his head that he had received severe internal injuries and that any further labor would take him to his grave.

One afternoon when Silas had wandered down to the bridge over the river, for the first time in four years, some hilarious young men seized him and threw him over the railing. He did not resist. It would have been too much like work. It was expected, of course, that soon after striking the water the lazy man would set his legs and arms in motion and help himself ashore. He did nothing of the sort. He simply permitted himself to sink slowly and easily to the bottom, and he lay there until those who had flung him in helped him out.

Again, one winter's evening Silas was seized at his own gate and carried a mile away and flung into a snowdrift and told to lie there and freeze or make his way homeward. There was some slight doubt as to which course he would adopt, but it was soon settled. He snuggled down in a drift, and there he was found five hours later by the conscience stricken men who had left him. He had been frost bitten, but he had saved his reputation.

A dry goods drummer visiting the village heard of the case and recommended a cure and offered to administer it himself. At midnight a figure with horns and hoofs and tail, supposed to be a good imitation of our old friend down below, opened the unlocked door of the White cottage, and Silas and his wife were awakened to find the intruder in their bedroom. Mrs. White screamed out in terror. Silas took a long look and asked what was wanted.

"I want you!" was the answer in an awful voice.

"What fur?"

"I want you to come with me to the bottomless pit!"

"Then you'll have to carry me," replied the champion as he turned over toward the wall.

It was now realized that nothing could be done with such a man, and for years Silas was left to enjoy his laziness in peace. It was the general opinion that he would be too lazy to draw his last breath when the time came and that his uncomplaining wife would have to do it for him. There was to come a change, however. One day after the wife had placed a chair for him under an apple tree and left him to smoke and sleep she noticed a thunderstorm creeping up in the west. It was her duty to watch things and bring Silas in before the storm broke, but she suddenly decided to make an experiment. She would leave him where he was and see if he would seek shelter rather than get wet. It wasn't a bit like her to do this, and she never could make out why the thought came to her that day.

The black cloud grew larger, and the thunder muttered and the lightning flashed. Silas heard things and woke up. He saw the coming storm, and he saw his wife in the back door. He waited for her, but she did not come. Lightning did, however. There were twenty barns and houses and trees around for it to strike, but it ignored all of them and struck Silas White. It seemed to scatter him over half an acre of ground. It tore off his clothes and pulled off his boots. It burned off his whiskers and bleached his eyebrows. He was gathered up as a man dead as a doornail, but at the end of two hours he suddenly sat up. Silas was a little bewildered, but still in the ring.

There were half a dozen men in the house when the champion came to himself. They were expecting to hear him drawlingly ask what had happened when he jumped off the bed and began driving them out. In five minutes he had cleared the house of mourners. Then, in spite of the tearful protests of his wife, he seized the ax and cut more firewood than he had in six years before. When he dropped the ax at last it was to pick up hammer and nails and begin patching up the hog holes in the fence. Before night he had weeded the garden and put a new hinge on the gate.

People came to ask Silas how he felt when struck by the thunderbolt, and he answered at the top of his voice and rolled out the words so fast that he could hardly be understood. He couldn't bear to be still a minute.

That thunderbolt had changed Silas White from a champion lazy man to a champion hustler. He uprooted trees, pulled down fences and dug holes in the garden. Inside a week he had four fights about politics and called every man in the village a liar. They couldn't stop him from working and talking. He got to pulling down the shade trees along the street and to making speeches on the postoffice steps, and after a fortnight, as there was nothing more he could hustle for and nothing more he could talk about, he committed suicide by hanging. At the inquest the coroner said:

"I don't reckon we are goin' to blame the Widder White any in this case, but it's the solemnest kind of a warnin' to wives agin gittin' a hustle on a lazy husband."

BREAD WITHOUT FLOUR.

The Parisians Have a Process by Which Whole Wheat Grain Is Used.

Parisian bread is made without flour in a machine that transforms the wheat into dough. The machine consists mainly of a large screw turning loosely in a case on whose inner surface is a screw thread running in an opposite direction.

Between the main threads on the cylinder are smaller threads, and the depth of the groove grows progressively smaller from one end to the other, so that it will hold the entire wheat grain as it enters the machine and will accommodate only the pulverized wheat at the exit.

The wheat is prepared by a thorough washing, after which about a pint of tepid water to a pound of grain is added, and the whole is allowed to stand about six hours. At the end of this time the grains of wheat have swollen to double their ordinary size. It is then mixed with the yeast and salt and poured into the machine. It falls between the threads of the moving screw and of the fixed contrary screw, which simultaneously crush the envelope and body of the grain, making of them a homogeneous mixture which forms a smooth paste.

Bread obtained by this process contains a succession of holes whose size increases as they approach the crust, which is thin. The odor given off is most agreeable and far more pronounced than that of ordinary baker's bread. —Chicago Tribune.

BIZET AND HALEVY.

The Story of the Origin of a Popular Air in "Carmen."

Bizet, the composer of the world famous opera "Carmen," and Halevy, his librettist, once occupied apartments whose outer doors opened on the same landing. As soon as he had finished an air Bizet would hasten to submit it to his neighbor, who subjected it to the most severe criticism. From morning to night the piano resounded in the composer's apartments. One night Bizet finished a dramatic bit in which he flattered himself he had successfully sketched the pride of a triumphant toreador after a successful bullfight. But Halevy listened in silence and showed but a moderate enthusiasm. Bizet, somewhat piqued, asked the cause of this coldness.

"It's good, I admit," said Halevy. "In fact, it's too good. It lacks movement; it lacks snap—in short, it's not popular enough."

"Not popular enough!" shouted the piqued composer. "Do you want to write for the slums?" He went out in a huff, but soon relented and in an hour returned with another air. "Listen to this," said he. "Here is my toreador idea written down to your popular level." It was indeed the song of the toreador and the only one which on the first night received an encore and seemed to move the first night audience from its torpor.

Ax Head Money.

When Schliemann was digging at the supposed site of Troy he discovered masses of silver in the form of ax heads. Gotze suggested that these were intended not for implements, but for money. Bronze ax heads have also been discovered in ancient remains, mingled with metal pieces in the form of rings, in such a manner as to suggest that all alike were intended to serve as money, and the conclusion is drawn that in ancient times the metal ax head had come to be a popular unit of value for purposes of barter. After it had disappeared as actual money the memory of it, according to this theory, was preserved in the coins of Tenedos, which bore the figure of an ax head. It has been suggested that the "wedge of gold" which Achan stole from the spoils of Jericho and for the stealing of which Joshua had him stoned to death was a specimen of the ancient ax head money.—Harper's Weekly.

A Youthful Joke.

"When Mark Twain was the editor of the Virginia City Enterprise," said an essayist at the Franklin inn in Philadelphia, "a servant girl in the neighboring town of Lovelock unexpectedly fell heir to $300,000. Her name was Miriam Rogers. A day or two after the announcement, while all Virginia City and Lovelock hummed with Miriam's good luck, Mark Twain printed on the editorial page of the Enterprise this paragraph:

"'If Miriam Rogers of Lovelock, who recently inherited a large fortune, will call at this office she will hear something greatly to her advantage. We are bachelors.'"—New York Press.

Surmounting a Difficulty.

A man of tact always manages to get out of a difficulty. The clerk of a parish in England whose business it was to read the first lesson in the church came across the chapter in David in which the names Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego occur twelve times.

Finding it extremely difficult to pronounce these names, he went through the chapter referring to them as "the aforesaid gentlemen."

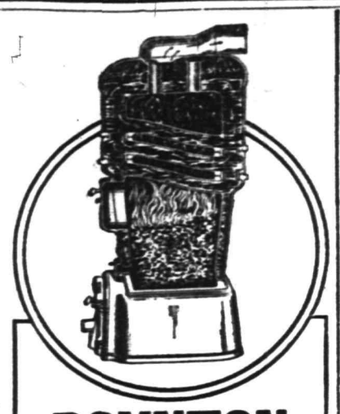
Her Self Possession.

"Miss Oldcastle is always self possessed no matter what happens."

"Well, she ought to be seeing that she has had practice in the self possession line for at least thirty-five years."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Elusive Economy.

Economy, unlike charity, doesn't usually begin at home. In fact, economy doesn't begin anywhere as often as it should.—Atchison Globe.



BOYNTON "Square Pot" BOILERS

are the basis of the best hot water heating system known—the BOYNTON dealers in your town can demonstrate this to your satisfaction.

BOYNTON boilers have the same square fire pot which has so long made BOYNTON hot-air heaters famous. This fire pot gives perfect, hence economical, combustion. Being square cornered, it clears of ashes instantly. It's never necessary to fuss or bother with a "BOYNTON" fire. BOYNTON "square pot" boilers give even, easily controlled heat, from cellar to farthest radiator.

Look at the sectional cut above and see how perfectly the Boynton is arranged for quick steaming.

ENGLAND'S LIGHTHOUSES.

The Seven Districts Are Controlled by a Board Known as the "Elder Brethen."

The lighthouse service of England is controlled by a board composed of thirteen "elder brethren." When a vacancy occurs one of the "younger brethren" is selected by the "elder brethren" to fill it. The position is for life, and the salary is £500 a year. Any commanding officer of the navy or master of the merchant marine is eligible for election as one of the "younger brethren" by the "elder brethren." There is no salary attached to the position, but they are eligible for election as one of the "elder brethren."

England is divided into seven lighthouse districts, each in charge of a superintendent. The superintendents are persons who enter the service as apprentices at the age of thirteen and have worked up to the position of master on board of a steam tender. They are selected for the position of superintendent by the "elder brethren." A superintendent has control of his district and its employees.

Lightkeepers are appointed for life. They enter the service between the ages of nineteen and twenty-eight, and their salaries are regulated according to length of service and not according to station. Lightkeepers as well as the other employees of the lighthouse service are pensioned when too old to perform duty. There is a regular lightship service, also for life, and the officers are selected from the men. The men enter between the ages of nineteen and twenty-eight, but must have been at sea. They are then eligible to work up to lamplighter, mate and master. These men are pensioned when too old to serve.

FAMOUS GOODWOOD.

Something About a Historic English Race Course.

The Goodwood race course is quite unique. It is a long way from a station and is not near any town, says the London Tatler. It is on a hill the top of which is shaped like a horseshoe, the space between the two horns being represented by a deep ravine. The course runs round the horseshoe, the start being at the end of one horn and the finish at the end of the other. The result of this is that the equestrians who on other courses contrive to see both start and finish by the simple process of riding across while the race is in progress cannot do so at Goodwood. They must elect which they will see and remain there. On the other hand, the course is very easy to follow with glasses.

The races as an institution are comparatively modern, but there must have been hunt races and matches on this course since the days of William III., when we hear of the Goodwood hunt as in existence. In 1800, however, the then Duke of Richmond made a new course, which is practically the present one. In 1801 the course was completed, and in order to celebrate this a regular meeting was got up by the duke with the assistance of the hunt and some officers of the Sussex militia and yeomanry, and prizes to the value of about £1,000 were put up. This meant a good sum in those days. This was the first Goodwood meeting of importance, and from that year it became an annual event.

Microscopic Measurement.

The measurement of microscopic objects is done by rulings on glass, which are produced by wonderfully delicate machines. These rulings are constructed so as to accurately divide an inch or any other unit of measurement into any desired number of parts—as, for instance, one one-hundredth of an inch or one one-thousandth of an inch or even one ten-thousandth of an inch. The finest rulings thus far produced by any of the machines are at the rate of something like 200,000 to the inch. Some idea of the closeness of the ruled lines can be obtained from considering that a thousand such lines would occupy only the space included in the thickness of a sheet of ordinary writing paper.—New York American.

An Old Family.

Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, talking to a friend about the antiquity of his family, was told roughly that he was "a mere mushroom."

"How is that?" he asked indignantly.

"Why," said the other, "when I was in Wales a pedigree of a particular family was shown to me which filled more than five large parchment skins, and near the middle of it was a note in the margin, 'About this time the world was created.'"

The King Is Wrong.

"The king can do no wrong," quoted the wise guy.

"Oh, that's all rot!" retorted the simple mug, who had been up late the night before. "Suppose you were drawing to a straight and wanted either a deuce or a seven spot."—Philadelphia Record.

He Knew.

"Say, pa."

"Well, what is it?"

"Pa, what is alfalfa?"

"It's a slang term for whiskers, son," replied the city man as he resumed his novel.—Washington Herald.

What He Remembered.

"Who was the man in the iron mask?"

"I don't remember the catcher's name, but I can tell you who pitched."—New York Press.

By refusing to listen to secrets one is saved unlimited trouble.

The House of the Whispering Pines

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910, by Anna Katharine Rohlfs

I lingered till I heard the faint click of her key in the door she had secretly made her own; then I moved on. As I did so I heard a rustle somewhere about me on street or lawn. I never knew whence it came, but I felt assured that neither her fears nor mine had been quite unfounded—that a listener had been posted somewhere near us and that a part, if not all, we had said had been overheard. I was furious for an instant; then the soothing thought came that possibly Providence had ordained that the Gordian knot should be cut in just this way.

But the event bore no ostensible fruit. The week ended, and the case of the people against Arthur Cumberland was moved for trial.

CHAPTER XVII.

ALL THIS STOOD.

I SHALL spare you the opening details of the trial, also much of preliminary testimony. Enough that at the close of the sixth day the outlook was a serious one for Arthur Cumberland. The prosecution appeared to be making good its claims. The quiet and unexpectedly dignified way in which at the beginning the defendant had faced the whole antagonistic courtroom with the simple plea of "Not guilty" was being slowly but surely forgotten in the accumulated proofs of his discontented life under his sister's dominating influence, his desire for independence and a free use of the money held in trust for him by this sister under their father's will, the quarrels which such a situation would naturally evoke between characters cast in such different molds and actuated by such opposing tastes and principles, and the final culmination of the same at the dinner table when Adelaide forced him, as it were, to subscribe to her prohibition of all further use of liquor in their house. Following this evidence of motive came the still more damaging one of opportunity. He was shown to have been in the clubhouse at or near the time of Adelaide's death. The matter of the bottles was gone into and the event in Cuthbert road. Then I was called to the stand and my testimony asked for.

I had prepared myself for the ordeal and faced it unflinchingly. That I might keep intact the one point necessary to Carmel's safety I met my inquisitors now, as before, with the utmost candor in all other respects. Indeed, in one particular I was even more exact in my details than at any previous examination. I acknowledged what I had hitherto concealed, that in my first entrance into the clubhouse I had come upon a man's derby hat and coat hanging in the lower hall, and when questioned more minutely on the subject allowed it to appear that it was owing to the disappearance of these articles during my stay upstairs that I had been led into saying that some one had driven away from the Whispering Pines before the coming of the police.

This, as you will see, was in open contradiction of my former statements that I had seen an unknown party thus attired driving away through the upper gateway just as I entered by the lower. But it was a contradiction which, while noted by Mr. Moffat, Arthur's lawyer, failed to injure me with the jury and much less with the spectators. That I should prevaricate even to my own detriment at a preliminary examination only to tell the truth openly and like a man when in court and under the sanctity of an oath was, in the popular estimation, something to my credit, and Mr. Moffat, whose chief recommendation as counsel lay in his quick appreciation of the exigencies of the moment, did not press me too sharply on this point when he came to his cross examination.

But in other respects he drove me hard. An effort was made by him first of all to discredit me as a witness. My lack of appreciation for Adelaide and my secret but absorbing love for Carmel were inexorably brought out; also the easy, happy-go-lucky tenor of my life and my dogged persistence in any course I thought consistent with my happiness. My character was well known in this town of my birth, and it would have been folly for me to attempt to gloss it over. I had not even the desire to do so. If my sins exacted penance I would pay it here and now and to the full. Only Carmel should not suffer. I refused to admit that she had given any evidences of returning my reckless passion. My tongue would not speak the necessary words, and it was not made to. It was not her character, but mine, which Mr. Moffat was endeavoring to assail.

But though I was thus shown up for what I was, in a manner most public and undesirable, neither the rulings of the court nor the attitude of the jury betrayed any loss of confidence in me as a credible witness, and, seeing this, the wily lawyer shifted his ground and confined himself to an endeavor to shake me on certain definite and important points concerning my finding of the body. The [illegible] branched off into a long [illegible] topic and cross examined me in regard to the ring. I had said that it was on her hand when I bade goodby to her in her own house and that it was not there when I came upon her dead. Had the fact made me curious to examine the hand? No. Then I could not tell whether the finger on which she wore it gave any evidence of this ring having been pulled off with violence? No. I could not swear that in my opinion it was? I could not.

The small flask of cordial and the three glasses, one clean and the others showing signs of having been used, were next taken up, but with no result for the defense. I had told all I knew about these in my direct examination; also about such matters as the bottles found on the kitchen table, the leaving of my keys at the Cumberland house and the fact, well known, that the two bottles of wine left in the wine vault and tabulated by the steward as so left in the list found in my apartments were of an exclusive brand unlikely to be found anywhere else in town. I could add nothing more, and, having spoken the exact truth concerning them from the very first, I ran no chance of contradicting myself, even under the close fire of the opposing counsel.

But there was a matter I dreaded to see him approach and which, I was equally sure, with an insight unshared, I believe, by any one else in the whole courtroom, was equally dreaded by the prisoner.

This was the presence in the clubhouse chimney of the half burned letter I had long ago been compelled in my own defense to acknowledge having written to the victim's young sister, Carmel Cumberland. As I saw District Attorney Fox about to enter upon this topic I gathered myself together to meet the onslaught, for in this matter I could not be strictly truthful, since the least slip on my part might awaken the whole world to the fact that it could only have come there through the agency of Carmel herself.

What Mr. Moffatt thought of it—what he hoped to prove in the prisoner's behalf by raking this subject over—it was left for me to discover later. The prisoner was an innocent man in his eyes. I was not, and, while the time had not come for him to make this openly apparent, he was not above showing even now that the case contained a factor which weakened the prosecution—a factor totally disassociated with the only accepted theory that the crime was simply the result of personal cupidity and drunken spite.

And in this he was right. It did weaken it—weakened it to the point of collapse, if the counsel for the defense had fully acted up to his opportunity. But something withheld him. Just at the moment when I feared the truth must come out he hesitated and veered gradually away from this subject. In his nervous pacings to and fro before the witness stand his eye had rested for a moment on Arthur's, and with this result: The situation was saved, but at a great loss to the defendant.

I began to cherish softened feelings toward Arthur Cumberland from this moment. Was it then or later that he began in his turn to cherish new and less hostile feelings toward myself? He had hated me and vowed my death if I escaped the fate he could now dimly see opening out before himself, yet I could see that he was glad to see me slip from my tormentor's hands with my story unimpeached and that he drew his breath more deeply and with much more evidence of freedom now that my testimony had been thoroughly sifted and nothing had come to light implicating Carmel. I even thought I caught a kindly gleam in his eye as it met mine at this critical juncture, and by its light I understood my man and what he hoped from me. He wished me, at any risk to himself, to unite with him in saving Carmel's good name. That I should accede to this, that I should respect his generous wishes and let him go to unmerited destruction for even so imperative an obligation as we both lay under, was a question for the morrow.

Several short examinations followed mine, all telling in their nature, all calculated to fix in the minds of the jury the following facts:

First.—That Arthur, swayed by cupidity and moved to rage by the scene at the dinner table, had by some unknown means of a more or less violent character prevailed upon Adelaide to accompany him to the Whispering Pines in the small cutter to which, in the absence of every servant about the place, he himself had harnessed the gray mare.

Second.—That in preparation for this visit to a spot remote from observation and closed against all visitors they, still for some unknown reason, had carried between them a candlestick and candle, a flask of cordial, three glasses and a small bottle marked "Poison;" also some papers, letters or scraps of correspondence among them the compromising line I had written to Carmel.

Third.—That while in this building at an hour not yet settled, a second altercation had risen between them or some attempt been made by the brother which had alarmed Adelaide and sent her flying to the telephone in great agitation with an appeal to the police for help. This telephone was in a front room, and the jury was led to judge that she had gained access to it while her companion ransacked the wine vault and brought the six bottles of spirit up from the cellar.

Fourth.—That her outcry had alarmed the prisoner in his turn, causing him to leave most of the bottles below, and hasten up to the room where he completed the deed with which he had previously threatened her.

Fifth.—That poison having failed, he resorted to strangulation, after or before, came the robbery of the ring, the ruling motive of the [illegible]

You Can't Beat the Domestic

There are three things that the Domestic will do that no other sewing machine in the world can do, and the cheap machine can do none of them, namely:

1. The Chain and Lock Stitch—two machines in one—and you can change from one to the other without fuss or trouble.

2. A Vibrating Presser, so useful in sewing sheer and gauzy stuffs, for darning, braiding and embroidery work, also an advantage in passing thick seams and sewing thick goods.

3. A Five-Stitch Ruffler which gives a plait at every fifth stitch, also gathering, puffing, ruching,. scallop plaiting, crepe trimming, as well as plain ruffling.

One or two machines may give you one of these features—just one—but not all three in the one machine.

The heads of the Domestic Sewing Machine are beautifully symmetrical and the cabinet work rich and perfectly finished, bent woodwork noted for its lightness and durability being largely used in the construction. The Domestic Machines, therefore, have beauty, grace and proportion, combined with strength and superior finish.

We will sell only the new style Domestics, of which there are five—all high class, all of dependable character—at these prices: $25, $30, $35 and $40.

THE BOWED HEAD OF ELLA FULTON.

over the body in a vain endeavor to hide the deed or to prolong the search for the victim, then the departure, the locking of the front door behind the perpetrator, the flight of the gray horse and cutter through the blinding storm, the blowing off of the driver's hat, the identification of the same by means of the flour mark left on its brim by the mechanic's wife, the presence of a portion of one of the two abstracted bottles in the stable where the horse was put up and the appearance of Arthur with the other bottle at the door of the inn in Cuthbert road just as the clock was striking half past 11.

This latter fact might have been regarded as proving an alibi, owing to the length of road between the Cumberland house and the place just mentioned, if there had not been a short cut to town open to him by means of a door in the wall separating the Cumberland and Fulton grounds—a door which was found unlocked and with the key in it by Zadok Brown, the coachman, when he came home about 3 next morning.

All this stood. Not an item of this testimony could be shaken. Most of it was true, some of it false, but what was false so unassailable by any ordinary means that, as I have already said, the clouds seemed settling heavily over Arthur Cumberland when, at the end of the sixth day, the proceedings closed.

I was early in my seat. My first glance around the courtroom was unproductive. I saw only the usual public, such as had confronted us the whole week, with curious and increasing interest. But as I searched further I discerned in an inconspicuous corner the bowed head, veiled almost beyond recognition, of Ella Fulton. It was her first appearance in court. With her were her father and her cold and dominating mother, and beholding her thus accompanied I fancied I understood an agitation manifested by Mr. Moffat. But another glance at Mrs. Fulton assured me that I was mistaken in this hasty surmise. No such serious purpose as I feared lay back of their presence here today. Curiosity alone explained it, and as I realized what this meant and how little understanding it betokened of the fierce struggle then going on in the timid breast of their distracted child a sickening sense of my own responsibility drove Carmel's beauty and Carmel's claims temporarily from my mind, and, following the direction of Ella's thoughts, if not her glances, I sought in the face of the prisoner a recognition of her presence, if not of the promise this presence brought him.

His eye had just fallen on her. I was assured of this by the sudden softening of his expression—the first real softening I had ever seen in it. It was but a momentary flash, but it was unmistakable in its character, as was his speedy return to his former stolidity.

The opening testimony of the day, while not vital, was favorable to the prosecution in that it showed Arthur's conduct since the murder to have been inconsistent with perfect innocence. Many facts were brought forward in grim array against the prisoner, with but little opposition from his counsel and small betrayal of feeling on the part of Arthur himself. His stolid face had remained stolid even when the ring which had fallen out of his sister's casket was shown to the jury and the connection made between its presence there and the intrusion of his hand into the same.

Then came the great event of the day, in anticipation of which the courtroom had been packed and every heart within it awakened by slow degrees to a state of great nervous expectancy. The prosecution rested, and the junior counsel for the defense opened his case to the jury.

If I had hoped for any startling disclosure, calculated to establish his client's alleged alibi or otherwise to free the same from the definite charge of murder, I had reason to be greatly disappointed by this maiden effort of a young and inexperienced lawyer. If not exactly weak there was an unexpected vagueness in its statements which seemed quite out of keeping with the emphatic declaration which he made of the prisoner's innocence.

Even Arthur was sensible of the bad effect made by this preliminary address. More than once during its delivery, and notably at its conclusion, he turned to Mr. Moffat with a bitter remark, which was not without effect on that gentleman's cheek and at once called forth a retort stinging enough to cause Arthur to sink back into his place with the first sign of restlessness I had observed in him.

"Moffat is sly. Moffat has something up his sleeve. I will wait till he sees fit to show it," was my thought. Then, as I caught a wild and pleading look from Ella, I added in positive assertion to myself, "And so must she."

Answering her unspoken appeal with an admonitory shake of the head, I carelessly let my fingers rest upon my mouth until I saw that she understood me and was prepared to follow my lead for a little while longer.

SHOOTING AT BURGLARS.

The killing recently of a girl of 16 by her brother, only two years older, who thought he was firing at a burglar, is one of the tragedies of life of unrelieved sorrow. It is an error that blotted out one young life and blasted that of another. For the grief and anguish that this entails there can be no mitigation. It means years of sorrow—sorrow that blights and withers the very source of life.

Burglars are seldom shot, but the shooting of a member of the household who is mistaken for a burglar is an occurrence which is not infrequent. What is the best course to take with a burglar is a difficult question. Action that would be courageous and praiseworthy in the case of one man would be foolish rashness if attempted by another, but shooting at a moving object not clearly seen is always foolish and full of peril, and should never be done.

Firearms as a protection against burglars are a vain reliance. In the hands of a nervous, excited and just-awakened man or woman they are more dangerous that the burglar. Lock the burglar out if you can, but if they enter in spite of you it is usually best and always safest to let them alone. In any event, never shoot at random. — Philadelphia Press.

WALSH'S CURVES POUNDED.

Middlesex Borough Nine Won the Contest by Score of 18 to 5— Nonamaker Made a Great Grandstand Play.

The Dunellen baseball team gave the Newark Y. M. C. A. aggregation a surprise at Dunellen, Saturday afternoon, defeating the latter by a score of 18 to 5. The Dunellen players pounded Walsh's benders to all corners of the lot, while the Newarkers were unable to do anything with Wendt's speedy and quick-breaking curves, not even securing an earned run during the contest. It was on easy victory for Dunellen. A feature of the game was a brilliant running catch of a foul ball by Nonamaker. The score:

'FLATDWELLERS' HEAR THE 'ROOSTERS' CROW

When Mr. Morgan "whanged" out a four-bagger over center-fielder Hylan's head Saturday afternoon, two men trotted in ahead of him and settled the game. The clash was between the "Flat dwellers," of Brooklyn, and the "West Seventh Street Commuters," and there were several things doing on the West Seventh street grounds then.

The Brooklynites had the game cinched up to the eighth when Mr. Morgan lined out his big bit, but when the fracas subsided Brooklyn had wilted. Holley and Dooley did some big league stunts with the sphere while acting as the visitors battery, but they had nothing on Randolph and Davey when it came to playing baseball.

Anyway, the commuters won by a score of 16 to 15 and there was some rejoicing. The "Flatdwellers" are coming again and maybe there'll be a different record made on the next visit. Here's the lineup and score: Flatdwellers—Stringham, 1b; Steen, 2b; N. B. Stringham, 3b; Holly, p; H. Stringham, rf; Chappeus, ss; Davey, lf; Hylan, c; A. Holly, cf. Commuters—Norman Stringham, 1b; C. Vail, 2b; Hyland, 3b;; Morgan, ss and p; Randolph, p and ss; Davey, c; C. Manning, rf; Irving Lyle, lf; Vail, cf.

Mr. Randolph struck out nine men and Mr. Holly made seven fan the air. Many of the fair sex applauded the brilliant work of both sides.

Flatdwellers ..1 2 0 4 5 3 0 0 0—15

FOR PLAINFIELD PUPILS

The Plainfield Ice & Supply Co. will give a prize of $25 in cash to the pupil of any school, public or private, in Plainfield or North Plainfield, who shall submit the best written advertisement for the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company's business, to occupy a space equal to the space taken by this announcement.

The judges will be the Editors of the Courier-News and Daily Press. The conditions will be as follows:

The advertisement as written should be sent to the office of the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., with a separate sheet of paper attached, bearing the writer's name, and name of the school he or she attends. Both sheets thus submitted will be numbered by the Company in the order received, and the sheet bearing the name of the contestant will be held by the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., and the advertisement with the corresponding number will be sent to the judges, so that the judges will have no knowledge of the name of the writer. The advertisement which is decided to be the best will be so marked, and sent to the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company, who will by reference to the sheets in their possession, determine the name of the successful contestant.

The contest will end May 30, all letters received up to midnight of that day being eligible to the competition.

EXEMPTS TO MEET

Convention in Newark Tomorrow With Parade and Banquet.

MAY ELECT JOHN KENNELL.

Changes in By-Laws Sure to Be Adopted—H. G. Adams to Be Executive Secretary— A Meeting Tonight.

The New Jersey Exempt Firemen's Association which convenes in the Colosseum in Newark tomorrow for the annual convention promises to be the biggest event of its kind ever held by the association. Some drastic changes in the by-laws are contemplated and the slate for officers for the coming year is practically complete. President Manning will occupy the chair and Mayor Hausling, of Newark, will give an address of welcome. Rev. Oscar E. Braune will offer prayer and the convention will be called to order at 10 o'clock in the morning.

The convention marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the association and souvenirs will be distributed to all the visiting delegates. Arrangements have been made by the entertainment committee to provide dinners for the several hundred men who represent the eighty different companies in the State.

Edward McCreath, president of the Newark association, will tender the visiting delegates an invitation to tour the city. In this part of the entertainment Chief McCreath will be assisted by David E. Benedict, chief of the Newark paid department. The committee has decided to call the meeting an hour earlier than was originally intended in order to allow the visiting delegates to take in the automobile rides and other amusements which will be placed at the disposal of the visitors.

Several prominent men will speak at the banquet which will follow the business meeting, four political leaders of Hudson and Essex county being among those who will address the diners. The parade which it is expected will exceed any ever held before, will start at 3 o'clock promptly and eighty companies will be in line with their ancient and modern apparatus.

It is believed that John Kennell, of Passaic, will be elected president of the association as he has the support of 44 of the 80 subsidiary associations. E. M. Humphrey is slated for the secretaryship of the main organization, while Nicholas Snyder will undoubtedly get the treasurership. Horace Adams, who is secretary of the executive committee, is practically sure of re-election.

Following the meeting at Perth Amboy last year, several amendments were proposed to the constitution and by-laws of the association and these will be acted upon at the meeting tomorrow. The executive committee does not approve of the appointment of a "State Organizer" preferring that a member from each Congressional district be empowered to act in the capacity of organizer, which would serve to increase not only the membership of the association, but its efficiency, by putting the right man in the right place at the right time. In the coming election of officers, the secret ballot will be employed thus preventing any collusion which it is said has characterized the conventions heretofore.

There will be extended to the legislative committee of the association a vote of thanks for their splendid work during the past year in behalf of the organization. An emergency committee consisting of J. McDonald, district No. 9; J. Fitzpatrick, district No. 10, and Joseph Danner, of district No. 3, has been appointed to look after the visiting delegates tomorrow.

Mr. Adams and P. W. Welch, of Phillipsburg, will meet with the executive committee tonight with the State committee to make final arrangements for the convention.

Funeral of Mrs. Rennemann.

The funeral service of Mrs. Lena Rennemann, widow of John Rennemann was held at her late home, 33 Codington avenue, at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and was largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. C. C. Cain, pastor of the Grace M. E. church, conducted the service and the burial was at Coontown. The bearers were Messrs. Horne, Hehr George Friday, Peter Friday, William Miller and John Miller.

Funeral of Miss Harriott.

The funeral service of Miss Isabelle Harriott, daughter of Mrs. Jane M. Harriott, of Watchung ovenue, was held at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the late home, there being a large attendance of friends and neighbors. Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson, rector of Grace church; officiated and the burial was in Hillside cemetery.

SMALL BOY HAPPY; THE CIRCUS IS HERE

The Frank A. Robbins show, which gives a matinee and night performance at West Front street and Grant avenue, today is bigger and better than ever, carrying more animals and regulation circus acts than in previous years and having more wagons and other appurtenances with which to make an impressive street parade in the cities and towns which it includes in its route. When all the animals were taken from Newark, where they had been used for museum exhibition purposes for several weeks before the opening of the outdoor season, they were in fine condition. They were materially added to in number and variety and now provide one of the finest traveling zoo exhibits in the country. The show and work horses of the Robbins concern are also in especially fine condition this season after a winter in the mountains of Pike county, Pennsylvania; the tents are practically all new and the wagons, both for show and transportation purposes, were all put into the very best condition before the start was made from Jersey City. The special train of more than a score of cars in which the circus travels when long jumps are made in its routs were also completely overhauled before the necessity for their actual use this year arose, new trappings for all the acts were provided and not a single thing in the outfit was overlooked in the renovation process.

It is expected that next season the show will be further enlarged and that it will then include in its itinerary some of the larger cities on the tent show circuit of the country.

MRS. REED OBSERVES NINETY-SIXTH YEAR

Mrs. S. P. Reed is celebrating her ninety-sixth birthday today surrounded by her relatives and decendants. Mrs. Reed is staying at Truell Inn and in her company are Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Aspinwall, of Washington, D. C.; Miss Reed, of this city; Mrs. Thomas Mitchell, W. H. Reed, Miss Jennie M. Reed, all of this city; the Misses Shaw, of Morristown; Mrs. Lardner, of Montclair; Mrs. Edmund J. Lee, a granddaughter, Rev. Dr. W. H. Neilson and Mrs. C. P. Walrod, Mrs. Reed's faithful attendant, who has cared for her for the past fourteen years.

Among the many handsome presents received by Mrs. Reed today were some magnificent bouquets and cut flowers. A birthday cake, made especially for the occasion will be cut this evening.

A cablegram from Paris, France, was received by Mrs. Reed this morning from a relative in which congratulations were extended. Mrs. Reed appears to be enjoying the best of health and seems to enjoy the rounding out of her more than four score years and ten.

CHILDREN'S PLAY GETS PARENTS INTO COURT.

In the borough court this morning, Alonzo Terry and Mrs. Hewitt, of Greenbrook road, appeared on a charge of throwing rubbish on the dump opposite their home. A suspended sentence of $5 was placed on each.

The offense on which the complaints were based was the outcome of children's play. Some unknown person threw a couple of old extension bed-sticks on the dump and they were discovered by boys in the two families. They hauled them into their yards to play acrobat on and spread the contents all about. The parents discovered the rubbage later and threw it back where it came from. Some neighbors saw the action with the result that a complaint was preferred to the police.

TO INVESTIGATE NEW FORM OF GOVERNMENT.

George L. Babcock, president of the Chamber of Commerce, today appointed a committee to investigate and report upon the feasibility of that plan of administration for Plainfield for that body. The committee consists of Alexander Gilbert, chairman; L. V. F. Randolph, A. E. Force, D. E. Titsworth and R. Henry Depew.

Will Attend Veterans Convention.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Struthers, of Leland avenue, will leave tomorrow for Trenton, where Mr. Struthers will attend the State G. A. R. encampment as a delegate. During the past wek Mr. Struthers has been visiting the public schools and telling the children the good work they are able to do in decorating and beautifying graves of the veterans of the Civil War. From Tenton, Mr. and Mrs. Struthers will go to Ocean Grove to remain until the last of June.

BIG ADVANCE SALE

The Receipts for "The Henrietta" Have Reached $800 Already.

IT OPENS TOMORROW NIGHT

Plainfield Anti-Tuberculosis Society for Whose Benefit It is Given Holds a Busy Session.

The report of the committee on the sale of tickets for "The Henrietta," to be given at The Plainfield theatre, Thursday and Friday nights by the Park Comedy Club assures that the play is already a financial success. The report was received at the meeting of the executive committee of the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, in the Babcock building, last night. Thus 350 tickets at $2 each have been disposed of and four boxes at $25 each, making a total of $800 received.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $290. Dr. F. J. Hughes presented a report for the house committee showing that everything is going along satisfactorily at the camp. The work there is to be extended on June 1 by opening the camp to six patients. They will arrive in the morning and have a day of rest with plenty of substantial nourishment and the care of the attendants. Miss Phillips read the report of the visiting nurse, showing a visiting list of thirty-six patients.

Hugh F. Fox, chairman of the publicity committee, was not able to be present, but communicated with the committee, designating members of various sub-committees and requesting that the league consider the subject of establishing a joint board with the other charities of the city for the support of a nursing staff. Dr. F. J. Hughes, Miss Phillips and Judge William Newcorn were appointed a committee to consult with other societies in regard to the subject.

The secretary of the New Jersey Society for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis requesting that three delegates be appointed to attend the annual meeting on May 24, was received. President W. S. Tyler appointed F. J. Hughes, Miss Phillips and Dr. Krans to attend this meeting in Newark.

The local workers were much interested in learning from the directory of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, just published, that over 560 cities and towns in the United States and 100 in Canada, are engaged in the war on consumption and that on April 1 there were nearly 1,500 different agencies at work in the crusade an increase of nearly 700 per cent. in the last seven years.

The new directory lists 421 tuberculosis sanatoriums, hospitals and day camps; 511 associations and committees for the prevention of tuberculosis; 342 special dispensaries; 58 open air schools; 98 hospitals for the insane and penal institutions making special provisions for their tuberculosis inmates; besides giving an account of the anti-tuberculosis legislation in every State and in about 250 cities. The directory, which is the third of its kind that has ever been published in this country, gives the most complete survey of the anti-tuberculosis movement that can be secured, and shows the remarkable growth of this campaign in the last seven years.

REV. WILLIAM SPURGEON TO GIVE TWO LECTURES

Rev. William Spurgeon, of London, England, a cousin to the famous Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon, the English preacher, will be the guest of Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, June 17, 18 and 19. On Saturday evening he will lecture in the Park Avenue Baptist church on "Advice to Married People," and on Sunday morning he will preach on the theme, "The Greatest Attractive Force in the World," at night on the subject: Moses, or Is Religion an Advantage?"

On Mondey evening Mr. Spurgeon will lecture on "An Englishman's Impression." Mr. Spurgeon is an old friend of Mr. Maguire and when the latter heard that the London preacher was at Atlantic City, he immediately planned to have him spend three days in Plainfield.

Mayor Looks Circus Over.

August Schwab, who claims no relationship with the steel magnate, told Mayor George W. V. Moy, this morning that so far as he knew there were no objectionable features connected with the Frank Robbins circus and that he was positive that no pickpockets or thieves were following the show. Mayor Moy said he would make a personal investigation this morning and determine the exact status of the circus.

BENEFIT FOR COLLEGE AT THEATRE ON MAY 25

The entertainment being planned for the benefit of the building fund of Mt. St. Mary College, will be given at the Plainfield theatre, Thursday evening, May 25, by twelve local lodges and societies. Each one will turnish fifteen minutes' entertainment and a fine program is assured.

The lodges who will join in the movement include Wetumpka Tribe, I. O. R. M., Miantonomo Tribe, I. O. R. M., Fraternal Order Eagles, Division No. 4, A. O. H., Plainfield Council, No. 294 , Jr. O. U. A. M., Plainfield Lodge, Loyal Order Moose, T. A. B., Gesang and Turn Verein, Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., Clan Mackenzie and Court Plainfield, I. O. F. The committee in charge of the general arrangements comprise Fred Becker, chairman; Louis Feiring, treasurer; James T. McCarty, secretary.

HEAR MAJ. MARTIN

Company K and Members of Winfield Scott Post, G A. R. Learn of Mexican Move.

ARMY METHODS ARE COMPARED

"Our Soldiers the Best in the World" Says the Major—Veterans Astonished by Story of Recent Army Work.

With the exception of seven members who were out of town Company K presented full ranks at the armory last night when after the regular drill they entertained the members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R. The veterans were pleased at the showing made by the young fellows and were much interested in the principal speech of the night, given by Major W. B. Martin, of Elizabeth, who has just returned from the army maneuvres held along the Mexican border.

Major Martin related in a highly interesting way his experiences with the United States troops, infantry and cavalry. But before going into the matter at all he declared that in Company K there was the nucleous of one of the finest military organizations in this country.

Contrasting the methods now used in the army with those of fifty years ago Major Martin caused the Civil War veterans to gasp with astonishment. The many improvements made in caring for the sick; and the special attention given to hygenic details amazed the audience. Not a single case of typhoid fever occurred during the movements in Texas and the men were so well seasoned that a hike of fifteen or twenty miles was merely an exercise walk for the men of Uncle Sam's army.

Major Martin joined the 25th Infantry at Fort Sam Houston, the men who are believed to be the best shots in the army, and he saw a batallion drill which made his blood tingle with pride. "Our soldiers are the best in the world," he said, "and the new tactics are far in advance of those of any other nation." He described the workings of the army telephone, wireless telegraphy ,aeroplane and hospital corps and declared that General Carter is one of the most efficient officers the United States has in its service. "Think of going twenty-three miles in seventeen minutes and making a report of the enemy's position," said Major Martin, "that was done by an army aeroplane two weeks ago. It would have taken twenty-four hours to have gotten this information in the old days."

Identification, first aid and all hospital and cooking arrangements were plainly described by the speaker, eliciting ejaculations of surprise from the veterans.

During the talk punch and sandwiches were served by the boys of Company K and a general discussion of Major Martin's talk followed, several of the veterans giving short descriptions of their army experiences.

The affair was in charge of the entertainment committee of which Sergeant George L. Apgar is chairman, assisted by Sergeant Conkling, Corporal Keplar and private Sharp. Captain Kitchell, Sergeant Niles, privates Bowen, Hann and Millwater assisted in entertaining and Captain Kitchell introduced Major Martin. The evening was one of pleasure for all present.

Captain William H. Hand, Captain William C. Smith, S. R. Struthers and Chief T. O. Doane spoke briefly complimenting Company K on their splendid record.

STORE BURNED OUT

Leader Establishment Stock Destroyed in Early Morning Blaze.

THE ORIGIN NOT CERTAIN

Stephenson Building, Location of Fire, Suffers $1.000 Damage—Proprietor Claims $6,000 Stock is Total Loss.

The Leader department and millinery store in the Stephenson building at 243-245 West Front street, was badly damaged by a fire discovered in the rear part at 5:15 this morning. It was put out by apparatus from headquarters and No. 1 house, after a hard fight of an hour and a half, although when the men first arrived it looked as though a bad conflagration was in progress. Smoke had worked its way into adjacent buildings, and at first glance it was hard to tell the seat of the blaze.

The Leader store was conducted by David Robinson, of 641 West Third street, and he claims a loss of nearly $6,000 on contents. There is an insurance of $5,500. Chief Doane asserts Robinson's figures should be cut in half and estimates the damage to the building at about $1,000. It is owned by the Stephenson estate.

The fire was first discovered by Hop Lee, the proprietor of a laundry, adjoining the structure on the west. He ran into the street yelling like a madman, and attracted the attention of Assistant Postmaster James Martin. The latter pulled box 12. The first floor above the Leader store is occupied by Madame Mathilde L. Burguiere, the operatis singer and vocal instructor and the third floor by St. Hadjire Kovitz and family. All were aroused by the noise and smoke and reached the street in safety.

Assistant Chief Jennings arrived with the headquarters apparatus and ordered two lines of hose in besides the chemical stream. The same difficulty with the hydrant water gates as was experienced during the two recent business section fires was again met with, but not in a serious way as the men were prepared for it. When Chief Doane came up he had the big plate glass front of the store broken and a third line of hose put at work. The deluge of water soon placed the blaze under control.

The flames originated in an alcove in the back part of the first floor, directly under the main hall stairway. There is a chimney at this point which serves the laundry next door as well as the Leader store. The opening from the latter side was left unprotected and it is possible that sparks may have fallen through from the laundry fire, which is kept going almost continuously. Chief Doane also advances the opinion that the chimney might have caught fire and belched flames enough through the Leader opening to start the store blaze. The flames worked their way all along the ceiling between a metal covering and the beams but did not get upstairs. There was no loss in the apartments of either Madame Bruguiere or the Kovitz family.

The lines of hose laid over the Front street trolley tracks blocked the main line cars for over an hour. They worked their way to Dunellen for the benefit of the shop workers by swinging off at Watchung avenue over the Fourth street line and throught Grant avenue to Front street. The recall for the fire was given at 6:45.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR 2 BOROUGHITES GIVEN.

A farewell party was given last night for Mrs. Charles F. Debele and her daughter, Miss Grace Debele, of "Pine Grove farm," on Rock avenue, who will leave tomorrow for Michigan, where they will visit for two months. The affair was arranged by Miss Catherine Debele. There were about forty friends present from Jersey City, Newark, Elizabeth, Westfield, Dunellen and this city.

The evening was spent in dancing and playing games and at a late hour refreshments were served. Before departing for their home all wished Mrs. Debele and her daughter, a pleasant trip and a safe return home.

N. P. H. S. PLAYERS DEFEAT BERNARDSVILLE.

The North Plainfield High School baseball team added another victory to its long list yesterday afternoon by defeating the Bernardsville High School team by a score of 5 to 2. It was one of the best scholastic games of the season. Townley and Stine proved a formidable battery for the boroughites and held the home team down in great shape.

The winning team was accompanied to Bernardsville by a large delegation of rooters from the school attendants.

POLICEMAN OUTWITS A 'KIDDING' AUTOIST

In connection with the crusade against automobile speeding, yesterday a West End young man recently secured a small car and has a reputation for disregarding laws in running it, was warned by a downtown policeman to keep within the limit. The autoist took the hint as an affront and began ridiculing the rule which allows only twelve miles an hour in business districts. What he had to say went over the officer's head. He then started up his car, swung around the block and came back to the same corner with the throttle down to the lowest notch, causing the machine to just barely creep along.

"How is this," he shouted to the policeman; "am I keeping within the limit?"

"Sure," said the cop, who has a humorous vein in his make-up and took the action as a good joke, "keep that up and no one will bother you."

That should have been enough of the gag, but not so did the "kidder" believe. He hustled around the block again and came right back at the same snails pace. The bluecoat let it go without comment, but when he came around the third time the cop's patience was exhausted.

"Say," he exclaimed to the grinning autoist, "you're observing the speed limit all right, but there's a city ordinance against obstructing the highway, and I'll enforce it if you don't pull that steam roller claptrap out of the way.

The witty retort of the officer had its effect and the machine started away within a few feet of the twelve-mile limit.

MASTERS BUILDERS UPHOLD THE MASONS

The Master Builders' Asocoiation met in Coward's Hall last night and by resolution declared themselves in upholding the attitude of the boss masons in refusing the demands of the journeymen. Representatives were present from New Brunswick, Paterson, and other parts of the State and the opinion of the majority seemed to be that the strikers were in error considering present conditions in the building trades.

All the various crafts were represented by delegates and applauded the stand taken by the master masons. Several speeches were made by officers of the association and a feeling of harmony prevailed. The leaders of all the crafts present declared themselves in favor af joining hands with the master builders in upholding the master masons in resisting the demands of the strikers.

EUCHRE AND DANCE FOR CONVENT BENEFIT.

A delightful euchre and dance was given in St. Mary's social hall last night for the benefit of the new convent building furnishing fund. The attendance numbered fully 200 nearly all participating in the card playing. Eighteen prizes were awarded at the close after which dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

The affair was arranged and conducted by a committee of local trained nurses composed of the Misses Kathryn Roache, Lillian Henebry, Anna Moran, Mary Moran and Kathryn Riley.

A. J. Gavett at Ithaca.

Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett returned yesterday from an enjoyable week-end at Ithaca, N. Y., where his son is finishing his course in civil engineering. The sight-seeing included the class-rooms, and especially the laboratories of the different colleges, the city water filtration plant and the experimental road to Forest House, constructed under government supervision. The road consists of fifteen different kinds of road pavement, most of them 300 feet long.

Pupils' Annual Musicale.

The annual musicale by the pupils of Miss May Vincent Whitney will be given at the Plainfield High School Auditorium, Tuesday evening, May 23, and they will be assisted by William N. Searles, Jr., basso contante. The musicale will begin promptly at 8:15 o'clock.

Dog Licenses.

The time limit for issuing dog licenses expires on Saturday, May 20, after which date arrests will be made of those harboring dogs unlicensed. Chief Kiely has declared that the law will be rigidly enforced and it behooves those who own dogs to obtain their licenses on or before next Saturday.

REBUKED BY COURT

Fanwood Women Applauded Witnesses Against Granting Bottlers' License.

THEIR PROTESTS IN VAIN.

Judge Atwater Takes to Task Women Who Clapped and Shouted at Hearing at Elizabeth.

The applause of women in the court-room brought forth a severe reprimand from Judge Atwater, of the Court of Common Pleas, at Elizabeth, yesterday, when twenty women appearing to protest against the granting of a license to the Fanwood Bottling Works, clapped hands and shouted enthusiastically when Mrs. Sarah H. Palmer, a protesting witness, made a remark touching upon the alleged ill-repute of the bottling works.

Throughout Mrs. Palmer's testimony the audience of women was kept at high tension. The witness made several remarks about the manner of men she had seen gathering about the saloon, and among these were, she said, "truck drivers, who would sit on the front porch with their dirty faces all red and their clothes very dirty. They would make remarks at passersby and made themselves such a nuisance that young women, my own daughters, were afraid to pass the place in the daytime."

Then came the applause of the other women in the courtroom. One started clapping her hands and in a second all the others took up the spirit. Several of them made loud noises. But the applause did not last long. Judge Atwater pounded his gavel upon the desk and shouted, "Silence."

When quiet was restored Judge Atwater delivered his warning to the women and men: "Ladies and gentlemen" he said, "this is a courtroom in the State of New Jersey, and I shall not allow such disturbances."

Thenceforth the women remained silent. Several other witnesses remonstrating against the granting of the license were sworn. Among them were County Physician Dr. Frank A. Westcott, who strongly objected to having the bottling works in the Fanwood Borough. Edson B. Sammis testified that Italians cross the railroad tracks to the saloon and by reason of the crossing the locomotive engineers are kept busy blowing engine whistles. This was the main reason why the witness objected to the saloon. He said the engines annoyed him considerably.

Francis A. Polling and Daniel Hogan, of the bottling works, testified that they had already spent over $1,000 on the place. They had purchased the place from an Italian about a month ago. At that time, when the transfer of the license was made the residents of the borough of Fanwood made no objection.

Instead of calling all the women in the courtroom to the witness stand to give their reasons for not wanting the bottling works in the borough, Attorney Samuel S. Swackhamer, for the opposition, asked all those who did not want the license to stand. All the women and several men stood up.

The Mayor of Fanwood, William H. Hoar, also took the witness stand in protest to the license.

Judge Atwater granted the license.

The proprietors of the place claimed that they are not going to conduct a bar, but will bottle the beer and deliver it to houses.

DEMOCRATS APPROVE COMMISSION GOV'T.

At the meeting of the Democratic Club held in the North avenue club rooms last night, officers to act at the fall election were chosen. Their applications will be acted upon at the meeting of the County Democratic Committee at which Congressman Tuttle will preside tonight in Elizabeth.

General approval was expressed by the members of the proposed commission form of government by all the members who attended last night and it is believed that the club will endorse any move made in the direction of bringing to pass the change.

MAYOR CRACKS A JOKE SITTING AS MAGISTRATE.

James Williams, colored, 56 years old, was charged with intoxication this morning and when arraigned he pleaded guilty. Mayor Moy, who is acting magistrate in the absence of Judge DeMeza, suspended sentence on Williams' promise to reform.

Mayor Moy told Williams that he would do better in changing his occupation from driving an ice wagon to that of superintending a water wagon and stay on it.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks were dull and firm in New York yesterday.

The Kaiser was heartily welcomed on his arrival in London.

Fear of a strong Chinese rebellion caused many thousand to flee from Canton.

Ex-Governor Abram Chamberlain, of Connecticut, died in Meriden, after a long illness.

The House of Commons voted to pass the veto bill on its third reading, 362 to 241.

Prince Lidji Jeassu, Menelek's grandson, has been proclaimed Emperor of Abyssinia.

Four men and a woman were arrested as counterfeiters by Secret Service men in New York.

Staten Island reported the reappearance of seventeen-year cicada, or locusts, on schedule time.

New Jersey will sufffer a loss of $51,000 a year in taxes on account of the decission against Standard Oil.

Governor Dix issued a proclamation to the people of the state urging their co-operation in prevailing forest fires.

The Russian Foreign Office denied that Baron Rosen, Ambassador to the United States, would become Foreign Minister.

Congress.—Senate: Two ineffectual ballots to elect a president pro tempore were taken. House: There was no session.

All efforts to settle Copenhagen labor troubles have failed and today the employers will lock out forty thousand men.

High Russian officials were sent to Kiev to investigate the alleged ritualistic murder which started the threats of a massacre of Jews.

Commissioner Cropsey, of New York, has announced the names of fourteen policemen to be inscribed on the memorial tablet in headquarters.

The Democratic members of the Ways and Means committee discussed the wool schedule of the tariff law for three hours, but failed to reach any conclusion.

President Taft was assured by the physicians that his wife would be all right in a few days and left New York for Washington, where he arrived in the afternoon.

Judge Gray said the Standard Oil decision would improve business conditions and other men of large affairs expressed their pleasure at the wording of the Supreme Court's opinion.

A disptach from Albany stated that Governor Dix was urging party leaders to bring about the adoption of the income tax resolution and the passage of a direct nominations law.

Wall street crowds neglected the market for the news tickers and cheered the announcement that the Standard Oil case had been decided, then lingered until night to learn the details.

Francisco I. Madero, Jr., and Judge Carbajal, representing the Mexican government, held a peace conference in Juarez last night; if negotiations fail the insurgents say they will push the campaign vigorously.

John Hays Hammond appealed to the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia to postpone to November the hearing in the suit brought by Daniel J. Sully against him, so that he may go to England to act as special ambassador at the coronation of King George.

The United States Supreme Court, in an opinion by Chief Justice White, declared the Standard Oil Company to be an unlawful trust and ordered its dissolution within six months; it held, however, that reasonable restraint of trade is not prohibited by the Sherman law; Justice Harlan dissented on the latter point.

Died on Top of Freight Car.

At Engel's morgue, awaiting identification, is the body of a man about twenty-five years old, who was found on top of a freight car in the transfer yards of the Central Railroad at Elizabeth Sunday. At the back of the skull is a fracture, which looks as if it might have been caused by the head coming into contact with an overhead bridge. Coroner Westcott was notified and he is expected to make an official investigation. The man is about five feet eight inches tall, of dark complexion and hair and well built. He was cleanshaved. He had on patent leather shoes and a blue suit with a stripe running through it. In the clothing was found a handkerchief with the initial "B." On a ring worn by the man was worked the letter "B" and tattooed on one of his arms were the initials "J. U." His clothing bore the stamp of "B. Berg, Philadelphia."

Concerned.

"Some day your grateful countrymen may put up a great monument to your memory."

"That's so," replied Senator Sorghum. "I wonder who'll get the contract?"—Washington Star.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Martin, of East Sixth street, entertained Mr. and Mrs. John Collis, of St. Petersburg, Fla., over Sunday.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

SOMERVILLE.

In the Second Reformed church on Sunday afternoon Mothers' Day was celebrated. An address was made by Mrs. W. J. Heath, formerly of Brooklyn, who is devoting herself to mothers' work. Special music was rendered. Later the mothers and guests at Sunday-school listened to a lecture by Rev. Dr. Van der Meulen, of New York, upon "Joan of Arc." Dr. Van der Meulen and Dr. A. A. Pfanstiehl, pastor of the church, exchanged pulpits Sunday and Dr. Van der Meulen gave his afternoon lecture under the auspices of the Bible Fellowship Club of the church.

The Raritan Ministerial Association met yesterday in the chapel of the First Reformed church. Rev. H. B. MacCauley, of Trenton, secretary of the Eastern district of the Federal Council of Churches, was present and made an address on "Statewide Movement for Interchurch Federation in New Jersey."

Harold T. Cartwright has passed successfully the post-graduate course in the Brooklyn College of Pharmacy. This course has been accomplished while he has been employed in his father's drug store, on West Main street.

J. C. Coursen, of Sussex, has rented the Voorhees property in Ross street, and will take possession on June 1.

Page Edwards and Jacob R. Smith have bought lots on West End avenue, and will break ground for new homes.

Mrs. Ray Anderson and son, Norman, are guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Harriet Brown, in New York.

Miss Rita Thomas, of Jersey City, spent last week with her cousin, John Cox, on South street.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will meet Friday afternoon. This will be an important session.

The Bible study led by W. D. Murray will be continued at the mid-week prayer meeting in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Wednesday evening.

F. E. Smith will have charge of the services at the Netherwood Reformed church next Sunday morning and F. H. Andrews will address the congregation in the evening.

The amount now pledged for beneficent work in the Crescent Avenue church this year is $18,437.80, and the number of pledges, some of them representing several persons in a family, is 397.

The Women's Home Missionary Society meet at the First Baptist church this afternoon. Mrs. Elvain VanName will have charge of the devotional exercises and Mrs. Harold Serrell will tell of "Mission Work in the Antilles."

Miss Ruth Harris, soprano soloist at the First Baptist church, and Walter David, humorist, will provide the entertainment for the "ladies' night" affair at the Congregational church this evening, under the auspices of the Men's Club.

Owing to the fact that Rev. and Mrs. J. O. McKelvey are spending the week at Atlantic City, the monthly meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society announced for Friday, at Warren chapel, has been postponed to May 26, and the "at home" affair also arranged for this week has been postponed.

Bible School Day will be observed at the First Baptist church next Sunday. In the morning, Rev. Dr. Everett T. Tomlinson, of Elizabeth, will make an address at the morning service and in the evening J. F. Parker, of the borough, and F. H. Andrews, of this city, will make short addresses.

Rev. Claude McKinney, of Akron, Ohio, who has been in Washington, where he was received by President Taft, is spending a few days with his old friend, Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, and on Wednesday evening he will conduct the prayer-meeting at the Park Avenue Baptist church, speaking on "Work Among the Submerged Tenth."

CRUSHED TO DEATH BY HUGE CRANE.

Clark L. Price, an electrician at the Wheeler Condensor Works, Carteret, was crushed by a huge crane while at work in the plant yesterday afternoon and killed instantly. His wife, a bride of less than two years, was notified, and the body was taken to his home, 36 Grier avenue, Elizabeth, by Undertaker Daniel J. Leonard at midnight.

The circumstances surrounding the accident are not known. Price was an excellent workman, and it is not thought that he was in the least responsible. He had been employed at the plant since January. Previously he was employed as assistant foreman at the J. Otman Lithograph Plant in Elizabeth. His wife was a daughter of Mary and the late Thomas Walsh. He was the son of Captain E. W. Price, of Long Branch, who keeps the Long Branch Hotel, and was well known both in Long Branch and in Elizabeth. He was 24 years of age.

CONTEST

FOR PLAINFIELD PUPILS

The Plainfield Ice & Supply Co. will give a prize of $25 in cash to the pupil of any school, public or private, in Plainfield or North Plainfield, who shall submit the best written advertisement for the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company's business, to occupy a space equal to the space taken by this announcement.

The judges will be the Editors of the Courier-News and Daily Press. The conditions will be as follows:

The advertisement as written should be sent to the office of the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., with a separate sheet of paper attached, bearing the writer's name, and name of the school he or she attends. Both sheets thus submitted will be numbered by the Company in the order received, and the sheet bearing the name of the contestant will be held by the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., and the advertisement with the corresponding number will be sent to the judges, so that the judges will have no knowledge of the name of the writer. The advertisement which is decided to be the best will be so marked, and sent to the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company, who will by reference to the sheets in their possession, determine the name of the successful contestant.

The contest will end May 30, all letters received up to midnight of that day being eligible to the competition.

MORAN A WINNER.

Roubaix, France, May 16.—James F. Moran, the American cylist, won the motor-paced championship of Europe, held here Sunday afternoon. Moran was in great fettle. He rode one of the best races ever seen on a European track and defeated the pick of the foreign stars. In addition to winning, Moran made a new world's record.

The victory has instilled in Moran a desire to win the world's motor-paced championship, and consequently he has announced that he will stay here for the big event, which will be held in July. The American has been here since last winter, and he has been winning with regularity. He is a big favorite with the fans. With Floyd MacFarland he finished second in the Berlin six-day race. Oustide of that he has been confining his efforts to following pace.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Lightning struck the handsome flagstaff in Florham Park, Friday night, splitting it from top to bottom.

While watching a baseball game Sunday, David Shafer, aged fifty years, of 362 Boulevard, Bayonne, was struck in the face with a ball and his nose broken.

The Trenton Council met last night to rearrange the election districts to comply with the Geran election law. A total of sixty-six districts, an increase of sixteen, will be necessary.

Bitten on the hand by a dog, Alfred Bolles, forty-one years old, of 907 Bulson street, Camden, had the wound cauterized at Cooper Hospital Sunday.

Struck by a baseball, Carl Ford, seventeen years old, of 645 Liberty street, Camden, sustained a sprained shoulder, which was dressed at the Homeopathic Hospital, Sunday.

When Thomas Walker came to Trenton from Ireland, about twenty-five years ago, he was not worth a penny. He died a few days ago, and his will showed that he left his family upwards of $250,000.

An effort is being made to unionize the 1,000 or more workmen of the Pennsylvania Railroad repair shops in Trenton. The men say that there are frequent cuts in wages, and they want to feel more secure.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union has asked the Bayonne Board of Education's permission to distribute among the 9,000 pupils blotters containing printed matter setting forth the evils of strong drink and cigarette smoking.

Giuseppe Sorievo, three years old, was saved from burning to death by the bravery of his father at Trenton. The father, in turn, caught fire, and would probably have been fatally burned had it not been for the arrival of the firemen.

Joseph S. Huff, a member of the State Civil Service Commission, was re-elected chairman of the Mercer County Democratic committee Saturday. He at first declined re-election because of his State position, but was prevailed upon to remain until the new committee is chosen.

Elmer E. Eagon, superintendent of the First Baptist Sunday-school of Trenton, organized a Pocket Testament League at the State prison Sunday. A hundred or more convicts pledged themselves to read at least one chapter daily and to carry a copy of the Scripture wherever they go.

Rev. Michael Mercolino, pastor of the Assumption Roman Catholic church, Bayonne, will break ground on June 11 on West Twenty-third street, for a new $35,000 church. Rev. Andrew M. Egan, pastor of St. Mary's church, Bayonne, will represent Bishop John J. O'Connor, at the ceremonies.

Through a fall down a flight of stairs at his home, 15 Pearl street, Paterson, Saturday night, Maurice Lyons was severely hurt. Sunday night he was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment. He had a scalp wound extending from near the nose to the top of his forehead and the left eyelid was split.

The huge forest fire that swept over many square miles of territory to the west of Barnegat Thursday end Friday, was put out by the rain Saturday night. For two days and nights a force of men had been fighting this fire, which threatened Mannahawkin, Barnegat and Waretown. It started in a settlement of foreigners back of Mannahawkin, and swept all the way to Waretown before the rain stopped it.

The customary first of the month rush for commutation tickets on the Tenafly station on the Northern Railroad is a thing of the past for commuters who are depositors in the First National Bank of that town will get their tickets from the bank. Beginning on June 1 the bank will buy the commutation tickets and charge the cost to the amounts in the bank. William H. Noyes, a member of the New Jersey Hudson River Bridge Commission, is president of the Tenafly Bank.

A telegram was received from Governor Wilson Saturday authorizing the expenditure of $800 from the emergency fund at his disposal for a military display in connection with the fiftieth anniversary celebration in West Hoboken. The telegram was addressed to Secretary Joseph P. Tumulty, by whom it was referred to the adjutant-general's office. It is probable that the acting adjutant-general will decide next week, after consultation with the local committee in charge of the event, what troop shall be called upon to participate.

GREETING BROTHER, KILLED BY TRAIN.

When Benjamin Shapiro, a commercial traveler, alighted from a passenger train which arrived at the Jersey Central Railroad station at Somerville from Jersey City at midnight Sunday night he saw the mangled body of his brother, Elmer Shapiro, drawn from under the engine of the train. Elmer had been instantly killed by stepping in front of the train as he was in the act of meeting his brother, Benjamin, to assist him in getting his traps from the train.

Elmer had been in the habit of crossing the north track to meet the train, which usually stopped on the south track of the station yard. He failed to notice that the train had been shifted into the yard on the north track, and it caught him unawares and bowled him over before he could get out of the way. Although the train was almost at a standstill at the time of the accident, the driving wheels of the engine passed over his body and crushed out his life.

Elmer Shapiro was a college student, nineteen years of age. He graduated from the Somerville High School three years ago, after which he entered Rutgers College. He was spending a short vacation at his home at Somerville at the time of the accident.

FINE HOME BADLY DAMAGED BY FIRE.

Fire and water did serious damage to the handsome residence of Samuel Phillips Savage, of 1039 North Broad street, Elizabeth, early last evening.

The house was blazing in the rear when the firemen reached the scene, and it was necessary for them to work hard to prevent the flames from spreading to the front. The rear was well gutted and much furniture and clothing was destroyed.

The blaze originated mysteriously in the attic. Much of the furniture destroyed was quite valuable and included considerable bric-a-brac.

LeRoy J. Ellis, of Park avenue, has been in the south on a business trip. He is expected home this week.

Mrs. E. H. Hobbie, of Hillside avenue, who has been visiting at Freehold, will return home tomorrow.

MEN IN MOVEMENT FOR EQUAL SUFFRAGE

Linton Satterthwait, a lawyer of Trenton and a leading member of the New Jersey bar, is one of several prominent men of the State who have become a vice-president of the recently organized New Jersey Men's League for Women Suffrage. The association already has a membership representing nearly every county in the State, and has at least one member of Congress on its rolls, Representative E. W. Townsend, of Montclair. The president is William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, president of the Ingersoll-Rand Company and the New York Imperial Tool Company. Among the vice-presidents associated with Mr. Satterthwait are Alexander Millar, secretary of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific Railroads, and a director of various other railroad corporations; Rabbi L. B. Michaelson, of Trenton, Homer Davenport, the cartoonist; the Rev. Edgar Swan Wiers, of Montclair, M. C. Leonard, principal of the Jersey City High School; Robert A. Shirrifs, of the Pennsylvania Grain Elevators, and Emerson P. Harris.

The treasurer of the New Jersey League is Edward Foster Feickert, of this city, vice-president of the State Trust Company. Dr. Edward S. Krans is secretary, and Champlain L. Riley, whose work in behalf of safer and better housing has been endorsed by civic organizations throughout the State, is chairman of the executive committee. Dr. Krans, to whom applications for membership should be sent, lives at No. 920 Park avenue.

When Mr. Satterthwait was asked why he had consented to be a vice-president of the league, he made the following statement:

"Why have I consented to become one of the vice-presidents of the Men's League for Women Suffrage? Simply to express my attitude on the suffrage question. I entertain no sentimental notions about the right of suffrage. I concede that the ballot may rightfully be withheld from individuals—perhaps sufficiently numerous to form a class—because the public good seems to require it. I believe that for the same reason the ballot might properly be taken from multitudes who wield it—too often for a price—today. But exclusion from the ballot of a normal adult should never be arbitrarily made. The requirements, whether educational or otherwise, should always be such that the average, normal individual can, with reasonable effort, meet it. Te exclude from the right to vote, on account of nationality, color, or sex, is to raise obstacles to the exercise of the right which no demonstration of fitness can overcome.

"Hence, in my view, any legal qualification for the suffrage that does not apply to all individuals of mature power, alike, is unjust. It is not simply unjust to the individuals concerned. It is inexpedient for the State. A free State needs to have the sentiments of the citizens freely and officially expressed at regular intervals. One cannot conceive of a free commonwealth in successful working order without this. But there is no such state composed of male citizens. If God created man, male and female, no less has man created the state, male and female. The state is simply man "writ large." For the state can have no interests that are not the aggregate interests of individual men and women. There is, then, no reason in nature, in logic, or in politics why the state should be deprived of the benefit of the recorded expression of the sentiments of all its citizens who can measure up to the standard which it may have been thought best to impose, but which is not arbitrary in its character.

"The whole case in favor of equal suffrage—under whatever restrictions applicable to man and woman alike—is conceded by those who favor admitting women to municipal suffrage and by the legislative committee in New Jersey which recently submitted a report recommending the admission of women to school suffrage, to the right to vote for school trustees.

"These local elections are of more importance to the individual citizens than are the State and national elections, because the local governmental functions touch the individual citizens in more places, affect them financially to a far greater extent than do the affairs of the entire State, and still more than do the affairs of the nation. These local elections are of more importance to the State or the nation as a whole, because if the local governments be honestly conducted and the local public life be kept pure, the public life of the State and nation will be good, on the same principle as that if 'one takes care of the pennies the dollars will take care of themselves.'

"On the other hand, if local governmental matters be neglected and the conduct of local affairs fall into unworthy hands, then the public life of the State or nation will become rotten and corrupt, no matter how much effort be made to direct it in the proper channels for precisely the same reason that we cannot have a pure and wholesome stream flowing from a polluted source.

"The obvious truth is that the importance to the citizens, first individually, and next, collectively, of elections, is in the inverse order of that generally supposed by the male bipeds who in most of our States have the exclusive right to vote.

"If, then, women have sufficient judgment and discrimination to be entrusted—without danger to the public interests—with suffrage in municipal and school affairs, then the case is closed, so far as logic or argument is concerned. For it would be grotesquely absurd to contend that they are capable of wielding the ballot in the more important—although less conspicuous field—but that they cannot be trusted to handle the same civic tool in the more prominent but far less important scene of action. And it is no less absurd to claim that the State would be benefited by the votes of women in the more important field but would be injured by these same votes in the less important contests."

CONVERVATION.

While we were conserving coal and trees
And waterfalls, and things like these,
I trust that Congress will observe
Some other things we might conserve.

Conserve the bliss of those that wed;
Conserve the hair upon my head;
Conserve the spinster's fading face;
Conserve the kitten's sprightly grace.

Conserve our stomachs, now the prey
Of some new diet fad each day;
Conserve our lasses and our lads
From these new education lads.

Conserve the faith in Santa Claus;
Conserve the reverence for laws;
Conserve the freshness of our youth,
Its faith in man, its love of truth.

Conserve the money spent on style,
The optimist's confiding smile,
The paragrapher's stock of jokes,
The patience of a lot of folks!

And while this conservation fit
Is on, some statesmen might admit
The suitability of Shelves,
And prudently conserve — themselves!—Puck.

Eggs in Patty Shells.

Put six fresh eggs in boiling water for seven minutes and them in cold water for five minutes. Remove the shells and cut the eggs in slices. Wash a quarter of a pound of small mushrooms and cut them into slices, and cut into small pieces four chicken livers. Chop up fine one tablespoonful of onions and cook them in a tablespoonful of butter four minutes, not letting them brown; then add the mushrooms and livers and season with salt and pepper. Cook for four minutes, stirring all the time and then add half a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, two tablespoonfuls of sherry and the eggs. In the meantime have the patty shells warming in the oven and when hot fill each with the mixture, putting the remainder of it on the platter with the patties and serving immediately.—Harper's Bazar.

'VARSITY PRESIDENT STATE SCHOOL HEAD?

If Governor Wilson should decide to select a man outside of the State for the head of the Department of Public Instruction, as it will be reorganized, there is a possibility that Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, may be named for the place. Doctor Butler is to a certain extent a Jerseyman. He was at one time a member of the State Board of Education, and after his election as the head of Columbia University he moved to New York.

It is probable that Governor Wilson is fully informed as to the qualifications of Doctor Butler for the position. It is known that President Butler did some excellent work in behalf of the passage of the bill of Senator Frelinghuysen, demonstrating to some of the Senators the fact that a single-headed commission would be the better plan for the State school system.

As president of Columbia University Doctor Butler has made a splendid record, and he has a good reputation as an educator, and possesses splendid executive ability—just the type of man who would fill the position as head of the educational system of New Jersey satisfactorily.

WHITEWASH ENDS WESTFIELD LEXOW.

Two reports were made by the law committee to the Westfield Town Council last night upon the report of the recent investigation of the acts of councilmen who sold goods and had dealings with the town.

Councilmen Floyd and Moser, at the last meeting, wanted the guilty councilmen punished by civil suits to recover the amounts paid them by the town. Last night those members did not so recommend. Councilmen De Camp and Oswald, the other two members of the committee, reported that while illegal acts had been done the town did not suffer and that fair prices were charged for the goods and that the councilmen, who also countenanced the transactions were equally as guilty.

The Rev. E. R. Middleditch, councilman from the Third ward, took exception to this and declared he, for one, did not know that the affidavits to bills with were not properly made. Mr. De Camp claimed that others in the town knew conditions and that the councilmen did know. Mr. DeCamp said Mr. Middleditch spent too much time trying to exonerate himself. Mr. Middleditch said if an employee countenanced stealing from his own firm he was equally as guilty and that the remarks of Councilman DeCamp was fool talk and worthy of an insane asylum. Both reports were ordered filed. The investigation cost the town about $500.

OAK TREE BURGLARS GET WATCH AND MONEY.

The quiet precincts of Oak Tree again received a visitation from burglars at an early hour this morning. They forced an entrance to the home of Edward R. Voorhees, near the Lehigh Valley station, securing a gold watch and $ in change. The family knew nothing of the visit until their usual rising time.

An attempt was also made to get into the home of William Kelly, but the prowlers were evidently frightened off. Several suspicious men were noticed loitering about the Kelly premises yesterday afternoon and they are believed to be the guilty parties.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR UNION'S ENDEAVORERS

The Christian Endeavorers of Union county have arranged for a special train to carry them to and from the International conveitnon to be held at Atlantic City, July 6-12. The train will leave the New Jersey Central station, Elizabeth, Thursday afternoon, July 6, at 3:45 o'lock. If thirty delegates signify their desire of going from this city, the special will start from Dunellen to accomodate the Endeavorers from this section of the county.

Tickets, including railroad fare and six days accomodation at "The Lexington" will be sold for $16.50. Tickets without accomodation will be $4:50. The return on July 12 will be made at the convenience of the party which will be limited to 150. All endeavorers from this city who desire to make this trip should communicate with Clarence B. LaRue, 161 East Front street, not later than May 18.

The hotel selected at Atlantic City is well equipped for the party and is situated at the corner of Pacific and Arkansas avenues, within one square of the New Jersey Central station, and one square from Young's pier, which the Enedavorers have secured for their exclusive use for one week. All the meetings will be held on the pier, which extends three-quarters of a mile into the sea.

Twenty-two delegates have already expressed their intention of going from this city and it is probable that the number will be douubled. The United Society of Christian Endeavor has received word that Governor Wilson will speak at the convention. Final arrangements for Plainfielders will be made at a meeting of the congress to be held at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

TOWN AND GOWN ROW

The Origin of an Ancient Dispute at Oxford.

STALE FISH AND BAD BEER.

The University Authorities Objected to These, and Then Came the Battle of St. Scholastica's Day and Open Warfare, Massacre and Pillage.

The modern town and gown row, supposing that town and gown rows have not altogether ceased, is a row about nothing in particular, inspired solely by the joy of battle and the lust for strife. The juniors fight, and the seniors separate the combatants. In the old days there was really something to fight about, and the seniors were as pugnacious as the juniors and joined as pugnaciously in the affrays. The dispute arose in the first instance out of disagreements between overlapping jurisdictions. The origin was in the divergent views entertained by the municipal and university authorities on matters of sanitation and hygiene, and it will not be denied that the university authorities were in the right. They objected to the sale of stinking fish and the brewing of beer from water contaminated with sewage. The townsmen thought such objections fastidious and were very angry when the university appealed to the king to interfere; hence constant bickerings and a frequent exchange of abusive language; hence ultimately open war and that battle of St. Scholastica's day, which takes rank in history as the earliest of the recorded town and gown rows.

The trouble began in a tavern on Feb. 10, 1354. Some scholars who were drinking there found fault with the wine, and the vintner said that it was quite good enough wine for them. The scholars threw the wine at the vintner's head, and the vintner summoned his friends and neighbors to the rescue. They rang the bell of the Church of St. Martin at Carfax, and the populace, summoned by this tocsin, shot at the scholars with bows and arrows. The chancellor of the university appeared upon the scene, ingeminating peace where there was no peace, and he also was shot at. Then the bell of the university Church of St. Mary was started ringing, and the melee became general and lasted until the setting of the sun. No one was killed. The gownsmen got the best of it, and the chancellor was under the impression that the riot was over. He issued a proclamation bidding the scholars go to their lectures as usual on the following day.

They went as he bade them, but not with the impunity which he expected. The townsmen had vowed and planned vengeance and were lying in wait for them. Re-enforcements—2,000 peasants carrying an ominous black flag—swarmed into the city from Cowley, Headington and Hinksey. The Carfax tocsin pealed out a second time, just after the midday dinner hour, and the tocsin of St. Mary's responded as before. The townsmen not only assailed the scholars in the streets, but, when they fled before superior forces, pursued them into their lodgings, inns and halls, killing all that they could and stealing or destroying all the property that they could lay their hands on.

Peacemakers were badly needed, and, the chancellor having called for peace in vain, the monks tried what they could do. There sallied forth a valiant band of friars, carrying their crucifix and seeking to compose the strife by chanting litanies. Without avail. They themselves became the objects of the popular fury; a scholar was struck down while actually clinging to the crucifix. Other scholars were followed into the churches and massacred at the foot of the altar. Dead bodies were flung on to dunghills; the wounded were haled to prison, and even torture was not spared. "The crowns of some chaplains," says the chronicler—"viz, all the skin, so far as the tonsure went—these diabolical imps flayed off in scorn of their clergy."

At last the university could resist no more. The gownsmen began to flee into the country, all of them save the scholars of Merton, who alone had solid walls behind which they could retire. Withdrawing to their college, while the town triumphed outside, the sole representatives of learning in a deserted city which the bishop had laid under an interdict, the scholars of Merton waited for the day of vengeance and redress of grievances.

It came. The king sent down a special commission to investigate. The mayor of Oxford and his bailiffs were sent to prison, the sheriff was removed from office, and presently the town was further humiliated by the bestowal of fresh privileges upon the gownsmen. The gownsmen and not the townsmen were henceforth to decide whether fish stunk, and if they decided that it did stink they were to send it to the hospitals for the consumption of the sick. They were also adjudged pecuniary compensation for the damage done, and their supremacy was in various other ways established on a firm basis.

Such was the first town and gown row, in which Merton may be said to have saved the university. But for Merton the university would then have been wiped out and its clerks would have been scattered over the face of the earth.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The miser is as much in want of that which he has as of that which he has not.—Syrus.

BIRDS OF PARADISE.

Their Dancing Parties and the Way They Are Caught by Native Boys.

Birds of paradise molt about January, and in May, when they are in full and gorgeous new plumage, the males assemble each morning for their dancing parties. Certain trees are selected, being chosen on account of widespreading branches and scattered leaves, and in one of these trees from a dozen to twenty of the birds will assemble. They raise their wings, stretch out their necks and elevate their exquisite plumes, keeping them in a continual vibration. The birds hop or fly from branch to branch apparently in the greatest excitement, so that the tree appears to be seething with golden orange plumes. The long, plumy tufts which are the pride of the bird of paradise spring from the sides beneath each wing, and when the bird is in repose they are partly concealed, but during the "dance" the wings are raised vertically across the back, the head is bent and stretched out, and the long plumes are expanded until they resemble two magnificent golden fans, striped with deep red at the base and fading off into a pale brown tint at the finely divided points.

It is hard to determine just what is the motive of the dance of the birds of paradise, but the natives take advantage of the occasion to secure specimens of the birds without injury to the feathers. As soon as it is found that the birds have fixed upon a particular tree for their dances a native builds a little hut or blind of palm branches among the leaves and here ensconces himself just before daylight armed with a bow and a number of arrows with a round knob upon the end, instead of a sharp point. A boy waits at the foot of the tree, and when the birds have assembled and begun their dance the hunter begins to shoot. The blow of the blunt arrow stuns a bird, which falls to the ground and is secured by the waiting boy, not a drop of its blood being shed and the plumage being uninjured. The other birds rarely take any notice of those that fall until their number has been considerably reduced.—Harper's Weekly.

ILL TIMED APPLAUSE.

It Distracts the Players and Annoys the Audience.

Applause, the strongest tonic to the actor, sometimes annoys your true artist. If it halts the action of the play too long or if it drowns the sentence just begun it is exasperation to the judicious in the audience. The brighter the dialogue the more irritating is anything that distracts from it. It is the fashion at our theaters, especially on first nights, to greet each player vociferously in such a way as to mar the pleasure of the performance, if it contains any.

Here is a practice from which the thoughtless or the overenthusiastic should forbear. It may take the mind of the actor off his work in hand if he is the object of a great deal of applause and may have the like effect on some who do not receive any such mark of esteem when others are getting a too generous share of it.

There is plenty of time between acts for this handclapping, which the players can appreciate much better than when they are taxing their memories for the text of their parts and trying to concentrate on their work. It is not in good taste to approve with mere noise a scene or a situation when the enjoyment of it by one's neighbor may be heightened by the absence of such distraction. There is vast room for the improvement of general playhouse manners, but inconsiderate and promiscuous approbation of acting while the story is flowing from the stage is one of the chief drawbacks to enjoyment of the drama. Encouragement by managers to such custom in the mistaken belief that it adds to the general pleasure of patrons is largely responsible for its increasing bane.—New York Press.

Fly Travelers.

Among the things that furnish occupation for the eyes and minds of transatlantic voyagers are the houseflies that accompany the great steamships from one side of the ocean to the other. In fine sunshiny weather the flies buzz cheerfully about sheltered places on the decks, and when the wind blows high they take refuge in cabins and saloons. Flies often remain with the ship while in port and return with her on her next trip, thus crossing the ocean several times in succession and perhaps spending the entire season at sea.—New York Tribune.

Handicapped.

"Fain would I write a poem on the delights of fishing," sighed the poet, "but woe is me. I can't find a word to rhyme with angleworm."

"But why use that word at the end of a line?" queried the friend.

"Because," hissed the poet between his set teeth, "an angleworm is always at the end of a line."

And for an hour the silence was so still that one could have heard a pin drop.—Chicago News.

An Old, Old Story.

"Yes, the first of every week I give my wife half my salary."

"Well?"

"And she gets the other half before the week is up."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CARE OF PARROTS.

The Proper Way of Feeding, Caging and Teaching the Birds How to Speak.

As few people who own parrots really know how to care for them, a few good rules may be of interest.

As to their food, it should be seeds—canary, hemp (but not too much), millet, boiled maize, linseed, rape and the like. Bread soaked in hot water is good, given twice a day, and fruit in moderation and in variety is wholesome, such as grapes, apples and pears, an occasional raisin and lettuce.

Gray parrots are very fond of rice, and almost all parrots appreciate rice pudding and have a taste, too, for bread and butter. Meat is bad for them. Clean, fresh wood should be given them to gnaw—bits of elm, birch, larch and chestnut. Fresh dry gravel must be sprinkled at the bottom of the cage every day and fresh water be put in the glass.

It is important that parrots should have the opportunity to stand flat footed, so if the cage has wires at the bottom it is well to remove them. Always to have his claws clasping a round perch is injurious to any bird, and two perches of different size are advisable, so that he may change his posture at will.

When a parrot continues to scream he wants water or food or feels ill and uncomfortable or maybe is merely dull. Music, which he loves, will cheer him up at all times.

A parrot learns to talk only from one who speaks very slowly and distinctly to him and preferably when he is about to fall asleep. Last, but not least, a parrot should be carefully covered at night.—London Mail.

THE PYGMIES.

Curious Mode of Life of the Dwarfs of Rhodesia.

Of the pygmies of northwestern Rhodesia a modern traveler writes: "The Batwa stand about four feet high and are long armed, short legged and ugly, being unusually prognathous. The legs are disproportionately short, the feet large, and the body is covered with a sort of down. Both sexes affect a state of complete nudity. They have their own tongue, but usually know a little of the language of their big neighbors. No attempt is made to till the open forest glades. They depend for food on game and what they steal from the fields and plantations of the surrounding tribes.

"Though there are seven different tribes of pygmies, they appear to have no tribal organization. It is the custom for a group of families to attach themselves to a negro chief and in return for food to assist him to fight his enemies. The standard of morality of these little people is high, and, strange to say, they are remarkably intelligent.

"The wild beasts living in this forest are killed for food, even the elephant. Pitfalls, snares and heavily weighted spears are used, but their favorite way of hunting an elephant appears to be with bow and arrow. Poisoned arrows are shot into him, and the great beast is followed until he falls, when the little hunters camp around the body and feast on the carcass until it is finished."

Catch-as-catch-can.

She gave him a playful pinch on the cheek.

"New suit!" she exclaimed. "And what a beauty!"

"Rather nice, isn't it?" he agreed, surveying himself proudly in the glass. It was a spring suiting of the very latest style. Even the editor of the Tailor and Cutter could have found no fault.

"And doesn't it fit well?" she cried. "Turn round. To a T! Lovely! It must have been expensive!"

He put his fingers on his lips.

His other hand wandered affectionately down a very pronounced crease, and his eyes filled with a look of pride.

"Hush!" he whispered. "Not so very! Five bob down and five bob every time the collector sees me first!"—London Answers.

Hear and Evarts.

On one of his later birthday anniversaries Senator Hoar wrote to William M. Evarts and congratulated him upon his length of years. In his reply the aged lawyer said it brought to mind an old lady in New England who had occasion to write to a friend about some matter of trifling importance and when she had reached the end of the thirteenth page awakened to the fact that she had been rather diffuse and added, "Please excuse my longevity."

Out at First.

The hammock was built for two, but she was occupying it alone.

"I have noticed," said the man on the porch chair, "that the prettiest girls always marry the biggest fools."

"Say no more, Mr. Slowboy," rejoined the fair maiden. "I appreciate your friendship, but I can never be your wife."—Chicago News.

Rewarded.

Actor—I have been in your company ten years. Is it not time that you do something extra for me? Manager—Yes. From now on you shall play all the parts in which there is eating.—Fliegende Blatter.

The Modest Man.

A modest man isn't one who has a poor opinion of himself. He merely keeps still about his good opinion of himself.—Cleveland Leader.

Life is not so short but that there is always time for courtesy.—Emerson.

A Boy of 1776

By NATHAN HARDY

General Washington was at Morristown.

One morning when the general was in his office an orderly announced to him that Nicholas Halstead wished to see him. Easy of access, the commander in chief ordered the caller to be admitted and was surprised to see a boy of sixteen. The youth showed every evidence of distress.

"What can I do for you, my boy?" asked the commander.

"You can redress a wrong, general. I have been very badly treated."

"By whom?"

"The recruiting officers. They won't enlist me. They say I am under age."

"I commend your patriotism, my boy, and we need every soldier we can get. If there is no other reason than your youth to be brought against your enlistment I should like to see your wish gratified."

"Indeed, there are good reasons why I should be permitted to fight, general. Our family consisted, when the war began, of father, mother, three boys and two girls. The British killed father at the battle of Long Island; my oldest brother was shot at Harlem Heights; the next—one of your dispatch riders—was killed while crossing the Passaic river carrying a message from you to Colonel Burr in Westchester county. I, the youngest, am left to avenge their deaths."

The general looked at the boy with mingled admiration and astonishment.

"It seems to me, my young friend," he said, "that these reasons you have given me for your enlistment are rather reasons why you should not enlist. Your mother and sisters have given quite enough to the cause. It is your duty to protect them."

"But, general"—

"My decision," interrupted the general in a firm but kindly tone, "is that it is your duty to return to your home and stay there till the end of the war."

The commander took the boy's hand and pressed it warmly. Nicholas withdrew, wiping a tear from his eye. His last hope of being enlisted had vanished.

The next time Washington saw Nicholas Halstead was at daybreak of a Sunday morning when a New Jersey regiment was marching past the general in chief to go into the battle of Monmouth. Nicholas saw the commander sitting on his horse beside the road and endeavored to conceal himself behind the file in front of him, but Washington's quick eye lighted on him. The boy never forgot the look the general gave him on that occasion. It was one of mingled pain, admiration and reproach. Raising his hand, he motioned Nicholas to fall out of the ranks. The young soldier did so, and the commander said to him:

"Are you an enlisted man?"

"Yes, general. At last I found a recruiting officer who would pass me."

"Since you are in the military service and in this army you are under my orders. I desire you to carry a message for me. Go to your mother and tell her that her country will accept no more sacrifices at her hands and that the last one of her noble men shall remain with her by my order till he is discharged."

Nicholas burst into tears. The general, bending down, pressed the young soldier's hand; then, forgetting him in more important duties, he rode away.

It is a matter of history that there was a traitor in the American army high in command, that traitor being General Charles Lee. He did what he could to throw the victory into the hands of the British, finally on his own responsibility ordering a retreat of his own troops which involved other divisions of the American army. A panic followed, and the men fled precipitately, many of them frantically hurrying toward a causeway covering a morass.

Washington when he heard of the disaster pushed forward, placing the troops under his own immediate command at the end of the causeway nearest the enemy to stop the flight of Lee's and other troops. Among this force fighting at the causeway Washington caught sight of young Nicholas Halstead loading and firing at the enemy with the light of vengeance in his eye. There was neither time nor inclination to reprove the boy for disobedience of the order sending him home, but the general, maddened though he was with Lee's treachery, was not too occupied to notice Nicholas fighting at the most important point. The British were held off, the battle was renewed, and when the fight closed at nightfall Washington made his dispositions to attack the next morning.

Having slept during the night under a large oak tree, he awoke before dawn and mounted his horse. But the light of day revealed the fact that the enemy had slipped away under cover of the darkness.

During the morning while the commander was riding over the battlefield he saw a soldier get up from a pile of dead and wounded and stagger away. Calling to him, the soldier turned. He was Nicholas Halstead.

"You disobeyed my order, I see," said the general.

Nicholas, supporting himself on his musket, hung his head, but said nothing.

"Well," resumed the general, "there seems to be no possibility of keeping you at home, and, since you will remain with the army, I must put you where your honest patriotism and military ardor will do the most good. Obey the order I gave you so far as going home and remain home till you receive a commission, which will be forwarded you."

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910, by Anna Katharine Rohlfs

My satisfaction at this was curtailed by the calling of Arthur Cumberland to the stand to witness in his own defense. I had dreaded this contingency. I saw that for some reason both his counsel and associate counsel were not without their own misgivings as to the result of their somewhat doubtful experiment.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A BROTHER'S VOW.

A CHANGE was observable in this degenerate son of the Cumberlands since many there had confronted him face to face. Physically he was improved, but otherwise the difference was such as to arouse doubt as to the real man lurking behind his dogged, uncommunicative manner. I felt that beyond the one fact that he could be relied upon to protect Carmel's name and Carmel's character, even to the jeopardizing of his case, he was not to be counted on and might yet startle many of us, and most notably of all the little woman waiting to hear what he had to say in his own defense before she threw herself into the breach and made that devoted attempt to save him, in his own despite, which had been my terror from the first and was my terror now.

Perjury, but not in his own defense—rather in opposition to it—that is what his counsel had to fear, and I wondered if they knew it. He was asked:

"Mr. Cumberland, did you have any quarrel with your sister during the afternoon or evening of Dec. 27?"

"I did." Then, as if not satisfied with this simple statement, he blurted forth: "And it wasn't the first. She disapproved of my fondness for drink. She didn't like my late hours, or the condition in which I frequently came home. I did not like her expressions of displeasure or the way she frequently cut me short when I wanted to have a good time with my friends. We never agreed. I made her suffer often and unnecessarily. I regret it now; she was a better sister to me than I could then understand."

Mr. Moffat, with an eye on District Attorney Fox, who had shown his surprise at the trend the examination was taking by a slight indication of uneasiness, went on with his examination:

"Mr. Cumberland, will you tell us when you first felt this change of opinion in regard to your sister?"

Mr. Fox leaped to his feet. Then he slowly reseated himself. Evidently he thought it best to let the prisoner have his full say. With a solemn lowering of his head, Arthur answered:

"DID YOU HAVE ANY QUARREL WITH YOUR SISTER?"

"When I saw my home desolated in one dreadful night. With one sister dead in the house, the victim of violence, and another delirious from fright or some other analogous cause, I had ample time to think—and I used that time. That's all."

Simple words, read or repeated, but in that crowded courtroom, with every ear strained to catch the lie which seemed the only refuge for the man so hemmed in by circumstance, these words, uttered without the least attempt at effect, fell with a force which gave new life to such as wished to see this man acquitted.

"When did you see your sister Adelaide for the last time alive?"

"That night at the dinner table. When I left the room I turned to look at her. She was not looking at me, so I slammed the door and went upstairs. In an hour or so I had left the house to get a drink. I got the drink, but I never saw Adelaide again till I saw her in her coffin."

This blunt denial of the critic for which he stood there arraigned fell on my heart with a weight which showed me how foolish indeed is the hope we cherish deep down under all surface confidences. I had been unconscious of this hope, but it was there. It seemed to die a double death at these words, for I believed him! Courage is needed for a lie. There were no signs visible in him as yet of his having drawn upon this last resource of the despairing. I should know it when he did. He could not hide the subtle change from me.

To others this declaration came with greater or less force, according as it was viewed in the light of a dramatic trick of Mr. Moffat's or as the natural outburst of a man fighting for his life in his own way and with his own weapons.

Mr. Moffat, satisfied so far, put his next question with equal directness:

"Mr. Cumberland, you have mentioned seeing your sister in her coffin. When was this?"

"At the close of her funeral, just before she was carried out."

"Had you seen the casket prior to this moment of which you speak? Had you been near it? Had you handled it in any way?"

"No, sir."

"Mr. Cumberland, you have heard mention made of a ring worn by your sister in life, but missing from her finger after death. You remember this ring?"

"I do."

"Is this it?"

"It is, so far as I can judge at this distance."

"Hand the ring to the witness," ordered the judge.

The ring was so handed.

He glanced at it and said bitterly: "I recognize it. It was her engagement ring."

"Was this ring on her finger that night at the dinner table?"

"I cannot say positively, but I believe so. I should have noticed its absence."

"Why, may I ask?"

For the first time the prisoner flushed, and the look he darted at his counsel had the sting of a reproach in it. Yet he answered: "It was the token of an engagement I didn't believe in or like. I should have hailed any proof that this engagement was off."

Mr. Moffat smiled enigmatically.

"Mr. Cumberland, if you are not sure of having seen this ring then, when did you see it and where?"

A rustle from end to end of that crowded courtroom. This was an audacious move. What was coming? What would be the answer of the man who was believed not only to have made himself the possessor of this ring, but to have taken a most strange and uncanny method of disposing of it afterward?

"I saw it when the police showed it to me and asked me if I could identify it."

"Was that the only time you have seen it up to the present moment?"

"It is."

The universal silence gave way to a universal sigh of excitement and relief. Without waiting for the present sentiment to cool, Mr. Moffat proceeded immediately with his examination:

"You swear that you have seen this ring but once since the night of your sister's death, and that was when it was shown you in the coroner's office?"

"I do."

"Does this mean that it was not in your possession at any time during that interim?"

"It certainly does."

"Mr. Cumberland, more than one witness has testified to the fact of your having been seen to place your hand in the casket of your sister, before the eyes of the minister and of others attending her funeral. Is this true?"

"It is."

"Was not this a most unusual thing to do?"

"Perhaps. I was not thinking about that. I had a duty to perform, and I performed it."

"A duty? Will you explain to the jury what duty?"

The witness' head rose, then sank. He, as well as every one else, seemed to be impressed by the solemnity of the moment. I even thought I could detect a tremor in his muscles as well as in his voice:

"I had rebelled against my sister's wishes; I had grieved and deceived her up to the very night of her foul and unnatural death — and all through drink." Here his eye flashed, and for that fleeting moment he looked a man. "I wished to take an oath—an oath I would remember. It was for this purpose I ordered the casket opened and thrust my fingers through the flowers I found there. When my fingers touched my sister's brow I inwardly swore never to taste liquor again. I have kept that oath."

It was an unexpected explanation and calculated to cause a decided and favorable reaction in the minds of those who had looked upon this especial act of his as an irrefutable proof of guilt. Mr. Moffat's voice was heard rising again in his strange but telling examination:

"When you thrust your hand in to take this oath, did you drop anything into your sister's casket?"

"I did not. My hand was empty. I held no ring and dropped none in. I simply touched her forehead."

This added to the feeling, and in another instant the excitement might have risen into hubbub had not the emotions of one little woman found vent in a low and sobbing cry, which relieved the tension and gave just the relief needed to hold in check the overstrained feelings of the crowd. I knew the voice and cast one quick glance that way, in time to see Ella sinking affrightedly out of sight under the dismayed looks of father and mother. Mr. Moffat continued his examination by demanding why, when the ring was discovered in Adelaide's casket and he saw what inferences would be drawn from the fact, he had not made an immediate public explanation of his conduct and the reasons he had had for putting his hand there.

"I'm not a muff," shot from the prisoner's lips in his old manner. "A man who would take such an oath, in such a way and at such a time is not the man to talk about it until he is forced to. I would not talk about it now"—

He was checked at this point, but the glimpse we thus obtained of the natural man in this indignant and sullen outburst, following so quickly upon the solemn declarations of the moment before, did more for him in the minds of those present than the suavest and most discreet answer given under the instigation of his counsel.

The question as to who had dropped the ring into the casket if Arthur had not—the innocent children, the grieving servants—was latent, of course, in every breast, but it had not yet reached the point demanding expression.

"Mr. Cumberland, you have stated that you did not personally drop this ring into the place where it was ultimately found. Can you tell us of your own knowledge who did?"

"I cannot. I know nothing about the ring. I was much surprised, probably more surprised than any one else, to hear of its discovery in that place."

The slip—and it was a slip for him to introduce that "more"—was immediately taken advantage of by his counsel.

"You say 'more.' Why should it be more of a surprise to you than to any one else to learn where this missing engagement ring of your sister's had been found?"

"I was her brother. I had a brother's antipathies and rightful suspicions. I could not see how that ring came to be where it was when the only one interested in its restoration was in prison."

CHAPTER XIX.

"I AM INNOCENT."

THIS was a direct blow at myself and of course called Mr. Fox to his feet with a motion to strike out this answer. An altercation followed between him and Mr. Moffat, which, deeply as it involved my life and reputation, failed to impress me, as it might otherwise have done if my whole mind had not been engaged in reconciling the difficulty about this ring with what I knew of Carmel and the probability which existed of her having been responsible for its removal from her sister's hand. But Carmel had been ill since, desperately ill and unconscious. She could have had nothing to do with its disposal afterward among the flowers at her sister's funeral. Nor had she been in a condition to delegate this act of concealment to another. Who, then, had been the intermediary in this business?

The point raised by the district attorney having been ruled upon and sustained by the court, Mr. Moffat made no effort to carry his inquiries any further in the direction indicated, but I could see, with all my inexperience of the law and the ways of attorneys before a jury, that the episode had produced its inevitable result and that my position as a man released from suspicion had received a shock.

A moment's pause followed, during which some of Mr. Moffat's nervousness returned. Then he asked:

"Mr. Cumberland, to return to the night of your sister's death, can you tell us what overcoat you put on when leaving your house?"

Arthur was as astonished and certainly as disconcerted if not as seriously alarmed as I was by this extraordinary move.

"I cannot. I took down the first I saw and the first hat."

"Took down? Took down from where?"

"From the rack in the hall where I hang my things, the side hall leading to the door where we usually go out."

"Have you many coats—overcoats, I mean?"

"More than one."

"And you do not know which one you put on on that cold night?"

"I do not."

"But you know what one you wore back?"

"No."

"You do not know what one you wore back?"

"I do not."

"You have seen the hat and coat which have been shown here and sworn to as being the ones in which you appeared on your return to the house the day following your sister's murder?"

"I have."

"Also the hat and coat found on a remote hook in the closet under the stairs, bearing the flour mark on its under brim?"

"Yes, that too."

"Yet cannot say which of these two overcoats you put on when you left your home, an hour or so after finishing your dinner?"

Trapped by his own lawyer—visibly and remorselessly trapped! The blood, shooting suddenly into the astounded prisoner's face, was reflected on the cheeks of the other lawyers present. Even Mr. Fox betrayed his surprise, but it was a surprise not untinged by apprehension. Mr. Moffat must feel very sure of himself to venture thus far.

"I cannot. I was in no condition to notice. I was bent on going into town and immediately upon coming downstairs went straight to the rack and pulled on the first things that offered."

It appeared to be a perfect give-away. And it was, but it was a give-away which, I feared, threatened Carmel rather than her brother.

"Mr. Cumberland, were a coat and hat all that you took from the hall?"

"No; I took a key—a key from the bunch which I saw lying on the table."

"What key was it?"

"It belonged to Mr. Ranelagh and was the key to the clubhouse wine vault."

"Where did you put it after taking it up?"

"In my trousers pocket."

"What did you do then?"

"Went out, of course."

"Without seeing anybody?"

"Of course. Whom should I see?"

It was angrily said, and the flush, which had begun to die away, slowly made its way back into his cheeks.

"Are you willing to repeat that you saw no one?"

"There was no one."

A lie! All knew it, all felt it. The man was perjuring himself under his own counsel's persistent questioning on a point which that counsel had evidently been warned by him to avoid. I was assured of this by the way Moffat failed to meet Arthur's eye as he pressed on hastily and in a way to forestall all opposition.

"There are two ways of leaving your house for the city. Which way did you take?"

"The shortest. I went through my neighbor's grounds to Huested street."

"Immediately?"

"As soon as I could. I don't know what you mean by immediately."

"Didn't you stop at the stable?"

A pause, during which more than one person present sat breathless. These questions were what might be expected from Mr. Fox in cross examination. They seemed totally unsuited to a direct examination at the hands of his own counsel. What did such an innovation mean?

"Yes; I stopped at the stable."

"What to do?"

"To look at the horses."

"Why?"

"One of them had gone lame. I wanted to see his condition."

"Was it the gray mare?"

Had the defense changed places with the prosecution? It looked like it. The situation was too tempting for Mr. Fox. With an assumption of extreme consideration he leaned forward and muttered under his breath to his nearest colleague, but still loud enough for those about him to hear:

"The prisoner must know that he is not bound to answer questions when such answers tend to incriminate him."

A lightning glance shot in his direction was the eloquent advocate's sole reply.

But Arthur, nettled into speaking, answered the question put to him in a loud, quick tone: "It was not the gray mare, but I went up to the gray mare before going out. I patted her and bade her be a good girl."

"Where was she then?"

"Where she belonged—in her stall."

The tones had sunk; so had the previously lifted head. He no longer commanded universal sympathy or credence. The effect of his former avowals was almost gone.

Yet Mr. Moffat could smile. As I noticed this and recognized the satisfaction it evinced my heart went down in great trouble. This esteemed advocate, the hero of a hundred cases, was not afraid to have it known that Arthur had harnessed that mare; he even wanted it known. Why? There could be but one answer to that, or so I thought at the moment. The next I did not know what to think, for he failed to pursue this subject and simply asked Arthur if upon leaving he had locked the stable door.

"Yes—no—I don't remember," was the bungling and greatly confused reply.

Mr. Moffat glanced at the jury, the smile still on his lips. Did he wish to impress that body with the embarrassment of his client?

"Relate what followed. I am sure the jury will be glad to hear your story from your own lips."

YOUNG IS PRESIDENT OF THE DUTCH ARMS

The Dutch Arms, men's association, of Trinity Reformed church held its annual meeting at the church last night when officers were elected for the year and there was a general discussion of plans for the future welfare of the organization, and remarks were made by the officers and members which proved helpful.

F. S. Cutter, who has been president for the past two and a half years, retired last night, and in his place Edmund D. Young was chosen. Mr. Cutter was highly praised for his untiring labors in behalf of the association and there was general expression of regret over the fact that he felt compelled to resign.

The other officers chosen were as follows: First vice-president, A. B. Cole; second vice-president, Chauncey F. Colthar; secretary, Charles Beiter; treasurer, John C. Osborne.

As a means of maintaining the interest during the summer months, a large committee was named to look after the delinquent members and to devise other means to increase the membership. The various reports presented were encouraging and showed that the association is in good condition. The report of the treasurer, William F. Oliver, showed a balance of $52, with all bills paid. It was voted to contribute $15 toward the purchase of a vacuum cleaner and $10 for the purchase of dishes, which will leave a balance of twenty dollars.

After the business, an orchestra, familiarly known as "The Bunch," comprising Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, Louis M. Hummer, Edmund D. Young and others, gave a fine program of music, and the good and welfare committee comprising Horace J. Martin, Sr., Arthur Gaskill, Chauncey F. Colthar, A. K. Willett and Henry Seader served refreshments consisting of sandwiches, etc., which helped to make the affair all the more enjoyable.

PLAINFIELD HIGH 5, SOMERVILLE HIGH 9

Somerville High School received a visit from the local High School baseball team yesterday and managed to win the ball. The Somervillians did not get to VanDeventer until the final innings when they touched his offerings for a series of clouts which netted five runs in two innings. The final score was 9 to 5.

Clarke, Grisley and Denny made themselves felt in the fourth period, slamming the ball hard and bringing two talleys across the plate. Grisley further distinguished himself by making the circuit in the ninth inning on a whizzling liner over the centerfielder's head. Grisley was panting at the plate before the pellet was fielded home. The P. H. S. boys made two more errors than the Somerville boys, but even at that they would have won the game had not VonDeventer weakened in the last two innings.

Score by innings:

EXPERTS IN TENNIS ENTERED IN MATCHES

The invitation tennis tournament to be held at the Plainfield Country Club on Thursday, Friday and Saturday will bring together many leading players of both sexes, and will be an auspicious event in the formal opening of the tennis season. In each of the two events, the men's doubles and mixed doubles, the players occupy important positions and are ranked high in the struggle for national supremacy.

With the exception of William A. Larned, champion, and such California players as Bundy, McLaughlin and Long, there are few men of high standing who are not included in the list of competitors for the men's doubles. Equally formidable is the array of talent comprising the women who will be partners for the men in the mixed doubles. Miss Hazel Hotchkiss, of California, the present national champion, is almost the only player whose superority is beyond question.

Harold H. Hackett, who is paired with Carl R. Gardner, has, with Fred B. Alexander, won the national doubles championship for the past four years. This new pair is regarded as one of the best in the competition and the one most likely to contest final honors with R. D. Little and Earl H. Behr, the famous internationalists whose victories in both this country and abroad have placed them in the first rank.

T. R. Pell and L. E. Mahan form another strong combination, while G. F. Touchard and C. G. Shafer are, on paper at least, little less dangerous. W. B. Cragin, Jr., and W. M. Hall are a strong and well balanced team and last year won notable victories. F. C. Inman, a player of high rank in singles, is paired with Howard A. Plumer, the old Yale crack.

Miss Marie Wagner, who is the present indoor national champion, plays in a dashing manner strikingly in contrast to that of Mrs. Frederick Schmitz, also an indoor champion, whose style is modeled after the English fashion. Miss Elizabeth Moore has won the national championship no less than four times and her sound and consistent play makes her a favorite in any event in which she is entered.

Miss Barbara Fleming is one of the two Plainfield girls entered, Miss Edna Wildey being the other, and with Miss Bunce, she won the indoor doubles championship last winter. Miss Clara Kuttroff and Miss Adelaide Browning are both young players of great promise.

JAPAN NO MENACE SAYS DR. WHITNEY

Dr. Willis M. Whitney, F. R. C. S., a nephew of Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney, of First place, spent yesterday with his uncle, accompanied by his wife and sixteen year old son. Dr. Whitney, who has been a resident of Tokio, Japan for the past twenty years, declared last night that the talk of war between United States and the Japanese nation was all "buncombe." He said that Japan has none but the kindliest feeling for this country and that the government of Japan was using every effort at its command to promote the cordial feeling that has always existed between the two countries.

Dr. Whitney is now a director of the general hospital at Tokio, after serving it for twenty years as a physician and is now enjoying a leave of absence part of which will be spent in London, England, where he will make a study of special surgical methods as recently introduced in Guy's and Midleditch hospitals.

In speaking of the war scare which seemed to predominate in the Western States, Dr. Whitney emphatically denounced the methods of the politicians who are promoting the feeling of antagonism against the Japanese. "They are a most progressive people" he said, "but they are not trying to take the United States any more tan Uncle Sam is trying to confiscate Russia. Their plans are all progressive, but not warlike. The respect which the Japanese nation has for the "great country of the west," is so profound that the statesmen of that country would sacrifice much more than their lives to prevent a clash between them."

Dr. Whitney will leave tomorrow morning on the Campania of the Cunard line for England, where perhaps more than a month will be spent in acquiring special knowledge and sight seeing.

LECTURE ON TREES

State Forester Tells How to Care for the Shade-Givers.

AN INSTRUCTIVE TAIK IS HEARD

Borough School Tree Commission Conducted the Gathering—Held in the Park Club.

Under the auspices of the borough shade tree commission, State Forestor Alfred Gaskill, of Trenton, gave an illustrated lecture in the Park Club last night, on "Trees and Their Care." It was heard by a good-sized audience of tree lovers and others interested in plant life and shrubbery. Henry Crofut White, of the commission, presided over the gathering and introduced the speaker.

Mr. Gaskill first took up the planting of shade trees and by means of stereopticon views showed just how it should be done relative to neatness, proper depth of roots and inlets for water, after this he turned to care, explaining how they should be purned and when, proper nuturing and the best methods of aiding the roots to spread naturally. In many cases Mr. Gaskill said, people put shade trees near buildings and curbs and then expect that they will grow just the same as if they were in a field with nothing to hinder them.

Taking up the subject of the elm tree's great enemy, the elm beetle, Mr. Gaskill said people are in the custom of placing some form of sticky circle about the trunk in order to keep the insect from getting to the upper branches. He declared that they might just as well tie sticky affairs around a telegraph pole for all the good they do. The elm beetle flies, he said, and attachments to tree trunks are of no avail, the popular belief being that the pest crawls up from the ground. The only effective way of getting rid of them is by spraying with a preparation easily secured for the purpose. Maple trees, he said, have no particular insect enemy but need proper pruning and good watering and a low root to keep in good shape.

Turning to another phase of the tree question, the preservation of the states present limited forest area. The value is only partially realized now but in years to come the great importance of these groups of woodland will be keenly felt. They are valuable not only for their drainage and moisture properties but as retreats in days to come, preventatives of sudden freshets, especially on slopes and many things only barely comprehended now.

The great destroyer of these woods and forests, the speaker explained, is the fire in the spring and fall. They have ravaged thousands of acres in recent years and the state is placing great stress on the ways of preventing them and putting them out after getting headway. With the aid of illustrations he showed how driftways are employed to head off flames and the culling out of dead trees and small growth. In this connection Mr. Gaskill complimented Fire Warden Edward P. Canning, of Watchung, who has accomplished a great deal in preventing forest fires in North Plainfield township. Mr. Canning was in the audience and at the close of the lecture, held a conference with Mr. Gaskill in company with W. deLaR. Anderson, president of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Association and a member of the township committee. Both received valuable information on the subject.

The lecture was considered a great success and it is possible that the commission will have others in the near future.

CATHOLIC FEDERATION IN THEATRE CRUSADE.

Rt. Rev. James A. McFaul, D. D., LL. D., bishop of the Catholic diocese of Trenton, has affixed his signature to an open letter from the American Federation of Catholic Societies, in protest against present-day theatricals.

The federation has observed the deterioration of the theatre and has issued the letter to the theatrical producers and managers of public playhouses in an effort to have obscene and undesirable plays suppressed.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE FOR JOHN J. VARLEY

A birthday surprise was tendered John J. Varley, manager for A. E. Force & Co., at his home on West Front street on Monday evening by about fifty of the employes of the Force store. The evening was spent in music, dancing, singing and some sleight of hand performances by Lawrence O'Neill.

Mr. Varley was lured away on an automobile ride by Mr. Force early in the evening, meanwhile the members of the party arrived at the house where they turned out the lights. When Mr. Varley returned the house was in darkness but when he entered his hallway the lights were suddenly turned on and he was confronted with his fifty or more callers.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Lawrence O'Neill, Harry Fahn and Misses O'Keefe and Hughes. After the end of the fun, Mr. Force took all the young people home in his automobile.

MEN'S CLUB AFFAIR AT CONGREGATIONAL

Under the auspices of the Men's Club of the Congregational church, a delightful "ladies' night" affair was given last night. There was a large attendance of women and other members and friends of the church, and altogether the entertainment and social which followed was one of the most enjoyable in the history of the club.

The program for the evening was furnished by Miss Ruth Harris, soprano soloist at the First Baptist church, and Walter David, well-known as a story-teller and humorist. Both shared the honors of the evening and were given several encores.

This was the first appearance of Miss Harris here in anything outside of her church work, and the audience was delighted with her singing, and her selections were those just suited for the occasion, including "Bird Raptures," "Mavournees," Gounod's "Serenade," and "Years at the Spring," and in addition she sang several Irish songs for encores. Miss Harris has an unusually sweet voice and was never heard to better advantage. She was ably accompanied by Miss Alice Morgan.

Mr. David, as usual, pleased his audience with his fine selections, pathetic and humorous. He included several new numbers, which he gave in a delightful manner, being obliged to respond to a number of encores. At the close of the entertainment ice cream and cake were served by the members of the club.

MR. AND MRS. BANGHART OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Percy C. Banghart, of South avenue, celebrated the fifth anniversary of their wedding, last night, when they entertained a large company of relatives and friends. The home was attractively decorated with flowers and American flags. The couple reecived many handsome gifts in addition to the congratulations of their guests. During the evening supper was served.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Keenan, Miss Margaret J. Keenan, Mrs. Margaret J. Keenan, Alfred Keenan, Miss Margaret S. Keenan, Mr. and Mrs. John Waglow, Wilbur Waglow, Mr. and Mrs. J. Noyes, Harold Phifer, Mr. and Mrs. F. Cross, Mr. and Mrs. S. Harper, Mr. and Mrs. J. Chemedlin, George Aller, Thomas Leacock, Mrs. Charles Gibeler, Miss Grace Webster, Miss Radience Knight, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Banghart and son, Mr. and Mrs. Drake, Mrs. A. B. Sumerson.

PRUDENTIAL HOST

Branch Office Men and Their Wives Dine at the Hotel Waldorf.

THE TWO MAYORS GUESTS.

Agents From Nearby Towns Present—Musical Program Provided—The Dinner Was an Excellent One.

The staff and agents of the Plainfield district, together with their wives, were given a banquet at the Waldorf Hotel last night by the Prudential Insurance Company as a reward for good work. There were 110 guests, including several representatives from the home office at Newark, the agents from Somerville, Clinton, Bound Brook, Westfield, New Brunswick, Garwood, Cranford and this city, which comprises the Plainfield district. Mayor G. W. V. Moy, of this city, and Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of the borough, were also guests of the company.

During the serving of the excellent dinner, Charles Suhr's orchestra rendered a program of popular selections and a feature later on was the singing of William Holmes, baritone, who pleased the company with several fine solos.

Martin Reilly, manager of the Plainfield office, was the toastmaster, and he made a short address of welcome to the guests. The other representatives of the company present included Division Manager C. G. Terwilliger, Morton Schiff, his assistant; J. P. Kelly, superintendent of the Jersey City district and Thomas Ansbro, superintendent of the Staten Island district. Each one made a few remarks, as did also Mayors Moy and Smalley, who complimented the men on their success, as well as the company for its generous treatment of employes.

This is one of the few times that the wives of the agents have been invited as guests at these affairs and the women thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment and the excellent dinner served by Mr. Windham.

MISSIONS IN ANTILLES SUBJECT OF HER PAPER.

The closing paper of the season on "Mission Work in the Antilles," was presented by Mrs. Harold Serrell, at the meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room. In the treatment of her subject, Mrs. Serrell confined herself to the two islands, Hayti and Jamaica, telling in an interesting manner of much good accomplished and opportunities for much more extended service of the Woman's Home Mission Society.

A letter was read from Rev. Mr. Brewer, superintendent of Mission Work in Mexico, in which he gave the opinion that following the present unsettled condition of the country, the opportunities for mission work would be better than ever before.

The paper was preceded by the devotional service led by Mrs. Elvin VanName.

The text book for study next year in the Woman's Foreign Society, will be "The Light of the World," by Robert E. Speer, and the Home Society will study "Alaska."

Auto Party's Narrow Escape.

Employes about the South Plainfield station of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, prevented what might have been a fatal accident a few nights ago. A large touring car carrying two women and two men, was stalled on the railroad crossing at a time when fast express trains were approaching from both directions. The trains were flagged when within a short distance of the crossing, while several employes assisted in pushing the car off the tracks.

Will Provide Free Entertainment.

Col. E. C. Stahl, of Trenton, has announced that all local members of the G. A. R. attending the State encampment at Trenton tomorrow and Friday will be provided with free quarters, free entertainment and camp free. This will be furnished by the city of Trenton.

An Exhibition of Work.

An exhibit of the children of the Lincoln School will be held at the school Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock and in the evening at 8 o'clock. This will be the work of the children of the whole school.

COURT IS LENIENT WITH GEORGE HOOK

George Hook a young man employed at the drug store of Cadmus Brothers, who confessed to stealing money and cigarettes, from his employer, was arraigned before Judge Atwater in the Union county court this morning for sentence. He was placed in charge of the probation officer for a period of two years. The court made no comments on the case.

Nathan Lewis, colored, found guilty of stealing automobile parts from the F. L. C. Martin garage and a garage at Westfield, was given sixty days in the county jail.

TALK ON TELEPHONE BEFORE THE CHAMBER

The Chamber of Commerce is making its usefulness in this community felt in many ways, in the taking up of important local matters, and more recently in offering to the public instructive and entertaining lectures. Tomorrow night a lecture which is entertaining as well as instructive, will be given by local agent P. H. Burns, of the New York Telephone Co. The subject will be "The Wonderland of the Telephone."

The lecture contains a great many interesting facts and figures entertainingly described, and to augment and illustrate the lecture, arrangements have been made to have 60 stereopotican views used. Among these views are pictures of telephone exchanges in various parts of the world and many others that will prove more interesting to those who will attend. The members of the Chamber of Commerce have been notified and the chamber desires to have the public understand that all who care to attend will be cordially welcome.

JONAS LIE PICTURES SHOWN AT SEMINARY

Jonas Lie's exhibition of his paintings opened last evening at The Seminary with a reception which in spite of the inclement weather was well attended. The pictures of which there are forty-five in all, were greatly admired and Mr. Lie was the recipient of much praise for his exceptionally fine work.

Among the pictures that perhaps attracted the greatest attentian and were most admired, were "Birches in Snow," No. 2; "Lengthening Shadows," No. 3; "Returning Fishermen," No. 21, loaned especially for the exhibition, and the large new picture of Brooklyn Bridge, called "Loading Coal," No. 1.

There are many other fine paintings, all of which show the unusual talent of the artist and which have brought him to the foremost ranks of artists in this country as well as abroad. The exhibition will continue every day from 3 until 6:30 and 8 to 10, except May 24, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

MRS. H. L. HEIDELOFF HAS PASSED AWAY

Mrs. Hannah Louise Heideloff, wife of Jacob J. Heideloff, died suddenly at her home on East Front street, opposite Sandford avenue, at 8 o'clock last night. She had been apparently in the best of health yesterday but shortly after the evening meal she complained of feeling ill as she reached the hall on her way upstairs. Mr. Heideloff responded to her call for assistance and helped her to a seat. Drs. Anthony and Zeglio were summoned but Mrs. Heideloff had expired before they arrived. They ascribed heart failure as the cause.

Mrs. Heideloff was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Trembley, of Brooklyn, and was born in that city in 1863. She had lived in this city for many years and had a wide local acquaintance. She was a member of Holy Cross church.

Beside her husband, Mrs. Heideloff is survived by one daughter, Miss F. Blanche Heideloff, residing at the parental home.

The funeral will be held at the late resident Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. T. O. Doane, wife of Chief Doane, has been confined to her home by illness for the past week.

Mrs. James Gray, of Monroe avenue, returned home today from Muhlenberg Hospital, where she has been under treatment for several weeks.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES

Harvey Thorn Seeking to Recover $10,000 From Henry Hansen for Injuries.

WAS HURT IN A COLLISION.

Trial on Today Before Judge Vail in the Circuit Court, Elizabeth—Many Witnesses Testify About the Accident.

The case of Harvey R. Thorn against Henry Hansen, both of this city, in which the former seeks to recover $10,000 damages for injuries received in a collision about a year ago, was called in the Circuit Court, Elizabeth, this morning, before Judge Vail and will probably continue throughout the day. Mr. Thorn is represented by Judge William Newcorn while Judge Isaac P. Runyon is counsel for Mr. Hansen.

Among the witnesses on the stand during the morning were Dr. T. S. Davis, who attended Mr. Thorn; Mr. Thorn, Sergenat H. L. Overbaugh, who arrested Mr. Hansen, Mr. Hansen, John D. Townsend, a local newspaper reporter, who was at the scene of the accident about the time it occurred; Henry Armstrong, an autoist who came along about the same time, and George Martin, a colored lad, who was following Mr. Thorn on a bicycle.

It was shown by the testimony of Mr. Hansen and his witnesses that Mr. Hansen was going about ten miles an hour. His car was a 10-horsepower Ford, 1905 pattern. There were attempts to show that Mr. Thorn was traveling at a high rate of speed, when crossing East Front street on Richmond, the point of the accident, but they were combatted.

Mr. Thorn was riding his motorcycle at the time of the accident, crossing East Front street on Richmond, while Mr. Hansen was going west on Front street.

What apparently seemed to be the most damaging evidence against Mr. Hansen was the fact that he did not stop after the accident, but continued on home and it was sometime the next day, when Sergeant Overbaugh placed him under arrest. Mr. Thorn was so badly injured that for several weeks his recovery was in doubt and it was several months before he was able to return to his position as cashier at the electric light office of the P. S. C. in this city.

CHRYSANTHEMUM DANCE WAS A HUGE SUCCESS.

The Chrysanthemum Club held the third of its dances last night in Debele's auditorium and it was a decided success. The program commenced with a grand march and subpoenaes were served on each person in the march to attend the fourth and last dance of the season.

After the first half of the program, which consisted of the novelty and moon dances of the club, refreshments were served, then dancing continued until 2 a. m. Suhr's Imperial orchestra furnished the music. Socially the club makes a hit and all who attend always have a grand time. The committee of arrangements was William H. I. Cubberley, C. A. Doeringer and R. J. Metter.

Placed on the Retired List.

Jeremiah F. Garretson, who for forty years was the baggage agent at the North Avenue Station, has been put on the retired list with pay, by the New Jersey Central, making the third veteran employe of the road in this city to be given this generous treatment. The other two were the late Charles H. Schermerhorn and Joseph A. Haynes, the latter being retired as station master and the former as telegraph operator. Mr. Haynes now resides on Craig place.

Baptists vs. Baptists.

The Probasco Bible class will cross bats with the team from the Park Avenue Baptist church on the Park avenue grounds, Saturday afternoon. The Bible class team will be made up from the following players: William Banks, Carl Pomeroy, Guy Hartley, Robert Mitchell, Joseph Lohsen, Ollie Compton, Leslie Powlison, Frank Evans, Christy Dufford, Bert Trotter, Charles Lee, Wallace Pearce, Lewis Matlack, Fred Zweifel, R. Chilton, and J. Chilton.

Court Watchung Entertains.

Court Watchung, Independent Order Foresters, held a successful euchre party, last night, to which the wives and sisters of the members were invited. There was a large attendance and the play was spirited. Mrs. Peter VanFleet, Mrs. E. H. Enander and Mrs. Randolph, received the honors for the women and John M. Lewin, William Myers and Geo. Townley those for the men. Refreshments were served after the game.

ADMINISTRATOR GIVES A CHECK FOR $4,300

The case of Miss Charlotte Brown, of this city, against LeRoy J. Ellis, also of this city, to secure a settlement of an estate for which Mr. Ellis is the administrator, was called before Judge Atwater in the Union County Court, this morning. Martin B. Stutsman and W. A. Coddington appeared as counsel for Miss Brown, and J. W. Fetter represented Mr. Ellis.

Through his counsel, Mr. Ellis presented a certified check for $4,300 closing the administrative expenses, but this does not settle the amount on the personal estate. This will be done by private arrangement. There is still a balance due Miss Brown of between $3,000 and $4,000, it is said.

According to the complainant's counsel, Miss Brown has been trying for a long time to get a settlement from Mr. Ellis and failing to do so, placed the matter in the hands of a lawyer.

MAYOR BEFORE MAYOR FOR SPEEDING HORSE

Mayor George W. V. Moy sat in judgment upon Mayor Newton B. Smalley and W. J. Buttfield, of the borough, yesterday afternoon, both of whom were accused by Patrolman Messler of fast driving, the former with a horse and the latter in an automobile last Sunday. Sentence was suspended in both cases, although Mr. Buttfield asked the court to impose a severe sentence that it might be a warning to others.

According to Messler's story, Mayor Smalley was attempting to overtake his daughter who was on horseback. The patrolman declared that Mr. Smalley, in his runabout was driving his animal at a rate of speed between three and four minutes to the mile. Mayor Smalley thought it hard that the place usually devoted to speedway purposes should be restricted. He said that in North Plainfield they were more liberal minded. Mayor Moy replied that what might go in North Plainfield was not what could be expected in this city and that it was his duty to enforce the law and protect citizens from speeders.

Mr. Buttfield, after hearing the charge against him said: "Your Honor, I would esteem it a privilege to pay a stiff fine as a warning to others." Mr. Moy replied, "I extend my thanks to you for your attitude to the court, but will suspend sentence."

William A. Coddington defended Mayor Smalley. There were a number of prominent citizens in court.

CHARGED BY A COW, WOMAN BADLY HURT

Mrs. Yetta Parns and J. Himmelfarb, both residents of West Third street, are nursing bruises today as a result of being knocked down by a runaway cow last night at 10:30 o'clock. According to the police record as furnished by Patrolman O'Keefe, the cow was being led along Liberty street at the hour mentioned when the animal broke away and started off on her own hook with lowered horns and snorting as though possessed. She arrived at the corner of Second and New streets just as Mrs. Parns and Himmelfarb turned the corner on their way home from work at a West Front street establishment.

Mrs. Parns had barely time to turn and look behind her when the cow struck her with terrific force, knocking her down and severely cutting her about the face and body. Dr. N. W. Currie was summoned and dressed the woman's wounds. Himmelfarb had his umbrella handle broken and appeared to be more frightened than hurt.

The cow belonged to J. Billinsky, of 511 West Third street.

Funeral of Mrs. M. D. Brown.

The funeral services of Mrs. Moses D. Brown were held yesterday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Miss Mary A. Brown, on Washington avenue, and were largely attended by relatives and friends from New York, Brooklyn, Dunellen and this city. There were also many beautiful floral tributes. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, officiated, and the burial was in the North Plainfield cemetery. Relatives acted as pallbearers.

TWO ARE KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

E. D. Middlekauff and Elsie Walpole Both Nearly Incinerated When Car Turns Turtle.

Ellsworth D. Middlekauff, of North Plainfield, one of the most prominent mining promoters in the State, was instantly killed at 9:30 last night, when his powerful American touring car turned turtle in the Main street, at Chester,, Morris county. Miss Elsie Walpole, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Lynus Walpole, of Scotch Plains, who was riding with him at the time, met the same fate. Both bodies were pinned down by the heavy machine and burned almost to a crisp in a rush of flames that followed the contact of lightened lamps with the gasolene tank. The $5,000 automobile was left a heap of twisted scrap iron.

The accident occurred in front of the home of Elmer Searles, of Chester, and was caused by the car striking a large stone which marked the entrance to his driveway. He was sitting on the front porch and ran to the road when he heard the crash. Neither of the two occupants uttered a sound after the turnover, but Searles could see both forms and made desperate attempts to lift the weight from them. Finding this impossible he called for help but the neighbors who responded were in the same plight. Finally a horse was secured and the flaming car was pulled to one side by a hastily made grappling rope. Middlekauff's body was badly mutilated, but the face could be recognized. All that was left of the young woman who is supposed to have been Miss Walpole was a charred and blackened frame devoid of all human semblance. A silver belt buckle, a necklace pendant and odd pieces of a black velveteen dress were all that led to her identification. This was not fully established until noon today when relatives viewed the bits of evidence at Young's undertaking rooms in Dover. Arrangements are being made to forward both bodies to this city tonight.

Middlekauff left Plainfield Monday morning and presumably spent the intervening time before the fatality in various parts of Morris and Warren counties attending to business for the National Mining and Leasing Company. The young woman was with him at Washington, Warren county, at 7 o'clock last night, when his chauffeur, John Snyder, left him there. He was preparing to come to Plainfield and Snyder refused to ride with his employer because he insisted on running the car himself. The chauffeur declared he would not remain in the car if he was not allowed to handle it and was ordered to return home by train, which he did. He stated this morning that he did not know who the young woman was.

After leaving Washington the next definite report from the car was at 9 o'clock when it stopped at Welsh's garage, German Valley. The girl in a black velvet dress was seated in the machine and Middlekauff addressed her as "Margaret." In reply to a query of a friend at the garage he said she was his daughter. This was not true. After leaving German Valley the car proceeded toward Chester and dashed into the village at a high rate of speed. The crash occurred a moment or two later.

When the wreck of the car was pulled from the bodies, Middlekauff's identity was learned from letters and papers in the pockets of the clothing which escaped the flames. The auto license number was also discernible and the name was verified by reference to the records. The first information of the accident was telephoned to this city shortly after 11 o'clock last night.

Mr. Middlekauff came here about fifteen years ago. Three years ago he and others formed the National Mining and Leasing Company, whose mills and mines are in Kansas. The concern has been paying its stockholders who are scattered all over the State 18 per cent. dividends annually. Mr. Middlekauff was vice-president and treasurer of the mining concern.

Recently Mr. Middlekauff purchased No. 30 Rockview avenue as his residence. He leaves a wife, who is a plendid woman who is held in the highest esteem, and two children, B. Eleanor, aged eighteen, and Edson B., aged thirteen.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Klein, of 31 Park place, the borough, are parents of a fine boy.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks were strong and active in New York yesterday.

The veto bill passed its first reading in the House of Lords.

The trial of Daniel J. O'Rielly, the criminal lawyer, on charges growing out of the Bancroft bond robbery, was begun.

The Secretary of the Treasury invited popular subscriptions to a $50,000,000 issue of bonds for the Panama Canal.

Wall street was pleased by the terms of the Standard Oil decision, and stocks, instead of declining, advanced all along the line.

Governor Dix sent a letter to Speaker Frisbie, of the Assembly at Albany, urging immediate action on the income tax amendment.

The Court of Appeals in Montreal ruled that investigation into United Shoe Machinery Company's alleged "combine" might continue.

Vice-President Bogart, one of six United Wireless officials on trial for fraud, will plead guilty today, according to W. T. Jerome, his counsel.

The American Federation of Labor and unionism were assailed in the report of the president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Andrew Carnegie gave unstinted praise to the decision in the Standard Oil case, speaking at the annual meeting of the Peace Society in New York.

The memorial to Queen Victoria was unveiled in London, with impressive ceremony, in the presence of a great gathering; the King delivered a speech.

Bishop Burgess, in his address to the convention of the diocese of Long Island, discussed church government, and approved Taft's arbitration policy.

Chancellor Lloyd George presented the budget, the new feature of which was the proposed payment of a $2,000 salary to members of the House of Commons.

The members of the Senate at Albany nearly came to blows over the measure to create a county of The Bronx; Tammany members won a victory in both houses.

The Standard Oil decision did not excite London, but the market was much strengthened there and in Paris; the tone of London press comments was pessimistic.

It was said some of the conferrees on subways strongly advocated the plan of dividing the territory between the Interborough and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit.

President Taft's public utterances, especially a message of January, 1910, show that he is in full agreement with the opinion rendered by the Supreme Court in the Standard Oil case.

Congress.—Senate: Two more futile ballots were taken in an effort to elect a president pro tempore; H. L. Stimson, to be Secretary of War, and Francis W. Bird, to be Appraiser at the Port of New York, were confirmed. House: Democratic harmony disappeared when the chairman of the Rules Committee attempted to name the special committees to investigate the Steel and Sugar "trusts;" to end the squabble an adjournment was forced.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association will hold its next meeting on Thursday evening, June 8.

Danish Lutheran services will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the Swedish Pilgrim church, West Sixth and New streets, with preaching by Rev. N. H. Nyrap, of Brooklyn.

Rev. Claude McKenna, of Akron, Ohio, who conductes one of the largest missions in the middle west, will conduct the mid-week prayer service at the Park Avenue Baptist church this evening. Dr. McKenna will sing his famous "Bridal Song," a composition of his own. It is said that he has fed and housed some nine thousand men during the past year and intends to increase his benefactions during the coming year.

FOR PLAINFIELD PUPILS

The Plainfield Ice & Supply Co. will give a prize of $25 in cash to the pupil of any school, public or private, in Plainfield or North Plainfield, who shall submit the best written advertisement for the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company's business, to occupy a space equal to the space taken by this annoncement.

The judges will be the Editors of the Courier-News and Daily Press. The conditions will be as follows:

The advertisement as written should be sent to the office of the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., with a separate sheet of paper attached, bearing the writer's name, and name of the school he or she attends. Both sheets thus submitted will be numbered by the Company in the order received, and the sheet bearing the name of the contestant will be held by the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., and the advertisement with the corresponding number will be sent to the judges, so that the judges will have no knowledge of the name of the writer. The advertisement which is decided to be the best will be so marked, and sent to the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company, who will by reference to the sheets in their possession, determine the name of the successful contestant.

The contest will end May 30, all letters received up to midnight of that day being eligible to the competition.

John Tinker, the shortstop of the Chicago Club, was suspended Monday for three days by President Lynch, of the National League, for his trouble with Umpire Doyle in Brooklyn last Saturday. He will be able to get back in the game again on Thursday.

Pitcher Jack Pfister, a veteran member of the Chicago National League Club, was traded to the Louisville Club of the American Association Monday by Manager Chance, for Emil Richter, a former Chicago semi-professional player.

Hal Chase, manager of the New York American League Baseball Club, who has been ill at Cleveland for the last two days with bronchitis, was slightly improved yesterday. His attending physician said that Chase would be able to leave for New York in a week or ten days, but it will be at least two weeks before he will be able to play ball again.

Fred Merkle, the guardian of the first bag for the Giants, poled out a home-run drive Monday in the game against Roger Bresnahan's Rajahs. The first baseman dropped the ball into the new centre field bleachers in the second round.

The seniors of the Plainfield High School will cross bats with the faculty team this afternoon on Crescent Oval. The game will be called promptly at 3:30 o'clock. This being the annual event between these teams an amusing as well as close game is expected.

SPORTS

News and Notes

BASEBALL.

Johnny Evers is out of baseball for all time, according to the news current in innermost baseball circles. The best second baseman since the days of McPhee, and the keystone of the marvelous infield of the Chicago Cubs, has suffered personal losses and physical distress that have unfitted him for the game. Those who should know declare that the player noted on the field for his gameness has given up the fight in the face of spectres of disaster. Until recently he worried in secret. Revelations of them to some of his comrades was soon after followed by his retirement because of illness, and the Cubs who have played with Evers do not expect him ever to be one of their mainstays again.

Bill Hogan, who was sold to the St. Louis Browns by the Philadelphia Athletics for $5,000 recently, played left field Monday in the game against the Washington Senators. He accepted two chances in the field and drove out a pair of bingles in four times up, including a drive that was good for three-quarters of the distance.

Simon, who did the catching for the Pittsburg Pirates Monday, in the game against Boston, had a great day with the wagon tongue. He was officially at the bat five times, and each time he responded with a clean cut single.

The Phillies handed out a 21 to 5 beating to the Cincinnati Reds Monday. The Quakers made twenty-one safeties off Gasper, McQuillan and Schreiber, who did the flinging for the Reds. Humphries, who was on the mound for the Dooin forces, allowed ten hits and was credited with five shutouts.

The release of Pitcher Harry Ables to the Oakland (Cal.) club of the Pacific Coast League by the New York American League Club was officially announced Monday night. Ables was with San Antonio last year and led the Texas League pitchers in striking out opponents. He is a left-hander.

McKechnie played the keystone bag for the Pesky Pirates Monday in place of Dots Miller, the Kearny lad. While Mac failed to break into the hit column, his fielding was one of the features in the Pittsburg-Boston game. Out of fourteen chances he accepted all but one.

Eight home-run drives were made Monday in the two major leagues. Six of the four-base wallops were recorded by athletes who draw their pay in the Lynch organization.

Russell Ford, the spitball artist, was on the mound for the Yankees Monday in the game at Cleveland. The erstwhile Eastern Leaguer was touched up for an even dozen of hits, including a double and a triple.

Plainfield, N. J., May 17, 1911.

There is more than one man going about town nursing his own boom for a place on the board should the commission form of government be adopted. As "Tune" Melick says: "Don't it Beat All!"

There is a marked distinction between a "boss" and a "leader" in political usage and those who have followed the career of Frank H. Smith as chairman of the Union County Republican committee justly place him in the latter class. Hence, his expression of opinion regarding the Prince corrupt practices act was what naturally might be expected from him and is in line with his past actions. Commenting on it the Elizabeth Journal says: "County Chairman Smith has taken the logical stand on the Prince corrupt practices act. The astonishing thing is that other more or less local statesmen should not be able to see the matter in the same light. Some of the sections which the politicians most severely critfcize are merely designed to save them from themselves. They check an endless chain of abuse which entails a vast amount of trouble and expense, and in the end leaves the contestants just where they were at the outset, comparatively."

DAUGHTERS OF LIBERTY IN ANNUAL MEETING

Nearly 500 delegates assembled yesterday on the Young's Old Pier; at Atlantic City, to attend the seventeenth annual session of the State Council, Daughters of Liberty. These delegates represent 170 councils, having a total membership of nearly 19,000. The present meeting will last two days.

Mrs. Jennie B. Hayward, of Newark, state councilor, is presiding. Her associates in office are: Junior ex-state councilor, Mrs. Katherine Irwin, of Trenton; junior ex-state associate councilor, Mrs. Maggie Wolfkiel, of Jersey City; state associate councilor, Mrs. Jennie Fichtel, of Oxford; state vice councilor, Mrs. Rae Gensen, of Jersey City; state associate vice councilor, Mrs Sarah Beck, of Trenton, state secretary, W. L. Hayward, of Newark; state associate secretary, Mrs. Minerva Cullin, of Collingswood; state treasurer, G. Albert Reining, of Brooklyn; state associate treasurer, Miss Hannah Meyer, of Jersey City; state guide, Mrs. Sarah Angelo, of Millville; state inside guard, Mrs. Gordon Kendall, of Paterson, and state outside guard, William A. Robinson, of Belmar.

FORTY COAL DEALERS WILL VISIT THE MINES

The retail coal delaers along the line of the New Jersey Central have planned to take a two-day trip to the mines in Pennsylvania, on June 8-9, and the party has engaged a special Pullman coach which will be attached to a regular train going and coming. The train will leave here at 9:43 on the morning of June 8, going to Mauch Chunk and Wilkes-Barre, the point of destination. Leaving Mauch Chunk at 3:18 on the afternoon of June 9, the party will arrive home at 6:29 that evening.

The party will be made up of between forty and fifty dealers, including representatives from Newark, Elizabeth, Westfield, Plainfield, Dunellen, Somerville and other intermediate towns. The committee in charge has arranged for dining car service en route and upon the arrival of the party at Wilkes-Barre, the mine operators will entertain the visitors druing their stay. There will be a trip down one of the large mines and other sight-seeing journeys in that region.

PUBLICITY IS BEST CORPORATION TONIC

Discussing corporate control before the students of the University of California, at Berkeley, Cal., yesterday afternoon, Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, declared that the people at last realized that it is no intrusion on the part of the public to look into the affairs of corporations. The individual cannot compete with them, he said, therefore the individual must be protected.

"This is what we call the corporation problem," he continued. "It is plain that the best tonic for corporations is publicity. Since what they do is of common concern, it should be of common knowledge. Since what they are is the basis of public credit for them, it should be fully disclosed at every turn of the business.

"We ought by this time to have seen the futility—we might even say the stillness—of trying to punish illegal action by penalizing corporations as such. Fines punish the stockholders, forfeitures of charters and of the franchises which they are exercising paralyze industry and confuse business. Men do not cease to be individuals by becoming the officers of corporations. The responsibility for violating law, for neglecting public interests ought to fall upon them as individuals."

MARTINE WILL NOT FRANK FOR WILSON

Since going to Washington Senator Martine, of New Jersey, has received several requests from Democarts in various sections of the country to have inserted in the Congressional Record certain political speeches recently delivered by Governor Woodrow Wilson.

To a request of this kind coming from a Wilson admirer and prominent Democrat in a middle western state, Senator Martine has just made the following reply:

"I regret to say that I do not feel able to comply with your request to have inserted in the Congressional Record and reprinted and circulated under Congressional frank, the address delivered by Governor Wilson.

"Primarily, I cannot see my way clear to do this for the reason that I am opposed to members of Congress taking advantage of their position for such purposes. For many years I have severely criticised other members of Congress for the extensive use of their franks in the circulation of partisan literature. Obviously, under these circumstances, I could not now be consistent and do the very same thing myself as a member of the United States Senate. Of course, I am not unmindful of the fact that a great many members of Congress are doing and will continue to do this very thing, and that they will include Democrats as well as Republicans. For myself, I shall not do it, and at the same time will seek to discourage such action wherever I may have influnce to that end. Parenthetically, I may add that only recently I stated in a public interview that if the Postoffice Department was administered in a more businesslike manner the public at large would be able to enjoy lower rates of postage. In this view, it is well to bear in mind that one of the grossest abuses against our postal systems is the sending of millions of parcels by the government free of cost to the senders. A large part of this correspondence and mail matter is not pertinent to the administration of the government.

"More than this, may I not say that in my opinion Governor Wilson is really not in need of the dissemination of his public addresses as a Democrat through the medium of the Congressional Record or in the form of government publications. Certainly, there is no man in public life today who is receiving as much attention from the newspapers of the whole country as Mr. Wilson. The transcendant ability of the man, not only in the manner in which he has met the problems of state government in New Jersey, but also in the loftiness and aptitude displayed in his discussion of the wider questions of public concern, stamp him as one for whom it is not necessary to obtain a hearing through the medium of government expense."

Not the Leader Store.

It was the Plainfield Bargain store at No. 245 West Front street, and not the Leader store, at No. 223 West Front street, which was gutted by fire yesterday morning. The Leader store was in nowise damaged and is doing the usual rushing business.

PROFITS IN APPLES GO TO MIDDLEMEN.

Congressman S. W. Smith, a Washington apple grower, is a consumer who has been wondering why he did not get any benefit from the decrease in prices that has been reported. He was surprised the other day—and began to see a light—when he was face to face with a barrel of his apples in Washington city. He had received 55 cents for the apples and barrel, says the Indianapolis "News." The retailer had paid $4.50 for them and wanted a profit. The consumer, therefore, would have to pay about $6.

Congressman Smith began to trace those apples. He had sold them to the Fruit Growers' association. From it they had passed through the hands of an apple broker, from him had gone to a wholesaler and the retailer had got them from the latter. Congressman Smith is not a Socialist, but the speeches he has been making might have come from Congressman Victor Berger, the Socialist representative from Michigan, for they have been of the "abolish the middleman" sort that the street box orators have been pounding into the world's ear for a long time. In light of what has happened to others, it might be well to say a word to the middlemen, who seem to be responsible for the consumer on anything like scheduled time. That is to remind him that one of the fundamental principles of socialism is to eliminate the man between.

Announcement!

ALBERTO BUCCINI

347 Fifth Ave., New York City

Respectfully announces that he is now ready to offer to the Plainfield public his new artistic ideas and the execution of work for the interior decorations of residences. He has just completed the decorations of Mr. R. A. Meeker's residence, at Belvidere avenue, Plainfield, to the full satisfaction of the owner. Mr. Buccini had also decorated many high class residences in New York City and New Jersey and is ready to submit references and credentials on request. Any resident contemplating to make his home more beautiful will do well to communicate or call at Buccini's Studios to inspect the kind of work that he produces. He would appreciate the privilege of estimating on any work that may be desired

Announce Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Moses C. Stone, of New York city, formerly of this city, announce the engagement of their sister, Miss Isabel Virginia Howard, of this city, to Samuel Dempsey, of Osceola, Florida. The couple will be married June 28.

The Magic of Money.

"That fellow is a perfect boor."

"Go slow. He's worth a million or more."

"Is that so? Well, as I was saying, he's a man of marked individuality."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Phillips, of 128 Watchung avenue, are parents of a fine boy, born to them last evening. Mrs. Phillips was Miss Burns, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Burns, formerly of the Hotel Kensington.

DRY CLEANING TALK

The Pressers and Finishers

Those who have read our Dry Cleaning Talks are aware by this time that there is something to Dry Cleaning.

After the garments have been properly dusted and passed through their proper bath, properly dried, spotted, etc., they reach the Finishing Department.

It is the duty of this Department to prepare the work for return, also largely to inspect, proving the previous work.

Our Finishing Department is our pride and we know it is efficient. Our ever increasing trade confirms this fact. Send your next work to us.

IF you have never had a bank account you cannot understand the feeling of independence and happiness that comes with the possession if one.

A great writer has said that many people with good incomes are more unhappy than beggars because they live beyond their means. If you have never had a bank account you realize the truth of this assertion and cannot understand the feeling or independence and happiness that you may so easily enjoy.

ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT OF G.A.R. IN TRENTON

Delegates from Winfield Scott Post are planning to be in Trenton tomorrow and Friday, when the State encampment of the New Jersey Grand Army of the Republic will be held. Officers will be elected for the year and delegates will be designated to attend the National encampment in Rochester, N. Y., to be held the latter part of August.

Among the names prominently mentioned as nominees for the office of State department commander are Major Charles M. Parsons, of Red Bank; A. F. Appleget, of Trenton, and Terrence McDonald, of Jersey City.

During the Civil War Major Parsons was connected with the First New York Volunteers. Mr. Appleget served with the First New Jersey Cavalry.

The business session of the encampment will begin at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. In the evening a campfire will be held at Taylor's Opera House. The remaining business of the encampment will be done on Friday. Headquarters for the veterans will be in the suite of rooms in the State House recently set apart for use by the State G. A. R.

MRS. JOHN M. WHITON ELECTED PRESIDENT

Officers were elected, committees appointed and a social hour enjoyed at the annual meeting of the Woman's Association of the Congregational church, held in the church parlors yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance and unusual interest manifested in the work of the association.

These officers were elected for the year:

President, Mrs. John M. Whiton; vice-president, Mrs. C. L. Goodrich; recording secretary, Mrs. Thad. O. Doane, Jr.; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Joseph Robinson; treasurer, Miss Jessie McIntosh. These committees were also selected:

Social—Afternoon teas, Mrs. C. A. Rice; entertainment, Mrs. Thomas J. Hylan; sewing, Mrs. Percy VanAlstyne; program—Literary, Mrs. S. W. Dunning; visiting, Mrs. William VanAlstyne; music, Mrs. A. C. LaBoyteaux; house, Mrs. Frank T. Clawson; local charities, Mrs. L. B. Morgan; literature, Mrs. S. W. Dunning; communion service, Mrs. Alonzo Weseman; vestments, Mrs. John R. Townsend.

The report of the treasurer showed that $872 was raised during the year for all purposes. After the meeting there was a social hour and Mrs. C. L. Goodrich was the hostess at a tea.

SOMEWHAT SPICY—I hear some howl about some of my ads. I trust you will keep right on howling, because you are howling me among some of the best business men of Plainfield and I am doing business. The biggest howl is about my 100% for a long search. It is my howl there for I had them to pay for when I knew there could not be anything to imperfect a title that would not be outlawed in seventy years. I expect to represent a Title Company soon and get my own searches the same as all real estate agents do in Trenton, where there is every kind of a court there is, including a U. S. court and everyone is satisfied with a twenty-year search. Do you remember how I use to get kicked. Now I will tell you why my ads are so odd. It is because I am odd. For instance: I am paid a salary, and a little more, to run a business in my own name. Did you ever hear of anything so odd as that? It is because I am so dumb and tricky. The man that pays it does not expect anything for it. D. Foster Updike, my time is your man. 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 17 2

Have hired two men one to help me to sell and exchange farms which I have all over New Jersey, and to take charge of renting your houses and my insurance, will have all kinds including automobile insurance. They wil' be here next Monday. D. Foster Updike, 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. There is more news coming. You never knew that I was a promoter, did you? I sold $75,000 worth of bonds once in four days, that had been offered by peanut venders for six months, and everybody is still happy. I expect to talk to you about some in a few days. $7,000 worth are all ready sold and the company is not quite incorporated yet. I shall offer them to you, but if you look at me sideways I shall go where I went Monday. I had two notes amounting to five hundred dollars. Did I stop off where Wall street prevails; not much, I went to a bank in Trenton, where I left 16 notes unpaid when I came to Plainfield. Notwithstanding they did not know the makers of them, and I did not know one of them and told them so, I had the five hundred dollars five minutes after I walked in the bank. I would be in Trenton now, if I did not consider health better than wealth. My time is yours. 5 17 2

HIS WORK IN OMAN TOLD BY DR. HARRISON

Dr. Paul W. Harrison, the medical missionary in Oman, Arabia, supported by Trinity Reformed church, Plainfield, gives the following account of his work in the current number of "Neglected Arabia," which is published quarterly by the Arabian Mission:

Our medical work in Oman has thus far been confined largely to Muscat and Muttrah. Little has been done to reach the interior. However, the work in these two cities is quite sufficient for the staff at present available. The interior also is reached to a certain degree, for visitors come from all parts of Oman to the capital city, especially in the winter.

Medical work anywhere is largely determined by the locality, the people who live there, and the diseases they have brought with them. Here in Muttrah all three of these factors are of considerable interest. To begin with, the locality is well within the zone of dangerous heat. For two months in the winter the weather is delightful—what might be called spring-like,—and those whose tastes run in that direction find a few days when dark clothes are really very comfortable. The rest of the year is hot, and for three or four months in the early summer extremely hot. Even the Arabs, if they have money, leave for pleasanter quarters.

The reason for this extreme heat lies largely in the topography of the place. Muscat and Muttrah as well, occupies the bottom of a huge basin. Mountains rise on every side, "bare as a bone," shutting out the breeze, and to a very real degree, shutting in the heat; the result is a climate in which white people are foolish to live during the summer. Close to the sea. In Muttrah the rented house used by the Mission is fortunately on the sea front and in a very favorable location.

The people who are the source of all medical opportunity are here,also the source of its principle difficulties. Their training has been neglected in many important points, most conspicuously, perhaps, as to the relation of disease to dirt and bad air. Disease in the general mind is associated with jinn, destiny and wierd disorders of the various bodily constituents. The fatalism which denies all relation between cause and effect in everyday life is disastrous here as in the realms of religion and ethics. It is especially in times of great epidemics of cholera and plague that this is shown. Efforts to interfere with such visitations from God are regarded as useless, if not worse.

But the efforts of bad houses and filthy habits is not confined to times of plague and cholera. The lonesome soldier perched on the rocks in a watch tower or castle probably breathes fresh air, but down in the city, and especially in their own houses, the people breathe something very different. Their sleeping apartments, if so dignified a term may be used, could scarcely be worse. There is no light, not a window, and the low doors open on a half dark court. To examine a patient a lamp is required even at mid-day. There is no ventilation beyond what the door furnishes. The floor is of dirt, covered with mats, and the whole room is a wretched tangle of beds, bedding, cradles and boxes, none of which is clean. There are degrees of filth, but the description might be made as much worse for some as better for others.

The food the people eat is in keeping with the houses they live in. A visit to the fish market in Muttrah is quite sufficient to make one wonder that cholera, once started, stops as soon as it does. It is not surprising that one of the ideas of the people is that cholera is due to eating fish. In times of epidemic eating uncooked food from the bazar is not to be thought of, nor is it safe. There is, however, no lack of food; rice, dates, and fish are exceedingly cheap, and it is safe to say that more people suffer from eating too much than suffer from eating too little.

Diseases of all sorts are here, but as a sort of background for lesser ills, malaria in various shapes and forms dominates the entire medical field. Nearly every one seems to have more or less fever, more or less of the time, and the severe forms, as black-water fever and maligant malaria, as not uncommon. Prevention will probably come in time, but it will be a long time, from present appearances. There is a large amount of tuberculosis, and the habits of the people give it a terrible grip. Muttrah has many of its victims, and the marvel is that there are not twice as many. Pneumonia is common in the winter. The people seem to be extremely susceptible to chills and any exposure to cold.

Besides all these there are all sorts of eye diseases, and not a little surgical work to be done; this latter, for the most part, what we would class as minor surgery at home. The people are very much afraid of operations, though probably this fear will become less as they know the doctor better.

These, then, are some of the things the medical missionary has to do in Oman and some of the conditions he has to work in. But that is not all he wants to do, not all he tries to do. He needs to be prayed for, for he has a good many temptations. The impatience that is far from the Spirit of Christ seems ever ready, for the patient sometimes is stupid or perhaps it is because the doctor does not speak the language very well. The little deviation from the truth looks inviting sometimes for the patient will never know the difference, whether the poor ignorant people to whom every surgical operation is a marvel, or admiring colleague who wishes that their work too might be self-supporting, or indeed the old friends at home whose admiration for research work is such a temptation. The medical missionary certainly needs the help that comes through prayer.

And does he accomplish anything? Sanitary practices are not suuddenly revolutionized, but they are gradually improved a little. He relieves the suffering of a few people a great deal, and of a great many people a little. He wins the friendship of the hostile and gains an entrance for the Gospel. He prays for the work, and especially for those who are put in his care. Perhaps he accomplishes more in that way than by any other means.

P. W. HARRISON.

WORK THAT TELLS.

Plenty of It Has Been Done Right Here in Plainfield.

Cures that last are cures that tell. To thoroughly know the virtues of a medicine you must investigate the cures and see if they prove premanent. Doan's Kidney Pills stand this test, and plenty of proof exists right here in Plainfield. People who testified years ago to relief from backache, kidney and urinary disorders, now declare that relief was permanent and the cure perfect. How can any Plainfield sufferer longer doubt the evidence?

Mrs. S. Driscoll, 1009 S. Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "There was a dull pain across the small of my back and in my sides that clung to me constantly and any hard work made my condition worse. I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells, especially when stooping and I felt weak and run down. I tried plasters and various remedies but nothing helped me until I procured a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Drug Store. They did such good work in correcting my trouble that I heartily recommend them." (Statement given August 25, 1908,)

RE-ENDORSEMENT.

Mrs. Driscoll was interviewed on January 29, 1911 and she added to the above: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as I have been for the past five years. They made a lasting cure of my case."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910, by Anna Katharine Rohlfs

"It's a beastly one, but if I've got to tell it, here it is: I went straight down to Cuthbert road and across the fields to the clubhouse. I had not taken the key to the front door because I knew of a window I could shake loose. I did this and went immediately down to the wine vault. I used an electric torch of my own for light. I pulled out several bottles and carried them up into the kitchen, meaning to light the gas, kindle a fire and have a good time generally. But I soon found that I must do without light if I stayed there. The meter had been taken out, and to drink by the flash of an electric torch was anything but a pleasing prospect. Besides"—here he flashed at his counsel a glance which for a moment took that gentleman aback—"I had heard certain vague sounds in the house which alarmed me as well as roused my curiosity. Choosing the bottle I liked best, I went to investigate these sounds."

Mr. Moffat started. His witness was having his revenge. Kept in ignorance of his counsel's plan of defense, he was evidently advancing testimony new to that counsel. I had not thought the lad so subtle and quaked in secret contemplation of the consequences. So did others, but the interest was intense. He had heard sounds—he acknowledged it. But what sounds?

"But I did not complete my investigations. Arrived at the top of the stairs, I heard what drove me from the house at once. It was my sister's voice—Adelaide's. She was in the building, and I stood almost on a level with her, with a bottle in my pocket. It did not take me a minute to clamber through the window. I did not stop to wonder or ask why she was there or to whom she was speaking. I just fled and made my way as well as I could across the golf links to a little hotel on Cuthbert road, where I had been once before. There I emptied my bottle and was so overcome by it that I did not return home till noon the next day. It was on the way to the hill that I was told of the awful occurrence which had taken place in the clubhouse after I had left it. That sobered me. I have been sober ever since."

Mr. Moffat's smile came back. One might have said that he had been rather pleased than otherwise by the introduction of this unexpected testimony. Ignoring the new facts just given, undoubtedly thinking that they would be amply sifted in the coming cross examination, he asked the following question:

"Will you tell us again how many bottles of wine you took from the clubhouse?"

"One. No—I'm not sure about that—I'm not sure of anything. I had only one when at the inn in Cuthbert road."

"You remember but one?"

"I had but one. One was enough. I had trouble in carrying that."

"Was the ground slippery?"

"It was snowy, and it was uneven. I stumbled more than once in crossing the links."

"Mr. Cumberland, is there anything you would like to say in your own defense before I close this examination?"

"Nothing but this: I am innocent."

CHAPTER XX.

THE SYLLABLE OF DOOM.

RECESS followed. Clifton and I had the opportunity of exchanging a few words. He was voluble; I was reticent.

"He has laid him open to attack on every side. Fox has but to follow his lead and the thing is done. Poor Arthur may be guilty, but he certainly should have every chance a careful lawyer could give him. I have never thought much of Moffat myself. He wins his cases, but"—

"He will win this," I muttered.

Clifton started, looked at me very closely for a minute, paled a little—I fear that I was very pale myself—but did not ask the question rising to his lips.

"There is method in the madness of a man like that," I pursued with a gloom I could not entirely conceal. "He has come upon some evidence which he has not even communicated to his client. At least, I fear so. We must be prepared for any untoward event."

"Elwood," said Clifton, "you've not been quite open with me."

"You have a right to reproach me," said I, "but not wholly. I did not deceive you in essentials. You may still believe me as guiltless of Adelaide's violent death as a man can be who drove her and hers into misery which death alone could end."

AN ORDINANCE

For the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with Permanent and Durable Macadam Pavement, and to provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the following streets and parts of streets of the City of Plainfield shall be permanently improved with durable macadam pavement to be completely laid and constructed on or before the thirty-first day of October, 1911, said macadam pavement to be of the depth and width hereinafter specified, the plain macadam to be in every respect equal to the macadamizing on Randolph Road, between Arlington Avenue and Cedar Brook and the macadam with bituminous binder to be in every respect equal to the macadamizing on Johnston Avenue, in said city, the quantity of bituminous binder to be 1¾ gallons per square yard. All work to be given out upon contract to the lowest responsible bidder, and only after bids therefore shall have been solicited and received according to law, all bids to specify prices for each of said streets or parts of streets separately:

West Fifth and West Sixth Streets from the macadam on Monroe Avenue to the macadam on Clinton Avenue;

East Sixth Street from the northeasterly curb line of Richmond Street to the line of the proposed macadam on Central Street;

Webster Place from the northerly curb line of Putnam Avenue to the intersection of Berckman Street;

Berckman Street from the intersection of Webster Place to the macadam on East Seventh Street;

Central Street from the macadam on South Avenue to the westerly curb line of Woodland Avenue;

Columbia Avenue from the macadam on Leland Avenue to the northeasterly curb line of Frederick Street;

Leland Avenue from the macadam on South Avenue to the southeasterly side of Cushing Road;

Essex Street from the macadam on Spooner Avenue to the macadam on John Street;

Irving Place from the macadam on West Seventh Street to the macadam on West Eighth Street;

Central Avenue from the end of the present macadam to the southerly City Line;

East Seventh Street from the macadam on Belvidere Avenue to the macadam on Terrill Road;

Sec. 2. That said streets and portions of streets described in Section 1 shall be macadamized for the width and depth and of the kind shown in the following schedule, and the macadamizing preparation shall be laid down to the grades already established by ordinance for said streets or portions of streets, respectively:

	Width.	Depth Inches.	Kind.
W. Fifth St.	16	6 to 4	Plain Macadam
W. Sixth St.	16	6 to 4	"
E. Sixth St.	25	6 to 4	"

Irving Pl.	20	6 to 4	"
Central Ave.	16	6 to 4	"
E. Seventh St.	16	7 to 5	"

Sec. 3. That for the purpose of obtaining money by the sale of bonds hereinafter specified for the permanent improvement of said streets and parts of streets as aforesaid, in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits, to an amount not exceeding fifteen dollars per capita for each of the inhabitants of said City according to the last official census, but not for more than the amount limited by law, the Common Council of said City do hereby, pursuant to the Act of the Legislature of said State entitled "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the land and real estate benefited thereby," and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, authorize the issuing of thirty-four coupon municipal bonds of the City of Plainfield of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) each, and amounting in all to Thirty-four Thousand Dollars ($34,000), which bonds shall be dated July first, 1911, and shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum (5 per cent.) per annum, payable semi-annually, and be payable three years from the date thereof, with the option to the City to redeem or pay off the said bonds, or any one or more of them, at any time after one year from the date thereof and before three years from the date thereof, on giving personal notice to said holders of said bonds or thirty (30) days notice by advertisement in the official newspapers of the City of the intention to make such redemption or payment, which bonds shall be signed by the Mayor and bear the corporate seal of the City and be attested by the City Clerk, and may severally or collectively when ordered by resolution of the Common Council be sold for an amount not less than par value; and there shall be raised by tax in each year hereafter such sum of money as may be necessary to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds and the principal of such bonds as may mature during that year, and the money derived from the assessments upon the property benefited shall when collected be held as a fund toward the payment of said bonds.

Sec. 4. That after said improvements shall have been completed, the Common Council shall, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, apply to the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union for the appointment of Commissioners to estimate and assess benefits upon the owners of the lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, in proportion, as near as may be, to an amount equal to the amount of benefits actually acquired by the lands and real estate bordering on said streets or portions thereof respectively, by reason of such improvements respectively; and in case the costs and expenses aforesaid shall exceed the amount of said benefits, the excess thereof shall be paid by the City at large and raised by general tax; no property or owner thereof to be in any case assessed beyond the amount of benefit actually derived from said improvements.

Adopted by the Common Council May 1, 1911; approved by the Mayor May 8, 1911.

GEORGE W. V. MOY, Mayor.

Attest: J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE

"I will believe it," he muttered; "I must." And he dropped the subject, as he made me see, forever.

I drew a deep breath of relief. I had come very near to revealing my secret.

When we returned to the courtroom we found it already packed with a very subdued and breathless crowd. It differed somewhat from the one which had faced us in the morning, but Ella and her parents were there and many others of the acknowledged friends of the accused and his family.

As he took the witness chair and prepared to meet the cross examination of the district attorney a solemn hush settled upon the room.

"Was the visit you made to the wine vault on the evening of the 2d of December the first one you had ever paid there?" asked Mr. Fox.

"No; I had been there once before. But I always paid for my depredations," he added proudly.

"Then you knew the way?"

"Perfectly."

"And the lock?"

"Sufficiently well to open it without difficulty."

"How long do you think you were in entering the house and procuring these bottles?"

"I cannot say. I have no means of knowing. I never thought of looking at my watch."

"But you know when you left the clubhouse to go back?"

"Only by this—it had not yet begun to snow. I'm told that the first flakes fell that night at ten minutes to 11. I was on the golf links when this happened."

Mr. Fox asked: "Whereabouts on the golf links? They extend for some distance, you remember."

"They are 600 yards across from first tee to the third hole, which is the nearest one to Cuthbert road," Arthur particularized. "I was—no, I can't tell you just where I was at that moment It was a good way from the house. The snow came on very fiercely. For a little while I could not see my way."

"How not see your way?"

"The snow flew into my eyes."

"Crossing the links?"

"Yes, sir; crossing the links."

"But the storm came from the west. It should have beaten against your back."

"Back or front, it bothered me. I could not get on as fast as I wished."

Mr. Fox cast a look at the jury. Did they remember the testimony of the landlord that Mr. Cumberland's coat was as thickly plastered with snow on the front as it had been on the back? He seemed to gather that they did, for he went on at once to say:

"You are accustomed to the links? You have crossed them often?"

"Yes; I play golf there all summer."

"I'm not alluding to the times when you play. I mean to ask whether or not you had ever before crossed them directly to Cuthbert road?"

"Yes, I had."

"In a storm?"

"No, not in a storm."

"How long did it take you that time to reach Cuthbert road from the Whispering Pines?"

Mr. Moffat bounded to his feet, but the prisoner had answered before he could speak.

"Just fifteen minutes."

"How came you to know the time so exactly?"

"Because that day I did look at my watch. I had an engagement in the lower town and had only twenty minutes in which to keep it. I was on time."

Honest at the core. This boy was growing rapidly in my favor. But this frank but unwise answer was not pleasing to his counsel, who would have advised, no doubt, a more general and less precise reply. However, it had been made, and Moffat was not a man to cry over spilled milk. He did not even wince when the district attorney proceeded to elicit from the prisoner that he was a good walker. Now, as the storm that night had been at his back and he was in a hurry to reach his destination it was evidently incumbent upon him to explain how he had managed to use up the intervening time of forty minutes before entering the hotel at 11:30.

"Did you stop in the midst of the storm to take a drink?" asked the district attorney.

As the testimony of the landlord in Cuthbert road had been explicit as to the fact of his having himself uncorked the bottle which the prisoner had brought into the hotel Arthur could not plead yes. He must say no, and he did.

"I drank nothing. I was too busy thinking. I was so busy thinking I wandered all over those links."

"In the blinding snow?"

"Yes, in the snow. What did I care for the snow? I did not understand my sister being in the clubhouse. I did not like it. I was tempted at times to go back."

"And why didn't you?"

"Because I was more of a brute than a brother; because Cuthbert road drew me in spite of myself; because"— He stopped with the first hint of emotion we had seen in him since the morning. "I did not know what was going on there or I should have gone back," he flashed out, with a defiant look at his counsel.

"When you heard your sister's voice in the clubhouse how did you think she had got into the building?"

"By means of the keys Ranelagh had left at the house."

"When, instead of taking the whole bunch, you took the one key you wanted from the ring did you do so with any idea she might want to make use of the rest?"

"No; I never thought of it. I never thought of her at all."

"You took your one key and let the rest be?"

"You've said it."

"Was this before or after you put on your overcoat?"

"I'm not sure—after, I think. Yes, it was after, for I remember that I had a deuce of a time unbuttoning my coat to get at my trousers pocket."

"You dropped this key into your trousers pocket?"

"I did."

"Mr. Cumberland, let me ask you to fix your memory on the moments you spent in the hall. Did you put on your hat before you pocketed the key or afterward?"

"My hat? How can I tell? My mind wasn't on my hat. I don't know when I put it on."

"Nor where you took it from?"

"No."

"Whether you saw the keys first and then went for your hat or, having pocketed the key, waited"—

"I did not wait."

"Did not stand by the table thinking?"

"No; I was in too much of a hurry."

"So that you went straight out?"

"Yes, as quickly as I could."

The district attorney paused to be sure of the attention of the jury. When he saw that every eye of that now thoroughly aroused body was on him he proceeded to ask: "Does that mean immediately or as soon as you could after you had made certain preparations or held certain talk with some one you called or who called to you?"

"I called to nobody. I—I went out immediately."

It was evident that he lied; evident, too, that he had little hope from his lie. Uneasiness was taking the place of confidence in his youthful, untried, undisciplined mind. Carmel had spoken to him in the hall—I guessed it then, I knew it afterward—and he thought to deceive this court and blindfold a jury whose attention had been drawn to this point by his own counsel.

District Attorney Fox smiled. "How, then, did you get into the stable?"

"The stable? Oh, I had no trouble in getting into the stable."

"Was it unlocked?"

A slow flush broke over the prisoner's whole face. He saw where he had been landed and took a minute to pull himself together before he replied: "I had the key to that door too. I got it out of the kitchen."

"You have not spoken of going into the kitchen."

"I have not spoken of coming downstairs."

"You went into the kitchen?"

"Yes."

"When?"

"When I first came down."

"This is not in accordance with your direct testimony. On the contrary, you said that on coming downstairs you went straight to the rack for your overcoat. Stenographer, read what the prisoner said on this topic."

A rustling of leaves, distinctly to be heard in the deathlike silence of the room, was followed by the reading of this reply and answer:

"Yet you cannot say which of these two overcoats you put on when you left your home an hour or so after finishing your dinner?"

"I cannot. I was in no condition to notice. I was bent on going into town, and on coming downstairs I went straight to the rack and pulled on the first things that offered."

The prisoner stood immobile, but with a deepening line gathering on his brow, until the last word fell. Then he said: "I forgot. I went for the key before I put on my overcoat. I wanted to see how the sick horse looked."

"Did you drop this key into your pocket too?"

"No; I carried it into the hall."

"What did you do with it there?"

"I don't know. Put it on the table, I suppose."

"Don't you remember? There were other keys lying on this table. Don't you remember what you did with the one in your hand while you took the clubhouse key from the midst of Mr. Ranelagh's bunch?"

"I laid it on the table. I must have—there was no other place to put it."

"Laid it down by itself?"

"Yes."

"And took it up when you went out?"

"Of course."

"Carrying it straight to the stable?"

"Naturally."

"What did you do with it when you came out?"

"I left it in the stable door."

"You did? What excuse have you to give for that?"

"None. I was reckless and didn't care for anything—that's all."

"Yet you took several minutes, for all your hurry and your indifference, to get the stable key and look in at a horse that wasn't sick enough to keep your coachman home from a dance."

The prisoner was silent.

"You have no further explanation to give on this subject?"

"No. All fellows who love horses will understand."

CHAPTER XXI.

"I SUMMON CARMEL CUMBERLAND."

THE district attorney shrugged this answer away before he went on to say: "You have listened to Zadok Brown's testimony. When he returned at 3 he found the stable door locked and the key hanging up on its usual nail in the kitchen. How do you account for this?"

"There are two ways."

"Mention them, if you please."

"Zadok had been to a dance and may not have been quite clear as to what he saw, or, finding the stable door open, may have blamed himself for the fact and sought to cover up his fault with a lie."

NEW JERSEY EXEMPTS ASSEMBLE AT NEWARK

Delegates and members of the State Exempt Firemen's Association from all parts of the State are attending the twenty-fifth annual convention at Newark today. The session opened at Wever's Colosseum at 10 o'clock, and there are 600 delegates and visitors present. Plainfield is well represented.

President James J. Manning opened the session, and will preside until the election of officers. The election of a new president is expected to be hotly contested. The fight will be between Elias K. Leslie, of Trenton, and John Kennell, of Passaic. The other elections will be for State treasurer, State secretary, vice-president, members of the executive and standing committees. There are ten districts into which the eighty-five smaller associations are divided, and a member to each of the three latter offices is elected for each district.

With comparatively few exceptions, it is expected that the incumbents will retain their positions. The present secretary is Chief E. T. Humphrey, of Nutley, and the treasurer Nicholas W. Snyder, of Trenton.

Prayer was offered on the opening of the convention by Rev. Oscar E. Braune, of the First German-English Lutheran church. An address of welcome was delivered by Mayor Haussling.

At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, a dinner was served to the visiting delegates and two hours later they will parade. The line of march will be from Park place, the forming point, to Broad street, to Clinton avenue, to South Tenth street, to Springfield avenue, to the Colosseum. In the evening a reunion will be held at that hall.

Yesterday afternoon the executive and the standing committees and the delegates from the different associations convened in executive session at Firemen's Hall, 593 Springfield avenue, the headquarters of the convention, to prepared reports for the session today.

SHE WANTS GOVERNOR TO DRIVE AWAY GHOST.

While absent in the West, Governor Wilson is escaping the annoyance of his mail, if nothing else. A full share of "crank letters" come to the State House at Trenton for the Governor every week.

Recently a letter was received from a woman living in the southern part of the state, asking that the Governor would do something to relieve her from the anoyance of being haunted by the spirit of her husband's first wife. This was followed by a request that the Governor aid her in obtaining a divoce that she might be a rest with the world. The letter was somewhat incoherent, and there seemed to be good reasons for the impression that the writer might be slightly deranged metally.

Mrs. Rosetta E. Lawson, of Washington, wife of Jesse Lawson, and mother of Dr. J. F. Lawson, of East Third street, will address the Lawson W. C. T. U. meeting at the Calvary Baptist church, tomorow afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

Three Councilmanic Committees Meet to Discuss Some Important Matters.

CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS.

Believed That Action for Municipal Ownership Will Be Recommended—Bonds for High School Addition.

Three Councilmanic committees met last night to discuss matters of interest to each one and it was a late hour when the sessions were concluded. The special water commission met first, going over details of the report which will probably be presented at the June meeting of the Common Council. While it is impossible to get definite information as to the nature of the report, there is a report that condemnation proceedings against the Plainfield-Union Water Company for its local plant will be recommended.

It is a known fact that there are several members of the Council who now favor such a procedure, who did not at one time, arguments being brought to bear to show that it would be a wise move. A member of the Council, speaking of the matter today, remarked that the water commission has not been idle, as supposed, but on the contrary has been very busy getting its report in shape.

The fire and building committee also met and in addition to discussing some minor details of the building code, recently adopted, approved the action of Councilman W. W. Wilson in purchasing a team of horses from Hersh Brothers, of Elizabeth. The team is now on duty at No. 4 Engine House. The horses have been passed by a veterinary surgeon and the committee is well satisfied with them, believing that they will meet the requirements. The horses are each about five or six years old, well seasoned and heavy enough to draw the apparatus to any point in the specified territory. Messrs Hersh informed Mr. Wilson that if any member of the Council was dissatisfied with the horses they could be returned.

The finance committe also met and it is understood discussed the proposition of an issue of $35,000 worth of bonds with which to enlarge the high school building by addition of two wings. No conclusion was reached, it is said. There was also further consideration of the budget. At present it is impossible to say what the tax rate for the year will be for the reason that the county budget has not been completed as yet and other items must first be determined. One member of the Council said today he did not believe it would be as high as $1.75, as reported.

Successful Euchre and Dance.

The euchre and dance given in Washington Hall, South Plainfield, last night, for the benefit of the Sacred Heart church, was a success. There were more than two hundred people present. Miss Cora Reeves won the first prize for the women, a centerpiece; Mrs. John Horn, second, an apron; Miss Marjorie Maguire, third, a cut-glass vase. John Maguire won the first prize for the men, a pitcher; Mr. Cline, second a large cake, while Miss Sarah Newman and Robert Hamilton received booby prizes.

Jolly Six Dance.

The Jolly Six held its first annual ball, which was a shirtwaist dance, in Sebring's Auditorium last night. There were about twenty-five couples and a feature was the music by Suhr's Imperial Orchestra of five pieces. The committee in charge comprised Julius Shapiro, Jacob Abrams, Louis Rottberg, Ray Prager, Miss Sadie Kantor and Miss Gertrude Baum, the last named of Somerville.

Recall Works Too Well.

Two city commissioners who have been under fire were recalled at yesterday's election at Tacoma, Washington. Recently Tacoma recalled Mayor A. V. Fawcett and elected W. W. Seymour. Of five men elected a little over a year ago, just after Tacoma adopted the commission form of government, two remain in office and three have been recalled.

Lecture on Telephone.

Tonight in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in the Frost building, Paul H. Burns will give a lecture on "The Wonderland of the Telephone," to which women are especially invited to be present. The lecture will be illustrated with sixty stereopticon views and promises to be highly interesting.

MT. OLIVE BAPTISTS GET READY TO BUILD

The members of the Mt. Olive Baptist church has about completed arrangements for starting work on its new church edifice to be erected on the site of the present one on Liberty street. For a long time the members have been engaged in raising a fund for this purpose and it is expected that the work will be started within a few weeks.

A concert and supper will be given at the church on Thursday, June 1, for the benefit of the building fund. Mrs. L. M. Dempsey, chairman of the committee, is assisted by Mrs. Leila Field. Rev. M. W. Vaughan is the pastor of the church and has general supervision of the entertainment and supper.

NEW BRUNSWICK TO HAVE NEW MARKET

The former site of the Janeway & Carpender plant, near the Pennsylvania Railroad, between Paterson and Church streets, in New Brunswick, is soon to be transformed into a large market, much like the markets in other cities, and at considerable expense to the promoters. The land has been purchased from Janeway & Carpender by the LaRue Market Company. Col. Jacob J. Janeway yesterday confirmed the purchase, and outlined the plans of the new company.

The purchase price of the property was $15,000.

At the same time the purchasing company has given the city the privilege of extending a street through the property from Paterson to Church streets, and around the property near the Pennsylvania railroad elevation. These streets have been long wanted, and the residents in the vicinity will welcome the change.

The plans for the new market are already in the hands of surveyors. The market will be laid out similar to the one which Mr. LaRue's company has established here. The work will be done at large expense. the promoters, however, consider the investment a good one. There has been some talk before of markets in the lower part of the city, but the plans have never materialized.

The building will cover about four acres in the center of the city and will be of re-inforced concrete.

THORN RECOVERED $280 AS DAMAGES.

The jury in the case of Harvey Thorne against Harold Hansen, for $10,000 damages for injuries, rendered a verdict yesterday afternoon in favor of Mr. Thorn for $280, which includes only actual expenses. Judge Vail's charge to the jury was fair and described the degree of negligence which should be found in order to establish fault for the accident which occurred on May 13, 1910.

Judge Wiliam Newcorn represented Mr. Thorn and Judge Isaac P. Runyon looked after the interests of Mr. Hansen.

New Tennis Club.

A new tennis club has been formed in North Plainfield which is to quite exclusive. Harry Schaffus and Bradley Hall are at the head of the scheme. The club will be limited to 16 members. The cost of the new tennis courts, which are being laid out at Fairview and DeLacy avenues in the borough, will cost upward of $200.

Memorial Hospital.

As a memorial to Peter F. Collier, Mrs. Collier has given $100,000 for the erection of a hospital in Red Bank, N. J.

The institution will be a stone structure. Plans have been drawn by Joseph Swannell, of Red Bank. The new hospital will be a non-sectarian institution.

Progressives to Dine.

Mayor G. W. V. Moy has received an invitation to attend a dinner to be given by the Progressives in Krueger's Auditorium, Newark, this evening. It is understood that a large delegation from Union county will attend the affair. The dinner is announced for 6:30 o'clock.

A Property Improvement.

The property at the northwest corner of Fourth street and Plainfield avenue, has been purchased by A. Kunzman, of West Third street. The large frame house has been moved back on Fourth street and a brick store building will be erected directly on the corner.

Elks' Fish Dinner.

The Elks enjoyed a feast of the first sea bass of the season at their club rooms on Watchung avenue last night. The finny beauties were furnished by Charles Matt and were caught yesterday at Long Branch.

P. O. CLERKS BUSY

Making Arrangements for the State Convention to be Held Here.

BANQUET TO BE THE FEATURE.

President LaPorte to Be in the Chair—Mayor and Postmaster to Welcome the Hundred and Fifty Delegates.

The clerks at the local postoffice comprising the Plainfield Branch, No. 787, of the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks, are busily engaged in completing arrangements for the entertainment of the 150 delegates from all parts of the State to the annual convention of the New Jersey Branch to be held here on Decoration Day.

The convention will be held in the Odd Fellows' rooms, Babcock building, beginning at 11 o'clock in the morning. James Conklin, president of the local branch, will call the convention to order, and then will follow short addresses by Postmaster E. H. Bird, Mayor G. W. V. Moy and others. Alfred E. LaPorte, of this city, who is president of the State branch, will then take charge and the business of the convention will be taken up in secret session. At 1 o'clock luncheon will be served to the delegates.

The afternoon session will be devoted to business at the close of which some form of entertainment will be provided. At 6:30 o'clock in the evening a banquet, will be given at Truell Hall, to which postmasters from all parts of the State have been invited. It is expected that United States Senator James E. Martine will attend and speak. Congressman W. E. Tuttle, Jr., of Westfield, has promised to be present and address the gathering.

The clerks have been endeavoring to get several prominent speakers from the department at Washington, but they are assured of having at least one representative from the department. James Conklin is the president of the local branch and Elmer K. Squier, the secretary and treasurer. The other members are Ernest A. Millard, George A. Bailey, Clarence V. Rittenhouse, Howard F. Miller, Daniel T. Clawson, Edward T. Van Winkle, William B. Sharp, LeRoy S. Hann, Alfred E. LaPorte and William H. Thorn.

NEXT TIME IT WILL COST PETTITT $200.

Charged with speeding his automobile on April 29 and again on May 5, James W. Pettitt, of East Orange who formerly lived in this city, received a suspended sentence from Mayor Moy this morning, but not without hearing the reasons why the law must be respected.

Pettitt was ordered to appear by Patrolman Saffron who made the two charges against him. He acknowledged the speeding, but when Mayor Moy declared that the next time he appeared on the same charge the full penalty of the law would be imposed Mr. Pettitt promised to never offend again in Plainfield. The penalty fixed by law for a second offense is $200 and sixty days in the county jail.

Tickets for Benefit on Sale.

Tickets for the benefit entertainment to be given at the Plainfield theatre, May 25, by the local secret lodges for the building fund of Mt. St. Mary College, are now on sale at the stores of the following merchants: Schreiner Bros., Shirley and Johnston, F. A. Duttenhoffer, A. C. Lohrman, M. C. VanArsdale, J. J. Kenney, The Men's Shop, T. S. Armstrong, Dudley S. Miller, Roth & Co., A. E. Force, Tepper Bros., Endress Co., and Scheuer & Co.

Arrested Himself.

Henry Harris, colored, 39 years old arrested himself last night because he was intoxicated, at least, so he explained to Mayor Moy in the city court this morning. Harris, as a matter of fact, did walk into police headquarters last night considerably the worse for liquor. At his own request he was locked up and this morning promised the court to do better in the future.

Cabell—Coles.

On February 17, last, Rev. C. W. Bailey, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, officiated at the wedding of O. Cabell, of Amos County, Va., and Miss Irene Coles, of Charles county, Va. Samuel Jones and Miss Mary Buller attended the couple, who are now living at 418 Sycamore street.

Pupils' Work Exhibited.

There is an exhibition of the work of the children of Lincoln school going on this afternoon. An evening exhibit will be given tomorrow evening beginning at 8 o'clock. The work will represent all grades of the school from the kindergarten up.

INSULTED A WOMAN; FINED $50 IN COURT

Charged with insulting Mrs. James Kelley, on West Front street last evening at 8 o'clock, Frank Farrell, of Dunellen, was fined $50 by Mayor George W. V. Moy, in the city court this morning.

The mayor administered one of his severe lectures to Farrell, telling him that Plainfield was no place for exhibitions of affection whether produced by booze or otherwise, and especially on a public street. "When a man so forgets himself," said the court, "as to insult a woman he should be severely punished. The law allows me to impose a fine of $100 and in addition imprisonment for sixty days in the county jail, but this time I will be lenient and impose a fine of $50. It would be better for you and your kind to stay out of Plainfield. The next time you are brought before this court on a similar charge I will see that the full penalty is inflicted."

According to the testimony of Mrs. Kelly, Farrell accosted her near the corner of Watchung avenue, grabbing her arm and calling her by a name strange to her. She immediately sought her husband and together they went looking for Farrell. A man answering his description had been seen entering a local hotel and there Farrell was found by Patrolman McDonald, who placed him under arrest.

Farrell was intoxicated according to his own admission and in answering the questions of the mayor contradicted himself. He is wealthy. He will probably give Plainfield a wide berth in the future.

THEO. Y. BAINBRIDGE DEAD AT MARINETTE

Theodore Y. Bainbridge, a resident of this city a number of years ago, died suddenly at his home in Marinette, Wisconsin, early yesterday morning. He was only ill two hours. Mr. Bainbridge, it will be remembered by some, visited Plainfield a little over a year ago, when he took so much pleasure in reviewing the old scenes and renewing the acquaintances of his youth.

At the time he was delighted with his trip and afterward said that Plainfield was by far the prettiest place on earth to him. Mr. Bainbridge had been in poor health during the past winter, but was feeling better with the advent of warm weather. His death was very unexpected. He leaves a widow and two children. A sister Miss E. J. Bainbridge, residing in Newark, was for many years a teacher in the borough school.

SENIORS WIN CLOSE GAME FROM FACULTY

One of the most exciting and perhaps the most loosely played baseball games was played yesterday afternoon on Crescent Oval between the seniors and faculty of the Plainfield High School. The seniors winning out in the final session by one run. A feature of the game was a home run by Sidney Karr. Much amusement was created by the novel appearance of the faculty team. Arrayed in costumes that might have antedated the deluge they scampered about the field to the tunes of various kinds and sizes of horns and a chorus of yells which could be heard in Dunellen.

For three innings not a player reached home, but after that it was a procession over the bags. Both mound artists loosened up in the fourth inning and a joyful sort of entertainment ensued. The seniors scored 5 and the facutly came back with 3 and thereafter it was a ding-dong game with more fun to the minute than any game in recent years.

The lineup:

Faculty—Von Minden, c; F. Clarke, p; Lindsay Best, 1b; Benjamin Evans, 2b; C. Bostwick, 3b; G. Broadbent, ss; H. M. Maxson, rf; S. Howe, cf; H. Hubbard, lf. P. H. S. Seniors—Shrager, ss; Karr, 1b; Ulrich, c; Terry, cf; Hatfield, 3b; Walron, 2b; Berse, lf; Schuck, lf; Manley, rf; Clarke, rf; Banks, p.

Score by innings:

Formed a Partnership.

Samuel Terry and Frank Terry, formerly of Woolston & Buckle, have formed a partnership and engaged in the business of painting and paper-hanging, with an office at 10 Linden avenue. At present the firm has a large contract at Dr. Tuttle's house, Dunellen.

EXEMPTS BIG TIME

John Kennell Elected President at State Association's Annual Session.

PLAINFIELD WAS REPRESENTED

Horace G. Adams Again Chosen Secretary of the Executive Committee—Parade Follows Convention Adjournment

As predicted in this paper on Tuesday last, John Kennell, of Passaic, was elected president of the New Jersey Exempt Firemen's Association at the annual convention held in Newark yesterday and Horace G. Adams was re-elected as secretary of the executive committee. Mr. Kennell was elected by a vote of 396 to 157, his opponent being Elias K. Leslie, of Trenton. Edgar T. Humphrey, of Nutley, was elected secretary of the organization and Nicholas Snyder, of Trenton, treasurer.

The convention was one of the best attended meetings in the history of the exempt's association. 541 delegates and life members sitting down to the banquet served in the Colosseum in Newark. Among the delegates from this city and North Plainfield were James Daley, Phillip Currin, John Schenck, William Bamberger, Horace G. Adams and William Rickerts.

Before the close of the convention the delegates extended to the retiring president, James Manning, a vote of thanks for his efficient work during the past two years. A street parade which elicited much applause from assembled thousands along Broad street in Newark helped to make the day a memorable one for the veterans. Souvenirs were distributed to the delegates commemorating the silver anniversary of the association.

Mayor Haussling, of Newark, welcomed the veterans in the opening address at the Colosseum and said that the old fire-fighters were entitled to consideration because of the services they had rendered in their efforts to prevent and conquer fires as well as their faithfulness to the cause they represent as veterans of the big army of volunteers whose fights have always been with a common enemy. Both Mr. Adams and William Rickerts were paid compliments for their work during the past two years.

The convention closed at 2 o'clock in the afternoon an hour earlier than usual.

DUTCH ARMS' PRESIDENT APPOINTS COMMITTEES.

President Edmund D. Young, of the Dutch Arms, men's association of Trinity Reformed church, has appointed the following committees for the coming year:

Gano, chairman; H. E. Gayle, J. Beckman, Joseph Angerbauer. Sick—Will F. Williams, chairman; W. A. Woodruff, John Dolliver. Finance—A. K. Willett, chairman; A. L. Force, J. P. Laire. Vestibule—W. R. Kriney, chairman; Arthur Gaskill, Fred Soper. Good and Welfare—T. R. VanZandt, chairman; Henry P. Seader, John D. Roberts, Sidney Frazee, Russell Doeringer, George S. Dufford, John Bennett.

Approaching Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Woolston, of Fairview avenue, have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Laura Woolston, and W. DeWitt Arbuckle, of Newark. The ceremony will take place at the home of the bride's parents, Thursday, June 1. After a trip the couple will reside at Roseville.

Chinese Supper at Trinity.

The Willing Workers and Juniors of Trinity Reformed church will give a chicken supper and entertainment in the lecture room of the church this evening, from 6 to 9 o'clock. The supper will be served by the young folks who will appear in Chinese costume.

Granted a Patent.

Johnson N. Barber, of Somerset street, the borough, has been granted a patent on adjustable door sills or saddles. He has assigned one-sixth of his interest to Ernest W. Wilcox and Theodore A. Pope, both of Westfield.

Excursion to Willow Grove.

Under the auspices of Franklin, Somerset, Plainfield and Benevolent Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., of this city, an excursion will be run to Willow Grove, Philadelphia, July 29.

POSTPONE HEARINGS OF THREE LOCAL MEN

The hearings of Thomas Waldron, C. P. Smith and William Julliard, all of this city, who were caught fishing in the Bound Brook dam by Game Warden Ely, of Skillman, and placed under arrest, before Justice Reed, of Bound Brook, has been postponed until May 20. S. S. Swackhamer is counsel for the accused men, and his argument is that the ground under which they were apprehended is not in operation under the new law. William Julliard has made an appeal on his case.

The game warden, when he arrested the men, was dressed as a hobo, and the fishermen had no idea that their neighbor was a man of the law.

NEW BOOTHS NEEDED FOR NEXT ELECTION

Because the election booths which have been used for years are not large enough to accommodate three men at one time the Committee on Elections of the Board of Freeholders yesterday afternoon decided that either new booths would have to be secured or all the old ones rebuilt. The committee held a special meeting yesterday afternoon for the sole purpose of examining the booths and the old ballot boxes.

The meeting was called in the Courthouse where there were two ballot boxes. When these boxes were examined and found too small for the large ballots to be used this year, the committe went to the Elizabeth City Hall. There the old booths were examined. The Geran law provides that the election booths must be sufficiently large to accommodate at least three men. This provision is made on account of the fact that when an illiterate person wants to vote and must have instructions, at last two election officers must go to his assistance.

The freeholders' committee found that the present booths would hold but two men at one time. At least fifteen new booths will have to be built or fifteen old ones rebuilt to be used in the fifteen new election districts in Elizabeth alone. As the committee has not heard from other parts of the county how many new districts have been made it has been unable to ascertain how much of an increase in the election appropriation is needed.

All the old ballot boxes will be so repaired as to take any overflow of the new ones which will be built. It is pointed out that the old boxes would never hold the total vote in any one district. There will be new top pieces placed on the old boxes.

The election committee is composed of Freeholders Perry, Chairman, Teller, Krouse, Pierson, Randolph and Fay. Director Cady and County Collector Leavitt were also present at yesterday's meeting.

ADDRESSED PUPILS ON ROMAN HISTORY.

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph lectured this morning before the Latin classes of the High School. His topic was "Early Roman History." He related the history of Rome and reviewed the development, rise and fall of the once powerful nation. He showed the wide influence wielded by Caesar, Anthony and Augustus, the advance in art and literature and other interesting features of the ancient city. The lecture was fully appreciated by the audience of pupils.

In District Court.

Judge Clark Whittemore presided in the local District Court this morning in place of Judge Newcorn, who presided ni Elizabeth. The only case of importance called was that of Jacob Bonschur, of Morristown, against Edward Swenson, of Sterling. Judge Whittemore acceeded to the request of the counsel of both contestants to have the testimony taken in Elizabeth on June 15. V. W. Nash, Jr., represented Bonschur which Carl V. Vogt, of Morristown, appeared for Swenson.

Gave a Bridge Whist.

Mrs. Henry K. Dumont, of Washington avenue, gave an afternoon bridge party yesterday in honor of Miss Maude Emmons, of Washington avenue, who will be a June bride. The house was tastefully decorated with flowers, the color scheme being pink and white. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. A. W. Vail, Mrs. Whitney, of East Orange, and Mrs. John P. Emmons. A collation was served in the dining room, covers being laid for twenty.

Frank Wagner, the City Market newsdealer, has been called to Chester, Pa., owing to the illness of his aged father. During his absence Mrs. Wagner has charge of the business.

VICTIMS' FUNERAL

Private Services for Both E. D. Middlekauff and Miss Elsie Walpole.

AUTOIST'S HEAVY INSURANCE.

Added $10,000 Accident to Other Big Life Policies a Week Ago—He Was Not Killed Instantly.

The bodies of Ellsworth Douglas Middlekauff and Miss Elsie Walpole, victims of the appalling automobile accident at Chester Tuesday night, were brought to this city last evening. They reached here on the 6:29 train coming by way of High Bridge from Dover. That of Miss Walpole was taken to George W. Cole's undertaking rooms and prepared for burial and now reposes in a handsome purple casket. The funeral will be held at her late home in Scotch Plains tomorrow afternoon and will be in charge of Rev. Franklink K. Mathiews and will be strictly private. Burial will be in the Scotch Plains cemetery.

Mr. Middlekauff's body was taken in charge by A. M. Runyon & Son. The funeral service will also be private and will be held at his late residence on Rockview avenue. Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Bantist church, will officiate. Interment will be at Hillside cemetery.

As the result of several mishaps which he had in the past year or so, it is apparent from an action of Mr. Middlekauff's last week that he feared a serious accident in his automobile trips about the State. On Friday last he paid the first premium on a $10,000 accidental death policy and a separate accident insurance of $3,500 on his $5,000 American touring car. Both went into effect at once. At the time he signed the necessary papers he remarked that he was already carrying $49,000 life insurance and that the new policy certainly ought to be enough.

The latest reports of the accident, which stands as one of the most terrible of the kind in the annals of State automobiling, indicate that the account in yesterday's Daily Press was essentially correct in the important details. The only correction made after a visit to the scene at Chester by a Daily Press reporter yesterday was the fact that Mr. Middlekauff was not instantly killed and evidently suffered great agony when the gasolene flames roasted him while he was held prisoner by the overturned car. Elmer C. Searles, in front of whose home the fatality occurred when the speeding automobile struck a stone marking the entrance from the road to his driveway, stated to the newspapermen that the mining promoter lived at least several minutes after the wreck. He plainly heard him moan "Oh, dear, oh, dear," several times. Only a portion of the body was disfigured, the features remaining intact.

Miss Walpole made no sound after the car turned turtle, so far as Mr. Searles knew, and it is believed she was crushed to death almost immediately. She was directly in the path of the flames and the only part of her body not incinerated was that protected by the steel frame of her corsets. Everything else was charred and blackened, making identification almost impossible. When she left her home Sunday afternoon, remarking that she was going to Brooklyn to visit friends, she wore a black velveteen dress, a messaline waist and silver ornaments. Relatives knew it was Elsie only through odd bits of these things clinging to the form. When the heavy machine turned over she was caught with one arm doubled beneath her head and this saved one large-sized piece of the apparel. It was not until noon yesterday that her father became fully convinced that the second victim of the fatal ride was she and give orders for Undertaker Young, of Dover, to send the body to Plainfield.

Executive Board at Trenton Considers Ritual Changes.

Trenton, May 18.—The general executive board of the Junior Order United American Mechanics of the State councils of New Jersey, New York, Virginia and the District of Columbia began its annual conference in the Ribsam building shortly before noon yesterday. The first business to come before the meeting was the consideration of the ritual.

Last night there was a banquet to observe the fifty-eighth anniversary of the institution of the order. William H. Lerue, State councilor of New Jersey, acted as toastmaster at the banquet.

Use TIZ-- Smaller Feet

Sore Feet, Tender Feet and Swollen Feet Cured Every Time. TIZ Makes Sore Feet Well No Matter What Ails Them.

Everyone who is troubled with sore, sweaty, or tender feet—swollen feet—smelly feet, corns, callouses or bunions can quickly make their feet well now. Here is instant relief and a lasting, permanent remedy—it's called TIZ. TIZ makes sore feet well and swollen feet are quickly reduced to their natural size. Thousands of ladies have been able to wear shoes a full size smaller with perfect comfort.

It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleanses them out and keeps them clean. It works right off. You will feel better the very first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all druggists 25 cents per box or direct if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill

Peace in Mexico was assured by the announcement in Mexico City that President Diaz and Vice-President Corral will resign before June 1, and that Senor de la Barra will become President ad interim, with Madero, the revolutionary leader, as his chief advisor.

ELIZABETH MAY HAVE 'WHITE' WAY.

Elizabeth, May 18.—A movement for a "White Way" on Broad street, received further impetus last night at a meeting of merchants who do business on that thoroughfare. The meeting was held in the Mayor's office in the City Hall and was attended by Mayor Stein. Albert C. Stein, who has been the chief mover in the project for additional illumination on the city's main street, explained the object of the gathering and told his fellow merchants of the progress thus far made. He has received estimates from the Public Service Corporation lighting department and from the Elizabethtown Gaslight Company. The merchants decided to make a further investigation of neighboring cities having special illumination. It is likely that a trip will be made to Perth Amboy in the near future for this purpose.

Broad street is probably as poorly a lighted thoroughfare of its kind as there is in the State, there being four dim arc lights from the Broad street arches to Elizabeth avenue. West Grand street, where numberless vehicles pass at night into Board street, is without any light whatever. Because of this failure on the part of the city to keep the street even fairly lighted the merchants are hoping that the council will see fit to bear the cost of the installing of the extra lights if they are adopted.

SCORES FILTH ON THE STAGE

Trenton, May 18.—Bishop James A. McFaul, of the Catholic diocese of Trenton, has affixed his signature to an open letter from the American Federation of Catholic Societies, in protest against present-day theatricals.

The federation has observed the deterioration of the theatre and has issued the letter to the theatre producers and managers of public playhouses in an affort to have the plays suppressed. The letter, signed by the highest official in the American Federation, in part is as follows:

"The American Federation of Catholic Societies has observed for some years how the theatre, which has such powerful influence for good or evil, has deteriorated to a woefully great extent. We deplore that plays have been produced upon the stage which mock at sacred things and moral principles which the Christian holds in highest respect. We deplore still more deeply that these plays of first-class houses soon find their way into cheaper amusement places, nicklodeons, vaudeville and moving picture shows, and thus reach out to our American youth and children.

"Plays as objectionable as: 'Miss Innocence,' 'Desperate Chance,' 'The Hypocrites,' 'Kreutzer Sonata' and 'Sapho,' which were condemned and denounced as infecting the moral mind and fibre of the nation, seem to have been discarded but there are still theatres missing their high and noble aim and debauching the minds and hearts of the theatregoers and especially of our young people. When plays like 'Salome,' 'The Blue Mouse,' 'The Soul Kiss,' 'The Girl from Rector's,' 'The Easiest Way,' 'The Girl in the Train,' 'The Girl in the Taxi,' 'Alma Wo Wohnst Du,' and 'La Samaritaine,' are praised and heralded as attractions, we feel that the theatrical producers and managers are menacing the public morality and the welfare of the nation.

"Our country federations that have sometimes requested the managers to stop salacious plays have been quieted with the excuse that the nasty play had been expurgated, but the subsequent facts showed what could have been anticipated, viz: that the moral filth and poison were inherent in the play. At other times a religious title has been made the drawing card, or the unsavory title of the play has been changed without altering the subject. Such inadequate, if not insincere, attempts appear to us as devices to silence public criticism without taking away the cancer of moral poison. Even Catholic papers were thus entrapped to advertise nasty plays.

"We are aware that many times the excuse is given 'the people want these plays; give the people what they want.' We most earnestly protest against this allegation. There are thousands, nay millions, of American people who are disgusted with these putrid exhibitions. We most emphatically assert that themes of divorce, adultery, free love and other worse performances exhibiting perversity are not what the decent people want. The decent people are not a neglible quantity, and the people's ideas and desires must not be measured by the sentiment of the vulgar crowd of debauchees."

NEW BRUNSWICK MAN ATTEMPTS SUICIDE IN JAIL.

An attempt was made by Andrew Sasso, of Port Reading, to commit suicide at the county jail Monday afternoon in New Brunswick. Sasso and his brother Carlo, were arrested recently, charged with atrocious assault in having slashed a fellow countryman.

Andrew has been acting strangely lately and Monday he lowered the top window sash and climbed up to the top. Most of the day he spent in sitting on the sash. In the afternoon he was found with one of the cords which hold the window weight wound about his neck in an effort to commit suicide. Upon being detected he loosened himself. He will be examined as to his sanity.

Baby Brown Pinched Again.

Jersey City, May 18.—Alexander Brown, six years old, is in the toils of the Jersey City police again. This makes the twelfth time that Baby Brown has been pinched. Early yesterday morning Special Officer Heatn heard a crash of glass. He ran to the spot where the sound came from and saw a wee bit of a lad make a grab at a big red apple. The big pane of glass in one of the windows of 11 Newark avenue had been smashed. Baby Brown confessed that he was hungry and cracked the glass with a roller skate to get an apple. He was taken to the S. P. C. C. Home, 163 Grand street, and will be held for the Juvenile Court.

MORE PLANS FOR THE G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

Trenton, May 18.—Past Department Commander Connely will be the principal speaker at the camp fire this evening in Masonic Hall, in connection with the annual encampment of the G. A. R. Department Commander Inglis will also deliver an address, and Rev. Dr. James L. Gardiner, pastor of the First Methodist church, will also speak.

Colonel E. C. Stahl has arranged for Acting Governor Ackerman to review the parade with Mayor Madden.

CONTEST

FOR PLAINFIELD PUPILS

The Plainfield Ice & Supply Co. will give a prize of $25 in cash to the pupil of any school, public or private, in Plainfield or North Plainfield, who shall submit the best written advertisement for the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company's business, to occupy a space equal to the space taken by this announcement.

The judges will be the Editors of the Courier-News and Daily Press. The conditions will be as follows:

The advertisement as written should be sent to the office of the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., with a separate sheet of paper attached, bearing the writer's name, and name of the school he or she attends. Both sheets thus submitted will be numbered by the Company in the order received, and the sheet bearing the name of the contestant will be held by the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., and the advertisement with the corresponding number will be sent to the judges, so that the judges will have no knowledge of the name of the writer. The advertisement which is decided to be the best will be so marked, and sent to the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company, who will by reference to the sheets in their possession, determine the name of the successful contestant.

The contest will end May 30, all letters received up to midnight of that day being eligible to the competition.

GOLF.

An an additional incentive for those who are contemplating practicing at Scarsdale this week for the twelfth annual championship tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, Mrs. R. G. Hanford has offered a prize to be competed for there today. The competition will be an eight-hole medal play handicap, and the person returning low net score will win the prize. The course at Scarsdale is new to many women in the district, so a good sized delegation will likely take this occasion to try out one of the most hilly circuits to be found anywhere near New York.

The 1911 year book of the Metropolitan Golf Association, more complete and attractive than ever, has made its appearance. In compiling the present book, W. D. Vanderpool, the secretary, gives the records of past association championship tournaments, both amateur and open, as well as the official handicap list.

Entry blanks are out for the next Tom Morris trophy competition. This is an annual competition under the auspices of the Western Golf Association, conditions calling for eighteen holes against the official par of the course. Each club belonging to the Western association is eligible to play over its own course each year on June 16, Tom Morris' birthday. When the date falls on Sunday the competition that year will take place on Saturday, June 15. The club whose team returns the best total result against the par of its course will be awarded the custody of the trophy for one year, and every member of the winning team will receive a medal.

BIRD-TRIMMER NUPTIALS; CEREMONY AT CALIFON.

At noon yesterday Miss Bessie M. Trimmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Trimmer, of Crestmoor, and Ernest S. Bird, of this city, were married by Rev. Rowland B. Crist, of the German Valley Presbyterian church, at Califon. The ceremony was under a bower of apple blossoms and laurel. Miss Lulu Taylor, a cousin of the bride, of Schooley's Mountain, was bridemaid, and Albert A. Trimmer, a brother, of Dover, was best man. Miss Mabel Trimmer, of Middle Valley, played the wedding march.

The bride wore ivory silk, trimmed with lace and white silk. Her veil was caught up with white flowers and she carried roses.

The bridemaid was dressed in white and she carried a bouquet of sweet peas. Following the ceremony a reception was held and a wedding dinner served.

Mr. and Mrs. Bird will begin housekeeping next spring in this city, where the groom is engaged as a contractor and builder.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Grant, Miss Olive Grant, of Boston, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. John S. Pickle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Creveling, of Bloomsbury; Mr. and Mrs. William D. Bird, Miss Edna Bird, Miss Olive Bird, Mrs. E. E. Waldron, Mr. and Mrs. Boyle, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. George Bird, of Westfield; Mr. and Mrs. George S. Pickle, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus McLean, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pickle, of Hackettstown; Mr. and Mrs. John Hendershot, Vincent Hendershot, Mrs. Emma Lyons, John Rinehart, Miss Edith Rinehart, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Whitesell, Lloyd Whitesell, Mr. and Mrs. John Huston, Miss Helen Huston, of Dover; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pickle, of Paterson; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob S. Clawson, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Clawson, of Flanders; Miss Nellie Apgar, of Fairmount; Mrs. Catherine Dufford, Lawrence Trimmer, Sharps Trimmer, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Trimmer of Middle Valley; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis D. Trimmer, Miss Flossie Trimmer, of Hoffmans; Mr. and Mrs. William N. Swackhamer, Mrs. Anna Farrow, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Dufford, of Crestmoor, and Lester M. Apgar, of Califon.

HARLAN, OLDEST MEMBER OF COURT, IN DISSENT.

The oldest member of the Supreme Court both in years and in point of service, John Marshall Harlan, of Kentucky, stands in a class by himself as the dissenting member of the court in the Standard Oil decision.

He contended that no concessions should be allowed monopolies; that the decision in the lower court in the case of the Standard Oil company should be affirmed without amendment.

Harlan denounced with irony and in bitter terms the action of the chief justice and the other associate justices in declaring that "restraint of trade" must be "unreasonable" to come within the meaning of the anti-trust law. He declared that the court was legislating not interpreting the law.

HOMEOPATHS WILL MEET IN NEW YORK

Homeopathic physicians in all parts of the country are preparing for their annual pilgrimage to New York City, to attend the meeting and banquet of the Alumni Association of the New York Homeopathic Medical College and the commencement exercises of the college.

This yearly assemblage is the greatest gathering of homeopathic physicians and those interested in homeopathy which the country sees, and many travel long distances to attend. Particular interest attaches to the meeting this year. The semi-centennial of the college was celebrated last year, and more than 500 alumni contributed at that time to a great fund for a bacteriological laboratory for the college. The laboratory has since been constructed and outfitted, and is said to be the finest in the country. The microscopes are valued at $10,000, and everything else is on a similar basis. The coming meeting will be the first opportunity of the alumni to see their gift, and so an unusually large attendance is expected.

The commencement exercises will be held on Wednesday, May 31, at the Engineers' Club on Fortieth street. The next day, Thursday, June 1, will be alumni day. There will be clinics in the morning for the visiting graduates at the college buildings at Sixty-third Street and Eastern Boulevard. These will demonstrate up-to-date laboratory methods, and will show the physicians who graduated years ago what is being done now with modern facilities. Luncheon will be served at the college at noon, and in the afternoon the annual meeting of the Alumni Association will be held.

In the evening the two days' program will be brought to a close with the alumni banquet, which will be held at the Hotel Astor. So many men of distinction in medical and educational circles have spoken at these annual dinners that the affair always attracts much attention and the attendance numbers many hundreds. Dr. William L. Love, of Brooklyn, will be the toastmaster; Dr. Royal S. Copeland, formerly of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, who is now completing his third year as dean of the college, will be one of the principal speakers. The others will be Dr. William Harvey King, ex-dean of the college; Dr. George W. McDowell, president of the Alumni Association; Justice Frederick E. Crane of the Supreme Court; Comptroller William A. Prendergast; the Rev. John F. Carson, one of the best known orators of Brooklyn; Melbert B. Cary, president of the trustees of the college; and ex-Congressman Cornelius A. Pugsley, of Peekskill.

17-YEAR LOCUSTS ARE HERE ALREADY

The seventeen-year locust, or cicada has been discovered in Staten Island, a short distance form New Brighton, according to entomologists of the American Museum of Natural History. Evidences of the locusts' presence so near New York were found on Saturday, when they were dug up in Clover Valley. The insects are expected to emerge from the grub stage somewhere near June 15, and for two or three weeks will swarm over the country from as far south as Virginia and as far west as Ohio.

Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of the Zoological Gardens in Bronx Park, who has kept a close watch on the cicadae, said also that evidences of their presence had been discovered in Nyack, and he expected that by the last week in May or the first week in June the locusts in Virginia would begin to swarm over that state to be followed a few days later by their presence in this and neighboring states.

According to entomologists of the museum, New Jersey and Pennsylvania will be visited to a greater extent by the insects than some other portions of this part of the country. At Plainfield, N. J., there are millions of cicadae still in the grub stage. In this locality there will be more than in other parts of New Jersey. It is said the maps had been prepared by entomologists in that state showing just where the largest colonies would be found.

In the opinion of the museum authorities, Manhattan Island will be visited by the cicadae, but foliage will not be injured, because the cicadae do not feed on it. Instead they deposit their larvae in the young sprigs of the trees, which are pierced by them in an effort to secure places for the young to hatch. Later the insect drops to the ground, and for seventeen years remains in the grub stage.

In view of the interest which will be awakened by the presence of the swams of cicadae, the museum has on exhibit now a number of the insects in different stages of their existence. Sprigs in which can be seen the deposited larvae, clumps of earth in which the cicadae can be seen in the grub stage, and others in which they have emerged from that stage and are equipped with wings for their flight as winged insects for three or four weeks. The cicadae in its fully developed stage is a brick red, the wings being transparent as those of a dragon fly, but bordered also with red.

Last fall a warning was sent throughout New Jersey by the State Entomologist, John B. Smith, that caution should be exercised in pruning trees, as trees would need all their vitality in view of the coming cicadae invasion. Mr. Smith also advised against setting out young trees, saying there was no way to prevent the attack on the branches and twigs.

ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT OF VETS AT TRENTON

The annual encampment of the G. A. R., of New Jersey, opened at 10 o'clock this morning at Masonic Hall, Trenton, following an address of welcome by Mayor Madden. This afternoon there was a parade of the veterans and it was arranged to have them stop in front of the city hall, where a large chorus of school children sang several patriotic songs to the delight of the old soldiers. Each child in the chorus held a flag.

This evening a camp fire will be held in Masonic Hall. Col. Stahl will preside and there will be several addresses by prominent G. A. R. men and there will be music by the Tuxedo Quartet, as well as a vaudeville program.

The attendance at the encampment is the largest in its history, and among the number is a large delegation from Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., of this city, many of whom are accompanied by their wives.

Deer Roams at Large.

A handsome deer, supposed to belong to the Dr. J. Ackerman Coles estate at Scotch Plains, was discovered roaming about the woods off North avenue, near Charles street, Westfield, by Mrs. W. B. Elliott, who tracked the animal by its footprints in the soft ground. Mrs. Elliott and her sons saw the deer running through the woods and notified Chief of Police O'Neil of their discovery. Chief O'Neill notified the keeper of the Coles place that the deer had been seen here and men were sent to Westfield yesterday afternoon to find the animal. Up to a late hour yesterday afternoon the deer had not been recovered.

Missing Boy Found.

Westfield, May 18.—Albert Snyder, aged 2 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Snyder, of Broad street, disappeared from his parents' home at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and was not found until 12 noon. The little fellow wandered out of the yard and was picked up by a policeman near the new Second Ward School, over a mile from his home. His parents and the neighbors had searched throughout the neighborhood for him before calling for police aid.

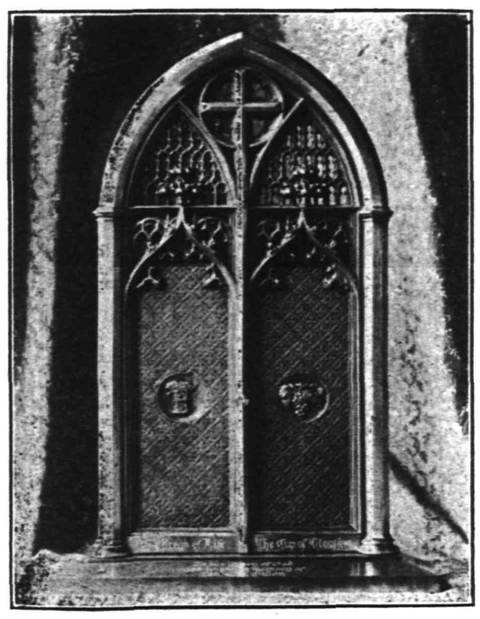
MEMORIAL TRIPTYCH ON GRACE CHURCH ALTAR



A bit of ecclesiastical art of more than passing interest is that of a bronze altar Triptych recently presented by the Women's Guild of Grace church as a memorial to the life and service of the late Mrs. Samuel Seabury Guion. This uncommon piece of church furnishing was designed by Grover P. Hinman, of this city, after suggestions by the Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, and was executed by the Hinman Bronze Works, under the supervision of the designer. The work has great merit from its originality, delicacy of design, and perfection of its production.

The Triptych frames and encloses a copy of the prayer of Consecration from the communion service of the Episcopal church, beautifully engrossed and illuminated by hand upon vellum. The engrossing of the prayer is a product of the work of the Sisters of All Saints, Baltimore, Md. The style employed in the bronze work is of the later English Gothic with long slender shafts, lancet arch, and somewhat intricate tracery. It might be described as the reproduction in miniature of a cathedral door of that period. The front is divided perpendicularly so that two doors swing to left and right, disclosing the illuminated manuscrpit within. The capitals and bases of the columns apparently supporting the lancet arch revolve with the doors. Thus the graceful columns are in view in either position. On the outside the panels are delicately etched with a soft diapering of fleur de lis, and in the centre of each is a suitable symbol in medallion. On the left the sheaf of wheat and underneath it "The bread of life." On the right a cluster of grapes and the text, "The cup of blessing."

At the base upon the riser is engraved in bold English text this inscription:

"To the Glory of God and in loving memory of Louis E. Guion." And on the back: "Presented to Grace Church by the Women's Guild, Easter 1911."

The Triptych is finished in an oxidized tone, relieved here and there with a touch of brighter metal. It is not probably that there is a more complete or more accurate article in ecclesiastical designing in the country than this memorial. Mrs. Guion was for several years secretary of the Women's Guild, she was greatly esteemed and her loss has been sorely felt at Grace church.

Miss Katherine Brown, Vassar 1912, of Fanwood, has been elected president of the Christian Association of the college. Miss Brown is on the 1912 hockey team, the track team and chairman of the nominating board for 1912.

Mixed Metaphor.

Bishop Lawrence, of Massachusetts, thinks that as a "mixed metaphor" from the pulpit the following can hardly be surpassed:

GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF PRESBYTERIANS

Atlantic City, May 18—Since Tuesday the commissioners to the One Hundred and Twenty-third General Assembly of the Presbyterian church have been arriving. Many have been attracted by the excellent preassembly program arranged by the assembly committee on evangelistic work and missions.

The closing session of the conference yesterday attracted an unusually large crowd on account, no doubt, of the presence on the program of the Rev. Mark Allison Matthews, of Seattle, Wash., who is being presented as the candidate for the moderatorship of this assembly. An active and persistent canvass has been made to swing the assembly to Dr. Matthews because he is the representative of the extreme West, the "Extreme Western" brethren believe they deserve a representative in the moderator's chair. It is generally felt that his campaign will go against him. Dr. Matthews spoke on "The Mission of the Church to the World." The members of Newark Presbytery will vote for Dr. Carson, the candidate to be urged by Brooklyn Presbytery.

The other attraction was the Rev. Dr. J. H. Jouett, who has just come from England to accept the pastorate to the Fifth Avenue church, New York, who spoke on the "Reflex Ministry of Christian Missions." Dr. Jouett was listened to most attentively and a deep impression was made by his address.

At the morning session addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. Charles G. Thompson on "Missions at Home," and Mr. Robert E. Speer on "Missions Abroad," the Rev. Dr. James D. Moffat on "Finances," and the Rev. Dr. A. S. Hinler on "The Spiritual Missions."

At the afternoon session addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. Edgar P. Hill, the Rev. William L. Midge, the Rev. Walter H. Houston.

An evangelistic conference was also held in Olivet church, where addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. J. Wilber Chapman, the Rev. Dr. Aquilla Nelb, the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young, Brookly, N. Y.; the Rev. H. Coltin Milton, Trenton; the Rev. Dr. William P. Fulton, Philadelphia, Pa.

A conference by college presidents was held at the First Presbyterian church, conducted by John H. MacCracken, Ph. D., chancellor of the New York University.

TO RESTORE TRENTON'S FAMOUS OLD BARRACKS.

The New Jersey Sons of the Revolution, at their meeting at Trenton yesterday, named a committee to bring about the restoration and preservation of the old barracks in Trenton. It was about these historic quarters that the battle of Trenton was fought, and after that event they were the centre of much activity while held by the Continental soldiers.

These officers were chosen:—President General, Richard F. Stevens, of Newark; Vice President General, Alfred A. Woodhull, of Princeton; Secretary, Robert C. Belville, of Trenton; Corresponding Secretary, the Rev. Hamilton Schuyler; Treasurer, Neil R. Montgomery, of Trenton; Registar, Frederick C. Clark, of Trenton, and Historian, Justice Chas. J. Parker, of Jersey City.

Still Fight Public Service.

Another chapter to the record of fights between Perth Amboy and the Public Service Corporation was added yesterday when Edward English was arrested by Patrolman Tonneson in that place for refusing to flag ahead of his car, while running backwards from the Staten Island ferry to Smith and State streets. The patrolman ordered English to go ahead of the car, but he refused. Finally the corner was reached, the power reversed and the car soon outdistanced Tonneson, speeding toward Westfield Junction. The arrest was made two hours after the incident when the car returned. English was paroled by Recorder H. W. Kehoe.

Ousted Assessors Fight.

Rahway, May 18.—The Board of Assessors, consisting of Robert D. Gibby, Lawrence Baumgarter, Alonzo Crane and William H. Clarkson, who were ousted from office by the Common Council and a new board created the first of the year, consisting of Charles A. Grove, Peter Tillman and Nathan V. Compton, which it is claimed is an illegal board, had served yesterday afternoon on the latter as defendants, papers in quo warranto proceedings.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The county authorities have fixed upon July 27 and 28 as dates for examination of applicants for election office appointments. Because of this inconvenience through loss of time most of the former Dunellen election board members will not take the examination, the extra amount allowed by the Geran law not being sufficient to make it worth while.

Assessor John H. Peters will commence his rounds of the borough Saturday. His work will be greatly increased this year because of the large amount of building which has been in progress for the past twelve months.

A large number of Dunellen people attended the funeral of Mrs. Moses Brown at her home in Plainfield Tuesday. Mrs. Brown was formerly a resident of the borough and was very well known.

John Emmons and family moved from the borough yesterday to their new farm at Lebanon. The furniture was taken to the place by H. C. Smith's van.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gorman, of Jersey City, have been visiting friends in the borough.

Mrs. H. S. Garretson has been entertaining a relative from Chicago.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Manager Alberts intends to present his regular lineup against Westfield in the game at Recreation Park, Saturday afternoon. Either Slocum or MacLaughlin will do the box work. Both are in fine shape and a pretty game is promised as Westfield has a strong team.

Funeral services of Elsie Walpole, daughter of Lynus Walpole, who was killed in the automobile accident at Chester, Tuesday night, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home. The service will be private.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harper and family, are again keeping house, having rented the Marsh property, on Front street, which they occupied for several years, previous to their removal to Southold, L. I.

Mrs. Cass Ackerson, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark, of Front treet, has returned to her home at Keyport.

Mrs. Alexander Muir and children, of Newark, have been visiting Mrs. Muir's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Meyer, of Front street.

Captain and Mrs. H. B. Saunders, of Washington Valley, have been entertaining John Egel, of New York, for a few days.

Mrs. Ella Rogers and daughter, Miss Estella, of Brooklyn, have been visiting Mrs. Charles Haberly, of Front street.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Gesang and Turn Verein baseball club will play the South Plainfield team on Sunday. The locals will lineup as follows: Frederickson, p; Hand,c; Thornton, 1b; Miller, 2b; P. McDonough, ss; Moran, 3b; Smith, cf; A. McDonough, rf; R. McDonough, lf.

Mrs. George Sandherr, who had her hand severely injured a week ago, is expected home from Muhlenberg Hospital today.

Miss Lizzie Gallagher and Miss Josie Geary, of Metuchen, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Maguire.

Mr. and Mrs. William Thornton are entertaining their niece, Miss Carrie Smith, of Caldwell.

Miss Mary Barrey, of Elizabeth, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Geary.

William Hamilton has returned from a visit with Newark friends.

Miss Helen Nagle, of Dunellen, is visiting Miss Loretta Thornton.

THE WEATHER.

SOMEWHAT SPICY—I hear some howl about some of my ads. I trust you will keep right on howling, because you are howling me among some of the best business men of Plainfield and I am doing business. The biggest howl is about my 100% for a long search. It is my howl there for I had them to pay for when I knew there could not be anything to imperfect a title that would not be outlawed in twenty years. I expect to represent a Title Company soon and get my own searches the same as all real estate agents do in Trenton, where there is every kind of a court there is, including a U. S. court and everyone is satisfied with a twenty-year search. Do you remember how I use to get kicked. Now I will tell you why my ads are so odd. It is because I am odd. For instance: I am paid a salary, and a little more, to run a business in my own name. Did you ever hear of anything so odd as that? It is because I am so dumb and tricky. The man that pays it does not expect anything for it. D. Foster Updike, my time is your man. 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 17 2

TOO BUSY TO SUIT ME—I had to either stop advertising or do just what I have done. Have hired two men one to help me to sell and exchange farms which I have all over New Jersey, and to take charge of renting your houses and my insurance, will have all kinds including automobile insurance. They will be here next Monday. D. Foster Updike, 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. There is more news coming. You never knew that I was a promoter, did you? I sold $75,000 worth of bonds once in four days, that had been offered by peanut venders for six months, and everybody is still happy. I expect to talk to you about some in a few days. $7,000 worth are all ready sold and the company is not quite incorporated yet. I shall offer them to you, but if you look at me sideways I shall go where I went Monday. I had two notes amounting to five hundred dollars. Did I stop off where Wall street prevails; not much, I went to a bank in Trenton, where I left 16 notes unpaid when I came to Plainfield. Notwithstanding they did not know the makers of them, and I did not know one of them and told them so, I had the five hundred dollars five minutes after I walked in the bank. I would be in Trenton now, if I did not consider health better than wealth. My time is yours. 5 17 2

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910, by Anna Katharine Rohlfs

"Have you ever caught him in a lie?"

"No. But there's always a first time."

"You would impeach his testimony then?"

"No. You have asked me how this discrepancy could be explained, and I have tried to show you."

"Mr. Cumberland, the gray mare was out that night. This has been amply proved."

"If you believe Zadok, yes."

"You have heard other testimony corroborative of this fact. She was seen on the clubhouse road that night by a person amply qualified to identify her."

"So I've been told."

"The person driving this horse wore a hat, identified as an old one of yours, which hat was afterward found at your house on a remote peg in a seldom used closet. If you were not this person, how can you explain the use of your horse, the use of your clothes, the locking of the stable door—which you declare yourself to have left open—and the hanging up of the key on its own nail?"

It was a crucial question—how crucial no one knew but our two selves. If he answered at all he must compromise Carmel. I had no fear of his doing this, but I had great fear of what Ella might do if he let this implication stand and made no effort to exonerate himself by denying his presence in the cutter and consequent return to the Cumberland home. The quick side glances I here observed cast in her direction by both father and mother showed that she had made some impulsive demonstration visible to them, if not to others, and, fearful of the consequences if I did not make some effort to hold her in check, I kept my eyes in her direction and so lost Arthur's look and the look of his counsel as he answered, with just the word I had expected—short and dogged:

"I cannot explain."

It was my death warrant. I realized this even while I held Ella's eye with mine and smoothed my countenance to meet the anguish in hers, in the effort to hold her back for a few minutes longer till I could quite satisfy myself that Arthur's case was really lost and that I must speak or feel myself his murderer.

The gloom which followed this recognition of his inability, real or fancied, to explain away the most damning feature of the case against him, taken with his own contradictions and growing despondency, could not escape my eye, accustomed as I was to the habitual expression of most every person there. But it was not yet the impenetrable gloom presaging conviction, and, directing Ella's gaze toward Mr. Moffat, who seemed but little disturbed either by Mr. Fox's satisfaction or the prisoner's open despair, I took heart of grace and waited for the district attorney's next move. It was a fatal one. I began to recognize this very soon, simple as was the subject he now introduced.

"When you went into the kitchen, Mr. Cumberland, to get the stable door key, was the gas lit, or did you have to light it?"

"It—it was lit, I think."

"Don't you know?"

"It was lit, but turned low. I could see well enough."

"Why, then, didn't you take both keys?"

"Both keys?"

"You have said you went down town by the short cut through your neighbor's yard. That cut is guarded by a door which was locked that night. You needed the key to that door more than the one to the stable. Why didn't you take it?"

"I—I took it when I took the other."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes; they both hung on one nail. I grabbed them both at the same time."

"Which of the two hung foremost?"

"I didn't notice."

"You took both?"

"Yes, I took both."

"And went straight out with them?"

"Yes, to the stable."

"And then where?"

"Through the adjoining grounds downtown."

"You are sure you went through Mr. Fulton's grounds at this early hour in the evening?"

"I am positive."

"Was it not at a later hour, much later, a little before 11 instead of a little before 9?"

"No, sir. I was on the golf links then."

"But some one drove into the stable."

"So you say."

"Unharnessed the horse, drew up the cutter, locked the stable door and, entering the house, hung up the key where it belonged."

No answer this time.

"Mr. Cumberland, you admitted in your direct examination that you took with you out of the clubhouse only one bottle of the especial brand you favored, although you carried up two into the kitchen?"

"No; I said that I only had one when I got to Cuthbert road. I don't remember anything about the other."

"But you know where the other—or, rather, remnants of the other—was found?"

"In my own stable, taken there by my man Zadok Brown, who says he picked it out of one of our waste barrels."

"This is the part of bottle referred to. Do you recognize the label still adhering to it as similar to the one to be found on the bottle you emptied in Cuthbert road?"

"It is like that one."

"Had you carried that other bottle off, and had it been broken as this has been broken, would it not have presented an exactly similar appearance to this?"

"Possibly."

"Only possibly?"

"It would have looked the same; I cannot deny it. What's the use fooling?"

"Mr. Cumberland, the only two bottles known to contain this especial brand of wine were in the clubhouse at 10 o'clock that night. How came one of them to get into the barrel outside your stable before your return the next day?"

"I cannot say."

"This barrel stood where?"

"In the passage behind the stable."

"The passage you pass through on your way to the door leading into your neighbor's grounds?"

"Yes."

The dreaded moment had come. This "Yes" had no sooner left Arthur's lips than I saw Ella throw out her innocent arms and leap impetuously to her feet with a loud, "No, no, I can tell"—

She did not say what, for at the hubbub roused by this outbreak in open court she fainted dead away and was carried out in her dismayed father's arms.

This necessarily caused a break in the proceedings. Mr. Fox suspended his cross examination, and in a few minutes more the judge adjourned the court. As I observed the satisfaction with which Mr. Moffat greeted this new witness—a satisfaction which promised little consideration for her if she ever came upon the stand—I surrendered to fate.

Inwardly committing Carmel's future to the God who made her and who knew better than we the story of her life and what her fiery temper had cost her, I drew a piece of paper from my pocket and, while the courtroom was slowly emptying, hastily addressed the following lines to Mr. Moffat, who had lingered to have a few words with his colleague:

There is a witness in this building who can testify more clearly and definitely than Miss Fulton that Arthur Cumberland, for all we have heard in seeming contradiction to the same, might have been on the golf links at the time he swears to. That witness is myself.

ELWOOD RANELAGH.

I was ready to meet the surprised lawyer's look when his eye rose from the words I had written and settled steadily on my face. Next minute he was writing busily, and in a second later I was reading these words:

Do you absolutely wish to be recalled as a witness, and by the defense? M.

My answer was brief:

I do. Not to make a confession of crime. I have no such confession to make. But I know who drove that horse. R.

I had sacrificed Carmel to my sense of right. Never had I loved her as I did at that moment.

A turning point had been reached in the defense. That every one knew after the first glance at Mr. Moffat on the opening of the next morning's session. As I noted the excitement which this occasioned even in quarters where self control is usually most marked and such emotions suppressed I marveled at the subtle influence of one man's expectancy and the powerful effect which can be produced on a feverish crowd by a well ordered silence suggestive of coming action.

I, who knew the basis of this expectancy and the nature of the action with which Mr. Moffat anticipated startling the court, was the quietest person present. Since it was my hand and none other which must give this fresh turn to the wheel of justice it were well for me to do it calmly and without any of the old maddening throb of heart. But the time seemed long before Arthur was released from further cross examination and the opportunity given Mr. Moffat to call his next witness.

LEGAL NOTICES.

An Ordinance

AN ORDINANCE TO ESTABLISH A BUILDING CODE.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

CHAPTER I.

SECTION 1.

Purpose of Code.

The Building Code.—The following provisions shall constitute the Building Code of the City of Plainfield, and shall affect and relate to the construction, alteration, demolition or removal of buildings or structures erected or to be erected in said City.

CHAPTER II.

Powers, Duties, Penalties, etc.

SECTION 2.

(1) Powers and Duties of the Inspector of Buildings.—The Inspector of Buildings shall have power, and it shall be his duty, subject to the provisions of this Code, to issue notices of violation, certificates, permits and notices of unsafe conditions and survey, to make rules and regulations and to issue notices thereunder; to approve or reject plans, applications, detail drawings and amendments thereto; to decide upon and make orders in relation to variations and modifications; to pass upon questions relative to the mode, manner of construction, or materials to be used in the erection, alteration or removal of buildings, to require that such mode, manner of construction or materials shall conform to the true intent and meaning of the several provisions of this Code; to authorize the Corporation Counsel to institute any and all actions that may seem appropriate or necessary for the enforcement of its provisions; or if in the judgment of the said Inspector of Buildings the interests of the City so require, to make report on any matter to the Common Council with request for instructions.

(2) During Building Operations.—The provisions of this Code shall not prevent the lawful, ordinary and temporary use of building materials, structures and appurtenances during building operations upon city, public or private property, except as herein otherwise provided.

(3) Order Thereon, With or Without a Hearing.—The Inspector may deny any application without a hearing, or may fix a date within a reasonable time for a hearing upon such application, but shall, as soon as a decision is rendered, enter an order thereon. Such application, decision and order shall be filed in the Office of the Inspector of Buildings. If the application be granted or denied, a certified copy of the order thereon shall be immediately issued by the Inspector of Buildings to the applicant.

(4) Inspection During Construction.—It shall be the duty of the Inspector personally or by Deputy, to diligently inspect every building while in course of erection, and to see that it is constructed in accordance with all ordinances of the City relating thereto.

(5) Duty of Counsel to Proceed.—The Inspector of Buildings shall authorize the Corporation Counsel in writing, immediately upon receipt of evidence of a violation, or upon failure of a person to comply with a notice concerning a violation within the time specified therein, to institute the proper action to enforce the provisions of this Code. The Corporation Counsel shall thereupon, if the facts of the case so warrant, institute such an action on behalf of the City or apply for such an order as may seem appropriate to restrain, correct or remove such violation or enforce said ordinance or collect the penalty thereof, or punish the offending parties. If in the opinion of the Corporation Counsel, the interests of the City so require, he may in the first instance make report to the Common Council and the Common Council may then instruct him to take such action as it may deem proper.

(6) Notices in Writing.—All written notices of violation shall be issued in duplicate by the Inspector of Buildings, shall have his name and seal affixed thereto, and one shall immediately be filed in his office.

(7) Penalty and Persons Liable.—That the owner or owners of any building or structure or part thereof, upon which any violation of this ordinance in any part or section may be placed, or shall exist and any architect or employer, or superintendent, or other persons who shall fail to comply with any of the requirements or provisions of this ordinance in any particular, or who shall in any degree depart from the conditions of the detailed specifications and plans submitted, or of any permit issued thereunder, shall severally be deemed to have violated this ordinance, and upon conviction shall, for each and every violation, respectively, be liable to pay a fine not exceeding Twenty (20) dollars and a further penalty not exceeding Fifty Dollars for each day the provisions of this ordinance are not complied with by the owner or contractor or such other persons as shall have control of the building; provided, that the penalties provided by this paragraph shall not apply to the particular offences specified in the next succeeding paragraph of this section.

(8) Additional Penalty.—That any and all of the aforementioned persons who after service of due and proper notice as herein prescribed, shall fail to comply with said notice within ten days after such service, shall on conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding One Hundred (100) dollars.

(9) Service of Notice.—Said notice of violation shall contain a description of the building, premises or property upon which said violation shall have been put, or may exist, or which may be deemed dangerous or unsafe, or to which said notice shall refer; shall specify the dangerous or unsafe condition or other violation of the ordinance complained of, and require removal of any dangerous or unsafe conditions, and strict compliance with the ordinance, and may be served personally upon the person or persons liable for violation, or by leaving said notice at the residence or place of business of such person or persons, or by leaving said notice with a member of the family of such person or persons over fourteen years of age, informing such person with whom said notice is left, of its contents.

Service by Mail.—If the person or persons or any of them to whom the said notice is addressed do not reside in said City, and cannot by diligent search be found therein, then the said notice may be served by posting a copy of the same in a conspicuous place upon the premises, and by also depositing a copy thereof in the post office of said City, enclosed in a sealed wrapper addressed to the said person or persons at his or their last known place of residence with the postage paid thereon; and said posting and mailing of a copy of said notice shall be equivalent to a personal service of said notice.

(10) Remitting Penalties.—The Common Council may in its discretion, good and sufficient cause being shown therefor, remit any fine or fines, penalty or penalties, which any person or persons may have incurred or may hereafter incur under any of the provisions of this section; but no fine or penalty shall be remitted for any such violation until the act or omission constituting such violation, shall have been satisfactorily corrected and such correction evidenced by the Inspector's certificate.

(11) Seal and Badge.—The Inspector of Buildings shall have a seal and badge, to be approved by the Mayor.

(12) Right of Entry—The Inspector of Buildings or his duly authorized Deputy, so far as it may be necessary for the performance of his duties, shall have the right to enter upon any real estate or buildings in said City upon exhibiting his badge.

(13) Inspector's and Employees' Liability.—Neither the Inspector of Buildings nor any person appointed, hired or employed by him, when acting in good faith and without malice, shall be liable for damages by reason of anything done by him under the provisions of this Code.

(14) Accounts, Annual Estimates; Expenditures.—The Inspector of Buildings shall keep accurate and detailed accounts, in a form approved by the Mayor, of all moneys received and expended by him, the source from which they are received and the purposes for which they are expended.

(15) Record of Applications; Public Documents.—The Inspector of Buildings shall keep a record of all applications presented to him concerning, affecting or relating to the construction, alteration or removal of buildings. Such record shall include the date of the filing of each application; the name and address of the applicant; the name and address of the owner of the land upon which the building mentioned in said application is situated; the name and address of the architect, engineer and builders employed thereon; a designation of the premises by street number, or otherwise, sufficient to identify the same; a statement of the character and proposed use of such building, and a brief statement of the nature of the application, together with a memorandum of the decision of the Inspector upon such application and the date of rendition of such decision. The books containing such records and all papers required to be filed in the office of the Inspector of Buildings are hereby declared to be public records and report of the same shall be sent to the Common Council monthly.

(16) Unsafe and Dangerous Buildings, etc.—If in the opinion of the Inspector of Buildings, a building becomes unsafe or dangerous to life, limb or property, or because of any defective or illegal work, or work in violation of this Code, he or such person as he may duly authorize, may enjoin and restrain further work upon, remove all violations from, or vacate and prevent the use of the property, temporarily hire such experts, employees, mechanics, workmen and laborers, temporarily hire or purchase and furnish such materials, ways, works and means in and about the same as may be necessary to remove the danger, and may, when public safety requires, temporarily close the public highways adjacent thereto and require the assistance of the police or other Departments of the City of Plainfield.

(17) Falling Buildings, Aid to the Injured; Search for the Dead and Missing.—Should a building fall, or in the opinion of the Inspector of Buildings, persons be entrapped, he shall, with the aid and assistance of the Fire and Police Departments, or any other Department of the City called upon by him, immediately examine the building, take such steps as may be necessary to assist and aid the injured, and search for the dead and missing. He shall immediately take all necessary steps to prevent any further injury to life, limb or property, until further action, pursuant to the provisions of this Code. For such purpose he may temporarily hire the persons and temporarily hire or purchase the necessary materials, ways, works and means, called for by this Section.

CHAPTER III.

Applications, Plans and Drawings; Ordinary Repairs Without Notice; Demolishing Buildings.

SECTION 3.

Applications, Plans and Drawings.

(1) Approval Thereof.—No building or structure shall be erected, altered or removed except in conformity with the provisions of this Code, and after written approval of the Inspector of Buildings of the applications, plans and detail drawings, or the issuance of a written permit, and the work of erection, alteration, or removal shall strictly conform to such applications, plans and detail drawings, or such permit, provided that if in the judgment of the Inspector of Buildings the erection of any proposed building or other structure or the proposed alteration of any existing building or other structure would be prejudicial to the interests of the City he shall in such case, report thereon to the Common Council, and take such action thereon as the Common Council shall direct, and in the meantime shall suspend his ruling upon the application for such permit.

(2) Applications; Filing.—Before the erection or alterations of any building is begun, there shall be submitted to the Inspector of Buildings a verified application in duplicate on appropriate blanks to be furnished by said Inspector of Buildings, containing a detailed statement of the specifications and a full and complete copy of the plans of such proposed work, its intended cost, and such detailed structural drawings thereof as the Inspector of Buildings may require. The application shall state the full name, residence and business address (by street and number, wherever possible) of the owner of the building and of the owner of the real estate upon which the building is to be erected, altered or removed, describing the location thereof, and setting forth his authority to erect, alter or remove the same. In case adequate plans and statements are presented, the Inspector of Buildings may, at his discretion, issue an approval and permit for the construction of a part of the building before the approval of applications and plans of the complete structure.

(3) Amendments Thereto.—Applications for original applications, plans and detail drawings may be made in the same manner as required for original applications, and the Inspector of Buildings shall approve them, provided the application, plans and detail drawings, when so amended shall be in conformity with the provisions of this Code, and requirements of the Inspector of Buildings; and provided further, that if in the judgment of the Inspector of Buildings the allowing of the proposed amendments would be prejudicial to the interests of the City, he shall report thereon to the Common Council, and take such action thereon as the Common Council shall direct, and, in the meantime, shall suspend his ruling upon the application for such amendments.

(4) Revocation of Approval.—The Inspector of Buildings shall have power to revoke said approval in case of any intentional departure from the approved application, plans and detail drawings, or in case there shall be found in any application or any paper referred to therein any false statement or representation as to a material fact relating to the erection, alteration or removal of the building.

SECTION 4.

Ordinary Repairs Without Notice.

Ordinary repairs only may be made to a building without notice to the Inspector of Buildings, but such repairs shall not be construed to include the cutting away of any constructional support, whether wall, pier, column, girder or beams, or the removal, change or closing of any staircase or exit, or the erection, construction or placing of any furnace, heater, or heating system in any building.

SECTION 5.

Demolishing Buildings.

(1) Application.—Before the demolition or removal of any building is begun a verified application, on appropriate blanks to be furnished by the Inspector of Buildings, containing a statement of the facts in relation thereto, and as to the ownership and location thereof, shall be filed with the Inspector of Buildings, and a written permit obtained from him. Such permit shall expire by limitation two months from the date of its issue. The Inspector of Buildings shall be given not less than twenty-four hours' notice before the demolition of any building is begun.

(2) Demolishing the Building.—In demolishing any building, story after story shall be completely removed. No material shall be left upon a floor of any building in the course of demolition, but the bricks, timbers and other parts of each story shall be lowered to the ground immediately upon displacement. The material to be removed shall be properly wet to lay the dust incident to its removal.

(3) Removal to Other Site.—Permits for removal shall specify the time within which the removal shall be made. The removal of any wooden building or structure from without to within the fire limits is absolutely prohibited. No building that is not fireproof shall be removed from any point in the city limits to any point within or without the city without the permission of the Common Council first obtained, and no building shall be removed through the public streets of the city without the permission of the Common Council first obtained. Every application for permission to remove any building shall specifically state the place from and the place to which it is proposed to remove said building, and the street or streets, if any, through which it is proposed to carry the same.

(4) No frame building within the fire limits shall be removed except to lot without the fire limits.

CHAPTER IV.

Classification of Buildings and Construction.

SECTION 6.

Classification of Buildings.

(1) For the purposes of this ordinance all buildings within the city limits coming under its provisions shall be divided into three general classes, to be known as Public Buildings, Residence Buildings and Business Buildings. These general classes shall in turn be sub-divided into six classes, as designated in this section. Unless special exception is made, every provision of this ordinance applying to the erection of any building of a class shall apply to all buildings of that class, either when the general class or class designated alphabetically is referred to. In case any building is not specifically provided for or there is any doubt as to its classification, the Inspector of Buildings shall decide the class to which it belongs, the classification to be made according to the character of the building and the purposes for which it is intended. Whenever the purpose or use of a building is such that in part it would come under one class and in part under another class, it shall be constructed in its various parts so as to comply with all the provisions re*lating to each respective class.* In case there is a conflict of provisions the provision securing the greater safety shall apply.

Public Buildings.

(2) Public Buildings shall be con*strued to mean and include all* structures to which the general public has access, or in which there may be a congregation of people for civic, political, educational, religious or amusement purposes, and shall include the following:

Class A.—Municipal Buildings, Court Houses, Armories, Police Stations, Jails, Fire Houses, Schools, Colleges, Libraries, Museums, Theatres, Hospitals, Asylums. All buildings of this class hereafter erected shall be of fireproof construction.

Class B.—Churches, Amusement Halls, Public Halls, Lodge Rooms, Exhibition Buildings. All buildings of this class hereafter erected over thirty-six feet six inches in height shall be of fireproof construction. When under thirty-six feet six inches in height the first floor shall be of fireproof construction.

Class C.—Hotels, Lodging Houses, Dormitories. All buildings of this class hereafter erected over thirty-six feet six inches in height shall be of fireproof construction. When under thirty-six feet six inches in height the first floor shall be of fireproof construction.

Class D.—Tenement Houses, Apartment Houses, Dwellings. All buildings of this class hereafter erected over fifty-nine feet in height shall be of fireproof construction. When over three stories in height, if the floor beams are of wood, all plaster on ceilings and stud partitions below the first and second tiers of said beams shall be on metal lath or approved plaster board ⅜ inch thick, strongly secured.

(4) All other residences within the City limits to be constructed as required by the general conditions of this Code.

Business Buildings.

(5) Shall be construed to mean and include all structures used for, or adapted to, the transaction of business, the operation of machinery, the manufacture or storage of machinery or materials, the housing of horses or live stock, or for any other industrial purpose, and shall include the following:

Class E.—Office Buildings, Lofts, Stores, Warehouses, Restaurants, Stables, Factories, Work Shops and Printing Houses. All buildings of this class hereafter erected over fifty-nine feet in height shall be of fireproof construction.

Class F.—Light and Power Plants, Car Barns, Garages, Laboratories, Foundries. All buildings of this class hereafter erected shall be of fireproof construction.

SECTION 7.

Classification of Construction.

For the purposes of this Code the various types of construction shall be classified and defined as Frame, Mill, Non-Fireproof, Reinforced Concrete and Fireproof Construction.

(A) Frame Building.—For requirements as to Frame Buildings, see Chapters 26, 27 and 28.

(B) Non-Fireproof Construction—The term Non-Fireproof Construction shall apply to all buildings or structures of which the exterior walls shall be of stone, brick, concrete, or other *approved masonry of the thickness pro*vided in this Code for varying conditions in height and area, and in which the floors and roof, interior supports and other interior construction, may be wholly or in part of wood or other combustible materials, or of iron or steel that is not protected in the manner approved by this Code for fireproof construction.

"Mill Construction.—The term "Mill Construction," shall apply to buildings without hollow or concealed spaces, having brick walls not less than twelve inches in thickness for the top story and increasing in thickness according to section 46 of this Code; floors shall be of three-inch splined planking spiked directly to roof timbers not less than six inches in the least dimensions, covered with metal or other approved standard incombustible roof covering. Floors shall be solid without openings, constructed of not less than three-inch splined planking covered with one inch top flooring laid crosswise or diagonally, properly nailed. Between the top flooring and the planking shall be placed not less than two thicknesses of waterproof material carefully laid to break joints and flashed at least three inches around all walls, posts, columns and openings, with mouldings or mopboards. Size and spacing of floor timbers shall be suitable for the load to be carried, but the timbers shall in no case be less than eight inches in the least dimension, and shall rest on top of girders or on iron or steel plates in the wall. Girders shall rest on iron or steel plates in the walls and on iron or steel caps on columns, so arranged as to be self-releasing. All columns and posts shall rest on pintles, and the size and spacing thereof shall be suitable for the load to be carried, but no column or post for the top story shall be less than six inches in the least dimen*sion or eight inches for all other sto*ries. Columns, girders and beams, if of wood, shall be of solid material, and if of iron or steel shall be protected as called for in regular fireproof construction. All elevators, stairs, belts, pipes, shaftings and vents piercing floors shall be enclosed in towers having brick walls not less than eight inches in thickness, or reinforced concrete walls not less than six inches in thickness, and all openings therein shall be protected by standard automatic self-closing fire doors.

Buildings of mill construction shall not exceed seventy-five feet in height.

(D) Reinforced Concrete Construction—For description of reinforced concrete construction see sections 22 and 104.

(E) Fireproof Construction.—For description of fireproof construction see chapters 23 and 24 of this Code.

CHAPTER V.

Limits of Area—Light and Ventilation.

SECTION 8.

(1) No building hereafter erected shall occupy a larger area of the building lot than the following: No buildings in Class A, B, C, D and E shall occupy more than ninety per centum of the lot area above the second tier of beams, where built on other than corner lots.

(2) No buildings in said classes shall occupy more than ninety-five per centum of the lot area above the second tier of beams where built on corner lots where the area of the lot does not exceed two thousand five hundred square feet.

(3) For buildings on corner lots of area exceeding two thousand five hundred square feet, the area in excess of two thousand five hundred square feet shall be governed by Clause One covering interior lots.

(4) All buildings occupying corner lots, fronting on three or more streets, where the maximum width does not exceed seventy-five feet, may occupy the entire lot area.

(5) For buildings covering an entire block not more than seventy-five feet wide no court shall be required.

SECTION 9.

Floor Areas Between Fire Walls.

(1) In all non-fireproof buildings hereafter erected, the open floor area between fire walls at least twelve inches in thickness shall not exceed the following; when fronting on one street, five thousand square feet; when fronting on two streets, seven thousand five hundred square feet; when fronting on three or more streets, ten thousand square feet. When a standard equipment of automatic sprinklers is provided the above floor areas may be increased fifty per centum.

(2) The open floor area between fire walls at least twelve inches in thickness of all fireproof buildings hereafter erected, except such buildings as are occupied for offices, hotels, armories, churches, light and power stations, office buildings, theatres and such buildings as are herein otherwise provided for, shall not exceed the following: When fronting on one street, seven thousand five hundred square feet; when fronting on two streets, ten thousand square feet; when fronting on three or more streets, twelve thousand five hundred square feet; when a standard equipment of automatic sprinklers is provided, above areas may be increased fifty per centum.

(3) The open floor area between fire walls at least twelve inches in thickness of all fireproof buildings occupied as stores, when provided with a standard equipment of automatic sprinklers, shall not exceed above or below first story the general limits of area as herein provided for fireproof buildings. The area of the first story may, however, be increased, but shall not exceed thirty thousand square feet between fire walls. All interior openings in fire walls of such buildings shall not exceed eighty square feet in area and shall not be placed nearer than forty feet on centres.

SECTION 10.

CHAPTER VI.

Fire Limits.

(1) Fire Limits.—No frame building or construction except as provided in Sections 111 and 113 of this Code, shall be built hereafter, in the City of Plainfield within the following limits hereinafter referred to as the fire limits of said city.

(2) Extent of.—In the district con*tained within* the City of Plainfield within the following boundary lines or within the additional space included within lines drawn one hundred and fifty feet beyond and parallel to the said boundary lines:

Beginning at the intersection of the centre line of Green Brook and the centre line of Elm Place, thence extending along the centre line of Elm Place to its intersection with the centre line of East Front Street, thence along the centre line of East Front Street to its intersection with the centre line of Washington Street, thence along the centre line of Washington Street to its intersection with the centre line of East Fourth Street, thence along the centre line of East Fourth Street to its intersection with the centre line of Watchung Avenue, thence along the centre line of Watchung Avenue, to its intersection with the centre line of East Fifth Street, thence along the centre lines of East Fifth Street and West Fifth Street respectively to the intersection of the centre line of the latter with the center line of Madison Avenue, thence along the centre line of Madison Avenue to its intersection with the centre line of West Fourth Street, thence along the centre line of West Fourth Street to the *centre line of Central Ave*nue, thence along the centre line of Central Avenue to its intersection with the centre line of West Front Street, thence along the centre line of West Front Street to its intersection with the centre line of Grove Street, thence along the centre line of Grove Street to its intersection with the centre line of Green Brook, thence through the centre line of Green Brook to the place of beginning.

(3) Repairs to existing roofs.—Ordinary repairs to any existing combustible roofing within the said fire limits of said city may be made to the extent of twenty-five per centum thereof without permit therefor; but should necessary repairs or injury by fire, the elements or otherwise, require renewal of said roofing in excess of twenty-five per centum of its area, then said renewal in part or whole shall be made of metal, slate, tile, gravel, or other approved incombustible material.

CHAPTER VII.

Explosives—Combustibles—Storage of, Etc.

Within the City Limits.

SECTION 11.

(1) Chemicals, Explosives, Etc.—For the purpose of ascertaining all neglect and violations of ordinances designed for the more effectual prevention of fires, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Buildings or his deputy to enter into or upon any lands or buildings for the examination of receptacles for ashes, ovens, boilers, heaters and chemical apparatus, which may be dangerous as tending to cause or promote fires; and it shall be his duty to direct the owner or occupant of any defective apparatus or building, by notice signed by said Inspector, to alter the same in such manner and within such reasonable time as he may deem necessary. He shall also examine, at reasonable hours in the daytime, and it shall be lawful for him for that purpose, to enter into and upon all buildings and places where any oils, chemicals, gunpowder, saltpetre, hemp, flax, tow, hay, rushes, brewood, boards, shingles, shavings, or other combustible materials may be lodged; and whenever he shall discover any neglect or violation of any such ordinances, or anything that is detrimental to public safety, he shall notify in writing the owner or occupants of the building wherein such unlawful or unsafe conditions exist to immediately cause the same to be corrected, and it shall be the duty of the person so notified to comply with such notice. And in case of the delay or refusal of the owner or occupant of such building, or the possessor of such combustible materials to correct said unlawful or unsafe conditions and to alter, remove or secure the same within the time and in the manner directed in said notice, the person offending shall be served with a notice of violation and be liable for the penalties therefore as per Section Two of this Code.

(2) Storage of Rags and Waste Paper—It shall be unlawful to store rags or waste paper in any building inside of the fire limits, except that such a building is used exclusively for the storage of rags or waste paper, and before any such rags or waste paper can be stored in any building a permit in writing for such storage shall be obtained from the Inspector of Buildings. The violation of this section shall cause the building to be vacated, and subject the owner, tenant or lessee, or both, to a fine of one hundred dollars, or imprisonment for thirty days, or both.

(3) Lumber, Boxes, Etc.—When lumber, boxes, second-hand building material or other combustible material are located or piled in such a manner as in the opinion of the Inspector of Buildings is dangerous to life, limb or property, then the Inspector of Buildings has authority to regulate and remove the same.

CHAPTER VIII.

Floor Loads—Weights of Materials.

SECTION 12.

Floor Loads.

(1) The dead loads in all buildings shall consist of the actual weight of walls, framing, floors, roofs and all permanent construction except partitions not over four inches in thickness, exclusive of plaster.

(2) The live loads shall includs all forms of loading, other than the weight of the material entering into the construction of the building.

(3) Every floor shall be of sufficient strength to bear safely the weight to be imposed thereon in addition to the weight of the materials of which the floor is composed. Each floor of every building of the following classes shall be of sufficient strength in all its parts to bear safely upon each and every superficial foot of its surface a minimum of not less than the live loads specified in the following table:

Class of Building.	Ground and Lower Floors, Pounds Per Square Foot.	Upper Floors, Per Pound, Per Square Foot.
A	100	100
B	100	100
C	90	50
D	75	50
Office Buildings	100	75
Lofts, Stores, Markets, Stables, Factories, Workshops, Libraries, Museums	125	125
Warehouses, Printing Houses	200	200
Restaurants	100	60
Foundries	200	200
Garages	125	125

(4) The roofs of all buildings having a pitch of less than twenty degrees shall be proportioned to bear safely forty pounds upon every superficial foot of their surface in addition to the weight of materials composing same. If the pitch be more than twenty degrees the live load shall be assumed at thirty pounds upon every superficial foot measured on a horizontal plane.

(5) For sidewalks over vaults between the curb and area lines live loads shall be taken at three hundred pounds upon every square foot.

(6) Every column, post or other vertical support shall be of sufficient strength to bear safely the weight of the portion of each and every floor depending upon it for support in addition to the weight required as before stated to be supported safely upon said portion of said floors.

(7) No safe shall be placed in any building on a stair-landing or in a stair-hall, nor shall its weight be carried by any beam which also carries the floor of any landing or stair-hall.

SECTION 13.

Loads on Floors to be Distributed.

The weight placed on any of the floors of any building shall be safely distributed thereon. The Inspector of Buildings may require the owner or occupants of any building, or of any portion thereof, to redistribute the load on any floor, or to lighten such load where he deems it to be necessary, and on failure to comply with such request the Inspector shall cause the floor or building to be vacated as unsafe.

SECTION 14.

Strength of Existing Floors to be Calculated.

In all buildings of Classes A, E and F, now existing or hereafter to be erected, the weight that each floor will safely sustain upon each superficial foot thereof, or upon each varying part of such floor, shall be estimated by the owner or occupant, or by a competent person employed by the owner or occupant. Such estimate shall be reduced to writing on printed forms furnished by the Inspector of Buildings, stating the material, size, distance apart, and span of beams and girders, posts or columns, supports of floors and its correctness shall be sworn to by the person making the same, and it shall thereupon be filed in the office of the Inspector of Buildings. But if the Inspector of Buildings shall have cause to doubt the correctness of said estimate, he may revise and correct the same, and for the purpose of such revision the Inspector of Buildings may enter any building and remove so much of the floor or other portion thereof as may be required to make necessary measurements and examinations. When the correct estimate of the weight that the floors in any such building will safely sustain has been ascertained, as herein provided, the Inspector of Buildings shall approve the same and thereupon the owner or occupant of said building, or of any portion thereof, shall post a copy of such approved estimate in a conspicuous place on each story, or varying parts of each story, of the building to which it relates. Before any building hereafter erected is occupied and used, in whole or in part, for any of the purposes aforesaid, and before any building erected prior to the passage of this Code, but not at such time occupied for any of the aforesaid purposes, is occupied or used, in whole or in part, for any of said purposes, the weight that each floor will safely sustain upon each superficial foot thereof shall be ascertained and posted in a conspicuous place on each story, or varying parts of each story, of the building to which it relates. No person shall place, or cause or permit to be placed on any floor of any building any greater load than the safe load thereof, as correctly estimated and ascertained as herein provided. Any expense necessarily incurred in removing any floor or other portion of any building for the purpose of making any examination herein provided for shall be paid by the person or persons on whose behalf said estimate was made.

SECTION 15.

Weights of Certain Materials.

In computing the weights of materials:—

(1) A cubic foot of common brickwork shall be deemed to weigh one hundred and twenty pounds; pressed brick one hundred and thirty-five pounds.

(2) Sandstone, white marble, granite, and other kinds of building stone shall be deemed to weigh one hundred and seventy pounds per cubic foot.

(3) A cubic foot of stone concrete shall be deemed to weigh one hundred and forty-four pounds.

(4) A cubic foot of cinder concrete mixed in the proportions specified in Section 22, when rammed, shall be deemed to weigh ninety-six pounds; when not rammed, eighty-four pounds. A cubic foot of cinder concrete fill, when not rammed, shall be deemed to weigh sixty pounds.

CHAPTER IX.

Quality of Materials.

SECTION 16.

Brick.

(1) The brick used in all buildings shall be good, hard, well burnt brick, and thoroughly dampened before being used, except in freezing weather, when they shall be laid dry. Not more than five per centum shall be bats or broken brick.

(2) When old brick are used in the construction of any wall they shall be thoroughly cleaned and dampened before being used, and they shall be whole and good, hard, well burnt brick of uniform size.

SECTION 17.

Hollow Building Blocks.

(1) Moulded or cast hollow building blocks, of concrete, cement, terra cotta, or other hard, incombustible material may be used for walls of any building not more than thirty-six feet in height, provided the materials are not stressed beyond the safe limits fixed in this section.

(2) No such blocks shall be used until complete and satisfactory tests have been made by the manufacturer under the direction of the Inspector of Buildings, in accordance with the requirements of Section 25, of this Code, and until an approval for the use of such blocks has been obtained.

(3) No blocks shall be approved that do not at the age of twenty-eight days or less develop a compressive strength of at least one thousand five hundred pounds per square inch of net section.

(4) In no cases shall the hollow spaces of a block exceed thirty-three and one-third per centum of the cross section of the block.

(5) The thickness of the walls or webs of such blocks shall be not less than one-fourth of the height of the blocks, but in no case less than one inch thick.

(6) All such walls shall be laid in Portland cement mortar.

(7) Buildings of hollow terra cotta blocks, or hollow cement blocks, laid in cement mortar, shall be classed as frame construction when floors and roofs are of wood. The blocks shall not be less than six inches thick for a one-story building; eight inches for the first story and six inches for the second story in a two-story building; eight inches for the first and second stories inches for the first and six inches for the third story in a three story building. If the walls are exposed to the weather the blocks shall be of dense material, vitrified in burning, or they may be of semi-porous material covered on the exposed side with at least one inch of cement plaster. Semi-porous terra cotta blocks shall be well scored, grooved or roughened to retain this coating.

(8) Whenever girders or joists rest upon walls so that there is a concentrated load of over two tons, the blocks supporting the girders or joists shall be made solid by filling at least two contiguous blocks with cement concrete, mixed in proportion of one part cement, two parts sand and four parts broken stone or gravel. Wherever walls are decreased in thickness, the top course of the thicker wall shall be made solid in the same manner.

(9) No semi-porous hollow blocks shall be loaded in excess of one hundred pounds per square inch of net end section in compression or one hundred pounds per square inch if laid on the side, and if dense tiles are used they shall not be loaded in excess of two hundred pounds per square inch if set on end, or one hundred and fifty pounds per square inch if on the side. All piers and buttresses that support loads in excess of five tons shall be filled solid with cement concrete. Lintels spaning over four feet six inches in the clear shall rest on blocks filled solid with concrete, or an equivalent in iron support.

(10) When used for curtain walls between supporting piers not over twenty feet apart on centres not more than twelve feet in height between girders, hard burned clay standard blocks not less than eight inches in thickness, set in cement may be used, re-inforcing by concrete filling to the extent necessary and directed by the Inspector.

(11) For foundations not over ten feet in height, of frame buildings and of buildings as per clause seven of this section, hard burned clay blocks, set and if necessary, re-inforced as above, not less than twelve inches thick, may be used.

*For small houses or light construc*tions blocks eight inches thick may be used in lengths not exceeding twenty lineal feet between masonry cross walls or buttress piers of dimensions approved by the Inspector.

SECTION 18.

Sand.

All sand shall be sharp, clean, coarse, siliceous sand, free from clay, loam or other foreign material. It shall all pass a one-quarter inch screen and be uniformly graded down to fineness. Not more than six per centum shall pass a sieve having one hundred meshes per linear inch. The percentage of voids shall not exceed thirty-eight.

SECTION 19.

Lime Mortar.

Lime mortar shall be made of one part of unslaked lime and not more than four parts of sand. All lime used for mortar shall be thoroughly burnt, of good quality and properly slaked before it is mixed with the sand. If hydrated lime is used it shall be used in such proportions as will give the same per centum of lime to sand as specified above.

SECTION 20.

Cement and Cement Mortar.

(1) Portland Cement.—The term Portland cement shall be applied to the finely pulverized product obtained from the heating or calcining up to incipient fusion of intimate mixtures properly proportioned, either natural or artificial, of argillaceous with calcareous substances, and to which no addition greater than three per centum has been made subsequent to calcination.

(2) Natural Cement.—This term shall be applied to the finely pulverized product resulting from the calcination of an argillaceous limestone at a temper*ature only* sufficient to drive off the carbonic acid gas.

(3) Tests of cement used in building operations shall be made as required by and under the supervision of the Inspector of Buildings, in accordance with standards prescribed by the Testing Committee of the American Society of Civil Engineers. All Portland or natural cements meeting these requirements shall be approved by the Inspector of Buildings. No brand of cement, which has not been tested under the provisions of this section, or which has not met the requirements thereof, shall be used in building operations.

(4) Cement Mortar.—Cement mortar shall be made of Portland or natural cement and sand in the proportion of one part of cement and not more than three parts of sand by volume and shall be used immediately after mixing. The cement and sand are to be measured and thoroughly mixed before adding water.

SECTION 21.

Cement and Lime Mortar.

Cement and lime mortar shall be made of one part of unslaked lime, one part of cement, and not more than three parts of sand to each. All materials shall be measured and shall be used immediately after being made, the cement and sand to be measured and thoroughly mixed before adding water.

SECTION 22.

Concrete.

(1) All concrete for footings of buildings in classes A, B, E and F shall be made of at least one part Portland cement and not more than three parts sand and five parts broken stone or gravel. Footings in buildings of classes C and D may be of one part natural cement, three parts sand and not more than five parts of broken slag, brick or tile of specified sizes.

(2) All other concrete shall be made of at least one part Portland cement and not more than two parts sand and five parts broken stone or gravel. Except as per section 101.

(3) The cement and sand shall be of a quality already described.

(4) The crushed stone shall be granite, trap rock or equally hard stone ap*proved by the Inspector of Buildings* and shall consist of the run of the crusher graded from the larger size down to that retained on the one-quarter inch screen. Where gravel is used it shall be thoroughly clean, free from loam and dust, and well graded from the larger permissible size down to that retained on the one-quarter inch screen.

(5) For foundations, where the concrete is to be used in mass, the stone or gravel shall be of such size as will pass a two inch ring.

(6) For reinforced concrete construction, the stone or gravel shall all pass through a three-quarter inch ring.

(7) The water shall be clean and free from acid or strong alkalies.

(8) All materials shall be measured; three and seven-tenths cubic feet shall be considered as the contents of a barrel and four bags of cement of ninety-five pounds each shall be considered one barrel.

(9) The ingredients of concrete shall be so thoroughly mixed that the ce*ment shall be uniformly* distributed through the mass and that the resulting concrete shall be homogeneous.

(10) The concrete shall be mixed as wet as possible without causing a separation of the cement mortar from the mixture, and shall be deposited in the work in such a manner as not to cause a separation of the mortar from the stone or gravel.

(11) The concrete shall be placed in the forms as soon as practical after mixing, and in no case shall concrete be used that has partially set or if more than one-half hour has elapsed since the addition of the water.

(12) It shall be deposited in horizontal layers not to exceed eight inches in thickness and thoroughly tamped.

(13) All forms and centering shall be built plumb and to true lines in a substantial manner and with joints sufficiently tight to prevent the leak*age of the cement mortar. They shall* be properly supported and braced in such a manner as to safely stand both the dead load and the load that may be placed upon them during construction. Before placing the concrete the forms shall be thoroughly cleaned of all chips, shavings and other debris.

(14) Before the placing of concrete is suspended, the joint to be formed shall be made in such a manner as will not injure the strength of the completed structure.

(15) The time at which centering may be safely removed from under floors or roofs shall vary with the condition of the weather, but in no case shall they be removed until the hardening of the concrete has reached a point where they may be removed with safety.

(16) During extreme hot, dry weather special precautions shall be taken to prevent premature drying by keeping the concrete moist until it has attained its initial set, or at least during the first twenty-four hours

SECTION 23.

Specifications for Timber Required in the Construction of Buildings, General Requirements.

(1) All timber shall be cut from sound stock and sawed standard size, close grained, free from rot, ring shakes, decay and unsound knots, or other defects that will impair its strength and durability, and shall be of such size and carrying capacity as to support the loads for which the building is intended.

(2) Standard Size of Sawed Timbers.—Rough timbers when sawed to standard size shall mean that they shall not be over one-quarter inch scant from actual size specified. For instance, a twelve-inch by twelve-inch shall measure not less than eleven and three-quarters inches by eleven and three-quarters inches.

(3) Definitive description of structural defects in timber stock or timber and definition of defects may be consulted, if desired, in the office of Inspector of Buildings.

SECTION 24.

Structural Material.

(1) Rivet Steel.—Shall have an ultimate strength of from fifty thousand to sixty thousand pounds per square inch, an elastic limit of not less than fifty per centum of the ultimate strength, an elongation of not less than twenty-eight per centum in eight inches, and a reduction of area of not less than fifty per centum. A rivet rod must be capable of being bent and cold-hammered down on itself without any fracture.

(2) All other structural steel shall show an ultimate strength of from sixty thousand to seventy thousand pounds per square inch, an elastic limit of not less than fifty per centum of the ultimate strength. It shall have an elongation of not less than twenty-five per centum in eight inches, and fifty per centum reduction of area.

(3) No cast iron beams or channels shall be used in any structure.

(4) No second-hand steel shapes shall be used in any structure without the written permission of the Bureau of Buildings; and not then, if they have unnecessary holes in them or holes that have been plugged.

(5) Steel castings shall be made from open hearth steel, and shall be practically free from blow-holes, with a reasonably clear skin and sharpness to pattern. The steel shall not contain over eight one-hundredths of one per-centum of phosphorus. Steel castings shall be tested for strength and duc*tility from runners cast with pieces* and annealed with the castings

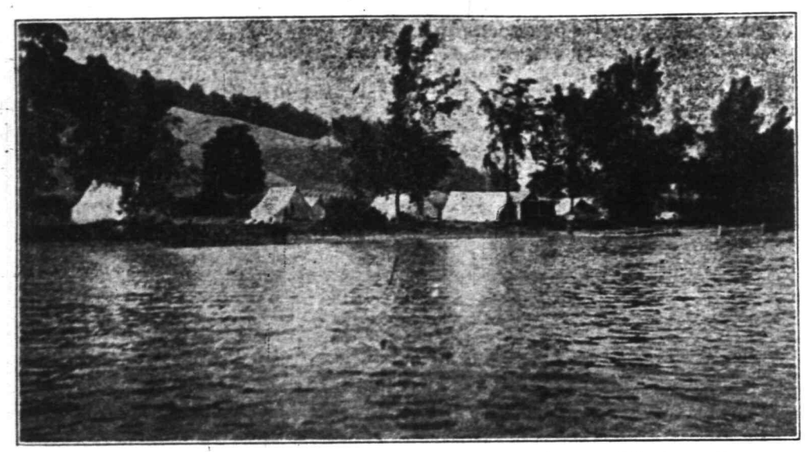
CAMP COMFORT, HEDGES LAKE, N. Y., CONDUCTED BY A LOCAL CLERGYMAN



The following is a clipping from the parish paper of Trinity Church Episcopal, Elizabeth, of which Rev. J. R. Atkinson is the rector.

"The rector's friend and neighbor, the Reverend G. A. Warner, of North Plainfield, conducts a summer camp for boys which has been very successful. The conditions seem reasonable—the care of the highest, and the culture of the best; the terms are cheap. Persons who care to know more about the camp may consult the rector or write directly to the Rev. G. A. Warner, 30 Washington avenue, Plainfield, N. J. We may say this final word, Mr. Warner has a remarkable gift for attracting and training boys."

Apropos of the above, Mr. Warner each year before opening his camp for boys who pay their way by the week or the season, takes his choir boys and a number of boys outside, all expenses paid, for a period of two weeks at the camp on Hedges Lake in the foothills of the Green mountains. Friends of the boys and personal friends of the rector of Holy Cross contribute generously to give the boys their annual outing. This is the sixth year for the boys to go and already arrangements are being made for transportation, the assembling of baggage to go up longe before hand and all that is necessary to a well regulated camp.

The choir boys and their friend will go into camp on June 26 and return home July 10. On July 11 Mr. Warner will return to camp with the boys who have made arrangements to board for two, four, six weeks or the entire season ending September 3. A number of parents have already entered their boys for the entire season and others for shorter period. Mr. Warner has boys entered from New York city, East Orange, Elizabeth and Plainfield, with the prospect of boys from Chicago and Baltimore and points in the west. A beautiful booklet descriptive of the camp, containing many views has just been distributed.

We commend it to our readers as a thoroughly enjoyable little booklet, concise, to the point and covering all points that boys going to summer camps should know. We congratulate Mr. Warner.

RUNYON WILL UMPIRE FOR DOMINIES-DOCTORS

Dr. W. H. Anthony, Dr. C. B. Lufburrow and Dr. P. J. Zeglio have been appointed a committee to make arrangements for the baseball game to be played with the ministers at Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, June 17. Mr. Harrison, business manager at Muhlenberg Hospital, will look after the business end of the contest. Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will be the captain of the team of ministers. William N. Runyon will be the umpire.

Among the ministers who have signified their intention of playing are Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, Rev. J. Y. Broek, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring and several others including Rev. J. O. McKelvey, Rev. C. C. Cain. Rev. Frederick E. Greene are expected to be in the lineup. The physicians promise to present a strong team and they feel confident of winning the contest. The proceeds from the game will be used to purchase surgical instruments for the hospital.

ROSELLE OUTCLASSED BY BORO HIGH BOYS

The N. P. H. S. baseball team defeated the Roselle High School aggregation on Hyde Field, yesterday afternoon by the decisive score of 19 to 4, thus maintaining its winning streak. The visitors were no match for the boroughites, who were able to score whenever they pleased. Bailey, the twirler for the borough boys, had his opponents completely at his mercy and held them safe at all times.

Stine's catch of Wasilike's foul, while hanging over the ropes, was the fielding feature. The local boys hit both visiting pitchers hard and could have kept up the scoring indefinitely. Waller played the star game for Roselle. The eighth inning was the merry-go-round for North Plainfield, their players crossing the plate nine times. The lineup and score by innings:

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The freshmen will cross bats with the team from St. Mary's tomorrow on Hope Common. The next game in the inter-class series will also be played tomorrow when the seniors and sophomore teams clash at Crescent Oval.

There will be an exhibition of the work of the manual training classes of the seventh and eighth grades of the public schools and of the High school classes in the High School gymnasium on May 25 and 26, from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The exhibition will include metal and wood working and turning and will be open to the public.

The seniors will hold their annual picnic at Scotch Plains on May 20.

Fillmore A. C. Defeated.

The Fillmore A. C. was defeated by the East End Cubs, yesterday afternoon, by the score of 8 to 7. B. Vail made a clean two-bagger and while stealing third was called out. McDonough finished the game by clouting the ball for a two-bagger, stealing third and home, bringing in the winning run. Dunn and Parrott both pitched a fine game. Dunn and Brennan formed the battery for the Cubs and Force and Parrott officiated for the Fillmore A. C.

Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' church, who has suffered a break down in his health, is now stopping for awhile on the Riley Homestead near Washington Rock.

Report Shows $50,000 is Paid Out Yearly in This State.

Atlantic City, May 18.—Among the matters considered by the State Council, Daughters of Liberty, yesterday, was the supplementary report of the State secretary. This report treated in part of financial averages for the past fifteen years. During this period the councils increased their financial worth $118,481.54, or an average of $7,987.70 per year. They paid in sick benefits $284,541.47, or an average of $17,783.84 per year; funeral benefits,, $136,961.20, average per year, $12,497.58; total benefits, $484,502.67, an average of $30,281.42. They received from dues, etc., $988,624.96, an average of $61,789.06; from other sources, $318,654.58, average, $19,915.91. There was paid for general expenses, $711,858.49, average $44,491.15; for investments, $65,859.68, an average of $4,116.23 per year.

The report shows that in New Jersey the order is paying out over $50,000 per year in sick and funeral benefits.

Call Off Masons' Strike.

New Brunswick, May 18.—At a conference of committee representing the Master Builders' Association and the bricklayers' Union yesterday afternoon the strike of the masons was called off, the committees comprising their differences and fixing a scale of wages of $4.60 a day. The masons had been getting $4.40 a day and had demanded $4.80. The new scale just splits the difference. An agreement was signed which is in effect until January 1, 1912. The masons had been out on strike since May 6. Interrupted work was resumed this morning.

CHAPTER XII.

Strength of Columns, and Temporary Supports.

SECTION 31.

Working Stresses.

The working stress per square inch for all cast iron, steel or wood columns having flat ends shall not exceed those given in the following tables:

When the Length Divided by Least Radius of Gyration Equals—
120	.....	8,240
110	.....	8,820
100	.....	9,400
90	.....	9,980
80	.....	10,560
60	6,600	11,720
50	7,000	12,300
40	7,400	12,880
30	7,800	13,460
10	8,600	14,620

Working Stresses per Square Inch of Section.

	Longleaf Yellow Pine. L/D 1,000-18-D	White Pine. Spruce Chestnut. L/D 800-15-D	Oak. L/D 900-17-D
When the Length Divided by the Least Side or Diameter Equals—
30	460	350	390
25	550	425	475
20	640	500	560
10	820	650	730

L equals length in inches, D equals least side in inches.

Three-fourths the value given for white pine shall also apply to hemlock posts.

For locust posts use one and one-half the value given for white pine.

For short leaf yellow pine use three-fourths the values given for longleaf yellow pine.

Columns and compression members shall not be used having an unsupported length of greater ratios than given in the tables.

SECTION 32.

Columns Eccentrically Loaded.

(1) Any column eccentrically loaded shall have the stresses caused by such eccentricity computed, and the combined stresses resulting from such eccentricity at any part of the column added to all other stresses at that part shall in no case exceed the working stresses stated in this Code.

(2) The eccentric load of a column shall be considered to be distributed equally over the entire area of that column at the next point below at which the column is securely braced laterally in the direction of the eccentricity.

(3) Tie plates and lattice bars shall not be used on columns eccentrically loaded, unless approved by the Inspector of Buildings, otherwise plates extending the full length of the column only shall be used.

SECTION 33.

Strengths of Temporary Supports

Every temporary support placed under any structure, wall, girder or beam, during the erection, alteration, demolition, or repairing of any building or structure, or any part thereof, shall be of sufficient strength to safely carry the load to be placed thereon.

CHAPTER XIII.

Excavations, Footings and Foundations.

SECTION 34.

Excavations.

(1) The person causing any excavation for a building to be made shall have the same properly guarded and protected. Wherever necessary he shall properly sheath, pile and, if for his independent use, or unless otherwise agreed with adjoining owner shall, at his own cost erect sufficient retaining wall to permanently support the adjoining earth. Such retaining wall shall be carried to the level of the adjoining earth and shall be properly coped.

(2) Whenever an excavation is not intended to be or shall not be carried to a depth of more than eight feet below the curb level, the owner of every adjoining or contiguous wall or structure shall protect the same so that it shall be and remain as safe as before such excavation was begun. Such owner shall be permitted to enter upon the premises where the excavating is being made when necessary for this purpose.

(3) Whenever an excavation is intended to be or shall be carried to a depth of more than eight feet below the curb level, the person causing such excavation shall at all times from the beginning until the completion of the excavations, foundations, retaining walls or other structures to be built in such excavation, protect at his own expense every adjoining or contiguous wall or structure, and support the same by proper means. For this purpose he shall be afforded the necessary access to the adjoining premises. If access be refused by any owner of adjoining property it shall be the duty of the person causing such excavation to notify the Inspector of Buildings in writing to this effect. Thereafter it shall be the duty of the owner who has refused access to his premises, to make safe such adjoining wall or structure upon his premises and to protect and support it by proper means so that the excavation may be made; and for this purpose he shall, when necessary, be permitted to enter upon the premises where the excavation is being made.

Adjoining Party Walls.

(1) In case an adjoining party wall is intended to be used by the person causing the excavation to be made, and the footings and foundations, of such party wall are in good condition and sufficient for the uses of both the existing building and the new one adjoining, then and in such case the person causing the excavation to be made shall, at his own expense, preserve such party wall from injury and support the same by proper means, so that said party wall shall be and remain as safe as before the excavation was begun.

(2) In case the footings and foundations of any such party wall are not in good condition or not sufficient for the uses of both the existing building and the new one adjoining, then it shall be the duty of the person causing such excavation to be made to extend such defective or insufficient footing or foundation, or to replace same with a new footing or foundation. Such extended or new footing shall extend on each side of the party line such a distance as to bring the centre of the footing under the centre of the wall, so that the total load upon the wall may be uniformly distributed over the area of the footing. In order that this may be done, the person causing the excavation to be made shall be allowed access to the adjoining premises.

(3) In case any excavation, or the removal of any existing building, shows any adjoining wall or walls or structure to be unsafe at the time the excavation was begun, then it shall be the duty of the person causing the excavation to be made, or the building to be removed, to forthwith report the fact, in writing, to the Inspector of Buildings. The Inspector of Buildings shall, upon the receipt of such notice from any person causing any excavation to be made, or any building to be removed, forthwith cause an inspection of such adjoining premises to be made, and if such inspection prove the aforesaid wall or walls or structure to be unsafe, then it shall be the duty of the Inspector of Buildings, acting under the provisions of Section 2 of this Code, to declare such wall or walls, or structure or structures, to be unsafe and cause the same to be repaired as therein provided.

(4) If the person whose duty it shall be to preserve or protect from injury any wall or walls, structure or structures, shall neglect or fail so to do within twenty-four hours after the receipt of a notice so to do from the Inspector of Buildings, then the Inspector of Buildings shall enter upon the premises and employ such labor and furnish such materials and take such steps as, in his judgment, may be necessary to make the premises safe and secure, or to prevent the same from becoming unsafe or dangerous, at the cost and expense of the person whose duty it is to keep the same safe and secure. Payment of such expenses shall be collected in the manner set forth in Section 2 of this Code.

Bearing Capacity of Soil.

(1) Applications filed in the Office of Inspector of Buildings shall contain a statement of the character of the soil at the level of the footings. The Inspector of Buildings shall be notified before any test is made of the sustaining power of the soil, so that he may be present or represented thereat. When doubt arises as to the safe sustaining power of the soil upon which a building is to be erected, the Inspector of Buildings may order borings to be made, or he may order tests to be made of the sustaining power of the soil by and at the expense of the owner of the proposed building.

(2) In tests of the sustaining power of the soil the ultimate test load shall be one and one-half times the load which the soil is to actually bear when the building is completed. Measurements of the settlement shall begin as soon as one-tenth of the ultimate test load has been applied and shall be continued until a period of twenty-four hours shall have elapsed without increase of settlement under the ultimate load. On no soil shall the total allowable settlement after the application of one-tenth of the ultimate test load exceed one inch.

(3) In the absence of a test the area of the bearing footing shall be so proportioned that the load per square foot upon the respective character of soil shall not exceed those set forth in the following table:

Soil Under Footings.	Load in Tons.
Soft clay	1
Clay, sand or clay and sand together or in layers, wet and spring	2
Loam, clay or fine sand, firm and dry	3
Coarse sand, gravel, or sand and gravel	4

Classification of Soils.

(A) Mud, Peat, Bog, Silt—Any soil containing more than a trace of vegetable matter, or which on drying shrinks more than five per cent. of its volume shall be classed as mud, peat, bog, or silt and shall be deemed unsuitable material on which the foundations of a building shall be directly supported.

(B) Filled in Material—Any material which has been removed or deposited by any agency of man, as by filling, dumping, dredging or otherwise, shall be classed as "filled in" material and shall be deemed unsuitable material on which the foundations of a building shall be directly supported.

(C) Clay—Any natural soil containing such ingredients as to render it capable of being worked when wet into a plastic state shall be called a clay.

(D) Sand—Any soil or natural material composed of quartz or other rock particles shall be classed as fine sand when fifty per cent. or over by weight passes a fifty mesh sieve, and as coarse sand when fifty per cent. or over is retained on a fifty mesh sieve.

(E) Gravel—Any soil or natural material composed of rock particles where fifty per cent. or over of the particles forming the mass shall be one-quarter of an inch in diameter or over, shall be classed as gravel.

(F) No footing of a building shall be directly supported upon filled in material, mud, peat, bog, silt or similar material.

SECTION 37.

Footings.

(1) All Foundations to Have Footing Courses—Except on rock bottom all foundations shall have footing courses, and all footing or base courses under foundation walls shall be laid not less than three feet below the original surface of the ground, on a good solid bottom.

(2) When Grade is Lowered.—Should any grade be lowered the foundational supports shall also be carried down to the depth above prescribed.

(3) What Built Of.—All footing or base courses shall be of stone, concrete or concrete steel construction.

(4) Loads on Footings.—All footings shall be so designed that the stresses in the materials employed conform in all respects to the requirements of this Code, and the loads they sustain per unit or area shall be as nearly uniform as possible, and also so that a line drawn from the outer edge of the wall or pier, at the bottom, to the outer edge of the footing, at the bottom, shall make an angle of not more than sixty degrees with a horizontal plane and shall lie within the masonry throughout its length, except when tensile stresses are properly taken care of.

(5) The dead loads carried by the footings shall include the actual weight of the superstructure and foundations down to the bottom of the footing. All tanks or other receptacles for liquids shall be figured as being full. All vaults or similar built-in structures shall be considered as forming a part of the building.

(6) In warehouses, stores and buildings, used for light manufacturing, in which the live load on the floors is not over one hundred and fifty pounds per square foot, and in churches, school houses and places of public amusement or assembly, the live load carried by the foundation shall not be less than seventy-five per centum of the total live load upon the floors contributing thereto.

(4) In office buildings, hotels, dwellings, apartment houses, lodging houses, tenement houses and stables, the live load carried by the foundation shall not be less than sixty per centum of the total live load on the floors contributing thereto.

(5) The live load carried by the foundations of all other buildings shall not be less than that required to be carried by the lowest tier of columns or by the foundation walls.

(6) Stone Footings.—Under walls their thickness shall not be less than one-third of their width, and in no case shall it be less than five inches; under piers, columns or posts the thickness of footing stones shall not be less than eight inches. The footing shall project a minimum distance of three inches beyond each side of any foundation wall, and six inches beyond each side of any pier. Footing stones shall be laid on their natural bed, crosswise, edge to edge and well bedded, and filled up, solid and level.

(7) Concrete Footings.—Concrete footings shall not be less than six inches thick and shall project not less than four inches beyond each side of any foundation wall and eight inches beyond each side of any pier.

For actual required thicknesses see clause one of this section. For materials and proportions thereof see section 22.

(8) Grillages.—Where necessary suitable grillage beams of steel, resting upon a good and sufficient bed of concrete, may be used. Such beams shall be fastened by bolts and separators and the grillage filled solid with concrete. All metal which forms part of any footing or foundation shall be thoroughly protected from rust by concrete or by the use of other approved coating.

SECTION 38.

Foundations.

(1) Every building, (except sheds), shall have good and sufficient foundations of brick, stone, concrete, reinforced concrete, or hollow blocks. When the building is erected upon solid ground the foundations shall extend not less than three feet below the surface of the earth, footings inclusive. When neither solid earth nor rock is found, piles, of wood or concrete, shall be used, as per requirements of the Inspector and the latest rules of engineering practice relating thereto.

(2) If built of rubble stone they shall be, for a depth of twelve feet below the curb level, at least eight inches thicker than the wall which rests upon them. If built of brick or concrete they shall be for a depth of twelve feet below the curb level at least four inches thicker than the wall which rests upon them.

(3) Headers.—All stone walls to have at least one header extending through the wall in every three feet each way, of good flat stones.

(4) All stone shall be set on its natural bed, every stone to extend into the wall at least six inches, to be built flush and true, firmly bedded in mortar with all spaces and joints thoroughly filled.

(5) Only cement mortar shall be used in the construction of the footings and foundations of any fire-proof building. No lime whatever shall be used under any conditions.

CHAPTER XIV.

Masonry.

SECTION 39.

Walls.

(1) The walls of all buildings, other than frame buildings, shall be constructed of stone, brick, iron, steel, cement concrete (in bulk, blocks or reinforced concrete), or other approved hard, solid and incombustible material.

(2) All buildings shall be enclosed on all vertical sides with independent or party walls.

(3) The walls and piers of all buildings of brick or stone shall be properly and solidly bonded, with close joints filled with mortar. They shall be built to a line and carried up plumb and straight.

(4) No brick, stone, concrete or masonry work of any description shall be built when the temperature is below twenty-eight degrees Fahrenheit at the point where the work is in progress. No frozen materials shall be built upon.

(5) No wall or walls of any building shall be carried up more than two stories higher in advance of any portion of the walls of said building, except that in the case of wall bearing buildings the exterior walls may be carried up so that the iron or steel work shall not be, at any time, more than five stories in advance of the walls, but this provision shall not apply to buildings in which the walls are carried independently by girders at each floor. The front, rear, side and party walls shall be properly bonded together.

(6) When not carried up at the same time the perpendicular joint between the walls shall be made with four-inch offsets at every heading course, and have also iron or steel anchors at least every three feet in height. These anchors shall not be less than two-inch by one-quarter-inch metal, and shall be either bent up at the ends or have a cross-pin to form the anchorage.

Anchors inserted for the purpose of connecting front and rear walls with side or party walls shall extend not less than eight inches into the side party wall and not less than twelve inches into the front and rear walls, when these walls are not built and bonded together, in themselves.

(7) The walls and beams of every building during the erection or alteration thereof shall be strongly braced from the beams of each adjacent story, and when required shall also be braced from the outside until the building is enclosed.

(8) In all brick walls every sixth course shall be a heading course, except where walls are faced with brick in flemish or running bond, in which latter case every sixth course shall be bonded into the backing by cutting the course of the face brick and putting in diagonal headers behind the same, or by splitting the face brick in half and backing the same with a continuous row of headers. Where face brick is used of a different thickness from the brick used for backing, the course of the exterior and interior brickwork shall be brought to a level bed at intervals of not more than ten courses in height of the face brick, and the face brick shall be properly tied to the backing by a heading course of the face brick.

(9) All bearing walls faced with brick laid in running bond shall be four inches thicker than the walls are required to be under any other section of this Code. In running bond approved metal wall ties may be used in place of the diagonal headers if placed not over four courses apart vertically and twenty inches horizontally.

(10) Face brick shall be laid at the same time as the backing, and shall in no case be laid after the backing is in place.

SECTION 40.

Piers.

(1) Piers shall be built of dimension stone, stone concrete, hollow blocks or good, hard, well-burned brick. Stone block or brick piers shall be laid in cement mortar. Every exterior pier shall be securely anchored to the beams or girders at the level of each tier. The height of any isolated pier shall not be greater than ten times the least horizontal dimension of the pier.

(2) Every pier of less than nine square feet in cross-section which supports any beam, girder, arch or column upon which a wall rests, or a lintel spanning an opening over ten feet wide on which a wall rests, shall have built into it, at vertical intervals of not less than thirty inches, steel plates five-sixteenths inch thick, or stone bonders not less than four inches thick.

Every steel plate shall have the same horizontal dimensions as the piers into which it is built.

(3) Every pier which supports a column or girder shall have immediately below the column or girder a suitable cast iron or steel plate to distribute the load over a sufficient area to comply with the permissable stress for the material supporting it as determined in sections 28 and 29 of this Code.

SECTION 41.

Stone Walls Above Grade.

(1) All stone walls to be built and bonded as already prescribed in section 39, except that above grade they may be laid in lime mortar, or lime and cement mortar as per sections 19 and 21 of this Code.

Where walls are built of stones with dressed level beds and vertical joints, the Inspector of Buildings may permit such walls to be of the same thickness as specified for brick walls. In no case shall stone walls be of less thickness than specified for brick walls, and in no case shall the pressure per unit of area exceed that provided for in the sections of this Code governing the strength of materials.

SECTION 42.

Ashlar.

(1) Stone used for the facing of any building, and known as ashlar, shall be not less than four inches thick.

(2) Stone ashlar shall be anchored to the backing, and the backing shall be of such thickness as to make the walls, independent of the ashlar, conform as to thickness with the requirements of the sections of this Code, unless every alternate course be at least eight inches thick and bonded into the backing, and then eight inches of it may be counted as part of the thickness of the wall. However, no wall faced with ashlar shall be less than twelve inches thick in any case.

(3) Where terra cotta or other approved artificial material is used instead of stone ashlar, it shall not be less than four inches thick. It shall be properly and securely anchored to the backing, and not counted as part of the thickness of the wall.

SECTION 43.

Brick Wall Thicknesses.

(1) The minimum thickness of all bearing walls shall be in accordance with the schedule below. In determining the thickness by means of these schedules, the height of the walls shall be measured to the point of complete support whether this be a foundation, a beam or a girder.

For Buildings of Classes A, B, E and F.

Top Section. Thickness.	Middle Section. Height.	Bottom Section. Thickness.	Height.
8 in.	25 ft.	12 in.	40 ft.
12 in.	40 ft.	16 in.	25 ft.
12 in. throughout.		20 in.	20 ft.

For Buildings of Classes C and D.

Top Section. Thickness.	Middle Section. Height.	Bottom Section. Thickness.	Height.
12 in.	25 ft.	16 in.	35 ft.
12 in.	50 ft.	20 in.	25 ft.
12 in.	75 ft.	24 in.	25 ft.
8 in.	25 ft.	12 in.	26 ft.
8 in. throughout.

Height of Building	Thickness of Walls.
75 feet or less.	12 in.
60 ft. to 75 ft.	16 in.
40 ft. to 60 ft.	20 in.
40 ft. or less.	16 in.

Height of Building	Thickness of Walls.
75 ft. to 100 ft.	16 in.
60 ft. to 75 ft.	20 in.
40 ft. to 60 ft.	16 in.
40 ft. or less.	12 in.

Increased Thickness of Walls.

(2) When the height of any wall exceeds one hundred feet, it shall be increased in thickness in general accordance with the above schedule as shall be approved by the Inspector of Buildings.

(3) When the clear span is greater than twenty-five feet, the thickness of bearing walls shall be increased four inches over that set forth in the above schedules for every twelve and one-half feet or fraction thereof that the said span exceeds twenty-five feet; or shall have in lieu of this increase of thickness such piers or buttresses as the Inspector of Buildings may direct. In all walls the same amount of materials herein required for walls, may be in part used in piers or buttresses, provided the walls or bays between shall be of a thickness approved by the Inspector.

(4) Every bearing wall faced with brick laid in running bond shall be four inches thicker than specified in the foregoing schedules.

(5) If any horizontal section through any part of any bearing wall shows more than thirty per centum area of flues and openings, such wall shall be increased in thickness by four inches for every fifteen per centum, or fraction thereof, by which the total area of flues and openings exceeds thirty per centum.

(6) In all buildings, walls over one hundred and five feet in length shall be four inches thicker throughout than is required by this Code, unless they are properly braced by cross walls, piers, buttresses or similar means.

Reduced Thickness of Non-Bearing Walls and Interior Walls.

(7) The thickness of non-bearing walls may be four inches less than that of bearing walls, provided that no non-bearing wall is less than twelve inches thick, nor extends for more than fifty feet in height without an increase of thickness.

(8) When bearing walls are less than twenty-five feet apart, or are intersected by cross walls, or strengthened by piers of sufficient size, the Inspector may permit the reduction of thickness of interior walls in just proportion to such added strength, except on walls less than forty feet in height.

SECTION 44.

Enclosure Walls for Skeleton Structures.

In skeleton structures not over seventy-five feet in height, walls between columns or posts and supported by girders, shall be of brick, stone, concrete or hard hollow clay blocks thoroughly anchored to enclosing columns, posts and girders, and be of a thickness for brick and stone required for non-bearing walls, for concrete not less than six inches, and for clay blocks set in cement mortar not less than eight inches in thickness, provided that the supporting columns or posts are not over twenty feet apart on centres, nor the vertical distance between supporting girders greater than twelve feet.

SECTION 45.

Existing Walls.

(1) Existing Party Walls.—Walls heretofore built for or used as party walls, the thickness of which was at the time of their erection in accordance with the requirements of the existing laws, which are in good condition but are not in accordance with the requirements of this Code, may be used at the discretion of the Inspector of Buildings for the ordinary uses of party walls provided the height of the same be not increased. No existing wall shall be used for party wall or other different purposes without his written permit.

(2) Lining Existing Walls.—Should it be desired to increase the height of existing party or independent walls, which are less in thickness than required under this Code, this shall be done by lining with brickwork to form a combined thickness with the old wall of not less than four inches more than the thickness required for a new wall corresponding with the total height of the wall when so increased in height. The said lining shall be supported on proper foundations and carried up to such height as the Inspector of Buildings may require. No lining shall be less than eight inches in thickness, and all linings shall be laid up in cement mortar and thoroughly anchored to the old brick walls with suitable wrought iron anchors, placed two feet apart and properly fastened or driven into the old walls in rows alternating vertically and horizontally with each other, the old walls being first cleaned of plaster or other coatings where any lining is to be built against the same. No rubble wall shall be lined until it has been approved by the Inspector of Buildings.

Arches and Lintels.

(1) Openings for doors and windows in all masonry buildings, shall have good and sufficient arches of stone, brick or terra cotta, well built and keyed with good and sufficient abutments, or lintels of stone, iron or steel of sufficient strength, which shall have a bearing at each end of not less than four inches on the wall. On the inside of all openings in non-fireproof buildings in which lintels shall be less than the thickness of the wall to be supported, there may be timber lintels, which shall rest at each end not more than three inches on any wall, which shall be chamfered at each end and be cut to true arch shapes on top. A suitable rowlock or keyed arch shall be turned over the timber lintel. Or the inside lintel may be of cast iron or steel, and in such case stone blocks or cast-iron plates shall not be required at the ends where the lintel rests on the walls, provided the opening is not more than six feet in width.

(2) All masonry arches shall be capable of sustaining the weight or thrust which they are designed to carry, and the stress at any point shall not exceed the working stress for the material used, as given in section 29 of this Code. Tie rods shall be used where necessary to secure stability.

SECTION 47.

Parapet Walls.

All exterior and division or party walls over fifteen feet high, excepting where the front walls are to be finished with cornices, gutters or crown mouldings, shall have parapet walls not less than eight inches in thickness and carried two feet above the roof, but for warehouses, factories, stores and other buildings used for commercial and manufacturing purposes the parapet walls shall be not less than twelve inches in thickness and carried two feet above the roof, and all such walls shall be coped with stone, terra cotta or cast iron.

SECTION 48.

Hollow Walls.

(1) In all walls that are built hollow the same net horizontal section of stone, brick or concrete shall be used in their construction as if they were built solid, as in this Code provided, and no hollow wall shall be built unless the parts thereof are connected by proper ties, either of brick, stone, iron or other suitable metal, placed not over twenty-four inches apart, horizontally, and vertically. No such hollow space shall exceed four inches in width.

SECTION 49.

Furred Walls and Studded-Off Spaces.

(1) The inside four inches of all walls may be built of hard burned hollow brick, the dimensions of ordinary brick, properly tied and bonded into the walls. Where hollow tile or porous terra-cotta blocks are used as lining or furring the walls, they shall not be included in the measurement of the thickness of such walls. In fire-proof skeleton buildings, however, hard burned hollow brick of standard size may be used to form the entire backing, provided that in no case shall the load imposed thereon exceed ten tons per square foot.

(2) In all walls furred with wood, the masonry between the ends of wood beams shall project the thickness of the furring beyond the inner face of the wall for the full depth of the beams. In cases where the beams are parallel to a wall furred with wood, there shall be a space of not less than two and one-half inches between such wall and the nearest beam. This space shall be filled in solidly with brickwork or concrete for the full depth of the floor beams.

Studded-Off Spaces.

(3) Where walls are studded off, unless fire-stops are provided as called for in this section, the space between the inside face of the wall and the studding at the floor level shall be fire-stopped with approved fire-proof material. The beams directly over the studded-off space shall be deafened with not less than four inches of such material, which shall be laid on boards cut in between the beams. The under side of such beams shall be protected by a covering of metal lath, or other approved fire-proof materials, and plaster. Dry cinders or sand shall not be permitted for fire stopping.

SECTION 50.

Recesses and Chases in Walls.

Recesses for stairways or elevators may be left in the foundation or cellar walls of all buildings, but in no case shall the walls be less in thickness than the walls of the top story, unless reinforced by additional piers with steel girders, or iron or steel columns and steel girders, securely anchored to walls on each side. Recesses for alcoves and similar purposes shall have not less than eight inches of brickwork at the back of such recesses, and such recesses shall not be more than eight feet in width, and shall be arched over or spanned with iron or steel lintels, and not carried up higher than eighteen inches below the bottom of the beams of the floor next above. No chase for water or other pipes shall be made in any wall more than one-third of its thickness. No horizontal recess or chase which exceeds four feet in length shall be allowed in any wall. The aggregate area of recesses and chases in any wall shall not exceed one-fourth of the whole area of the face of the wall on any story, nor shall any such recess be made within a distance of six feet from any other recess in the same wall. There shall be no chase in any pier.

SECTION 51.

Walls of Brick Buildings Raised, Lowered or Altered.

(1) Within the fire limits no brick dwelling house with eight inch walls, already erected, that has a peaked roof, shall be raised for the purpose of making a flat roof thereon, unless the same be raised with the same kind of material as the building, and unless such new roof be covered with fire-proof material. The building, when so raised, shall not exceed thirty-six feet six inches in height.

(2) No brick building within the fire limits shall be enlarged or built upon unless the exterior walls of the addition be of approved incombustible materials. Such building shall be raised, lowered or altered in the manner provided for in this section.

CHAPTER XV.

Chimneys, Flues and Fireplaces; Heating Pipes and Apparatus.

SECTION 52.

Chimneys, Flues and Fireplaces.

(1) Every chimney hereafter erected shall be of brick, dimension stone concrete or other approved incombustible material. Every chimney shall extend at least four feet above the highest point of contact with the roof. Every chimney shall be properly capped with terra cotta, stone, cast-iron or other approved incombustible weather-proof material.

(2) The side walls of brick or concrete chimneys may be not less than four inches thick outside the flue linings, for a height not greater than twenty-five feet, and any partition walls between adjacent flues in the same chimney shall be not less than four inches thick. In non-fireproof buildings there shall be at least eight inches of masonry between the smoke flue and any woodwork. The firebacks of all fireplaces shall be of solid masonry not less than eight inches thick. There shall be an air space of not less than two inches between any metal fireback and the masonry behind it. All flues shall be properly cleaned upon the completion of a building.

(3) No chimney shall rest or in any way depend upon woodwork for support.

(4) In no case shall a chimney be corbeled more than eight inches from a wall. In brick chimneys the corbeling shall consist of at least five courses of brick, but no corbeling more than four inches shall be allowed in eight-inch brick walls. Piers which support chimneys shall start from the foundation on the same line with the chimney breast and shall be not less than twelve inches on the face, properly bonded in to the walls. All chimneys which shall be dangerous shall be made safe or taken down.

(5) Each smoke flue (except as per clause 6) shall be lined with burnt clay or terra cotta pipe, made smooth on the inside from the bottom of the flue, or from the throat of the fireplace if the flue starts from the latter, and carried up continuously the entire height of the flue. The ends of the sections of all such lining pipes shall fit closely together and the pipes shall be built in as the flues are carried up.

(6) The smoke flue of every steam power boiler shall be lined on all sides with not less than four inches of fire brick, laid in fire mortar, for a distance of twenty-five feet from its entrance into stack. The smoke flue of every smelting furnace, every steam boiler and of every other device which heats the flues to a high temperature, shall be built with double walls of suitable thickness for the temperature. There shall be an air space between the walls, and the inside wall shall be of fire brick not less than four inches thick, and the enclosing walls at no point less than eight inches thick.

(7) All smoke flues from boilers or furnaces shall have metal clean-out frame and door built in at bottom.

(8) All fireplaces and chimney breasts where mantels are placed, whether intended for ordinary fireplace uses or not, shall have trimmer arches to support hearths. The arches shall be at least twenty inches in width, measured from the face of the chimney breasts, and they shall be of brick, stone, concrete or burnt clay. The length of a trimmer arch shall be not less than the width of the chimney breast. Wood centres under trimmer arches shall be removed before plastering the ceiling underneath. If a heater is placed in a fireplace the hearth shall be the full width of the heater. All fireplaces in which heaters are placed shall have approved incombustible mantels. No wood mantel or other woodwork shall be exposed back of a summer piece, the iron work of the summer piece shall be placed against the masonry back of the fireplace. No fireplace shall be closed with a wood fireboard. When a grate is set in a fireplace, a lining of firebrick, at least two inches in thickness shall be added to the fire back, unless soapstone, tile or cast iron is used, and filled solidly behind with fire proof material.

(9) Cupola chimneys of foundries, or similar works, shall extend at least ten feet above the highest point of any roof within a radius of fifty feet of such cupola, and be covered on the top with a heavy wire netting. No woodwork shall be placed within two feet of the cupola.

(10) If, when or before the scaffolds are at the proper height, the building owner is requested so to do by the owner of the building or structure adjoining, the one erecting or altering a building to be raised more than ten feet above the adjoining and contiguous building shall, at his own expense, raise the adjacent chimney or chimneys of such adjoining building to the same level as the chimneys of his building, or shall supply sufficient flues connecting such chimneys with his own chimneys, which shall be of ample capacity to accommodate both buildings.

(11) All ash holes, ash houses or ash depositories or receptacles of any kind shall be built wholly of incombustible material.

SECTION 53.

Heating Flues, Pipes and Vent Ducts.

(1) All stone, concrete or brick hot air flues and shafts shall be lined with tin, galvanized iron or burnt clay pipes. No wood casings, furring or lath shall be placed against or cover any smoke flue. No stovepipe shall be placed nearer than nine inches to any lath and plaster or board partition, ceiling or any woodwork. Smoke pipes of laundry stoves, cooking ranges and of furnaces shall not be less than twelve inches from any woodwork, unless they are properly guarded by metal shields; if so guarded, stovepipes shall be not less than six inches and smoke pipes of laundry stoves, cooking ranges and of furnaces shall be not less than nine inches distant from any woodwork. Where smoke pipes pass through a lath and plaster partition or wood floor or roof they shall be guarded by galvanized ventilated thimbles at least twelve inches larger in diameter than the pipes, or by galvanized iron thimbles built in at least eight inches of brick. Metal pipes in masonry walls, used or intended to be used to convey heated air, shall have backing in brick or stone work of not less than eight inches, in concrete of four inches, and may be covered in with metal lath and plaster.

(2) Where hot air pipes are placed in wood partitions, the sides of the studs, beams and all contiguous woodwork is to be lined with tin the flues to have soldered joints to be strongly secured in place with sufficient air space left between the wood and the lining, and between the lining and the pipes; or, in lieu of the above protection two inches of brick or porous terra cotta set in cement, or three inches of concrete may be placed between the hot air pipe and the woodwork. No vertical hot air pipe shall be placed in a stud partition or in a wood enclosure, unless it be at least four feet distant in a horizontal direction from the furnace. If placed in brickwork it may not be less than two feet distant. Hot air pipes in closets, where exposed, shall be double, with a space of one inch between them. All outer faces of all hot air flues in woodwork to be covered with metal lathing.

(3) Horizontal Hot Air Pipes.—Horizontal hot air pipes in cellar or basement shall be placed six inches below the floor beams or ceiling; if the floor beams or ceiling are plastered or protected by a metal shield, then the distance shall be not less than three inches. All shut-off dampers in hot air pipes shall be at least twelve inches below the floor beams or ceiling.

(4) Vent Flues and Ducts.—Vent flues or ducts for the removal of vitiated or foul air, in which the temperature of the air cannot exceed that of the rooms, may be constructed of sheet iron, or similar incombustible material, and shall not be placed nearer than one inch to any woodwork. No such flue or duct shall be used for any other purpose. Cold air ducts of hot air furnaces shall be of metal or other approved fireproof material.

(5) Protection of Woodwork Against Steam and Hot Water Pipes.—Steam heating pipes shall not be placed within two inches of any woodwork unless the woodwork is protected by a metal shield, where the air space shall be not less than one inch. Every steam or hot water heating pipe passing through floors and ceilings or lath and plaster partitions shall be protected by a metal tube one inch larger in diameter than the pipe, with a metal plate at the floor. Where they run in a horizontal direction between the floor and ceiling, a metal shield shall be placed on the under side of the floor over them and on the sides of wood beams running parallel with the pipe. All wood boxes or casings inclosing any steam or hot water heating pipe, or wood covers to recesses in walls in which any steam or hot water heating pipe is placed, shall be lined with locked-jointed metal.

(4) Cold water or other exposed plumbing pipes shall have the surrounding air space closed off at the ceiling and floor lines of any wood floor through which any such pipe shall be carried, except that hot water supply pipes may run through metal sleeves. All steam pipes shall have coverings of fireproof material from ceiling to floor line over.

SECTION 54.

Ducts for Pipes.

In all buildings the ducts for pipes, wires, cables and for similar purposes shall in all cases be separately inclosed on all sides with fireproof material or lined with metal strongly secured.

No pipes, wires, cables or similar material of any kind shall be encased within or embedded in the fireproof protection of columns or other structural members; all such chases shall be fire-stopped at each floor.

SECTION 55.

Registers.

A register placed on wood work or other combustible material in connection with a metal pipe or duct, shall have the end of the p ordinance.

SECTION 58.

Drying Rooms.

All walls, floors, ceilings and partitions inclosing drying rooms and smoke houses when not of fireproof materials, shall be metal lathed and plastered, or covered with other approved incombustible material.

CHAPTER XVI.

Vaults, Areas and Cellars.

SECTION 59.

Cellars to Be Protected From Water.

Before the walls of buildings are carried up above the foundation walls, provision shall be made to prevent water accumulating in the cellars to the injury of the foundations.

SECTION 60.

Vaults Under Sidewalks and Retaining Walls.

(1) In buildings where the space under the sidewalk is utilized, a sufficient stone, concrete or brick wall, or brick arches between steel beams, shall be built to retain the roadway of the street, and the side, end and party walls of such building shall extend under the sidewalk, of sufficient thickness, to such wall. The roofs of all vaults shall be of incombustible material.

(2) Openings in the roofs of vaults for the admission of coal or light, or for manholes, or for any other purposes, if placed outside the area line, shall be covered with glass set in iron frames, each glass to measure not more than sixteen square inches, or with iron covers having a rough surface, and rebated flush with the sidewalk. When any such cover is placed in any sidewalk, it shall be placed as near as practicable to the outside line of the curb.

SECTION 61.

Areas.

(1) All areas shall be properly protected with suitable railings, or covered over.

(2) When areas are covered over, iron or iron and glass combined, stone or other incombustible materials shall be used, and supported on brick, concrete or stone walls, or on steel beams.

SECTION 62.

Cellar Partitions in Buildings of Classes "C" and "D."

(1) In all buildings of Classes "C" and "D," except dwellings, hereafter erected having a clear span of over twenty feet between bearing walls, and supporting stud partitions above, there shall be constructed in the cellar or lowest story at right angles to the floor beams, at least one partition of brick or concrete, not less than eight inches thick, or piers of brick or concrete, with openings arched below the underside of the first tier of beams.

(2) If height of basement or cellar exceeds ten feet in the clear, partition walls shall be not less than twelve inches thick. Girders of steel, with iron or steel columns, or piers of masonry, may be used in place of partitions. If steel floor beams, spanning the distance between bearing walls, of adequate strength to support the stud partitions above in addition to the floor load to be sustained by the said steel beams, are used, then the fore-and-aft brick or concrete partition, or its equivalent, may be omitted.

Cellar Ceilings.

The ceiling of every cellar or lowest story in all buildings hereafter erected of Classes "C" and "D," except dwellings, less than thirty-six feet six inches in height, occupied by more than one family, when the beams are of wood, shall be lathed with metal lath and plastered thereon with two or more coats of mortar, not less than three-quarters of an inch in thickness.

CHAPTER XVII.

Entrances; Stairs; Fire Stairs and Escapes, Fire Shutters, Stand Pipes and Sprinklers.

SECTION 64.

Entrances.

(1) Every building hereafter erected or altered shall have at least one entrance direct to a street, yard or court communicating directly with the street.

(2) In all buildings of Classes "A," "B" and "C" hereafter erected, all doors in the first story giving admission to or egress from the building, including the doors of vestibules, shall be so hung as to swing outwards when opening. This requirement shall not be construed to prohibit the use upon doors of double swing hinges which permit the door to swing both outwards and inwards, nor of sliding doors in stables, garages and the shipping rooms and receiving rooms of manufacturing and mercantile buildings.

(3) Every revolving door at the entrance or exit of any building shall be an approved revolving door having a mechanical device by which it can be readily transformed into an open exit.

(4) Where buildings are interiorly connected every opening between them shall be provided with an approved self-closing standard fire door.

Entrance to Cellar or Basement.

(5) Every tenement building hereafter erected that is arranged to be occupied by more than two families above the first story shall be provided with an entrance to the cellar or basement thereof from the outside of the building. If not over three stories in height and if not arranged to be occupied by more than two families, the stairs leading to the cellar or basement may be located inside the building, provided they are enclosed with approved fireproof partitions.

SECTION 65.

Interior Stairs.

(1) Number Regulated by Area of Building.—In all buildings hereafter erected the number of stairs in each story shall be regulated by the area of each story measured on the outside of walls, except as hereinafter mentioned. All stairways shall be practically continuous from the top floor to the curb level, and the main stairway shall extend to the roof. Exits from all stairs shall be provided as the Inspector of Buildings may direct. Where more than one stairway is required the stairs shall be remote from each other. When the ground floor area exceeds that of the floors above, the number of stairs required for this story shall be determined by the area of the story next above.

(2) In all Municipal Buildings, Court Houses, Schools, Colleges, Hospitals, Asylums, Churches, Amusement Halls, Lodge Rooms, Exhibition Buildings, Hotels, Lodging Houses, Club Houses, Studios, Dormitories, Dwellings, Tenements, Lofts, Stores, Restaurants, Factories, Workshops and Printing Houses there shall be the following number of stairs for stories not exceeding the given areas:

Not exceeding 2,500 square feet in area, one stairway.

Not exceeding 5,000 square feet in area, two stairways.

Not exceeding 10,000 square feet in area, three stairways.

Not exceeding 20,000 square feet in area, four stairways.

(3) In all Fire Houses, Libraries, Museums, Office Buildings, Warehouses, Stables, there shall be the following number of stairs for stories not exceeding the given area:

Not exceeding 3,750 square feet in area, one stairway.

Not exceeding 7,500 square feet in area, two stairways.

Not exceeding 15,000 square feet in area, three stairways.

Not exceeding 30,000 square feet in area, four stairways.

(4) In all Armories, Markets, Light and Power Plants, Car Barns, Garages, and Foundries, there shall be the following number of stairs for stories not exceeding the given area:

Not exceeding 5,000 square feet in area, one stairway.

Not exceeding 10,000 square feet in area, two stairways.

Not exceeding 20,000 square feet in area, three stairways.

Not exceeding 40,000 square feet in area, four stairways.

(5) Where the area of any story exceeds the above requirements for four continuous lines of stairs, such extra number of stairs, outside fire stairs or fire escapes shall be provided as the Inspector of Buildings shall direct.

(6) At the discretion of the Inspector of Buildings the allowable area for any given number of stairs as mentioned above may be increased as he shall direct between the given areas.

(7) In all Theatres or Opera Houses hereafter erected stairs of such number and of such width shall be provided as called for in Section 116 of this Code.

(8) The width of the stairs required by this section shall in no case be less than three feet and two inches from wall to centre of hand rail, or from centre to centre of parallel hand rails, and shall be greater if required by the Inspector of Buildings.

(9) All stairs shall have treads and risers of uniform width and height throughout in each flight and the rise shall be not more than eight inches, and the treads, exclusive of nosing, not less than nine inches.

(10) All stairs shall be provided with proper banisters or railings and hand rails.

(11) Each flight of stairs in every story which exceeds a height of twelve feet in the clear shall have a proper intermediate landing. When stairs have a straight run the landing shall be placed at the central portion thereof.

(12) If there are two or more flights of stairs, one outside fire stairs erected in accordance with Section 66 of this Code shall be considered the equivalent of one inside flight of stairs as herein provided, but no outside fire escape shall be accepted in lieu of such stairs.

(13) The Inspector of Buildings may order, in addition to fire escapes, such increase or alteration of existing inadequate stairways and exits in combustible structures, as will best conserve the safety of employees therein or of the public using thereof.

(14) Slate and Stone Treads to be Supported.—In all buildings hereafter erected where the treads and landings of metal stairs are of slate, marble or other stone, there shall be placed directly underneath each tread and each landing for their entire length and width a metal plate made solid, or having openings not exceeding four square inches in same, of adequate strength, but not less than one-quarter of an inch in thickness, and securely fastened to the strings with bolts or rivets, or to both the strings and risers if the treads be more than three and one-half feet long. If stairs are of other fireproof material than metal, and the slate, marble or other stone treads and landings are each solidly supported for their entire length and width by the materials composing such stairs, metal supports shall not be required.

SECTION 66.

Outside Fire Stairs.

(1) Any building hereafter erected or altered, which exceeds thirty-six feet and six inches in height, and is required to have two or more staircases, as specified in section 65 of this Code, may have, when approved by the Inspector of Buildings, in place of one inside stairs an outside fire staircase, which shall be accessible to all occupants.

(2) Such outside fire stairs shall be entirely of suitable iron, reinforced concrete or steel. They shall extend from the curb, court or yard level to the roof, and shall in no case be in front of openings in the wall. At each story there will be access to the stairway. Access shall be only by doorways connecting with steel or iron balconies on the outside walls of the building. Doors shall be self-closing, at least three feet wide, metal covered, with metal-covered jambs and casings, and shall swing inwards to open, and be provided with locks or latches, with visible fastenings that require no keys.

(3) Direct outlets shall be provided at roof and curb level. Where staircases end in a court or yard there shall be a fireproof passageway not less than three feet wide and six feet six inches high, leading direct to the street. There shall be no steps within this passageway.

(4) The staircase shall be at least three feet wide in the clear and have treads not less than nine inches wide, exclusive of nosings, and risers of not more than eight inches. Landings the full width of the stairs shall be provided at vertical intervals of not more than twelve feet. All treads shall be of uniform width. No winders shall be permitted. The connecting balconies, which shall be provided in addition to any stair landing and at the same level therewith, shall be at least three feet six inches wide in the clear, and not more than two inches below the door sill. The top surface of treads, landings and balconies shall have an approved roughened surface to prevent slipping. Stairs shall have substantial railings and handrails. All parts of stairways and balconies shall receive not less than three coats of paint, one before and two after erection, and shall be kept painted and in good repair. Stairways, balconies and all passageways connecting thereto shall at all times be kept free from incumbrance, as required in section 67 for fire escapes.

SECTION 67.

Fire Escapes.

(1) The Inspector of Buildings shall have full and exclusive power and authority to direct fire escapes and other means of egress to be provided upon and within any of the said buildings, except as herein otherwise provided. The owner of any building upon which a fire escape is erected shall keep the same in good repair and properly painted.

(2) Tenements, Boarding Houses, which have more than fifteen sleeping rooms above the basement floor; every hotel, lodging house, factory, mill, workshop, store and school more than two stories in height, and every office and business building which is more than three stories in height, all buildings used or occupied as a place of public entertainment or instruction, and all such special buildings as may be designated by the Inspector of Buildings, unless otherwise provided with outside fire stairs as per Section 66 of this code, shall have one or more fire escapes as follows:

(3) Fire escapes on the outside of buildings shall consist of open iron balconies and stairways.

(4) The stairways shall be placed at an angle of not more than sixty degrees with the horizontal; and with steps not less than six inches in width and twenty inches in length, and with a rise of not more than nine inches.

Balconies.—The balcony on the top floor, except in case of a front fire escape, shall be provided with a gooseneck ladder leading from said balcony to and above the roof.

(6) The balconies shall be not less than three feet in width, and placed where directed by the Inspector of Buildings, at each story above the ground floor.

(7) They shall be below and not more than one foot below the window sills and extend in front of and not less than nine inches beyond each window.

(8) There shall be a landing not less than twenty-four inches square at the head and foot of each stairway.

(9) The stairway opening on each platform shall be of a size sufficient to provide clear headway.

(10) Floors of Balconies.—The floors of balconies shall be of steel slats not less than one and one-half inches by three-eighths of an inch, placed not more than one and one-quarter inches apart, and be secured and riveted to steel battens one and one-half inches by three-eighths of an inch, not over three feet apart and riveted at the intersection. The openings for stairways in all balconies shall be not less than twenty-one inches wide and thirty-six inches long, and such openings shall not have covers of any kind.

(12) Railings.—The outside top rail shall extend around the entire length of the platform, and in all cases shall go through the wall at each end, and be properly secured by nuts and four-inch square washers at least three-eighths of an inch thick, and no top rail shall be connected at right angles by cast-iron. The top rail of balconies shall be one and three-quarter inches by one-half inch of steel, or one and one-half inches by one and one-half inch angle, one-quarter of an inch thick. The bottom rails shall be one and one-half inches by three eighths of an inch steel, or one and one-half inch by one and one-half inch angle, one-quarter inch thick, well leaded into the wall. The standards or filling-in bars shall be not less than one-half inch round or square steel, well riveted to the top and bottom rails and platform frame. Such standards or filling-in bars shall be securely braced by outside brackets at suitable intervals, and shall be placed not more than six inches from centres; the height of railings shall in no case be less than two feet nine inches.

(14) Brackets.—The brackets shall be not less than one-half inch by one and three-quarters inch steel, placed edgewise, or one and three-quarters inch angle, one-quarter inch thick, well braced. They shall be not more than four feet apart, and shall be braced by means of not less than three-quarters of an inch square steel, and shall extend two-thirds of the width of the respective balconies or brackets. The brackets shall go through the wall and be turned down three inches, or be properly secured by nuts and four inch square washers at least three-eighths of an inch thick.

(15) When brackets are put on buildings already erected, the part going through the wall shall be not less than one inch in diameter, with screw nuts and washers not less than five inches square and one-half an inch thick.

(16) Drop Ladders.—A proper balanced drop-ladder shall be required from the lower balcony when the floor of such balcony is more than fourteen feet above the sidewalk or ground.

(17) Painting.—All the parts of such fire escapes shall receive not less than two coats of paint, one in the shop and one after erection.

Incumbrances on Fire Escapes.

(1) No person shall at any time place an incumbrance of any kind whatsoever before or upon any fire-escape, balcony or ladder used as a fire escape. It shall be the duty of every Policeman who shall discover any fire-escape, balcony or ladder of any fire-escape, incumbered in any way therewith forthwith the same to his commanding officer, and such officer shall forthwith cause the occupant of the premises or apartment to which said fire-escape, balcony or ladder is attached, or for whose use the same is provided, to be notified, either verbally or in writing, to remove such encumbrance and keep the same clear. If said notice shall not be complied with by the removal forthwith of such incumbrance, and keeping said fire-escape, balcony or ladder free from encumbrance, then it shall be the duty of said commanding officer to apply to a Police Magistrate for a warrant for the arrest of the occupant or occupants of the said premises or apartments of which the fire-escape forms a part, and the said parties shall be brought before said magistrate as for disorderly conduct and on conviction the occupant or occupants of said premises or apartments shall be fined not more than ten dollars for each offense, or may be imprisoned not to exceed ten days, or both, in the discretion of the court.

(2) In constructing all balcony fire-escapes the manufacturer thereof shall securely fasten thereto, in a conspicuous place, a metal plate having suitable raised letters on the same, to read as follows: "Notice: Any Person Placing Any Incumbrance on This Balcony is Liable to a Penalty of Ten Dollars and Imprisonment for Ten Days."

Doors and Windows.—In buildings requiring fire escapes, unless provided with stairs to the roof, shall have stationary iron ladders leading to the scuttle, opening in the roof thereof, and all scuttles and ladders shall be kept so as to be ready for use at all times.

(4) If a bulkhead is used in place of a scuttle it shall have stairs with sufficient guard rail leading to the roof. In case the building shall be a tenement house the door in the bulkhead or scuttle shall at no time be locked, but may be fastened on the inside by movable bolts or hooks.

SECTION 68.

Engineers' Stationary Ladders.

Every building in which boilers or machinery are placed in the cellar or lowest story shall have stationary iron ladders or stairs from such story leading direct to the main floor through the sidewalk or other outside exit.

SECTION 69.

Fire Shutters.

(1) Whenever the Inspector shall so direct buildings shall have standard fire doors, blinds or shutters or their equivalent, as required in this section, on every exterior window and opening above the first floor, except on openings fronting on streets, which are more than thirty feet in width, or where no other building is within thirty feet of such opening.

(2) If an approved metal window frame and approved metal sash with approved wire glass, are built in a window opening, fire shutters may be omitted.

SECTION 70.

Standpipes.

(1) In every building, exceeding fifty-nine and not over one hundred feet in height, unless already provided with a three-inch or larger standpipe, and in all buildings hereafter erected exceeding fifty-nine feet and not exceeding one hundred feet in height, there shall be provided a vertical standpipe of not less than four inches in diameter.

(2) These standpipes shall be of wrought iron or steel galvanized, and together with fittings and connections, shall be of such strength as to safely withstand at all times hundred pounds water pressure to the square inch when installed and ready for service; also to stand such a test without leaking at joints, valves or fittings.

(3) Standpipes shall be located within fireproof stairway inclosures where the latter are of such construction, and shall pass through the landings or the halls where they are not so enclosed.

(4) In buildings exceeding one hundred feet deep fronting on two or more streets there shall be a standpipe at each end of building, and in buildings of an area exceeding eight thousand square feet there shall be one standpipe at each stairway, or within each stairway enclosure.

(5) Where more than one standpipe is required in a building they shall be connected at their bases by pipes of size equal to that of the largest standpipes, so that water from any source will supply all the standpipes.

(6) Standpipes shall extend from the cellar to and through the roof, with a hose connection located from four to six feet above each floor level, fitted with approved straightway composition gate valve in each story, including cellar, and a hose connection provided above the roof with valve controlling latter located in the standpipe under the roof and arranged to be operated both from above and below the roof. A suitable three-quarter inch drain pipe and valve shall be provided under the roof for each roof connection.

(7) Hose sufficient to reach to all parts of the floor shall be attached to each outlet in the building, and hose for roof hydrant may be placed on rack in top floor near the scuttle or bulkhead leading to the roof. Hose shall be two and one-half inches in diameter, in fifty-foot lengths, and provided with standard couplings at each end; all couplings shall be of standard thread as that used by the Plainfield Fire Department.

(8) Hose shall be of standard make approved by the Inspector of Buildings.

(9) Each line of hose shall be provided with washers and be fitted with play pipe of standard pattern, with discharge outlet not less than three-quarter inch in diameter. Two spanners shall be located at each hose connection throughout the building.

(10) All standpipes shall be provided with a female siamese steamer connection with clapper valve, located on the outside of the building, about one foot above the curb level, and where a building fronts on two or more streets, a connection shall be provided on each street front. Inlet pipe from steamer connection to standpipe shall be not less than the diameter of the largest standpipe. The thread on the siamese connection shall be uniform with that used by the Fire Department. Siamese steamer connections shall be provided with check valves in the "Y," and substantial caps provided to protect thread on the connection. The steamer connection fitting shall be horizontal. A suitable iron plate with raised letters shall be secured to the wall near steamer connection, reading, "Standpipe leading to cellar, sub-cellar or up through building," as the case may be.

(11) In each connecting pipe just inside of the building, in a horizontal section, shall be placed a straightway check valve, but not a gate valve. A drip pipe with valve to same, shall be placed between said check valve and steamer connection to properly drain this section to prevent freezing.

(12) In addition to the provision made for steamer connections to standpipes, the water supply may be had from city water, automatic fire-pump of five hundred gallons or more capacity per minute, elevated tank or steel pressure tank of not less than five thousand gallons capacity.

(13) In all buildings coming under these regulations as to height the standpipe system shall have at least one of the approved automatic supplies before described.

(14) Where a standpipe is connected to a tank there shall be straightway check valve in a horizontal section of pipe between the first hose outlet in connecting pipe and tank, and said tank shall be filled by a separate pipe, and not through the standpipe.

(15) Where pumps furnishing a supply to standpipe are located in the lowest story of a building, they shall be placed not less than two feet above the floor level, and boilers upon which pumps depend for steam shall be arranged so that flooding of fires under same will be impossible.

SECTION 71.

Automatic Sprinklers.

(1) Where the maximum floor area is desired as per section 9, and in all building of Classes E and F, the height of which exceeds fifty-nine feet, except office buildings, restaurants, light and power plants, and any portion of loft buildings used for office or dwelling purposes, there shall be provided in addition to standpipes a standard equipment of automatic sprinklers, placed at ceiling of each story extending the full depth and breadth of the building. Said sprinkler pipes shall be connected with a pipe not less than four inches in diameter leading to the outside of building, and there provided with an approved siamese steamer connection, the latter to be installed under the requirements set forth in section 70 of this Code, and to be under the control of and for the use of the Fire Department. A suitable iron plate with raised letters shall be attached to the wall near said steamer connection, reading "Automatic Sprinklers."

CHAPTER XVIII.

Enclosures for Elevators, Stairways, Dumbwaiters and Shafts.

SECTION 72.

Elevator Enclosures.

(1) All elevators hereafter placed in any theatre, hospital, asylum, or in any building of classes B and E, excepting office buildings, shall be enclosed by partitions of brick, terra cotta block, reinforced concrete or other approved fire proof material, built in accordance with section 103 of this Code and carried by suitable foundations of masonry, concrete or steel. In all other buildings passenger elevators may be erected within staircase enclosures of brick or other approved masonry. In such cases the elevator shaft may be surrounded by open iron grill work, backed throughout with approved wire glass, and staircase throughout built of incombustible materials.

(2) If not used as bearing walls the partitions enclosing elevators, when of brick, shall be not less than eight inches in thickness for the uppermost fifty feet and shall increase four inches in thickness for each lower fifty feet or part thereof, or when wholly supported by suitable steel framing at vertical intervals of not over forty feet, they may be eight inches in thickness throughout their height. If not used as bearing walls such walls when of terra cotta block, wholly supported by steel framing at vertical intervals of not over twenty-four feet, and suitably spaced upright members shall be not less than six inches in thickness. If not used as bearing walls such walls, when of reinforced concrete, shall be not less than four inches in thickness when suitably supported at vertical intervals of not over twenty-four feet, throughout their height. Such walls or partitions when of other approved fireproof material shall be constructed and supported as may be directed by the Inspector of Buildings. The inside surfaces of all elevator shafts shall be flush, smooth and free from projecting sills, lintels or breaks. Said walls shall extend through and at least three feet above the roof in all cases. Where the elevator shaft extends into the cellar or lowest story it shall be enclosed in that story with brick walls not less than eight inches thick, or reinforced concrete not less than four inches thick.

(3) Every door opening in any said inclosure shall be provided with a standard fire door; all window frames and sash to be metal covered and all glass to be wired glass.

(4) The roofs over all enclosed elevators shall be made of fireproof materials, with a metal skylight at least three-fourths the area of the shaft, the glass to be not more than one-eighth of an inch thick and covered below with strong wire netting set in iron frame, but wired glass shall not be used in skylight over elevator inclosures.

(5) When the shaft does not extend to the bottom of the cellar or lowest story, the lowest end shall be enclosed in fireproof material. The bottom of every elevator shaft shall be fireproof.

(6) When the inclosure of an elevator has an opening to accommodate machinery for operating same, such as shafts, pulleys, drums, cables, etc., said machinery shall be inclosed in a similar manner to the shaft. Doors to be fire doors.

The door at the sidewalk level of the said elevator or lift shall be of sheet metal.

SECTION 73.

Stairway Enclosures.

(1) In all fireproof buildings exceeding thirty-six feet six inches in height and all buildings of Class E the stair halls shall be inclosed on each story with fireproof material the same as required for elevators, to form an inclosure, the floor area of which shall be not more than three times the total area of the floor openings for the elevators and stairs in each enclosure in each story.

All stairwells, elevator wells, halls and corridors shall be inclosed and separated from the rest of the floor space by fireproof enclosures, with floor surfaces of stone, cement, tiling, rock asphalt or other approved incombustible material, and approved metal or metal covered doors, trim and sash, having wire glass, where glass is used.

(2) The stairs and staircase landings shall be of brick, terra cotta, stone, Portland cement, concrete, iron or steel.

SECTION 74.

Dumbwaiter Inclosures.

(1) Dumbwaiter shafts in dwelling houses, to a height of two stories above basement or cellar floor, may be built throughout of wood studs filled in solidly with bricks, blocks, or approved incombustible material, above lowest story to be covered on all interior surfaces, and on lowest story to be covered on all interior and exterior surfaces with metal with plastered metal lath, or plastered approved plaster board strongly secured. If over the above three stories in height, and in all buildings other than dwellings, to be constructed as for fire-proof partitions, Section 103, of this code.

Note.—For reasons of fire safety, construction as per Section 103 is commended in all cases.

If extended to top story said partitions or walls shall also extend at least three feet above the roof and be roofed over with fireproof materials and with a skylight at least three-fourths the area of the shaft, made with metal frames and glazed with glass not more than one-eighth of an inch thick and covered below with strong wire netting, set in iron frames, but wired glass shall not be used in skylights over dumbwaiter enclosures.

(2) All openings in the inclosure walls or construction shall be provided with self-closing standard fire-doors, and fireproof jambs and trim.

(3) When the shaft does not extend to the floor level of the cellar or lowest story, the bottom of the shaft shall be constructed of fireproof material.

(4) When the shaft does not extend through the top story the top of the shaft also shall be constructed of fireproof material.

SECTION 75.

Light and Vent Shafts.

(1) In every building hereafter erected or altered, except frame dwellings, all the walls or partitions forming interior light or vent shafts, shall be built in accordance with sections 72 and 74 of this Code. The walls of all light or vent shafts whether exterior or interior hereafter erected, shall be carried up not less than three feet above the level of the roof and the walls shall be coped as other parapet walls. When the shaft is covered by a ventilating skylight of metal and glass the walls need not be carried more than two feet above the roof. When metal louvres are used for ventilating purposes, the louvres or slats shall be riveted to the metal frame.

(2) Vent shafts not more than twenty square feet in horizontal area in private dwellings may be built of wood studs filled and covered as for dumbwaiter inclosures, provided they do not extend through more than two stories and are carried above the roof, and covered with a ventilating skylight of metal and glass. If of greater area, and more than two stories in height, then to be constructed as per Section 103 of this code.

CHAPTER XIX.

Mansard Roofs, Roofings, Cornices, Gutters, Metal Fronts, Tanks, Pent Houses, Bulkheads and Scuttles, Skylights and Floor Lights.

SECTION 76.

Mansard Roofs.

If mansard or other roofs of like character, having a pitch of over sixty degrees be placed on masonry buildings within fire zone over thirty-six feet six inches high, they shall be constructed of iron or steel frames, and metal lathed on the inside and plastered with two coats of mortar of good material, and if of wood on frame building, shall be filled with fireproof material not less than three inches thick. The outside of all such roofs shall be covered with metal, slate or tile.

Roofings Within the Fire Limits.

The planking and sheathing of the roofs of buildings shall not in any case be extended across the side or party wall thereof. Every building and the tops of every gable and dormer window thereon shall be covered and roofed with brick, tile, slate, tin, copper, iron or plastic slate, asphalt, slag or gravel may be used, provided such roofing shall be composed of not less than five layers of roofing felt, cemented together and finished with not less than ten gallons of coal tar, pitch or asphalt for each one hundred square feet of roof or such other quality of fireproof roofing as the Inspector of Buildings may authorize, and the outside of every gable and dormer window hereafter placed upon any building shall be covered with sheet metal or some other fireproof material. For repairs to existing roofings see section 10.

SECTION 77.

Cornices, Gutters and Metal Fronts.

(1) On all buildings hereafter erected within the fire limits the exterior cornices, inclusive of those on show windows, and gutters, shall be of sheet metal or other fireproof material. All such cornices shall be well secured to the walls with metal anchors, independent of any woodwork. The tops of cornices shall not extend above the tops of the walls to which they are attached.

(2) All exterior wooden cornices or features within the fire limits which by the operation of fire or the elements, require renewal to the extent of one-half, shall be taken down, and, if replaced, shall be constructed of sheet metal or other fireproof material. If not damaged to the extent of one-half, the same may be repaired with the same kind of material of which they were originally constructed.

(3) One story store fronts with show window may be built of wood, if sheathed or ceiled and covered with metal strongly secured, provided suitable fire stops are placed between both adjoining buildings. Metal fronts over one story high shall be framed and constructed of steel forms, all interstices filled with incombustible material, and may be sheathed and bracketed with wood, provided that all wood work is thoroughly covered with sheet metal strongly secured, and effective fire stops against adjoining buildings are provided.

SECTION 78.

Roof Leaders.

All buildings shall be provided with proper metallic leaders for conducting water from the roofs in such manner as shall protect the walls and foundations of said building from injury. In no case shall the water from the said leaders be allowed to flow upon the street or sidewalk but the same shall be conducted by proper pipe below the surface of the sidewalk to the street gutter, or to dry wells made of broken stone or brick.

SECTION 79.

Tanks.

Tanks containing more than five hundred gallons of water or other fluid hereafter placed on any story, or on the roof of any building now or hereafter erected, shall be supported by steel beams of sufficient strength to safely carry the same; and the beams shall rest at both the ends on the sonry walls or on steel girders or iron or steel columns or piers of masonry. Underneath any said tank or on the side near the bottom of the same, there shall be a short pipe or outlet, not less than four inches in diameter, fitted with a suitable valve having a lever or wheel handle to same, so that firemen or others can readily discharge the weight of the fluid contents from the tank, in case of necessity. Such tanks shall be placed where practicable at one corner of a building, and shall not be placed over nor near a line of stairs. Covers on top of water tanks placed on roofs, if of wood, shall be covered with sheet metal. Tanks made of wood shall be coopered with metal hoops round in section. All roof tanks shall be cleaned and inspected semi-annually and kept in proper repair, and the cover on same shall be securely locked.

SECTION 80.

Pent Houses, Bulkheads and Scuttles on Roofs.

(1) Upon the roof of every building more than fifteen feet high there shall be a scuttle or bulkhead, with stairs or substantial iron ladder leading thereto, which shall be easily accessible to all occupants. All non-fireproof scuttles shall be covered on the top and edges with sheet metal or other approved fireproof materials, and shall be at least two feet by three feet.

(2) All bulkheads, including those used as inclosures for tanks, elevators or elevator machinery, and the pent houses and bulkheads of all buildings, more than fifty-nine feet in height, hereafter erected or altered, excepting frame buildings, shall be constructed fireproof in accordance with section 103 of this Code, and covered on all outside surfaces with approved incombustible weatherproof material, including all surfaces and edges of doors and jambs. Where door jambs are blocked out from the fireproofing the space between the jamb and the fireproofing shall be filled in solid with incombustible material, or in lieu of same the back of jamb shall be metal covered.

Where built of studding the studs to be filled with brick or clay blocks set in cement, all exterior surfaces and both sides of doors and jambs to be metal covered.

SECTION 81.

Skylights.

(1) All skylights placed on or in any masonry buildings shall have the frames and sash thereof constructed of metal and glazed. All skylight frames and parts thereof shall be riveted or otherwise securely fastened, in addition to any necessary soldering.

(2) All openings in roofs for the admission of light other than elsewhere provided in this Code over elevator, stair, dumbwaiter shafts and theatre stage roofs, shall have metal frames and sash, glazed with wire glass not less than one-quarter inch thick, or with glass protected above and below with wire screens, of not less than number eight galvanized wire, and not more than one and one-half inch mesh, set in seven-eighth inch channel iron frames, sections to be securely butted together and set in a one and one-quarter inch angle iron outside frame.

(3) All skylights hereafter erected within the fire limits, shall be of metal as above, but without said limits may be of wood.

Skylight and Roof Protection.

(4) If the walls of any building are carried up higher than the roofs of adjoining buildings, it shall be the duty of the owner of the building to be erected or altered, to cause the protection by proper means, of the skylights and roofs of such adjoining buildings until the work of construction has been completed.

(5) Should any owner of any adjoining premises refuse permission to have such roofs and skylights protected, such refusal by said owner shall forthwith be reported in writing to the Inspector of Buildings. Such notice shall relieve the owner of the building in course of construction or alteration from any responsibility for damage done to persons or property on or within the premises affected.

SECTION 82.

Floor Lights.

Floor lights, used for transmission of light to floors below, shall be constructed of metal frames and bars or plates, or reinforced concrete or other approved fire-proof material. Glass shall in no case be less than three-quarters of an inch in thickness, and if any glass in same measures more than sixteen square inches, the glass shall be provided with a mesh of wire, either in the glass or under the same, and the floor lights shall be of the same proportional strength as the floors in which they are placed.

No opening in any floor or roof shall be without a solid covering or an inclosure as provided in this Code, to prevent the communication of fire from story to story, excepting as otherwise provided in this Code, for certain stair-case openings which are not required to be inclosed.

CHAPTER XX.

SECTION 83.

Light and Ventilation.

In any building hereafter erected every sleeping room shall be provided with a window or windows opening directly upon a street, yard or open court. The total window area shall be not less than twelve square feet between stop beads and shall be so arranged that it can be opened to the extent of about one-half its area. Such sleeping room shall be for three-fourths of its area not less than eight feet high from the finished floor to the finished ceiling, and shall be not less than seven feet in width and not less than seventy superficial feet in area, except in hotels, which shall be not less than eighty superficial feet in area.

No sleeping room shall hereafter be placed in a cellar, the ceiling of which is less than two feet above the curb.

In all buildings hereafter erected, provision shall be made for providing natural light in all rooms to be used or occupied by one or more persons.

CHAPTER XXI.

Sheds Over Sidewalks, Outside Scaffolds.

SECTION 84.

Shed Coverings for the Protection of Pedestrians.

Whenever buildings on the street building line shall be erected or increased to over thirty-six feet six inches in height, upon or along any street, the owner erecting or altering such buildings shall cause to be erected and maintained during such construction or alteration, a shed over the sidewalk in front of said premises. The shed shall extend from area line to curb for the full frontage of the building, and the roof thereof shall be strong and tight, so as to protect persons using such streets. The street side of such covered way shall be left open for a height not less than six feet above the curb. Said sheds and enclosures shall be subject to the inspection of the Inspector of Buildings.

SECTION 85.

Outside Scaffolds.

Whenever outside mason scaffolds are used on buildings on the street building line over thirty-six feet six inches in height, whether the same be constructed of poles, thrust-outs or suspended scaffolds, there shall be erected on their outer edges and ends an enclosure of substantial wire netting of not over three inch mesh, or of boards not less than seven-eighths of an inch thick, placed not over one and one-half inches apart, well secured to uprights not less than two inches by four inches fastened at bottom to planks or timbers on the outer edges and ends of the scaffolding and braced by cagonal stays fastened to platform and top of uprights. The said enclosure shall extend three feet above the working platform of the scaffold.

Timber thrust-outs shall be not less than three inches and as much larger as may be required for the load to be carried. They shall be thoroughly braced and secured.

The flooring of all scaffolds shall be tightly constructed with plank. Where poles, put-logs or thrust-out scaffolds are used, the floor and enclosure shall not be removed until a like floor and enclosure are prepared and in position on the story above.

CHAPTER XXII.

Structural Steel and Iron.

SECTION 86.

Steel Columns.

(1) No part of a rolled steel column shall be less than five-sixteenths of an inch thick.

No rolled steel column shall have an unsupported length of more than forty times its least lateral dimensions or diameter except as modified by section 31 of this Code.

(2) The ends of all columns shall be faced to a plane surface at right angles to the axis of the columns, and the connections between them shall be made with splice plates.

When the section of the columns to be spliced are such that splice plates cannot be used, a connection formed of plates and angles may be used, designed to properly distribute the stress.

(3) No material (whether in the body of the column or used as lattice-bar or stay-plate) shall be used in any steel column of less thickness than one-thirty-second of its unsupported width measured between centres of rivets transversely, or one-sixteenth the distance between centres of rivets in the direction of the stress.

(4) Stay-plates are to have not less than four rivets, and are to be spaced so that the ratio of length to the least radius of gyration of the parts connected shall not exceed forty; the distance between nearest rivets of two stay-plates shall in this case be considered as length.

(5) Steel columns shall be made in one, two or three-story lengths, and the materials shall be rolled in one length wherever practicable to avoid intermediate splices.

(6) Where any part of the section of a column projects beyond that of the column above, the differences shall be made up by filling plates secured to column by the proper number of rivets.

(7) Shoes of iron or steel, as described for cast iron columns or built shoes of plates and shapes may be used.

SECTION 87.

Cast Iron Columns.

(1) All cast-iron columns shall be of good workmanship and material. The thickness of metal shall not be less than one-twelfth of the greatest lateral dimensions of cross section, nor less than three-quarters of an inch.

(2) Cast-iron columns shall not have a smaller outside diameter or side than five inches, nor shall they have unsupported length of more than twenty times their least lateral dimension or diameter, except as modified by section 31 of this Code.

(3) Seats and lugs shall be cast with the column and shall be of ample strength, reinforced by fillets and brackets; they shall be not less than one inch in thickness when finished.

(4) All columns shall be machine faced at the ends to a true surface perpendicular to the axis.

(5) Where square or rectangular cast-iron columns are placed one on top of another, the top flange shall project not less than three inches from the outer surfaces of the column on all sides, and the shape and dimensions of bottom flange of the column immediately above shall be the same as those of the top flange of the column below. If the column is round or many sided, the top flange shall project not less than three inches at its least projection from the outer surface of the column, and be square or rectangular in shape, and the bottom flange of the column immediately above the same shall be of the same shape and dimensions as the top flange of the column below. Each flange shall be reinforced with brackets cast centrally on the column, and with fillets on both the bracket and flange. In case the column is placed on the lot line, the flanges on that side only may be omitted, if approved by the Inspector of Buildings.

(6) Between the joints of cast-iron columns placed vertically over each other there shall be a solid steel plate not less than one-half inch in thickness, of the same dimensions as the flanges of the columns, and true on both sides. The columns shall be bolted together with bolts not less than three-quarters of an inch in diameter, passing through the two flanges and the intermediate plate, the bolts being of sufficient length to allow the nuts to be screwed up tightly, and as each column is placed in position the bolts shall also be placed in position and the nuts shall be tightly screwed up. One bolt shall be placed at each corner of the plate and flanges, and the number of bolts shall be never less than four. The holes for these bolts shall be drilled to a template.

(7) Where cast-iron columns are placed vertically one on top of the other, the diameters of sides shall not be decreased more than one inch for each story.

(8) If the core of a column below a joint is larger than steel, iron, blue stone or granite template so designed as to properly distribute the load over the masonry, excepting that for beams not exceeding six inches in depth, placed, not more than thirty inches on centres, no templates shall be required.

SECTION 92.

Framing and Connecting Structural Work.

(1) Steel girders, columns, beams, trusses and other steel work of floors and roofs shall be well and firmly connected together, and to the walls.

(2) All beams framed into and supported by other beams or girders shall be connected thereto either by angles or knees of a proper size and thickness, and have sufficient bolts or rivets in both legs of each connecting angle to transmit the entire weight or load coming on the beam to the supporting beam or girder; or a seat sufficiently strong to carry the full load with a side angle or knee to hold the beam in place may be used.

(3) In no case shall the shearing value of the bolts or rivets or the bearing value of the connection angles, provided for in section 27 of this code, be exceeded.

SECTION 93.

Riveting of Structural Steel.

(1) The distance from centre of a rivet hole to the edge of the material shall be not less than—

⅝ of an inch for ½ inch rivets.
1 inch for ⅝ inch rivets.
1¼ inches for ¾ inch rivets.
1½ inches for ⅞ inch rivets.
1¾ inches for 1 inch rivets.

Wherever possible the distance shall be equal to two diameters.

(2) All rivets, where practicable, shall be machine driven. Rivets shall be proportioned and placed to suit the stresses. The pitch of rivets shall never be less than three diameters of the rivet, nor more than six inches. In the direction of the stress it shall not exceed sixteen times the least thickness of the outside member. At right angles to the stress it shall not exceed thirty-two times the least thickness of the outside member.

(3) All holes shall be punched accurately, so that, upon assembling, a cold rivet will enter the hole without straining the material by drifting. Occasional slight errors shall be corrected by reaming.

(4) The rivets shall fill the holes completely; the heads shall be hemispherical and concentric with the axis of the rivet.

(5) Wherever required gussets shall be provided of sufficient thickness and size to accommodate the number of rivets necessary to make a connection.

SECTION 94.

Bolting of Structural Steel.

(1) Where riveting is not practicable, connections may be made by bolts, which shall be of wrought iron or mild steel, with United States standard threads. The threads shall be full and clean, the nut shall be truly concentric with the bolt, and the thread shall be of sufficient length to allow the nut to be screwed up tightly.

(2) When bolts go through bevel flanges, bevel washers to match shall be used so that head and nut of bolt are parallel.

(3) When bolts are used for suspenders, the working stresses shall be reduced for steel to twelve thousand pounds per square inch of net area, and the load shall be transmitted into the head or nut by washers, distributing the pressure evenly over the entire surface of the same.

SECTION 95.

Trusses.

(1) Trusses shall be so designed that the stresses in each member can be calculated.

(2) All trusses shall be held rigidly in position by efficient systems of lateral and sway bracing, struts being spaced so that the maximum limit of length to least radius of gyration, established in Section 21 of this code, is not exceeded.

(3) Any member of a truss subjected to transverse stress, in addition to direct tension or compression, shall have such stresses added to the direct stresses coming on the member, and the sum of these stresses shall not exceed the working stresses stated in this code.

SECTION 96.

Riveted Steel Trusses.

(1) For tension members the actual net area only, after deducting rivet holes, one-eighth inch larger than the rivets, shall be considered as resisting the stress.

(2) The number of rivets shall be determined as prescribed in Sections 27 and 93 of this code.

(3) If the axes of two adjoining members do not intersect within the line of chords, sufficient area shall be added to the chords to take up the bending stresses, or the web members shall be connected by plates so arranged that the axes of the web members prolonged will intersect on the centre of gravity of the chord.

(4) No bolts shall be used in the connection of riveted trusses, excepting when riveting is impracticable, and then the holes shall be drilled or reamed.

SECTION 97.

Steel Pin-Connected Trusses.

(1) All compression members in pin-connected trusses shall be proportioned, using seventy-five per centum of the permissible working stress for columns. The heads of all eye-bars shall be made by upsetting or forging. No weld will be allowed in the body of the bar. Steel eye-bars shall be annealed. Bars shall be straight before boring.

(2) All pin-holes shall be bored true and at right angles to the axis of the members, and must fit the pin within one-thirty-second of an inch. The distance of pin-holes from centre to centre for corresponding members shall be alike, so that when piled upon one another pins will pass through both ends without forcing. Eyes and screw-ends shall be so proportioned that upon test to destruction fracture will take place in the body of the member. All pins shall be accurately turned.

(3) Pin-plates shall be provided wherever necessary to reduce the stresses prescribed in this code. These pin-plates shall be connected to the members by rivets of sufficient size and by number to transmit the stresses without exceeding the allowable working stresses.

(4) All rivets in members of pin-connected trusses shall be machine-driven. All rivets in pin-plates which are necessary to transmit stress shall be also machine driven.

(5) The main connection of members shall be made by pins. Other connections may be made by rivets. If there is a combination of riveted and pin-connected members in one truss these members shall comply with the requirements for pin-connected trusses; but the riveting shall comply with the requirements of Section 96 of this code.

SECTION 98.

Painting of Metal Structural Work.

(1) Where surfaces in riveted work come in contact with each other, they shall be painted before assembling.

(2) Structural metal work shall not be painted when it is to be thoroughly imbedded in concrete or cement grout, but when surfaces in riveted work come in contact with each other, they shall be oiled with boiled linseed oil.

(3) All metal structural work that is not to be thoroughly imbedded in concrete or cement grout shall be cleaned of all scales, dust, dirt and rust, and thoroughly coated with at least one coat of suitable paint; after erection all such work shall be painted at least one additional coat, of a different shade.

(4) Cast-iron columns shall not be painted or covered until after inspection by the Bureau of Buildings.

(5) All iron or steel used under water shall be imbedded in concrete.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Fireproofing and Fireproof Buildings, Floors, Fire Proofing Columns, Girders, Etc., and Fire Proof Partitions.

SECTION 99.

Skeleton Construction.

(1) Columns built in walls and protection of Wall Columns and Girders.—Where metal columns are used to support steel girders carrying enclosure walls, or where columns are built in walls and used to support floors only for skeleton structures, the said columns shall be of cast-iron or rolled steel, computed as per section 27 of this code, and shall be protected on their exposed outer and inner surfaces against fire by having a casing of masonry not less than eight inches in thickness on the outer surfaces, and not less than four inches in thickness on the inner surfaces, and all bonded into brickwork of the enclosure walls.

(2) Metal ties between columns used to support floors, at each story, shall not be imbedded in the masonry but shall be set clear of it on the interior.

(3) The exposed sides of the steel girders shall be similarly covered in with masonry not less than four inches in thickness on the outer surfaces and tied and bonded, but the extreme outer edge of the flanges of beams, or plates or angles connected to the beams, may project to within two inches of the outside surface of the brick casing.

(4) The inside surfaces of girders shall be similarly covered with brickwork, or if projecting inside of the wall, they shall be protected by metal lathing as specified in section 103, terra-cotta, concrete of other standard fire-proof material.

(5) Girders for the support of the inclosure walls of skeleton structure shall be placed at the floor line of each story.

(6) Buildings constructed of reinforced concrete posts and girders, with exterior walls of clay blocks or brick, otherwise throughout as per clause one of section 100, shall be deemed of skeleton fireproof construction.

SECTION 100.

Fireproof Buildings.

(1) Every fireproof building hereafter erected or altered shall be constructed with walls of brick, stone, hard clay blocks or Portland cement concrete, in which wood beams or lintels shall not be placed, and in which the floor and roofs shall be constructed of incombustible materials as provided for in sections 17, 99, 104 and 105 of this code.

(2) The stairs and staircase landings shall be constructed of brick, stone, Portland cement concrete, iron or steel, or a combination of these materials.

(3) No woodwork or other combustible material shall be used in any of the roofs, partitions furring or ceilings in any such fireproof buildings except rough frames for interior doors and windows and ground bucks for fastening trim in place, nailing blocks and wood sleepers for nailing wood flooring where it is used. When the height of the building does not exceed one hundred feet, the doors and windows and their frames and trims, casings, and interior finish when filled solidly at the back with fireproof material, and the floor boards and sleepers directly thereunder may be of wood, but the entire space between the top of the fireproof floor, arch or slab, and any combustible floor finish shall be solidly filled with cement concrete mixed in the proportions of one of cement to ten of steam boiler anthracite cinders or other incombustible aggregates.

(4) In all fireproof buildings hereafter erected, when the height exceeds one hundred feet, the floor surfaces shall be finished with stone, cement, tiling, rock asphalt or similar incombustible materials in which a wood nailing strip not exceeding three inches in width and one inch thick may be imbedded. All outside window frames and sash shall be of metal or of wood covered with metal. Inside window frames, sash and doors, trim and other interior finish shall be of metal, or of wood covered with metal, or of concrete or other approved incombustible material. All window frames made of wood covered with metal before being installed, shall be standard and approved.

Floors.

(1) The fireproof floor and roof construction between the steel beams may be in the form of flat arches or slabs. All floors shall be designed to safely carry the loads to be imposed. All arches to have a rise of not less than one inch for each foot of span between the beams.

(2) Arches of Portland cement concrete shall be not less than three and one-half inches in thickness at the crown for spans of five feet or less, and eight inches for spans over five feet. The concrete shall consist of one part Portland cement, two and one-half parts of sand, and five parts of crushed stone, gravel, clean steam boiler cinders, slag, brick or tile passing through a one-inch ring. These arches shall in all cases be reinforced with steel rods or bars, reticulated or meshed steel or similar steel metal weighing not less than one-third pound per square foot of floor area. Such reinforcing metal shall in no case be less than three-quarters of an inch from the lower side of the concrete arch. If the reinforced metal is in the form of rods or bars, they shall be spaced not over three times the minimum thickness of the arch, centre to centre, and if in the form of mesh it shall have no openings smaller than twenty-four square inches.

(3) Brick arches shall have a thickness not less than four inches for spans of five feet or less, and eight inches for spans over five feet and up to eight feet. Such brick arches shall be composed of good, hard, common or hollow brick or porous terra cotta without cellular spaces, the brick to be laid on a line on the centres and properly and solidly bonded. Each longitudinal line of brick shall break joints with the adjoining lines for eight (8) inch arches. The arches shall spring from suitably designed solid skewbacks made of the same material as the arches, and be properly keyed. The brick shall be well wetted before laying, and the joints filled in solid with Portland cement mortar consisting of one part cement and three parts of sand.

(4) Hollow tile arches of hard burnt clay, semi-porous or porous terra cotta, which shall be of uniform density and hardness, shall have sufficient depth between the top and bottom surfaces to carry the load to be imposed thereon without stressing the material beyond its safe working load, but such depth shall in no case be less than six inches for spans of five feet or less, and eight inches for greater spans and all blocks shall have at least two cellular spaces in said minimum depth.

The shells and webs of all arch blocks shall be not less than three-quarters of an inch thick, with rounded fillets at all interior intersections. Skewbacks of side construction shall be used with all forms of hollow tile arches. They shall be of such form and section as to accurately fit the beams and properly receive the thrust of the arches, and shall have shells and webs not less than three-quarters of an inch thick. Such arches shall be laid in Portland cement mortar and shall be properly keyed. The shells and webs of all end construction arch blocks shall abut one against the other.

(5) Flat slabs of reinforced Portland cement concrete shall consist of the same materials, be mixed and constructed in the same manner as specified in paragraph two of this section, as to metal. If made with crushed stone or gravel no slab shall be less than three and one-half inches in thickness. If made with cinders, broken slag or brick no slab shall be less than four inches in thickness.

General conditions of making and using to be as per Section 22 of this Code.

SECTION 102.

Fireproofing Columns, Girders, Etc.

(1) All metal structural members supporting loads or resisting strains, and which are not covered by brick or stone masonry to a thickness of four inches shall be fireproofed as follows: The columns and girders shall be protected by concrete as defined for floors filled solidly around them two inches thick, or of brick set solidly in Portland cement mortar. The extreme outer edges of lugs, brackets and similar supporting metal may project to within one inch of the outer surface of the protection. Columns may also be protected by hollow tile blocks, not less than one inch in thickness, with the space between the blocks and the column filled solidly with Portland cement concrete. The concrete and the blocks shall be not less than two inches in thickness and anchored with interior steel anchors.

(2) Columns may also be protected by a layer of metal lath and concrete and plaster as follows: The columns shall be wrapped with metal lath weighing not less than five ounces per square foot, corrugated or with metal furring so as to offset the metal lath at least two inches from the surface to be protected. Portland cement concrete same as for floors shall then be applied, filling the space solidly between the metal lath and column. The brown coat and the finishing coat may be of similar material as is used in the finishing of other portions of the building. All protective column lathing to extend from floor to ceiling.

(3) Where the fireproofing of columns is exposed to damage from the trucking or handling of merchandise, such fireproofing shall be jacketed on the outside for a height of not less than four feet from the floor with a suitable metal covering.

(4) The members of all metal trusses and the webs of all floor beams projecting above or below the arches shall be protected by not less than two inches of the arch material. The soffits of all floor beams shall be protected by not less than two inches of the arch material. Said soffit protection, if of concrete, shall be secured in place by interior steel anchors, as defined below, or by meshed metal or metal in other forms weighing not less than one-half pound per square foot; the said metal shall be anchored by extending the ends not less than two inches in the fireproof protection of the webs above. If of tile the protection shall consist of lugs forming part of the skewbacks, and extending around the lower flange of the beam and meeting at the centre; or of tile slabs held in position by suitable lugs projecting from the skewbacks; or the soffits of floor beams may be protected with metal lath and plaster to a thickness of one inch as follows: The metal lath shall weigh not less than five ounces per square foot, and shall be wrapped around the soffits of the beams so as to be offset three-quarters of an inch from the surface to be protected, with the ends of the lath secured by extending them at least two inches in the concrete protection of the webs above. Plaster gauged with twenty-five per cent. of Portland cement shall then be applied to a thickness of one inch in a single coat, filling the space solidly between the metal lath and the soffit of the beam. No exposed metal clips or clamps of any character shall be used to support the soffit protection. Lintels and other lesser structural members supported by or resting in structure shall be protected in the same manner as the soffits of floor beams.

(5) The fireproof protection of all the above structural members shall be securely held in position by suitably designed interior steel anchors hooked around the flanges or angles of the structural members and spaced not over sixteen inches apart, horizontally and vertically. These anchors to be made with hooked ends from steel stock weighing not less than one-half of a pound per linear foot and extending to within one inch of the outside surface of the concrete or brick protection.

SECTION 103.

Fireproof Partitions.

(1) All hall and permanent partitions between rooms in fireproof buildings shall be built of fireproof material. The heights in feet to which partitions of different materials may be built, and their corresponding minimum thickness, shall be as follows:

	Feet.
Brick, 8 inches thick	30
Brick, 3½ inches thick	18
Reinforced concrete, 3 inches thick	30
Reinforced concrete, 4 inches thick	24
Reinforced concrete, 2 inches thick	20
Metal lath and plaster, 4 inches thick	20
Metal lath and plaster, 2 inches thick	12
Hollow blocks of hard burned clay or porous terra cotta, concrete or other incombustible compositions, 6 inches thick	20
Hollow block or hard burned clay or porous terra cotta, concrete, or other incombustible compositions, 4 inches thick	16

(2) Hollow blocks for partitions shall not be less than four inches in thickness, un-reinforced. If reinforced by metal studs and ties, they shall not be less than two inches in thickness, to be approved by the Inspector.

(3) No reinforcing metal or studs of all concrete or other partitions shall be rigidly secured or anchored at the top and bottom to incombustible material. Metal studding for all metal lath and reinforced concrete partitions shall average not less than one-half pound in weight for each square foot of partition surface, and shall not be spaced over sixteen inches apart. Metal lath for partitions shall weigh not less than five ounces per square foot.

(4) Fireproof partitions shall in all cases have sufficient bearing on the fireproof floors, supporting steel, or other incombustible material, to carry the weight of said partitions. No weight shall in no case be supported by wood sleepers or floor boards. In buildings where flat metal lath and plaster ceilings are employed the partitions shall be built only to the under side of the metal lath ceilings.

(5) All brick and block partitions shall be built with Portland cement mortar.

(6) The sides and top of interior door and window openings may be of wood frames sufficient for securing the wood jambs and trim thereto, but the wall material over such openings must be wholly supported by arch or metal of such capacity and bearings as may be approved by the Inspector of Buildings.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Reinforced Concrete Construction, and* Tests of Fire Proofing.

SECTION 104.

Reinforced Concrete.

(1) The term reinforced concrete shall mean an approved concrete mixture reinforced by steel of any suitable shape. The concrete is to be considered only for compression and shearing stresses, and is not to be figured for tension.

The steel is to be considered for tension and also to assist the concrete in shear and compression where necessary.

(2) Concrete to be reinforced shall consist of one part of Portland cement, two parts of sand, and five parts of broken stone or gravel, materials to be measured, and shall be what is usually known as a "wet" mixture.

(3) All sand used shall be as per section 18, and all cement used shall be Portland cement as per section 20, the manner of working and handling, the construction of forms and centering and the removal of same as per section 22, all steel as per section 27, and all floors as per section 101 of this code.

(4) Buildings of reinforced concrete, when designed and built in accordance with the requirements of this section shall be deemed to be fire proof construction.

SECTION 105.

Working Stresses and Requirements.

(1) Reinforced concrete shall be so designed that the stresses in the concrete and the steel shall not exceed the following limits:

	Pounds
Extreme fibre stress on concrete in compression, per square inch	700
Shearing stress in concrete, per square inch	75
Concrete in direct compression, per square inch	500
Tensile strength in steel, per square inch	16,000
Shearing stress in steel, per square inch, mild steel	10,000
Hard steel	12,000

(2) The ration of the moduli of elasticity of concrete and steel shall be taken as one to fifteen.

(3) The following assumptions shall guide in the determination of the bending moments due to the external forces. Beams and girders can be figured as continuous to the extent of WL-10 in the middle, if the negative moment be taken care of by steel. This applies only to cases where the rods can be continued into the adjacent beams or girders far enough beyond the point of maximum negative moment to properly distribute the stressed to the concrete. Floor slabs, when constructed continuously and when provided with reinforcement at top of plate over the supports, may be treated as continuous beams, the bending moment for uniformly distributed loads being taken at not less than WL-10 the bending moment may be taken at WL-24 in the case of rectangular floor slabs which are reinforced in both directions and supported on all sides, where the sides are not over sixteen feet average and do not differ more than fifty per cent. in length, this moment can be considered as existing in the middle third. Proper reduction can be made elsewhere.

(4) The moment of resistance of any reinforced concrete construction under transverse loads shall be determined by formulae based on the following assumptions:

(a) The bond between the concrete and steel is sufficient to make the two materials act together as a homogeneous solid.

(b) The stress in any fibre is directly proportionate to the distance of that fibre from the neutral axis.

(c) The modulus of elasticity of the concrete remains constant within the limits of the working stresses fixed in this section.

(5) No allowance shall be made for the tensile strength of concrete.

(6) When the shearing stresses developed in any part of a reinforced concrete construction exceed the safe working strength of concrete, as fixed in this section, a sufficient amount of steel shall be introduced in such a position that the deficiency in the resistance to sheer is overcome. In any case shearing bars must be provided with a maximum spacing equal to the working depth of the beam or girder.

(7) When the safe limit of adhesion between the concrete and steel is exceeded, provision must be made for transmitting the stresses from the one material to the other.

(8) All reinforcement in beams, girders and columns shall be so secured that there can be no displacement of the same in the concrete.

(9) Where girders or beams are connected with columns, the reinforcement of the girder shall penetrate the column and be secured to it.

(10) All reinforcement shall be completely encased in concrete. The thickness of concrete outside of the reinforcement shall not be less than three-quarters of an inch in floor slabs, partitions or walls, not less than one and one-half inches for all beams, girders and columns, and not less than three inches in footings.

(11) Reinforced concrete may be used for columns in which the ratio of length to least side or diameter does not exceed fifteen; but in no case shall the effective cross section of the column be less than sixty-four square inches.

(12) All reinforced concrete columns shall have longitudinal reinforcements of a total cross sectional area equal to at least one per cent. of the effective cross sectional area of the concrete; provided, however, that the total sectional area of the reinforcing steel shall not be less than one square inch, and over four rods or bar be of less diameter or smaller dimensions than one-half inch. Flat steel may be used if of equivalent area and spacing. All longitudinal reinforcement rods shall be tied together by wire at least one-quarter of an inch in diameter at intervals not exceeding the diameter of columns. All vertical reinforcing rods or bars shall extend upward or downward into the column above or below, lapping the reinforcement of the column above or below to the extent of at least thirty diameters of the rod or bar of the larger section. Rods for compression only to have suitable sleeves at joints.

(13) Reinforced concrete columns may be stressed to five hundred pounds per square inch of the effective area.

(14) Vertically reinforced columns must not exceed an average stress of 800 pounds per square inch on the cross section.

(15) Spandrel walls supported entirely on reinforced concrete or steel girders shall have a minimum thickness of six inches, and shall be reinforced with not less than one half pound of steel per square foot of wall.

SECTION 106.

Tests of Fire Proofing.

(1) Whenever required by the Inspector of Buildings, the contractor, at his own expense, shall make load or other tests to determine the efficiency of the fireproofing. The floors shall, in all cases, develop a strength in thirty days equal to five times the live load for which the supporting steel work is designed. The loads shall consist of such materials and be so placed as to form a uniformly distributed load over the entire area to be tested and without arching and transmitting the loads to the supports, and in case sand or similar material is to be used for loading, it shall be in bulk and loose and not in sacks or packages of any kind. The section to be tested shall be not less than a square, one side of which is equal to the distance between the beams; the test section shall be cut apart from the rest of the flooring before the load is applied. Fireproof floors failing to develop the strength herein required shall be condemned by the Inspector of Buildings and shall be replaced by the contractor by floors of the required strength.

(2) On all reinforced construction the contractor shall be prepared whenever required by the Inspector of Buildings, to make load tests, at his own expense, on any portion of a reinforced concrete construction within thirty days after completion of that portion. The test shall show that the construction will sustain a load twice the live load for which it was designed without a deflection of more than one-thirtieth of an inch per foot of span. Tested portions failing to develop the strength herein required shall be replaced by members of the required strength.

(3) In case it is desired to use other or new materials, or employ same in a different manner than herein provided for fireproof construction, the manufacturer or representative thereof shall, at his own expense, make a comparative fire and water test under the direction of the Inspector of Buildings, side by side with one of the approved methods herein described, or obtain dispensation as per section 25 of this code.

CHAPTER XXV.

Timber Construction and* Woodwork.

SECTION 107.

Wood Beams.

(1) Every wood beam and timber in any wall of every building built of stone, brick or concrete, shall be separated from any other beam or timber in the wall by at least four inches of solid masonry. Such separation may be obtained by corbeling or by staggering the beams.

(2) Minimum Thickness for Wood Beams.—No wood floor beams or wood roof beams used in any building, hereafter erected, shall be of a less thickness than two inches.

(3) Trimmer and Header Beams.—All wood trimmer and header beams shall be proportioned to carry with safety the loads they are intended to sustain and must be properly framed; if over four feet in length they must be hung in suitable metal stirrups.

(4) Bearings for Wood Beams—Every wood beam, except header and tail beams, shall rest at each end four inches in a wall, or on a girder, corbel, beam or column.

(5) Bevel Ends for Wood Beams.—The ends of all wood floor and roof beams, where they rest on brick walls, shall be cut to a bevel of three inches on their depth.

(6) Ends of Beams Not to Rest on Stud Partitions.—In no case shall either end of a floor or roof beam be supported on non-continuous stud partitions, except in frame buildings.

(7) Cross Bridging for Beams.—All wood floor and wood roof beams shall be properly bridged with cross bridging, and the distance between bridging or between bridging and wall shall not exceed eight feet.

(8) Beams Near Flues.—All wood beams shall be trimmed away from all flues and chimneys whether the same be a smoke, air or any other flue or chimney. The trimmer beam shall be not less than eight inches from the inside face of a flue and four inches from the outside of a chimney breast, and the header beam not less than two inches from the outside face of the brick or stone work of the same.

Except that for the smoke flues of boilers and furnaces where the brick work is required to be more than eight inches in thickness, the trimmer beam shall be not less than four inches from the outside of the brick work and the header beam shall be not less than four inches from the outside of the brick-work.

(9) The header beam, carrying the tail beams of a floor and supporting the trimmer arch in front of a fireplace shall be not less than twenty inches from face of the chimney breast.

(10) The safe carrying capacity of timber beams shall be determined by their resistance to bending and shear in accordance with the unit stresses fixed by section 20 of this code.

(11) If outside sheathing is omitted on any wood frame construction, provision must be made for safe proportional increase of timber sizes and bracing to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Buildings.

SECTION 108.

Anchors and Straps For Wood Beams and Girders.

(1) Each tier of beams shall be anchored to the side, front, rear or party walls at intervals of not more than six feet apart, with good strong steel or wrought iron anchors of not less than one and one-half inches by one-quarter of an inch in size, well fastened to the side of the beams by three or more nails made of wrought iron at least one-quarter of an inch in diameter. Said anchors shall extend into brick work eight inches.

(2) Girder Straps and Anchors.—Where the beams are supported by girders, such girders shall be anchored to the walls and fastened to each other by suitable iron or steel straps.

(3) Beam Straps—The ends of wood beams resting upon girders shall be abutted together end to end and strapped by steel or wrought iron straps of the same size as the wall anchors, and shall be fastened in the same manner as said wall anchors. Or they may lap each other at least twelve inches and be well spiked together or bolted together where lapped.

(4) Pier Anchors.—Every pier and wall front or rear, shall be well anchored to the beams in each story, with the same size anchors as are required for side walls, which anchor shall hook over the third beam.

SECTION 109.

Wood Columns and Posts and Timbers for Trusses.

(1) All timber columns and posts shall be squared at the ends perpendicular to their axes.

(2) To prevent the unit stresses from exceeding those fixed in this code, timber or iron cap plates or pintles and base plates shall be provided.

(3) Where the cap plate of a wood column or post supports a wood girder, and directly on top of the girder is an iron or steel base plate of the wood column or post above, the said cap and base plates shall be connected by pintles of metal passing through the girder; these pintles may be of round bars of iron one inch in size and not less than four in number, or a hollow cast-iron pintle of proper thickness may be used, in all cases adequate to transmit the load.

(4) Additional iron or steel check plates shall be placed between the cap and base plates, and bolted to the girders when required to transmit the loads with safety.

(5) Timber Trusses.—When compression or tension members of trusses are of timber they shall be stressed in the direction of the fibre only.

The working stress in timber struts of pin-connected trusses shall not exceed seventy-five per centum of the working stresses established in section 33 of this Code.

(6) Bolts and Washers for Timber Work.—All bolts used in connection with timber and wood beam work shall be provided with washers of such proportions as will reduce the compression on the wood at the face of the washer to that allowed in section 30 of this Code, supposing the bolt to be strained to its limit.

SECTION 110.

Stud Partitions.

(1) In all buildings where stud partitions are set at right angles to wood floor beams and rest directly over each other, they shall run down between the floor beams and rest on the top plate of the partition below, and shall have the studding filled in solid between the uprights, to the depth of the floor beams, with approved incombustible materials.

(2) All pipe and wire lines to be so laid out as to require a minimum cutting of supporting members and beams of wood. Special framing and reinforcement to be done as hereafter directed by the Inspector of Buildings.

SECTION 111.

Wainscoting.

When wainscoting is used in buildings hereafter erected or altered, the surface of the walls or partitions behind said wainscoting shall be plastered flush with the grounds and down to the floor line.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Frame Structures; Builders' Huts, Stagings, Sheds, Outhouses, Fences, Signs, Piazzas, Balconies, Bay Windows, Spires and Towers.

SECTION 112.

Frame Structures Within the City Limits Only Under Permit From the Inspector.

(1) Temporary Structures*—Builders' Huts. Temporary one-story frame buildings within the city limits may be erected for the use of builders within the limits of lots whereon or adjacent to where buildings are in course of erection, said structure to be used only for the purpose specified.

(2) Stagings—Temporary stagings, platforms or floorings for seating or standing purposes may be constructed of wood, upon approval as to location by the Mayor and filing of plans and permit from Inspector.

(3) All temporary structures of wood are to be demolished or removed by their owners upon the completion of time and purpose specified.

(4) Permanent Structures—Sheds.—Frame sheds open on at least one side, not more than fifteen (15) feet in height nor more than two thousand five hundred (2,500) square feet in area, no fence being used as any side, entirely covered with incombustible material, may be built within the fire limits.

(5) Foundations for sheds only, of brick or concrete piers, or chestnut posts, with footing course three (3) feet below grade, computed according to this Code, may be approved by the Inspector, provided that structure is enclosed to grade.

(6) Outhouses.—To be used only for privies, wood or coal houses, not exceeding ten (10) feet in height, nor fifty (50) square feet in area, may be built within the fire limits.

(7) Fences of wood shall not be over ten (10) feet in total height.

(8) Signs of wood shall not be erected over two (2) feet high on any building.

(9) Piazzas or balconies of wood, not to extend in height more than three (3) feet above the second story floor beams, may be erected upon any dwelling house.

(10) One wooden bay or oriel window may be built of wood upon any face or front of any building, if but one (1) story in height and not more than one-third of the width of said face or front.

If but two stories in height and of said proportionate width, it may be constructed of wood but shall be faced with metal or other approved incombustible material.

If of any greater height or dimensions, or more than one is desired on any one side or face, it or they shall be wholly built of fire proof material.

(11) For all roofings of above structures in entire fire zone see section 10.

(12) Wood spires or towers less than sixty (60) feet in height shall be roofed with approved incombustible material, and if over sixty (60) feet in height shall be of fire proof material throughout.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Frame Buildings Within the Fire Limits

SECTION 113.

Frame Buildings Raised, Lowered or Altered.

(1) Within the fire limits it shall not be permitted to raise any frame building to a height in excess of thirty-six feet six inches, and when so raised it shall comply with all the requirements and provisions of this code relating to frame buildings and the stresses in the material thereof shall be kept within the safe limit of stresses prescribed in Section 30.

(2) Within the fire limits, buildings must exceed twenty-five feet in height to the peak of the main roof before raising. This shall not prohibit, however, increasing one-story and basement frame dwelling houses one additional story in height. In increasing the height of any such building the entire area which the building covers may be raised to a uniform height. An extension of less width than the main building may be increased to the full width of the main building, which may also be extended on the front or rear, or both, all new outside walls to be of masonry, said extensions not to be higher than the roof or peak of original frame structure.

(3) A frame building more than two stories in height now or formerly used as a residence building, hereafter raised or altered shall be used only as a residence or for stores on the first floor. If any such building shall have been built before the street upon which it is located is graded, or if the grade is altered, such building may be raised or lowered to meet the requirements of the grade.

(4) Frame Buildings Damaged Within the Fire Limits.—Every wood or frame building with a brick or other front, which may hereafter be damaged to an amount not greater than one-half of the immediately previous value thereof, exclusive of the value of the foundation, at the time of such damage, may be repaired or restored, provided that the original height and area of the same is not increased. But if such damage shall amount to more than one-half of such value, exclusive of the value of the foundation, then such building shall not be repaired or restored, but shall be demolished.

(5) The immediately previous value of such building and the proportion of such damage, the extent of re-use of any wall or walls or parts without repair, and the amount of repairs or restoration may be determined by the Inspector, subject to appeal as hereinafter provided. Upon the written demand of the owner or the agent of said premises, to be sent to the Common Council; they shall appoint one appraiser and one appraiser shall be selected by said owner or owners. They shall at once examine the said premises, and if they agree their decision to be stated separately in writing and sworn to, and shall be final and conclusive. Should these two appraisers not agree, they shall select a third appraiser or umpire to take part in such impartial and disinterested examination and verdict. The joint decision of any two of them to be stated separately in writing and sworn to and shall be final and conclusive. Each appraiser is to receive ten ($10) dollars for such service, to be paid by the owner or owners of said building before said report is filed, and such repairs or alterations to the extent necessary to make safe as directed by the Inspector of Buildings, shall be made or begun until said report is filed and permit obtained.

(6) Fire Inquests.—Said report is also to include a separate detailed statement in writing as to the causes or probable causes of damage, and of the general or special conditions making favorable thereto in each case, and may also include the suggestions of the appraisers as to effective future remedy and prevention. These reports are to be kept carefully filed by the Inspector of Buildings in a special docket to be known as the Fire Inquest docket.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

SECTION 114.

Frame Buildings Outside of Fire Limits.

(1) The provisions of this section shall apply to frame or other buildings hereafter erected outside the fire limits, as the same are now or hereafter be established in portions of the City of Plainfield, where streets are now or where they may hereafter be legally established.

(2) Frame buildings may be altered, extended, raised or repaired, provided the new portions fully comply with all the provisions of this Code, and all new buildings are to comply with requirements of construction hereinbefore given, also all plumbing, electric and other Municipal ordinances and regulations.

(3) Whenever frame construction is of wood, even if partially or wholly covered with veneer of brick or stone it shall be deemed a frame building.

(4) No frame building shall be built or occupied as a stable, workshop or manufactory if over thirty (30) feet in height above the foundation.

(5) Frame buildings hereafter erected or altered shall not exceed forty-five feet in height nor more than three stories and roof.

(6) Frame dwellings shall not exceed four thousand square feet in area. Frame stables shall not exceed two thousand square feet in area.

(7) No other frame building shall exceed 5,000 square feet in area.

(8) The combined area of frame buildings, sheds and outhouses located on any lot shall not exceed eighty per cent. of the lot area. In no case shall a frame building be erected within three feet of the side or rear line of a lot, unless the nearest wall be built of brick or other fireproof material.

(9) When stud partitions separate frame buildings the division studding shall be built with all sills, posts, girts, and filled solidly with brick-work or other approved fireproof materials, extending from the sill to the under side of the roof boards. All openings between outside and partition studding shall be filled tightly with not less than seven-eighths inch (⅞") material. Also see Section 110.

(10) The ends of floor and roof beams shall be so separated that four inches of brick or concrete shall be between the beams where they rest on the wall. Also see Section 107.

(11) Posts of locust or other hard wood and wood girders may be used instead of brick for end and partitions, in cellars of frame buildings.

(12) All frame or wood buildings, exceeding a height of fifteen (15) feet shall be not less than four inches thick plates and rafters of suitable size and properly framed and braced with suitable studs, or planks set at a proper distance apart. Floor beams and rafters shall not be less than two inches in thickness.

(13) For all buildings included in this Section all stress in materials shall be computed as per Section 27 of this Code.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Places of Public Amusement and Assemblage.

SECTION 115.

Requirements for Public Safety.

(1) In all buildings or parts of buildings of Classes A, B, E and F, and also hotels and clubhouses, occupied for purposes of assembly, amusement or instruction, other than theatres and opera houses, which are provided for in section 116, where large numbers of people may congregate, the halls, doors, stairways, seats, passageways and aisles, and all lighting and heating appliances and apparatus shall be arranged as the Inspector of Buildings shall direct to facilitate egress in case of fire or accident, and to afford adequate security.

(2) Buildings or parts of buildings of Classes C and D, except hotels and clubhouses, shall be not occupied as places of public amusement or assemblage, and the Inspector of Buildings shall have the power to vacate such buildings for violating this provision.

(3) All aisles and passageways in buildings or parts of buildings used for public and private amusement or assemblage shall be kept free from campstools, chairs, sofas and all other obstructions, and no person shall be allowed to stand in or occupy any of said aisles or passageways during any performance or service, exhibition, lecture, ball, concert or any public assemblage. The Inspector of Buildings may at any time serve a written or printed notice upon the owner or lessee or manager of any of said buildings, directing any act or thing to be done or provided in or about the said buildings, and the several accessories and appliances therewith connected, such as halls, doors, stairs, windows, seats, aisles, fire walls and fire apparatus, and fire escapes, as he may deem necessary.

Theatres and Places of Public Amusement.

(1) Every theatre or opera house or other building intended to be used for theatrical or operatic purposes or for public entertainment of any kind, hereafter erected for the accommodation of more than three hundred persons, shall be built to comply with the requirements of this section. No building which, at the time of the passage of this Code, is not in actual use for theatrical or operatic purposes, and no building hereafter erected not in conformity with the requirements of this section, shall be used for theatrical or operatic purposes, or for public entertainments of any kind, until the same shall have been made to conform to the requirements of this section. And no building hereinafter described shall be opened to the public for theatrical or operatic purposes, or for public entertainments of any kind, until the Inspector of Buildings shall have approved the same in writing as conforming to the requirements of this section.

(2) Every such building shall have at least one front on the street, and in such front there shall be a foyer or vestibule not less than twenty-five feet in width.

(3) In addition to the aforesaid entrances and exits on the street, there shall be reserved for service in case of emergency an open court on the side not bordering on the street, where said building is located on a corner lot; and on both sides of said building, where there is but one frontage on the street as hereinafter provided. The width of such open court or courts shall not be less than eight feet where the seating capacity is more than three hundred and not more than eight hundred people, and ten feet in width where the seating capacity is more than eight hundred people.

Said open court or courts shall begin on a line with the proscenium wall and shall extend the length of the auditorium proper.

Where said emergency courts do not open directly on a street a separate and distinct corridor shall continue to the street, from each open court, through such structure as may be built on the street with continuous walls of brick, or masonry fireproof materials on each side the entire length of said corridor or corridors, and the ceiling and floors shall be fireproof. Said corridor or corridors shall not be reduced in width to more than three feet less than the width of the open court or courts, and there shall be no projections in the same; the outer openings shall be provided with doors or gates opening outwards. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the continuing of the said courts to the street of the reduced width of the corridors. Where any exit or entrance, emergency or otherwise, does not open directly on a street, and where such egress or ingress to a theatre, opera house, etc., is through a non-fireproof building in order to reach the street as herein shall extend at least four feet above the stage roof, or the auditorium roof, if the latter be the higher, and shall be coped. Above the proscenium opening, there shall be an iron girder of sufficient strength to safely support the load above, and the same shall be covered with approved fireproof materials to protect it from the heat. Should there be constructed an orchestra platform over the stage, above the proscenium opening, the said platform shall be placed on the auditorium side of the proscenium firewall, and shall be entered only from the auditorium side of said wall.

(17) The molded frame around the proscenium opening shall be formed entirely of approved fireproof materials. The proscenium opening shall be provided with a fireproof metal curtain, or a curtain of asbestos, or other fireproof material approved by the Inspector of Buildings, sliding at each end within iron grooves, securely fastened to the brick wall and extending into such grooves to a depth of not less than six inches on each side of the opening. Said fireproof curtain shall be raised at the commencement of each performance and lowered at the close of said performance, and be operated by approved machinery for that purpose. The proscenium curtain shall be placed at least three feet distant from the foot-lights at the nearest point. No doorway or opening through the proscenium wall, from the auditorium, shall be allowed above the level of the first floor, and such first floor openings shall have approved fireproof doors on each side of the wall, and the doors shall be hung so as to be opened from either side at all times.

(18) There shall be provided over the stage metal skylights of an area or combined area of at least one-eighth the area of said stage with sliding sash and double sheet glass, and each pane thereof measuring not less than three hundred square inches, the whole of which skylight shall be so constructed as to open instantly on the cutting or burning of a hempen cord, which shall be arranged to hold said skylight closed, or some other equally simple approved device for opening them may be provided. Immediately underneath the glass of said skylights there shall be wire netting, but wire glass shall not be used in lieu of this requirement.

(19) All that portion of the stage not comprised in the working of scenery, traps and other mechanical apparatus for the presentation of a scene, usually equal to the width of the proscenium opening, shall be built of concrete or of iron or steel beams filled in between with approved fireproof material, and all girders for the support of said beams shall be of wrought iron or rolled steel. The fly-galleries entire, including pin-rails, shall be constructed of concrete or of iron or steel, and the floors of said galleries shall be composed of concrete or of iron or steel beams, filled with approved fireproof materials, and no wood boards or sleepers shall be used as covering over beams, but the said floors shall be entirely fireproof. The rigging loft shall be fireproof.

(20) All stage scenery, curtains and decorations made of combustible material, and all woodwork on or about the stage shall be painted or saturated with some approved non-combustible material or otherwise rendered safe against fire, and the finishing coats of paint applied to all woodwork through the entire building shall be of such kind as will resist fire to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Buidlings.

(21) The roof over the auditorium and the entire main floor of the auditorium and vestibule, also the entire floor of the second story of the front superstructure over the entrance, lobby and corridors, and all galleries and supports for the same in the auditorium shall be constructed of concrete or of iron or steel and approved fireproof materials, not excluding the use of wood floorboards and necessary sleepers to fasten the same, but such sleepers shall not mean timbers of support, and the space between the sleepers, excepting a portion under the stepping in the galleries, which shall be properly fire-stopped, shall be solidly filled with approved incombustible material up to the under side of the floorboards.

(22) The fronts of each gallery shall be formed of approved fireproof material, except the capping, which may be made of wood. The ceiling under each gallery shall be entirely formed of approved fireproof materials. The ceiling of the auditorium shall be formed of approved fireproof materials.

(23) All lathing, whenever used, shall be of wire or other metal.

(24) The partitions in that portion of the building which contains the auditorium, the entrance and vestibule and every room and passage devoted to the use of the audience shall be constructed of approved fireproof materials, including the furring of outside or other walls.

(25) None of the walls or ceilings shall be covered with wood sheathing, canvas or any combustible material. But this shall not exclude the use of wood wainscoting to a height not to exceed six feet which shall be filled in solid between the wainscoting and the wall with approved fireproof materials. The walls separating the actors' dressing rooms from the stage and the partitions dividing the dressing rooms, together with the partitions of every passageway from the same to the stage, and all other partitions on or about the stage, shall be constructed of fireproof material approved by the Inspector of Buildings. All doors in any of said partitions shall be fireproof.

(26) All shelving and cupboards in each and every dressing room, property room or other storage rooms shall be constructed of metal, slate or some approved fireproof material. Dressing rooms may be placed in the fly-galleries provided that proper exits are secured therefrom to the fire escapes in the open courts, and that the partitions and other matters pertaining to dressing rooms shall conform to the requirements herein contained, and the stairs leading to the same shall be fireproof. All dressing rooms shall have an independent exit leading directly into a court or street, and shall be ventilated by windows in the external walls; and no dressing room shall be below the street level.

(27) All accessible windows shall be arranged to open, and none of the windows in outside walls shall have fixed sashes, iron grills or bars.

(28) All seats in the auditorium, excepting those contained in boxes, shall be not less than thirty-two inches from back to back, measured in a horizontal direction, and firmly secured to the floor. No more than twelve seats shall be placed in any box. Boxes shall be divided by partition or rail, and shall lead to an aisle which connects with an exit or corridor. No seat in the auditorium shall have more than six seats intervening between it and an aisle on either side. No stool or seat shall be placed in any aisle.

(29) All platforms in galleries formed to receive the seats shall be not more than twenty-six inches in height of risers, nor less than thirty-two inches in width of platform. All aisles on the respective floors in the auditorium shall be not less than three feet wide where they begin, and shall be increased in width toward the exits in a ratio of one and one-half inches to five running feet.

(30) The foyers, lobbies, corridors, passages and rooms for the use of the audience, not including aisles spaced between seats, shall on the first or main floor where the seating capacity exceeds five hundred or more, be at least sixteen feet clear, back of the last row of seats, and on each balcony or gallery at least twelve feet clear of the last row of seats.

(31) Gradients or inclined planes shall be employed instead of steps where possible to overcome slight difference of level in or between aisles and passages.

(32) Every theatre accommodating three hundred persons shall have at least two exits; when accommodating five hundred persons, at least three exits shall be provided; these exits not referring to or including the exits to the open court at the side of the theatre. Doorways of exit or entrance for the use of the public shall be not less than five feet in width, and for every additional one hundred persons or portions thereof to be accommodated, in excess of five hundred, an aggregate of twenty inches additional exit width must be allowed. All doors of exit or entrance shall open outwardly and be hung to swing in such manner as not to become an obstruction in a passage or corridor, and no such door shall be closed and locked during any representation, or when the building is open to the public. Distinct and separate places of exit and entrance shall be provided for each gallery above the first. A common place of exit and entrance may serve for the main floor of the auditorium and the first gallery, provided its capacity be equal to the aggregate capacity of the outlets from the main floor and the said galleries.

(33) No passage leading to any stairway communicating with any entrance or exit shall be less than four feet in width in any part thereof.

(34) All stairs within the building shall be constructed of approved fireproof material throughout. All stairs to have treads of uniform width and risers of uniform height throughout each flight. Stairways serving for the exit of fifty people shall be at least four feet wide between railings or between walls, and for every additional fifty people to be accommodated six inches must be added to their width. The width of all stairs shall be measured in the clear between hand-rails. In no case shall the risers of any stairs exceed seven and one-half inches in height, nor shall the treads, exclusive of nosings, be less than ten and one-half inches wide in straight stairs. No circular or winding stairs for the use of the public shall be permitted.

(35) Where the seating capacity is for more than one thousand people, there shall be provided at least two independent staircases, with direct exterior outlets for each gallery in the auditorium, where there are not more than two galleries, and the same shall be located on opposite sides of said galleries.

(36) Where there are more than two galleries one or more additional staircases shall be provided, the outlets from which shall communicate directly with the principal exit or other exterior outlets. All said staircases shall be of width proportionate to the seating capacity as elsewhere herein provided. Where the seating capacity is for one thousand people or less, two direct lines of staircases only shall be required, located on opposite sides of the galleries, and in both cases shall extend from the sidewalk level to the upper gallery, with outlets from each gallery to each of said staircases.

(37) At least two independent staircases, with direct exterior outlets, shall be provided for the service of the stage and shall be located on opposite sides of the same. All inside stairways leading to the upper galleries of the auditorium shall be provided on both sides with walls of approved fireproof materials. Stairs leading to the first or lower gallery may be left open on one side, in case they shall be constructed as herein provided for similar stairs leading from the entrance hall to the main floor of the auditorium. In no case shall stairs leading to any gallery be left open on both sides.

(38) When straight stairs return directly on themselves, a landing of the full width of both flights, without any steps, shall be provided. The outer line of landings shall be curved to a radius of not less than two feet, to avoid square angles. Stairs turning at an angle shall have a proper landing without winders introduced at said turn. In stairs, when two side flights connect with one main flight, no winders shall be introduced, and the width of the main flight shall be at least equal to the aggregate width of the side flights.

(39) All stairs shall have proper landings introduced at convenient distances. All inclosed staircases shall have, on both sides, strong hand-rails firmly secured to the wall about three inches distant therefrom and about three feet above the stairs, but said hand-rails shall not run on level platforms and landings where the same are more in length than the width of the stairs.

(40) All staircases eight feet and more in width shall be provided with a centre hand-rail of metal, not less than two inches in diameter, placed at a height of about three feet above the centre of the treads, and supported on wrought metal or brass standards of sufficient strength, placed not more than four feet nor more than six feet apart, and securely bolted to the treads or risers of stairs, or both, and at the head of each flight of stairs on each landing the post or standard shall be at least six feet in height, to which the rail shall be secured.

(41) Every steam boiler which may be required for heating or other purposes shall be located outside the building, and the space allotted to the same shall be inclosed by walls of masonry on all sides, and the ceiling of such space shall be constructed of approved fireproof materials.

(42) All doorways in said walls shall have fireproof doors. No floor register for heating shall be permitted. No coil or radiator shall be placed in any aisle or passageway used as an exit, but all said coils and radiators shall be placed in recesses formed in the wall or partition to receive the same. All supply, return or exhaust pipes shall be properly incased and protected where passing through floors or near woodwork.

(43) Standpipes four inches in diameter shall be provided with hose attachments on every floor and gallery as follows: One on each side of the auditorium in each tier, also on each side of the stage in each tier, and at least one in the property room and one in the carpenter's shop, if the same be contiguous to the building. All such standpipes shall be kept clear from obstruction. Said standpipes shall be separate and distinct, receiving their supply of water direct from the power pump or pumps, and shall be fitted with the regulation couplings of the Fire Department, and shall be kept constantly filled with water by means of an automatic power pump or pumps, of sufficient capacity to supply all the lines of hose when operated simultaneously, and said pump or pumps shall be supplied from the street main and be ready for immediate use at all times during the performance in said building. In addition to the requirements contained in this section, the standpipes shall also conform to the requirements contained in section 70 of this Code.

(44) A separate and distinct system of automatic sprinklers, with fusible plugs, approved by the Inspector of Buildings, supplied with water from a tank located on the roof over the stage and not connected in any manner with the standpipes, shall be placed on each side of the proscenium opening and on the ceiling or roof over the stage at such intervals as will protect every square foot of stage surface when said sprinklers are in operation. Automatic sprinklers shall also be placed, wherever practicable, in the dressing rooms, under the stage and in the carpenter shop, paint rooms, store rooms and property rooms.

(45) A proper and sufficient quantity of two and one-half inch hose, not less than one hundred feet in length, fitted with the regulation couplings of the Fire Department and with nozzles attached thereto, and with hose spanners at each outlet, shall always be kept attached to each hose attachment as the Fire Chief may direct. There shall also be kept in readiness for immediate use on the stage, at least four casks full of water, and two buckets to each cask. Said casks and buckets shall be painted red.

(46) There shall also be provided hand pumps or other portable fire extinguishing apparatus and at least four axes and two twenty-five-foot hooks, two fifteen-foot hooks, and two ten-foot hooks on each tier or floor of the stage.

(47) Every portion of the building devoted to the uses or accommodation of the public, also all outlets leading to the streets and including the open courts or corridors, shall be well and properly lighted during every performance, and the same shall remain lighted until the entire audience has left the premises. All gas or electric lights in the halls, corridors, lobby or any other part of said buildings used by the audience, except the auditorium, must be controlled by a separate shut-off, located in the lobby and controlled only in that particular place.

(48) Gas mains supplying the building shall have independent connections for the auditorium and the stage, and provision shall be made for shutting off the gas from the outside of the building. When interior gas lights are not lighted by electricity other suitable appliances, to be approved by the Inspector of Buildings, shall be provided.

(49) All suspended or bracket lights surrounded by glass in the auditorium, or in any part of the building devoted to the public, shall be provided with proper wire netting underneath. No gas or electric light shall be inserted in the walls, woodwork, ceilings, or in any part of the building, unless protected by approved fireproof materials. All lights in passages and corridors in said buildings, and wherever deemed necessary by the Inspector of Buildings, shall be protected with proper wire network. The footlights, in addition to the wire network, shall be protected by a strong wire guard and chain, placed not less than two feet distant from said footlight, and the trough containing said footlights shall be formed of and surrounded by approved fireproof materials.

(50) All border lights shall be constructed to the approval of the Inspector of Buildings, and shall be suspended for ten feet by wire rope. All ducts or shafts used for conducting heated air from the main chandelier, or from any other light or lights, shall be constructed of metal and made double, with an air space between.

(51) All stage lights shall have strong metal wire guards or screens not less than ten inches in diameter, so constructed that any material in contact therewith shall be out of reach of the flame of said stage lights, and must be soldered to the fixtures in all cases.

(52) The standpipes, gas pipes, electric wires, hose, footlights, and all apparatus for the extinguishing of fire or guarding against the same, as in this section specified, after being installed, shall be in charge and under control of the Fire Department, and the Chief of said Department is hereby directed to see that the arrangements in respect thereto are carried out and enforced. A diagram or plan of each tier, gallery or floor, showing distinctly the exits therefrom, such occupying a space not less than fifteen square inches, shall be printed in black lines in a legible manner on the programme of the performance. Every exit shall have over the same on the inside the word "Exit" painted in legible letters not less than eight inches high.

(53) The provisions of the foregoing shall not be construed to mean or made to apply to any theatre, opera house, or building intended to be used for theatrical or operatic purposes, now erected or for which plans have heretofore been approved by the Inspector of Buildings.

CHAPTER XXX.
Elevators and Hoistways.

SECTION 117.

(1) No elevator or hoist shall hereafter be erected in any building before the owner or his agent, architect or contractor shall file a plan and description of the proposed construction, equipment and mode of operation of the hoistway, and obtain the approval of the Inspector of Buildings therefor, nor shall it be operated until such approval is obtained.

(2) Certificates of inspection shall be issued and be good for one year unless an unsafe condition or function is discovered, when such elevator or hoistway shall remain unused until thorough repair and re-inspection and test shall permit its renewed operation.

(3) All elevators throughout to be of an approved make and equipped with cages, doors and locks, counter weights and machinery, full safety, limit and break devices, and overhead gratings, to secure fullest immunity from danger or accident to passengers thereon.

(4) All hand power elevators shall be provided with an approved brake made to operate on the outside rim of the rope wheel, and the weight by which the brake band is balanced shall be secured by an auxiliary chain or rope.

(5) Machinery of hand sidewalk lifts shall be equipped with a substantial brake, easily applied, and protected by dog operating on the gear wheel.

(6) All elevators shall be provided with approved means for locking the operating control levers or wheels when released by the operator.

(7) Where basement or sidewalk lifts are installed, an approved guard shall be provided at the first floor or street level. If at the street level, the hatch doors when open shall be protected by chain bars, and when inside the building, the unprotected sides of the hatch shall be protected by a solid or slat inclosure at least seven feet high, with lifting gates at the loading sides; these gates shall be operated by the action of the car.

(8) Every power-driven sidewalk elevator shall have at the street level a removable railing. The car shall also be provided with a substantial guard or bow to open the sidewalk doors far enough in advance of the car to prevent catching anyone between the elevator car and the sidewalk doors.

(9) At the top and bottom of all elevator shafts there shall be placed over and under the strongest parts of the elevator car approved buffer springs and rubber buffers.

(10) Every elevator car and all counterweights shall be suspended by metallic cables. There shall be not less than two cables independently connected to the car and to each set of counterweights.

Shaftways, Hatchways, Inclosures, Grilles, Etc.

(11) Every shaft hereafter constructed for all power operated elevators having a higher rise than two stories, up to a speed of three hundred feet per minute, shall provide for a car travel of at least four feet above and below the upper and lower terminal landings. A clear space not less than four feet in depth and the full size of the shaft, shall be provided between the bottom of the shaft and the lowest point of the underside of the car when the car is at the limit of its descent. The distance between the underside of the platform or grating at the top of the elevator shaft, and the top of the crosshead of the car when at the limit of its ascent, shall not be less than four feet.

(12) Every existing freight elevator shall have the hatches on every floor protected by vertical gates and inclosures. The fixed inclosures shall be not less than six feet in height, and the gates as nearly six feet in height as the conditions at the building shall warrant. Wooden gates and inclosures shall be made of vertical strips with space not wider than two inches. Should the stories be so low that the gates cannot be at least five feet in height, with a space under the same of eighteen inches, vertical collapsing gates shall be installed.

(13) Wherever carriage or automobile hoists are installed, hatchways on all floors except the lower one shall be inclosed on the unprotected sides by slat work or solid inclosures of wood at least six feet high, and at the loading ends the approaches shall be protected by a balanced drop bar.

Overhead Construction.

(14) All overhead beams, sheaves and supports shall be of steel or iron, and all overhead beams shall be supported at both ends on brick walls or on steel construction, or steel construction resting on masonry.

(15) All overhead machinery shall be supported on a substantial wrought-iron or steel frame or beams, and where it is necessary to hang bearings underneath the supporting beams, these bearings shall be supported by wrought-iron or steel straps bolted to and through the supporting frame or beams.

(16) At the top of the shaft, and under the suspension sheaves and beams of all elevators, there shall be built a substantial working platform or grating or open construction of iron or steel having not more than one and one-half inches space between any two members of said grating and made so as to sustain a load of one hundred and fifty pounds to the square foot; said platform or grating shall be securely supported, independent of the overhead construction carrying the sheaves and other overhead appliances.

CHAPTER XXXI.
SECTION 118.

Existing Actions and Liabilities.

Nothing in this Code contained shall be construed to affect any action or proceeding now pending in any court, nor any right accrued, nor liability incurred, nor any cause or causes of action accrued or existing under any acts or ordinances repealed hereby. Nor shall any right or remedy of any character existing, or accrued be lost, impaired or affected by this Code.

CHAPTER XXXII.
Definitions.

SECTION 119.

Building Terms.

(1) Wherever the word "lot" is used in this Code, it shall be construed to mean the entire area devoted to one building including all yards, courts, lights and vent shafts.

(2) Wherever the word "curb" applying to the heights of buildings, or to the definition of a basement or a cellar or to an excavation is used, it shall be construed to mean the curb level at the centre of the front of the building, in the case of a building fronting on one street only; in the case of a building fronting on two or more streets the curb level at the centre of the front facing on the highest curb shall be taken.

(3) The height of a building is the perpendicular distance measured in a straight line from the top of the highest point of the roof beams in the case of flat roofs and from the average height of the gable in the case of roofs having a pitch of more than twenty degrees with a horizontal plane downward to the curb level. When a building does not adjoin the street, the measurements for height shall be taken to the average level of the ground adjoining such buildings.

(4) In measuring the height of a wall the height of the parapet wall down to the top of the roof beams shall not be included.

(5) The length of any building shall be its greatest horizontal dimension.

(6) The width of any building shall be its next greatest horizontal dimension.

(7) Wherever referred to, the width of the street shall be taken as being the distance between the street building lines on opposite sides of the street, measured at right angles to the centre line of the street at the middle of the lot.

(8) A story is that part of any building comprised between any floor and the floor or roof next above. In case any floor or the combined area of floors at any one level extends over less than twenty per cent. of the horizontal area included within the outside walls at that level the same shall not be considered as a floor for the purpose of determining story heights.

(9) A cellar is a story more than one-half below the level of the curb, but it shall not be considered as a story in determining the height of buildings.

(10) A basement is a story, partly, but not more than one-half below the level of the curb, but it shall not be considered as a story in determining the height of buildings unless more than one-half above the curb.

(11) A yard is an open and unoccupied space on the same lot with a building, between the extreme rear line of the building and the rear line of the lot.

(12) A court is an open and unoccupied space other than a yard on the same lot with a building. A court not extending to the street or yard, is an inner court; a court extending to the street or yard, is an outer court, if it extends to the street, it is a street court, if it extends to the yard it is a yard court.

(13) A public hall is a hall, corridor or passageway for the use of the general public.

(14) A stair hall shall include the stairs, stair landings and those portions of the public halls through which it is necessary to pass in going between the entrance floor and the roof of any building.

(15) A shaft includes exterior and interior shafts whether for air, light, elevator, dumbwaiter or any other purpose.

(16) Bulkhead—A bulkhead is a structure erected on the roof of a building only for the purpose of enclosing staircases to roofs, elevator machinery, water tank, ventilating apparatus and exhaust chambers or any other necessary machinery required to be at that level. Bulkheads when used only for the above mentioned purposes and when they are only of sufficient height and area to properly enclose any of the above apparatus, equipment or stairs, may be erected on the roof of any building and need not be considered in determining the height of the building.

(17) Pent Houses—A pent house is a structure, other than a bulkhead, erected on the roof of a building and not exceeding ten feet in height nor more than twenty-five per centum of the area of the roof at the level at which it is built, said twenty-five per centum not to exceed in any case two thousand five hundred square feet. A pent house shall not be used for sleeping accommodations.

A pent house as defined above may be erected on the roof of any building and need not be considered in determining the height of a building. Any structure erected on the roof of a building not complying with the above or with the definition of bulkheads shall be included in the height of the building.

(18) Skylights.—The term skylight shall be taken to mean and include flat, hipped, lantern, monitor, turret, dome, vertical or pitched, saw-toothed construction and all other covers placed over openings on roofs for the admission of light.

Walls and Partitions.

(19) A Bearing Wall shall be taken to mean one on which a beam, girder, truss, column, or other interior load of a building rests.

(20) A Non-Bearing Wall shall be taken to mean one which supports no other load than its own weight.

(21) A Retaining Wall shall be taken to mean one constructed to resist the thrust of earth, water or other substances.

(22) A Foundation Wall shall be taken to mean any wall or pier built below the curb level, or nearest tier of beams to the curb, or average ground level, to serve as a support for walls, beams, girders, trusses, columns, floors, or other vertical load of a building.

(23) A Party Wall shall be taken to mean a wall used, or built to be used, in common by two or more buildings.

(24) An Enclosing Wall shall be taken to mean every outside wall, or vertical enclosure of a building, other than a party wall.

(25) Exterior Wall (see enclosing wall).

(26) Enclosure walls shall be taken to mean non-bearing walls built between steel columns and supported wholly or in part by steel girders.

(27) A Division Wall shall be taken to mean any wall, other than an exterior wall or a party wall, which extends the full height of a building and to the roof.

(28) A Partition Wall shall be taken to mean any interior wall other than a division wall.

(29) A Curtain Wall shall be taken to mean any non-bearing wall between columns or piers.

(30) A Fire Wall shall be taken to mean any wall built for the purpose of resisting fire.

(31) A Parapet Wall shall be taken to mean that portion of any wall which extends above the roof line.

Buildings.

(32) Frame Building—A frame building is a building or structure of which the exterior walls or a portion thereof shall be constructed of wood. Such buildings partially or entirely covered with not more than four inches of brickwork, concrete or stucco, shall be deemed to be frame structures. Wood frames covered with metal shall be deemed to be frame buildings or structures.

(33) Theatres and Opera Houses, etc. See section 116.

(34) Churches.—A church is any building or portion thereof designed or intended for or used solely as a place of assemblage of a number of people for the holding of meetings or gatherings of a religious character.

(35) Amusement Hall.—Any building or portion thereof that is designed for, intended or used as a place of recreation, or amusement, or as a concert hall, ball room, or as a place of public assemblage other than theatres, opera houses, shall for the purposes of this Code be defined as and referred to as an amusement hall.

(36) Exhibition Buildings—An exhibition building is any building or part thereof, that is intended or designed to be used for fairs and exhibition purposes, or as a tower for observation purposes, or for any similar use or occupancy, whether temporary or permanent in character.

(37) Hotel.—A hotel is any building or portion thereof, intended, designed or used for supplying food and shelter to residents or guests, and having a general public dining room and containing also more than ten sleeping rooms above the first story.

(38) Lodging Houses.—A lodging house is any house or building, or portion thereof, in which persons are harbored or received or lodged, for hire for a single night, or for less than a week at one time, or any part of which is let for any person to sleep in, for any term less than a week.

(39) Tenement House, Definition of.—A tenement house is any building or house occupied by three or more families living separately from each other, but having a common right in the halls and stairways.

(40) Apartment House.—An Apart-House shall be construed as a tenement house and shall be subject to the same laws.

(41) Boarding House.—For the purposes of this Code, a boarding house shall be classed as a "Dwelling," provided that not more than ten sleeping rooms in any one building shall be used for the accommodation of boarders. If more than ten sleeping rooms in any one building shall be used for the accommodation of boarders, it shall be classed as a "Hotel."

(42) Dwelling.—A dwelling is a residence building intended or designed for, or used as, the home or residence or not more than two separate and distinct families.

(43) Stable.—A stable is any building, or portion thereof, that is intended or designed for or used for the sheltering or harboring of horses or live stock, or for the storage of vehicles not driven by their own power.

(44) Garage.—A garage is any building, or part thereof, in which any power driven vehicle is kept, whether for use, repair, rental, storage or demonstration purposes.

(45) Temporary structures may be taken to mean and include platforms, stands, tiers of seats election and other booths temporary buildings and circus tents.

(46) Shed.—A shed is a roofed structure open on one or more sides that is used for storage or for the shelter of workmen or materials.

(47) Outhouses.—Outhouses shall be construed to mean and include all structures built of wood not more than ten feet in height nor more than fifty square feet in area.

CHAPTER XXXIII.
Remedial Code—When This Code Takes Effect.

SECTION 120.

Substitutionary Construction.

That with respect to any of the requirements or provisions of this ordinance, it shall be lawful for the Common Council by resolution upon report submitted by the Inspector of Buildings to specify a substitutionary method or plan of construction, or a substitute in material in the place and stead of that specified in said ordinance, Provided that the risk from fire will not thereby be increased, and in every such case the owner or builder may adopt such method, plan or material specified in such resolution; Provided further that no such resolution shall be adopted without there being first presented to the Common Council a petition specifying in detail the changes desired, the reason therefor, and the location and character of the building in question.

CHAPTER XXXIV.
Repealer.

SECTION 121.

The following ordinances, that is to say: "An Ordinance relating to the construction of Buildings," approved January 3rd, 1896, and ordinances amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

"An Ordinance relating to the erection and removal of buildings within certain Limits," approved November 29, 1881, and ordinances amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, and all other ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith are to the extent of such inconsistency hereby repealed.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning May 21, 1911.

Topic.—Growing into larger work.—Mark iv, 26-32. (Union meeting with the Juniors and Intermediates.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

It should be the aim of every Christian organization to increase and to extend its work. The parables of Christ, which have been selected for our study, not only point out the methods by which growth in Christian work is made possible, but also emphasize the fact that growth is the law of the kingdom of God and that it is to expand until the kingdoms of this world shall have become a part of the kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. As members of a Christian organization which has been especially successful in advancing the kingdom of Christ by its definite and enthusiastic work it should ever be our aim and endeavor to do our part in bringing about this glorious consummation. Let us therefore study the laws of growth in Christian work and be encouraged to do more for the advancement of Christ's kingdom.

1. Growth in Christian work depends upon divine power. It is true that we have the high honor of being "colaborers with God," yet nothing that we alone can do will ever advance His kingdom. The man in the parable planted the seed, but he had no power to make it grow. Its vitality was independent of any labor that he might have performed. He plants it and then pursues his ordinary business—sleeps by night and rises by day, engages in other employments—yet the seed grows by the power of God working through the force of nature. As in the natural so in the spiritual world. It is "not by might nor by power, but by My spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts." Paul may plant and Apollos water, but God alone can give the increase. In our endeavors to advance our work let us keep this fact in mind. Let us faithfully do our part, yet humbly and prayerfully depend upon God for His blessing in crowning our labors with success.

2. Growth in Christian work is gradual and progressive. "The earth bringeth forth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear." This is the law of the natural world, and it is also true of spiritual things. Nor does this law ever vary. The fruit never comes first, the blade last. But there is too often a tendency to expect a reversal of this law in the spiritual world. How often we become discouraged because the harvest does not appear as soon as we had hoped and expected. But God does everything as it should be done, and to everything there is its season. Let us therefore be patient, even if the results of our labors are not speedily manifested. The harvest will come, and we shall reap in due season, in God's season, if we faint not.

3. Growth is possible from small beginnings. This is the truth of the parable of the mustard seed. "A grain of mustard seed" was a common expression among the rabbis for anything exceedingly small. Yet "it groweth up and becometh greater than all herbs and shooteth out great branches, so that the fowls of the air may lodge under the shadow of it." No Christian work is so small but that under the blessing of God it may not become larger, nor can we tell what great things may develop from the smallest beginnings. The Christian church had a small beginning. So had its most powerful organizations. But from these small beginnings worldwide blessings and benefits have resulted. God seems to find delight in producing great results from small beginnings. This fact should encourage and inspire us all as Christian workers. What we are able to do may seem small and insignificant, but the results from these efforts may be very great. Let us not despise the day of small things. Let us not make light of trifles. "Trifles make perfection, and perfection is no trifle." God can make much out of little.

Judge's Editor an Endeavorer.

Among the distinguished members of the Christian Endeavor societies is the young editor of the humorous weekly, Judge. James Melvin Lee was born at Port Crane, N. Y., in 1878. His father was a Methodist minister, so that the lad had a chance to see a good deal of the country and make useful observations of many sorts of folk.

In 1900 young Lee was graduated from Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn. While at college he was able to earn most of his expenses by furnishing correspondence for the Sun, Herald, Times and Press of New York, the Capital Presentation of "The Henrietta" Keeps the Audience Laughing.

A HOWARD COMEDY

There have been amateur theatrical performances given in this city before last night, but it is doubtful if anything quite so well acted has been seen. From the very start of "The Henrietta" until the curtain fell on the last scene of the play there was a continuous clapping of hands in approval of the work of the actors. The theatre was full, and the performance of Bronson Howard's comedy, which was given by the Park Comedy Club for the benefit of the Anti-Tuberculosis League, proved a success.

Particularly brilliant preformances were given by Mrs. Charles Barlow, who assumed the character of "Agnes;" Charles H. Lyman, as "Nicholas Vanalstyne," whose laugh became contagious, and DeWitt P. Brokaw, who played "Nicholas Vanalstyne, Jr.," to perfection. Of the others in the cast nothing but good words can be said. Alston M. Abbott, who took the part of "the lamb," could hardly have been improved upon, Miss Grace Isabel Ashwell, as the wife of the younger Vanalstyne, William Flanders, as the broker, and Laurens H. VanBuren, as "The Shepherd" all provoked the audience into prolonged applause by their clever interpretation of their parts.

Following out the general Wall street effect on both customers and brokers the play hits the nail on the head and judging by the uproarious laughter the audience was alive to the various situations and appreciated the humor injected by Mr. Howard. Five curtain calls followed the conclusion of the third act and even the reappearance of the cast failed to stop the applause which lasted for fully five minutes. To say that the play pleased is too mild. The audience fairly went wild over the splendid work of the amateur actors and no doubt will attend the second performance which will be given tonight. The play was scheduled to be given in Cranford on May 23, but it has been learned that the little opera house in that town is too small to accommodate the scenery therefore the date has been abandoned.

The full cast was as follows:

Nicholas Vanalstyne, Jr., DeWitt P. Brokaw; Musgrave, an old clerk; Henry Crofut White; Nicholas Vanalstyne, "Old Nick in the Street," Charles H. Lyman; Agnes, a niece of Nicholas Vanalstyne, Mrs. Charles Barlow; Dr. Parke Wainwright, E. P. Sharretts; Bertie Vanalstyne, the "lamb," Alston A. Abbott; Mrs. Rose Vanalstyne, wife of Vanalstyne, Jr., Miss Grace Isabel Ashwell; Watson Flint, broker, William Flanders; Mrs. Cornelia Opdyke, a widow, Mrs. Alston M. Abbott; Rev. Dr. Murray Hilton, a shepherd, Laurens H. VanBuren; Lady Mary Trelawney, Miss Anne Ramsey Johnston; Lord Arthur Trelawney, her husband, John Valiant.

The stage committee consisted of Charles H. Lyman, chairman; Mrs. Cornelius B. Tyler, Miss Ursula Roland, Mrs. Francis E. DuBois and Mrs. Henry Crofut White.

Edgar Hart, who succeeded the late Edward Patterson as coach for the club and who conducts a school of elocution and acting at Carnegie Hall, New York, was congratulated after the play last night for the splendid performance of the company.

Felled by Tricycle Wheel.

Mrs. William Redmond, who lives on Madison avenue just back of the flat building at the Second street corner, was walking in the yard at her home this morning when someone in an apartment above threw an iron tricycle wheel out of a window. It struck Mrs. Redmond on the right side of the head, inflicting a severe gash and badly stunning her. She refused to have a physician called and first aid treatment was given by Patrolman William Messler. A search of the flat building failed to reveal the identiy of the person who threw the wheel.

ENDEAVORERS' UNION HOLD MAY CONGRESS

All the societies connected with the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union were well represented at the May Congress held in Y. M. C. A. parlors last evening. A new society was received into the union and three amendments to the constitution were adopted. The new society is known as the Parker Union of Young People, of Lincoln, of which Alexander D. Galloway is its president, and Miss Harriet Smith secretary.

The amendments to the constitution provide: first, to arrange for a temperance committee for the local union; second, to place the regular mass meeting of the union in charge of the executive committee, and third, to make seven members form a quorum.

The Lincoln society was welcomed by President Frank Stewart in a happy speech. The secretary of the Union was authorized to write a letter to Charles F. Windham, expressing regret at his leaving this city. Mr. Windham has taken a government position at Washington.

Mrs. Milton Miller, a member of the West End Tabernacle society was elected a delegate to the international convention to be held in Atlantic City in July. It is believed that at least forty delegates and members of the local societies will attend the convention. Twelve members of Trinity Reformed church and eight members of the Temple Baptist societies signified their intention of attending the convention.

A CHINESE SUPPER AND ENTERTAINMENT

"Ching, Chjng, Chinese Supper and Entertainment" was given under the auspices of the Willing Workers, H. J. Martin's Sunday-school class, and the Junior Christian Endeavor Society, attracted a large number of patrons to Trinity Reformed church last night and the affair was a great success. More than 150 suppers were served by the young people from 6 to 9 o'clock and a considerable sum realized as profit. The Willing Workers prepared the supper, while the Juniors assisted in serving it. All wore Chinese costumes and the rooms were attractively decorated in the true Chinese style. There were many side attractions which helped to swell the proceeds.

The whole affair was in charge of Mrs. Martin Hansen, president of the Willing Workers, and Mrs. R. V. Kiney and Mrs. Lafayette Rosenstiehl, superintendent of the Junior C. E. Society. The Willing Workers will give their share of the profits to the building fund, while the Juniors will give theirs to missions.

In addition to the suppers, which was a fine one, well cooked and promptly served, the Juniors gave an excellent entertainment, the program being as follows:

Song, "Only a Little Baby," Adele and Ruth Freeman; "Playing Chinese School," a sketch, Jennie Sears, Nellie McAfee, Louise Seader, Marion Woolley, Helen Thompson, Helen McAfee, Russell Sears, Howard Willett. "Wen Shung Song," Marion Blair, Dorothy Martin, Marguerite Barkalew, Dorothy Seader, Alva Hansen, Alma Allegar, Laura Smith, Marion Woolley, Grace Wakefield, Marion Thompson, Helen McAfee. "Chinese Motion Song," Nellie McAfee, Mildred Oliver, Marion Blair, Marion Woolley, Helen Thompson, Saeder sisters, Marguerite Barkalew, Laura Smith, Helen Leitheusser, Jennie Sears, Ella VanArsdale, Elizabeth Chickering. Cornet solo, Dorothy Seader, accompanied on the piano by Louise Seader. "Boys' Song," Harold, Vail, Ray Vail, Alfred Willett, Howard Willett, Harold Clarkson and Albert Baker.

Those who presided at the tables were Mrs. Albert F. Baker, Mrs. J. Herbert Freeman, Mrs. A. K. Willett and Miss Ida Swackhamer. The following girls served as waitresses: The Misses Jennie Sears, Nellie McAfee, Helen Woodruff, Maud McAfee, Adelaide Cole, Helen Leithesser Marion Thompson, Madaline Blair, Dorothy Martin, Mary Bennett, Ella VanArsdale, Alice Auten, Grace Wakefield, Elizabeth Chickering, Adele Freeman, Ruth Freeman, Marion Woolley, Louise Seader, Laura Smith, Marjorie Storr, Helen McAfee, Helen Thompson. The supper committee comprised Mrs. Woolley, Mrs. H. J. Martin, Mrs. Martin Hansen and Mrs. Wherry. Those in charge of the pies were Miss Lindsay, Miss L. Scheelein, Miss A Scheelein, Mrs. Allegar, and those who sold chop sticks were Lawrence French, Harry Kirch, while Elmer French and Alfred Willett had charge of the "rules of etiquette." Mrs. R. V. Kinney had charge of the ice cream and Charles W. Beiter received tickets at the door and took care of the cash.

TOLD PHONE STORY

Paul H Burns Discussed the History and Importance of Bell Invention.

Not a very large audience heard the lecture given by Paul H. Burns, local manager of the New York Telephone Company, who was introduced by former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce in its rooms last night. He sketched the telephone mystery from the inception to its present complete condition, showing photograhpic slides of interest.

One of the slides showed Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone as he looked in 1876, when 29 years old. There were no girls working on the system when first installed, yet today very few exchanges employ boys and men excepting in the mechanical departments. There were thrown on the screen pictures of linemen at work, setting up poles and stringing wires, exchanges in Moscow, Russia; Chicago, and other large cities and other indicating the methods of finding "trouble" on any part of the lines.

The cable vault of the Riverside exchange, in New York city, showed one of the largest and most complete in the world. Here there are fifty cables containing something like 45,000 wires. In New York city alone. The underground conduits contain fourteen million pounds of copper and about thirty-five million pounds of lead.

Many other interesting slides were shown giving the audience some interesting information on the complete system of telephony, including the system of instruction of employes, their training for positions as operators and other interesting features.

Mr. Burns was congratulated upon his lecture at the finish.

LINCOLN SCHOOL EXHIBITION PLEASES

There was an exhibit of the work done by the pupils of all grades from the Kindergarten to the Fifth at the Lincoln School yesterday afternoon, which was visited by a large number of parents. The work shown included water-color painting, raffia, wood-carving, sewing, embroidery and millinery. It was interesting to note the improvement made by the pupils during the year from specimens set for comparison.

The water color work attracted the most attention. It showed that pupils had not only great originality, but a sense of beauty and an ability to blend colors so as to get the best effects for their subjects. Some fine designs in wood carving were shown, a result of the manual training instruction. This work proved very attractive.

Penmanship, neatness in mathematics, in fact, every department of the school work indicated careful and pains-taking effort on the part of the teachers, who took much pride in describing the method employed at the school.

Another noticeable feature was the splendid condition of the school itself. Absolute cleanliness is the rule and the janitor evidently lives up to the rule. Especially good were the nature studies at a "sand farm" by the pupils of the Kindergarten.

The exhibit will be given again this evening at 8 o'clock and the parents of all the pupils of the school are urged to attend and gain some knowledge of what their children are learning and doing.

The teachers under Principal Miss Griffin are: Miss Addie Eastman, Miss Tennant, Miss Crane, Miss Marsh, Miss Woods, Miss Barrett, Miss Allie Eastman, Miss Reynolds, Miss Lee and Miss Decker.

STILLMAN BOYS WALLOP THE GRACE CHURCH TEAM.

Grace church team was defeated by the nine from the Stillman school, in a seven inning game yesterday by the score of 19 to 5. The contest proved a merry-go-round. The battery for Grace church team was Cottrell, Huelson and Rogers and Manley, and Waller and Hanahan, were in the points for Stillman. The score by innings:

ADOPT PLATFORM

New Jersey Progressive Republicans Elect Officers for Campaign.

At a largely attended meeting of the Progressive Republican League of New Jersey, in Newark yesterday afternoon, a State platform was adopted for the campaign of next fall and officers were elected. This was followed by a dollar dinner last night in the Krueger auditorium, which was attended by seven hundred men and was marked by enthusiasm. Among those in the gathering were Mayor G. W. V. Moy, Howard Tracy, Arthur Lovell and Dr. M. L. Clawson, all of this city.

Progressive addresses were made by Senator Albert A Cummins, of Iowa; George L. Record, of Jersey City, and Frank H. Sommer and Judge William P. Martin, of Newark. There was the usual scoring of boss rule and the accomplishments of the progressives, and their plans for the future, were told.

The afternoon election resulted in the choice of Edmund B. Osborne, of Montclair, for another term as president; Frank Higgins, of Jersey City, as secretary, and Lathrop Anderson, of Newark, as treasurer. The president was empowered to name a vice-president and one member of the Executive Committee from each county. The new platform opens with congratulations to the State for the enactment of the primary and election reform law, the corrupt practices act, the workmen's compensation and public utilities acts.

Credit is given Governor Wilson for his leadership in the fight but a large share is taken by the progressives for having by years of fighting stirred up a public sentiment which was the Governor's main reliance. Support for progressive candidates is urged, so the bosses cannot return to power and nullify the reforms. The platform pledges the progressives to the Oregon plan of electing United States Senators, to a reduction of rates on gas, arc lights, water, telephone and railroad commutation tickets, enforcement in full of public utilities law and complete taxation of railroad property, home rule, the referendum convention.

George L. Record, of Newark, made the strongest speech of the evening, declaring that by a combination of circumstances which can only be explained on the theory of active intervention of divine Providence in political affairs, one of the most remarkable men of our times was put into office in New Jersey. Governor Wilson's absolute faith toward the public, he added, resulted in making laws of the entire progressive program.

WALTER BELL WON

Captures Most Points at the Netherwood Annual Athletic Meet.

The Netherwood athletic meet held at the old hunt club grounds yesterday afternoon, under the efficient management of Stanley Hazleton Bellows, was a great success from start to finish. There was a large number of entries in the various events. Walter Bell, won three events, the 220 yard dash, 440 yard dash and the one mile run, also was point-winner. He was no match, however, for Pelham Wilmerding in the 60 yard dash. The summary:

60 yard dash—(Juniors)—First, Pelham Wilmerding; second, Benjamin Cooley; third, Kenneth Platt. Time 6 1-5 seconds.

60 yard dash—(Seniors)—First, Mead Holstein; second, Alfred Day; third, Clinton Berrian. Time, 6 3-5 seconds.

100 yard dash—(Juniors)—First, Craig Blair; second, Walter Bell; third, Benjamin Cooley. Time, 11 4-5 seconds.

100 yard dash—(Seniors)—First, Mead Holstein; second, Alfred Day; third, Clinton Berrian. Time,11 2-5 seconds.

Running high jump—(Juniors)—First, Stanley Bellows; second, Esty Foster; third, Pelham Wilmerding. Jump, 4 feet 5 inches.

220 yard dash—(Juniors)—First, Walter Bell; second, Kenneth Platt; third, Voorhees Borden. Time, 32 2-5 seconds.

440 yard dash—(Juniors)—First, Walter Bell; second, Stanley Bellows; third, Pelham Wilmerding. Time 67 seconds.

Hop, step and jump—(Juniors)—First Craig Blair; second, Benjamin Cooley; third, Esty Foster. Jump 30 feet 6 inches.

One mile run—(Juniors)—First, Walter Bell; second, Voorhees Borden; third, William Moore. Time, 6 minutes 56 seconds.

BORNMAN PENALTY

Warren Twp. School Fund Custodian Gets a Light Sentence.

John Bornmann, who for the past seven years was custodian of school funds in Warren township, and was recently found guilty of the charge of being short in his accounts to the extent of about $3,000, was sentneced by Judge Clarence L. Case in the Somerset County Court, this morning to serve nine months in the county jail and pay a fine of $100 The sentence, which is considered a light one, was due to the fact that no criminal intent was shown on the part of Bornmann.

Prior to sentencing the prisoner, Alvah A. Clark, counsel for Bornman presented a petition signed by two hundred residents of Warren township, and including members of the school board, asking the court to show leniency in his case. It is also stated that Bornmann had made full resitution of the shortage, had disposed of his property and that his father and sister had assisted him in making good the shortage.

So far as can be learned Bornmann was the beneficiary of about $440 of the $3,000, the balance representing various sums loaned by him to friends in Warren township. It is generally considered that Bornmann was simply a tool for others, and yet in the face of this fact he has steadfastly refused to disclose the names of those to whom he made loans.

The shortage, it is said, occurred between 1905 and 1910, but various notes and other valuable papers were burned, thus destroying evidence which it is believed might involve other well-known residents of the township. It has been remarked that Bornmann's sentence was even lighter than that of Joel Coddington, but this is explained by the fact that Coddington defied the court.

Horace Coddington, who was also implicated in township affairs, was sentenced to eighteen months in State Prison, but the case is now up on appeal. There are many who believe that Coddington will eventually have to serve the time at Trenton.

7TH DAY BAPTIST MEN TO HOLD BANQUET

The Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will hold its annual meeting and election of officers Sunday evening when a supper will be held. There will be several short speeches and a program of music. David E. Titsworth will be the toastmaster. This will be the last meeting of the club prior to the summer vacation.

The Junior and Senior C. E. Societies of the church will hold a union service tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The topic will be "Growing into Larger Work." The leader will be the superintendent of the Junior society, Franklin A. Langworthy.

Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor, will preach at the regular service at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning and the Sabbath-school will meet at 11:45, and the prayer meeting will be held this evening at 8 o'clock.

The annual meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist Eastern Association will be held with the church at Berlin, N. Y., May 25-28, and Rev. Edwin Shaw, of the local church, will attend. In the absence his pulpit will be occupied by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church.

PLAINFIELD'S SHARE OF STATE SCHOOL MONEY.

ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN BY FIRST BAPTIST S.S

The annual entertainment and social of the Sunday-school of the First Baptist church held at the church last night proved most enjoyable and was marked by a large attendance. The affair was in charge of a general committee comprising Mrs. Lewis Matlack, chairman; Mrs. John G. MacLaughlin, Mrs. A. L. Kennelly, Mrs. J. V. E. Vanderhoff and Mrs. Robert Pierce.

The entertainment was a novel one in that each class or some member from each class was expected to furnish the program. Among the enjoyable numbers were vocal solos by Herbert Stine, piano selections by Miss Constance Harris, Miss Grace LeMatty, Miss Amy Conant; recitations by Miss Campbell; violin selections by Miss Ruth Martin; several selections by the male quartet from Dr. Norman Probasco's Bible class; also selections by a chorus of young women from the classes taught by Miss Moffett and Harold Serrell.

One pleasing feature was a flag drill given by the young girls from Miss Ruth Day's class. They also sang the "Star Spangled Banner." being accompanied on the piano by Miss Teeter.

Following the entertainment, there was a social time and ice cream and cake were served. The gathering also enjoyed singing popular songs. Robin Brown's class of young men amused all with a parody on a well-known song, which called forth hearty applause.

HARD LUCK COMES TO J. E. STEURWALD

People who have been overjoyed at the receipt of an unexpected gift only to be disappointed a momen later to find it was not intended for then can sympathize with J. Edward Steurwald, of East Second street. He had an experience yesterday or rather a double one, that fits the joy to sadness proposition some times known as good luck and then bad luck.

Mr. Steurwald is the proprietor of a garage on West Fifty-first street, New York. Wednesday night last, as he was closing up business for the day a patron dropped in to pay a bill. In the hurry of making out a bill in order to catch a train, he inadvertently placed $800 in bills and several checks in a desk compartment. He never thought another thing about it until about 5 o'clock yesterday morning, when he awoke at his home and suddenly recalled the transaction of the night before. Hastily springing out of bed he looked in the pockets of his clothing only to find that they contained only some small change. Uncertain as to whether he had left the $800 at the garage or had taken it with him and lost it somewhere, Mr. Steurwald hurried to the east bound station just in time to catch the 6:02 train to New York. Arriving at the garage a little after 7 he was greatly relieved to find that the roll was intact just where he had placed it. The desk was unlocked and it would have been an easy matter for anyone of the dozens of people passing in and out of the place during the night to take it.

Mr. Steurwald had hardly settled back in his chair with a sigh of satisfaction when the telephone bell jingle sharply. In response to his reply that he was the proprietor of the garage, a voice at the other end of the wire said:

"This is Queen City, L. I., police station. We have a couple of auto license numbers belonging to you. Will you call for them or will we send them to you?"

The puzzled Plainfielder inquired if the licenses had not been attached to a car.

"Oh, yes," said the voice, "there was a car but you will be the best judge of what it is now."

Filled with misgivings, Mr. Steurwald looked in the storage room and found that a big limousine car was missing. The hurry to the 6:02 train was repeated in an auto dash to Queen City where the worse was realized. An employe of the garage proprietor had taken out the machine for a joy ride late Wednesday night. Something happened just outside Queen City and after climbing a telephone pole, breaking through a fence and turning over in a ditch the Limousine was left an utter wreck. The recreant driver was taken to a hospital for various severe injuries. The car itself was not worth picking up for repairs.

"Yes, those are my license numbers," said Mr. Steurwald at the police station, "and they are all that remains of what represented $1,000 to me yesterday. The amount is a total loss."

DEATH SUMMONS MRS. HUNTINGTON

Highly Respected Women Succumbs in Roosevelt Hospital, Following Operation.

Mrs. Azelia Caroline Huntington, aged about seventy years, wife of Samuel Huntington, of Franklin place, died this morning at Roosevelt Hospital, New York, following an operation performed on Wednesday. She had been ill but a short time, the trouble which caused her death developing very quickly. Specialists were summoned and after a consultation an operation at Roosevelt Hospital was decided upon. The operation, it is said, was successful, but complications followed which resulted in death.

Mrs. Huntington was Miss Azelia Caroline Zerega, and was the daughter of the late Augustus Zerega. She was born in New York city, and had been a resident of this city for about thirty years. During that time she was probably one of the most public spirited women of the city. She was deeply interested in charitable enterprises and was a liberal contributor to all worthy causes. There are a great many people who received from her bounty.

Mrs. Huntington was a member of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, the Monday Afternoon Club and the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, and very active in each one right up to the time she was taken ill. She was a woman of rare judgment and possessed many qualities for which she was greatly admired. As a member of All Souls' church, she was also active, and devoted a great deal of her time to the work of the various departments of that church. She was also a member of the Woman's Exchange, where her help and advice proved incalculable in the management of the worthy charity.

Mrs. Huntington is survived by a husband, three sons, Howard Huntington, of this city, and Augustus and Fred Huntington, of Scranton, Pa., and one daughter, Miss Florence Huntington, also of this city. The announcement of the funeral will be made tomorrow.

DOUBLE SURPRISE FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

An event of double interest was the "miscellaneous shower" for Miss Maud Emmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Emmons, of Prospect avenue, and birthday surprise party for Royle T. Phillips, of West Front street, given last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy F. Phillips, on Madison avenue. Both were in the nature of a surprise to each other. Miss Emmons thought she was going to attend the surprise to Mr. Phillips, while the latter planned to attend the "shower" for Miss Emmons.

Miss Emmons, who will marry Arthur VanArsdale on June 15, received a large collection of gifts of a miscellaneous character, while Mr. Phillips was also pleasantly remembered. There were about forty guests. A feature of the evening was dancing. During an intermission refreshments were served.

AGAIN TONIGHT.

Don't forget that the Park Comedy Club will repeat its rattling performmance of "The Henrietta" tonight at the Plainfield theatre. It is chock full of fun and the cast is far superior to that of many a $2 show you have seen. And remember that the proceeds go to the Anti-Tuberculosis society, not to be used in some foreign land but right here in Plainfield among our own people. Get your tickets at the box office.

Ran Down Motorcyclist.

Clifford Cole, of West Second street, while motorcycling on Craig place last night, was run down by a horse and runabout near Duer street. The driver of the rig whipped up and his identity is not known. Mr. Cole was hurled to the roadway, but fortunately escaped with a few cuts and bruises. His motorcycle had to be taken to a repair shop.

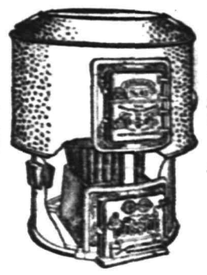
Heating Problems Solved



Sectional view of BOYNTON FURNACE, showing Patented square fire pot and large ash pit.

HERE is the furnace that heats the house from first floor to the attic—makes no dust—little ash, and less bother. A BOYNTON "square pot" furnace will give summer temperature in zero weather, on a surprisingly small amount of coal. It's the square fire pot that does it. The never smothers out because the fire pot is full of ash and cinder. A turn of the BOYNTON ash cutting grate clears the fire completely. The BOYNTON has a capacious square cornered ash pit, that you can shovel out clean. BOYNTON boilers—for house, school, or church heating—have this same economical fire pot. DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Dunellen F. C. will play the Rahway F. C. at Dunellen tomorrow afternoon. Some of the local fans will remember how this same Rahway team smashed Montross' benders for five runs in the first inning of the game with their team last year. It will be interesting to see whether they will be able to duplicate with Wendt's sharp breaking curves tomorrow afternoon.

Defender Fire Company's annual ball will be held in Junior Hall tonight and it goes without saying that there will be a capacity attendance. Delegates from fire companies at Lincoln, New Market and Bound Brook will be present. Naylor's enlarged orchestra, will furnish the musical program.

The birthday social given at Mrs. William Smith's home last night, by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church, proved a successful affair. The attendance was large and the program prepared was greatly enjoyed. A neat sum was realized for the society's treasury.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wyckoff, of Bayonne, were recent visitors at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Wyckoff, of Washington avenue.

Miss Fanny Smith has returned home from Muhlenberg Hospital, where she has been under treatment for several weeks.

Michael Moynihan, of the borough, has been entertaining friends from Old Bridge.

FOR PLAINFIELD PUPILS

The Plainfield Ice & Supply Co. will give a prize of $25 in cash to the pupil of any school, public or private, in Plainfield or North Plainfield, who shall submit the best written advertisement for the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company's business, to occupy a space equal to the space taken by this annoncement.

The judges will be the Editors of the Courier-News and Daily Press. The conditions will be as follows:

The advertisement as written should be sent to the office of the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., with a separate sheet of paper attached, bearing the writer's name, and name of the school he or she attends. Both sheets thus submitted will be numbered by the Company in the order received, and the sheet bearing the name of the contestant will be held by the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., and the advertisement with the corresponding number will be sent to the judges, so that the judges will have no knowledge of the name of the writer. The advertisement which is decided to be the best will be so marked, and sent to the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company, who will by reference to the sheets in their possession, determine the name of the successful contestant.

The contest will end May 30, all letters received up to midnight of that day being eligible to the competition.

NOTICE FOR SIDEWALKS.

Office of the Street Commissioner
City of Plainfield, N. J.

To Eliza Newman, Charles E. Hazeltine, Eva E. Lockwood, unknown owner, Louise Shaw Richards, Robert G. Langdon, William Ray Delano, Alice E. Walsh, Sarah P. Cudlipp, owners of lands affected by contemplated improvement to sidewalks thereof.

You having neglected for the space of thirty days to make the improvement to the sidewalk of the property situate at Nos. 1246 to 1254, 1264 to 1272, 1318 to 1346, 1348 to 1358, 1289 to 1297, 1299 to 1313, 1315 to 1321, 1341 to 1347, and 1349 to 1359 Denmark Road, Plainfield, New Jersey, and respectively known and designated on the "Block Assessment Maps of the City of Plainfield, Union County, New Jersey, Second Ward, 1909," on file in the office of the Collector of Taxes, as

No. 1246 to 1254 Denmark Road, Block 285 G, Eliza Newman;
No. 1264 to 1272 Denmark Road, Block 285 G, Chas. E. Hazeltine;
No. 1318 to 1346 Denmark Road, Block 285 G, Eva E. Lockwood;
No. 1348 to 1358 Denmark Road, Block 285 G, Unknown Owner;
No. 1289 to 1297 Denmark Road, Block 285 H, Louisa Shaw Richards;
No. 1299 to 1313 Denmark Road, Block 285 H, Robert G. Langdon;
No. 1315 to 1321 Denmark Road, Block 285 H, William Ray Delano;
No. 1341 to 1347 Denmark Road, Block 285 H, Alice E. Walsh;

are directed and required by the Ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled, "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction and Repair of Sidewalks and Curbs," approved July 15, 1910, the Common Council of said City has directed such improvement to be made under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner, and further directed notice of such contemplated improvement to be given to the owner or owners of any lands thereby affected, and further directed that if such improvement shall not be completed within the time and in the manner directed in this notice, the Street Commissioner shall thereupon forthwith proceed to cause such improvement to be made by the City under his direction, as authorized by said Ordinance and the Act of the Legislature hereinafter referred to. The foregoing is a description of your property affected, sufficiently definite in terms to identify the same, and the following is a description of the required improvement, viz.: the construction on said Denmark Road adjoining said property of a sidewalk to be laid as directed in said Ordinance (to which Ordinance and the record thereof in the City Clerk's Office reference is hereby made for greater certainty), at the expense of the abutting land owners, composed either (1) of bluestone flagging, smooth and even on the surface, and properly laid under the direction of the Street Commissioner, said blue-stone flags to be not less than four feet long transversely to the length of the street, not less than two feet wide lengthwise of said street, and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part; or (2) of concrete to be laid in conformity with the specifications for cement sidewalks as set forth in Standard Specifications for Portland Cement Sidewalks and Curbs, filed in the office of the City Clerk, April 11th, 1910. The Street Commissioner shall give the correct lines and grades in all cases.

Notice is further given that unless said improvement shall be completed within thirty days after the service of this notice, it is the intention of said City to make said improvement or cause the same to be made, pursuant to the authority of the Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled, "An Act to authorize cities to construct and repair sidewalks and curbs, and to provide for the payment of the cost thereof," approved April 13, 1908, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Proof under oath of the publication or service of this notice will be filed within two days thereafter in the Office of the City Collector, being the officer charged with the duty of making official searches for liens.

Said Act of the Legislature provides that in case of non-payment of the charges authorized thereby, the land and real estate subject to the liens of such charges may be sold in the manner provided for the sale of lands for the non-payment of assessments.

Dated, Plainfield, N. J., May 19, 1911.

BOY SCOUTS TO SCOUT AT SEA

Sea scouting for boys as a means of arousing interest among Americans in the merchant marine is another idea of the Boy Scout movement. A. A. Carey, of Waltham, Mass., is so interested that he has bought a Gloucester fishing smack of about eighty tons gross. He is having this vessel converted into a scout ship. Mr. Carey is hopeful that other men interested in the Boy Scout work will take up sea scouting. He is ambitious to have a fleet of scout ships along the Atlantic coast and another along the Pacific coast.

Mr. Carey looks upon the sea scouting as of importance to Americans, and believes that if American boys can be aroused to an interest in the sea, there will be a greater chance for the development of our merchant marine, he thinks that his scout ship, called the "Pioneer," will provide plenty of fun and hopeful training for the boys.

Mr. Carey describes his vessel as follows:

"Her cabin amidship will contain nineteen folding canvas berths, of which eighteen are to be occupied by boys, and one by their Scout Master, Stanley Cady. There will be three small patrols of six boys each, so that a single patrol will man one of the two boats which will be carried slung on the davits over the side. When at anchor in suitable places the boys will have boat practice and boat games, with swimming, diving, etc. While at sea they will be divided into watches and taught as much practical sailing and navigation as possible. During July and August there will be four cruises of nearly two weeks each, and the cost will be about the same as that of a summer camp.

CANADIAN NOTES

A company has been formed to erect a large hotel on McNabs Island near Halifax, with which it will be connected by a ferry.

The developement of the tungsten deposits at Waverley, Nova Scotia, promises to rival the deposits of scheelite near Moose River. Two shafts are being sunk one already 25 feet deep.

There is only one motor delivery car in Halifax whose estimated population is about 50,000). It is used by a firm of stove founders, and it is a 10-horse-power Bush delivery car, but the firm will add a larger one. The firm has taken the agency for the car.

An application has been filed at the town clerk's office, Dartmouth, across the harbor from Halifax, for permission to operate a motorcar cab service there and a passenger service to Cow Bay, about 12 miles distant.

The first car decided on will seat 15 persons, and is a 20-horsepower machine. The seats run along the sides, and the car has a canopy top.

A Canadian journal says that in ten years the cost of Canadian forest productions have in some cases doubled and in some cases quadrupled, and for those uses to which cement can not be adopted and timber is necessary the values are likely to go even higher. In ten years pine has trebled in price, elm quadrupled, and cedar more than doubled. Such timbers as walnut and hickory are becoming almost unknown.

Many advantages are anticipated under the new Nova Scotia workmen's compensation act, among them being: (1) The workman avonids uncertain and often expensive litigation, which he can seldom afford, to recover for injuries; (2) In case of death a fixed scale of compensation ranges from a weekly payment not to exceed $7 up to $1,500 to the workman's family; (3) A much larger number of persons can recover compensation in case of death than under the present law.

Consul Horace J. Harvey, of Fort Erie, Ontario, notes the proposed location at Welland of a large branch of the Deere Plow Works, of Moline, Ill. It is stated by Canadian papers that it will employ several thousand men.

The Plainfield Baseball Club will meet Somerville for the first time this season on Crescent Oval, tomorrow afternoon and a red hot contest is expected. Jimmie Montross will pitch for Plainfield and will be opposed by Jimmie Clinton, whose box work is well-known. The Somerset county boys will be accompanied by a large number of rooters.

"Cliff" Randolph, who is again pitching for the Binghampton New York State League team, is making good. His work this year is the best in his career and the Plainfielder is very popular with the fans in the New York State city.

The article of baseball being furnished by the Plainfield Baseball Club deserves the support of every local fan. Manager Dorflinger has an aggregation of players that are putting up a fast game and only the best teams in its class are being scheduled for games.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The trustees of the First Baptist church contemplate making some repairs and improvements to the edifice during the summer months.

F. E. Smith will have charge of the services at the Netherwood Reformed church, Sunday morning, and F. H. Andrews will conduct the evening service.

Rev. E. C. Conover, of Pemberton, the pastor-elect of the Temple Baptist church, expects to remove to Plainfield with his family the latter part of next week, and he will preach his first sermon on Sunday, May 28. The family will reside on East Second street.

Frank Remsen, of East Millstone, was in Plainfield, yesterday, calling on friends.

STARS IN DOUBLES

H. H. Hackett and Miss Fleming Defeat G.G. Touchard and Miss Bunce.

The tennis season had an auspicious opening at the Plainfield Country Club yesterday afternoon when prominent women players were paired with men equally conspicuous in the game in mixed doubles, the card also included men's doubles and the events attracted more than two hundred people.

Possibly one of the best features of the afternoon play was the work of Miss Barbara Fleming, of the local club, one of the winners of the National indoor doubles title this year. She gained her bracket in the semi-final with Harold H. Hackett, the National champion. This pair played Miss Elizabeth C. Bunce and G. F. Touchard, and after three sets of slashing rallies, during which Hackett often covered up and saved the faults of enthusiasm of his young partner, the two won at 6-2, 2-6, 6-2.

In the second set Touchard took command on his side of the net and he gave Hackett a taste of the sting of his crossing shots and with such good effect that he scored the set. It was impossible for him to keep up the pace, however, so that in the third set Miss Fleming more than did her share toward winning the odd set.

Another interesting match resulted in Miss Elizabeth Moore and Lyle E. Mahan, defeating Miss Marie Wagner and Howard A. Plummer, 6-3, 6-4. The summary:

Mixed Doubles—First Round—Miss Elizabeth H. Moore and Lyle E. Mahan defeated Miss Marie Wagner and H. A. Plummer, 6-3, 6-4; Miss Barbara Fleming and H. H. Hackett defeated Miss Elizabeth C. Bunce, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2; Miss Adelaide Browning and W. M. Hall defeated Miss Edna Wildey and F. G. Inman, 6-3, 6-2; Miss Clara Kuttroff and G. C. Schafer defeated Mrs. F. C. Schmitz and C. R. Gardner, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Men's Doubles—First Round—H. H. Hackett and C. R. Gardner defeated Karl Behr and O. M. Bostwick, 6-3, 6-4; T. R. Pell and Lyle E. Mahan defeated F. C. Inman and H. A. Plummer, 6-4, 6-2; W. B. Cragin, Jr., and W. M. Hall defeated A. M. Collens and W. L. Righter, 6-2, 6-3.

This afternoon in the semi-final of the men's double, Pell and Mahan will meet Hall and Cragin and Hackett and Gardner will meet Touchard and Shafer, while in the semi-final of the mixed doubles Miss Moore and L. E. Mahan will meet Miss Fleming and Harold H. Hackett and Miss Kuttroff and G. C. Shafer will meet Miss Browning and W. M. Hall. The play will be continued tomorrow afternoon.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press: —

In some way you have in today's issue of you paper, me mixed up in a fight on Park avenue and Fourth street, and please contradict this as I am innocent of any such accusation.

Yours truly,
GEORGE GILDERSLEVE, JR.

AGAIN TONIGHT.

Don't forget that the Park Comedy Club will repeat its rattling performance of "The Henrietta" tonight at the Plainfield theatre. It is chock full of fun and the cast is far superior to that of many a $2 show you have seen. And remember that the proceeds go to the Anti-Tuberculosis society, not to be used in some foreign land but right here in Plainfield among our own people. Get your tickets at the box office.

Finger to Be Amputated.

Fireman Joseph Clark, who has been suffering from blood poisoning in the left hand for several weeks, will undergo an operation tomorrow for the amputation of one of his fingers. Every attempt has been made to save it but without success. Mr. Clark contracted the poisoning while at work at the Harrigan storage barn fire on South avenue, a jagged piece of corrugated iron tearing his hand.

Received Victim's Effects.

Undertaker George W. Cole received by mail from Coroner Totten, of Morris county, this morning the only effects taken from the body of Elsie Walpole, following the automobile accident at Chester. They were what established her identity.

TWO NOTED ONES HURT WHEN CAR OVERTURNS.

Mrs. Bernard Clark, of West Fourth street, while out automobile riding yesterday in the vicinity of Farmingdale, passed Mrs. J. Borden Harriman and William G. McAdoo, of New York, both of whom were severely injured a little later by the overturning of the car which Mr. McAdoo was driving. Prior to the accident, Mrs. Clark's auto was stopped to repair a tire, and a little later Mrs. Clark came upon the New Yorkers after they had upset.

Violated Auto Ordinance.

W. H. Weldon, of Westfield, was arraigned in the borough court this morning on two charges of violating the automobile ordinance. He was fined $10 and also severely lectured by Recorder Dolliver.

The picnic which the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church planned for tomorrow, will be postponed because the pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, has been called to officiate at a burial service.

Miss M. E. Adams and Miss Edith Johnson, of this city, will leave tomorrow on the Friederich der Grosse of the North German Lloyd line for Naples and Genoa, by the way of Gibraltar and Algiers.

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY OPEN

Interest in the opening exercises of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, which began yesterday on the steel pier, Atlantic City, centered in the sermon of the retiring moderator, Rev. Dr. Charles Little. He paid a tribute to Governor Wilson, saying that he hoped the number of Christian statesmen might increase, "even though at times they are recruited from the ranks of college presidents and the clergy." Dr. Little's reference to "The Breadth of Christian Doctrine" was construed by some as having to do with the heresy trials that it is said will come before the assembly.

Dr. Little took for his subject "The Ministry of Elijah and Elisha, Then and Now." After contrasting the characters of the ancient prophets, Elijah as destructive, a separatist and a reformer, and Elisha as constructive, harmonizing and a peacemaker, he asked whether there were not today ministers who differed as widely in gifts, knowledge and wisdom and yet were equally honored of God.

"The contrast may not be so wide and the dividing line so sharply defined," said Dr. Little, "but in modified sense, are there not Elijahs and Elishas in the pulpit of today? May not the glory of Kingdom and its ultimate victory be hastened thereby?"

Rev. J. O. McKelvey, Rev. F. C. Greene and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring are attending the assembly.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Henry Muzeberger, the young Woodbury man who was held up and attacked by a negro some weeks ago, is in a serious condition and is not expected to recover.

It is said that between twenty and thirty candidates from Gloucester county for game warden will take the civil service examination at Atlantic City, today and Saturday.

With all his clothes on Jacob Van Dorn, a Public Service employe, jumped into the race in the rear of the company's plant, in Passaic, Wednesday, and rescued three-year-old Anna Mears, of Washington place, from drowning.

After litigation of several years, Judge Tuller, of the Cumberland County Courts, granted a license Wednesday to the hotel at Greenwich Piers, owned by Newkirk Wentz. He formerly had license, but lost it owing to charges being made against him for infraction of the law.

Carrie Liebhardt, of Red Bank, and Mary Coleman, of 423 York street, Jersey City, who escaped from the State Village for Epileptics at Skillman, near Trenton, Saturday night last and walked all the way to Jersey City, were sent back to the village Wednesday.

Palestine Commandery, Knights Templars, of Trenton, will observe Ascension Day, Thursday next, by special services in the First M. E. church, and will have as guests Helena Commandery, of Burlington, Cyrene, of Camden, Ivanhoe, of Bordentown and St. Elmo, of Lambertville.

With flames leaping up from his back, Fred Rudnick rode his bicycle up Main avenue, Vineland, Wednesday, unaware of the fact that his clothing was on fire. Mrs. Lucy DeLuca and two neighboring women saw Rudnick's plight and shouted for him to stop. The women threw him down, rolled him and smothered the flames with their aprons and skirts.

George Oliver, a teamster, attempted to drive over the Reading tracks Wednesday at the Broad street crossing, Cape May, and was struck by the morning express, his wagon demolished and himself probably fatally injured. Oliver was conveyed to a Philadelphia hospital. His brother, Charles was killed on the same road in 1897, catching his foot in a frog at a switch and being run down.

Chief of Police Gravenor, of Camden, was Wednesday night notified that the dog was rabid which bit several little girls while they were at recess in the yard of the Reed School, Fifth and York streets, on Tuesday. The animal's head was examined by an expert at the University of Pennsylvania. The Board of Health sent to an institute for special treatment the children who were bitten.

"I regret very much that I must discharge this defendent," said United States Commissioner Morgan in Camden Wednesday, after giving a further hearing to Conway Morris, a negro, accused of violating the white slave traffic act. "The facts in this case show an utterly depraved condition of affairs, but they do not warant holding this man." Bessie Rowand and Annie Poindexter, both colored, were the alleged "white slaves," according to the complaint made by Frank Gabadina, special agent of the department of justice. It was charged they had been taken to Atlantic City by Morris for immoral purposes. Both refused to admit that Morris had anything to do with their going to the seashore.

SELLING FINEST HATS
AT A GREATLY LOWERED PRICE

Every woman is more or less interested in this sale of high-grade millinery—not that every woman can afford an expensive hat but they are interested in them because they are beautiful. When we tell you that the ostrich plumes and aigrettes on many of these hats alone are worth more than the price we are asking, you will realize that it is really a stroke of economy to pick up one of these bargains. The plumes and aigrettes are always useful and will do service on a dozen of hats hereafter, making them a splendid investment, and the French flowers with which these hats are bedecked are equally useful for future seasons—that's the beauty of buying hats of the finer sort. If a woman strains a point to secure one of these hats she can in future, at very small expense, have a fashionable and elegant hat for the price most people are paying for the most commonplace sort.

These hats were marked $35.00 to $90.00. We are selling them now at only $22.50

MORE MODESTLY PRICED HATS

In conjunction with the sale of highest-class hats we are going to offer some of the more modest creations at greatly reduced prices soo that all desires may be met—

$4.75 to $6 Trimmed Hats at only $2.
$6.50 to $8.75 Trimmed Hats at only $3.
$9 to $12.50 Trimmed Hats only $4.50.
$12.75 to $16.50 Trimmed Hats only $6.

Untrimmed and Ready-to-Wear Hats in various styles of braids, in all desirable shapes, colors and effects—only a few of a kind but many kinds, regular prices ranging from $1.50 to $3—take them while the lot lasts at only 97c

CONTINUATION SALE
$20 BLUE SERGE SUITS
AT $14.75

Silk Lined. Guaranteed Sun-Proof.

This sale of Blue Serge Suits at $14.75 is creating unusual comment among men who know Blue Serge. We don't pretend to say that Blue Serges have never been sold at an equally low price. But you have never before seen suits made of GILBERT SERGE, INDIGO DYED, GUARANTEED SUN-PROOF AND SILK LINED offered for less than $20.

And that's just what these suits are. Beside every garment is tailored so as to retain its shapeliness as long as it is worn and shows exceptional tailoring skill in every detail of construction.

Why not come in and select now? You'll have a snappy suit to wear on Decoration Day and at the same time save a likely sum toward defraying the day's outing expenses.

Sale of Men's Spring Overcoats at $10.25

Formerly $15, $16 and $16.50.

Men's $3.50, $4 and $5

Oxfords and Summer High Shoes $2.85

Saturday the Last Day

The leathers are Tan and Wine Russia Calf, Gunmetal and Wax Calf, Tan and Black Viei Kid and Patent Coltskin. Button, Lace and Blucher Styles in an unusually wide choice of toe shapes. All perfect and every pair made to sell this season. (Tru-Tred Dept.)

GOLF.

As the time approaches for the Griscom Cup matches and the championship tournament of the Women's Eastern Golf Association over the Brae Burn links, near Boston, the week of June 5, there is a noticeable increase in activity among the players throughout the district chiefly concerned. One of the most troublesome problems of the Eastern Association is the attempt to keep the handicap sheet up to date so that it may prove a reliable guide to the various tournament committees.

On the new list appear the names of more than 300 women and the handicaps extend up to eighteen, inclusive. Miss Dorothy Campbell, of Hamliton, Ont., winner of the women's national title in this country for the last two years, and Miss F. C. Osgood, of Boston, the Eastern champion, are placed in a class by themselves at plus 1, but it seems doubtful if these golfers, as clever as they are, could concede nine strokes to those greatly improved players, Miss Louise B. Elkins and Miss Mary Fownes, the Pittsburg pair, who recently sailed for the other side to take part in the women's championship of Great Britain, to be held this year at Portrush, Ireland.

Included among the players at scratch are no less than five former national champions: Miss G. M. Bishop, of Brooklyn; Miss H. S. Curtis and Miss Margaret Curtis, of Boston; Miss K. C. Harley, of Fall River, and Mrs. C. T. Stout, of Richmond county. These are all practicing now, with the exception of Mrs. Stout, who played scarcely any last season.

The task of handicapping the players has fallen upon four committees. There is the main association committee, consisting of Miss Fanny C. Osgood, chairman; Mrs. E. F. Sanford and Miss Frances C. Griscom, assisted by the following: Boston, Miss Fanny C. Osgood, Mrs. F. W. Batchelder and Mrs. E. C. Wheeler, Jr.; New York, Mrs. E. F. Sanford, Mrs. M. D. Paterson and Mrs. W. F. Morgan; Philadelphia, Mrs. W. S. Hilles, Miss H. E. Maule and Miss E. G. Hood. Had the golfers rated represented only a few clubs, the work of the handicappers would have been troublesome enough, but it so happened that the list of 300-odd were scattered over such a wide territory that no less than seventy-seven clubs appear on the sheet.

Regarding Chickens.

Senator Money, of Mississippi, asked an old colored man what breed of chickens he considered the best and he replied: "All kinds has merits. De white ones is de easiest to find, but the black ones is de easiest to hide after you gits 'em."—Sunday Magazine.

A Postponement.

"Please, sir," said the office boy.

"Well, what is it?" demanded the boss.

"Please, sir, could I get off again today? We had to postpone grandma's funeral yesterday on account of the rain."—Deroit Free Press.

something in the attitude he now took, something in the way he bent over his client and whispered a few admonitory words, and, still more, the emotion with which these words were received and answered by some extraordinary protest, aroused expectation to a still greater pitch and made my course seem even more painful to myself than I had foreseen when dreaming over and weighing the possibilities of this hour. With something like terror I awaited the calling of my name, and when it was delayed it was with emotions inexplicable to myself that I looked up and saw Mr. Moffat holding open a door at the left of the judge with that attitude of respect which a man only assumes in the presence and under the dominating influence of woman.

"Ella!" thought I. "Instead of saving her by my contemplated sacrifice of Carmel, I have only added one sacrifice to another."

But when the timid, faltering step we could faintly hear crossing the room beyond had brought its possessor within sight and I perceived the tall, black robed, heavily veiled woman who reached for Mr. Moffat's sustaining arm I did not need the startling picture of the prisoner, standing upright with outheld and repellant hands, to realize that the impossible had happened and that all which he, as well as I, had done and left undone, suffered and suppressed had been in vain.

"I SUMMON CARMEL CUMBERLAND."

Mr. Moffat, with no eye for him or for me, conducted his witness to a chair. Then as she loosened her veil and let it drop in her lap he cried in tones which rang from end to end of the courtroom, "I summon Carmel Cumberland to the stand to witness in her brother's defense."

The surprise was complete. It was a great moment for Mr. Moffat, but for me all was confusion, dread, a veil of misty darkness through which shone her face, marred by its ineffaceable scar, but calm as I had never expected to see it again in this life and beautiful with a smile under which her deeply shaken and hardly conscious brother sank slowly back into his seat amid a silence as profound as the hold she had immediately taken upon all hearts.

CHAPTER XXII.

"WHERE IS MY BROTHER?"

WHAT is the explanation of Carmel's reappearance in town and of this sensational introduction of her into the courtroom in a restored state of health of which no one, so far as known, had had any intimation save the man who was responsible for her appearance? The particulars are due you.

She had passed some weeks at Lakewood under the eye of Miss Unwin, the nurse who was detailed to watch as well as tend her. During these weeks she gave no sign of improvement mentally, though she constantly gained strength otherwise and impressed everybody with the clear light in her eye and the absence of everything suggestive of gloom in her expression and language. There was the same complete loss of memory up to the time of the tragic occurrence which had desolated her home; the same harping at odd moments on Adelaide's happiness and her own prospect of seeing this dear sister very soon which had marked the opening days of her convalescence. But beyond and back of all this was some secret joy, unintelligible to the nurse, which helped rather than retarded the sick girl's recovery.

Meanwhile Carmel was allowed such liberty as her condition required, but was never left alone for a moment after a certain day when her eye suddenly took on a strange look of confused inquiry totally dissociated with anything she saw or heard.

The awakening took place at Lakewood. Carmel had been out and was just crossing the hall of her hotel to the elevator when she stopped with a violent start and, clutching the air, was caught by her nurse, who had hurried up at the first intimation of anything unusual in the condition of her patient.

The cause of this agitation was immediately apparent. Near them sat two ladies, each with a small wineglass in her hand—a common sight enough, but it worked a revolution in Carmel's darkened mind. The light of youthful joyousness fled from her face, and the cheek, just pulsing softly with new life, blanched to the deathlike hue of mortal suffering. Dropping her eyes from the women she said to the woman in whose arms she felt herself supported:

SHE SNUBBED MONROE.

Incident In the Later Life of Mrs. Alexander Hamilton.

A striking incident in the later life of Mrs. Alexander Hamilton, who survived her husband fifty years, is told in the words of an eyewitness in Allan McLane Hamilton's "Intimate Life of Alexander Hamilton."

Mrs. Hamilton could never forget the behavior of Monroe when he, with Muhlenberg and Venables, accused Hamilton of financial irregularities at the time of the Reynolds incident. Many years afterward when they were both aged people Monroe visited her, and an interview occurred which was witnessed by a nephew, who was then a lad of fifteen. "I had," he says, "been sent to call upon my Aunt Hamilton one afternoon. I found her in her garden and was there with her talking when a maidservant came from the house with a card. It was the card of James Monroe. She read the name and stood holding the card, much perturbed. Her voice sank, and she spoke very low as she always did when she was angry. 'What has that man come to see me for?' escaped from her. 'Why, Aunt Hamilton,' said I, 'don't you know it's Mr. Monroe, and he's been president, and he is visiting here now in the neighborhood and has been very much made of and invited everywhere, and so—I suppose he has come to call and pay his respects to you?' After a moment's hesitation 'I will see him,' she said.

"The maid went back to the house. My aunt followed, walking rapidly, I after her. As she entered the parlor Monroe rose. She stood in the middle of the room facing him. She did not ask him to sit down. He bowed and, addressing her formally, made her rather a set speech—that it was many years since they had met, that the lapse of time brought its softening influences, that they both were nearing the grave, when past differences could be forgiven and forgotten—in short, from his point of view a very nice, conciliatory, well turned little speech. She answered, still standing and looking at him: 'Mr. Monroe, if you have come to tell me that you repent, that you are sorry, very sorry, for the misrepresentations and the slanders and the stories you circulated against my dear husband—if you have come to say this, I understand it. But otherwise no lapse of time, no nearness to the grave, makes any difference.' She stopped speaking. Monroe turned, took up his hat and left the room."

In this connection it may be said that the oft repeated story of the meeting of Mrs. Hamilton and Aaron Burr many years later on an Albany steamboat is a fiction, but it was probably suggested by the Monroe incident.

Hanged For Stealing Golf Balls.

Some sharp punishment has lately been meted out to men convicted of golf ball stealing, and one boy was sentenced to six strokes with the birch. The offenders, however, may congratulate themselves that they live in a merciful age.

In 1637 at an assize in Banff a lad of the town, having confessed to stealing a few trifles, including some golf balls, was actually hanged for the offense. The indictment ran that he was "ane lewd liver and boy of ane evill lyff, and conversation, and ane daylie remainer fro the kirk in tyme of dyvyne worschip." The humane judges "ordanit the said Francis to be presentlie tackit and cariet to the Gallows hill of this burgh and hangit on the gallows thereof to the death."—London Graphic.

Illusions of Life.

Life is like a beautiful and winding lane—on either side bright flowers and beautiful butterflies and tempting fruits, which we scarcely pause to admire and to taste, so eager are we to hasten to an opening which we imagine will be more beautiful still. But by degrees as we advance the trees grow bleak, the flowers and butterflies fall, the fruits disappear, and we find we have arrived—to reach a desert waste.—G. A. Sala.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

JAMES T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., May 10, 1911.

AN ORDINANCE

Fixing the Boundaries of Election Districts.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the First Ward of the City of Plainfield is hereby divided into four election districts with boundaries as hereinafter specified to be known respectively as the first, second, third and fourth election districts of the First Ward.

Sec. 2. The first election district of the First Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the First Ward which is bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Park Avenue and the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and running thence in a northeasterly direction along the center line of said right of way to the center line of Washington Street; thence along the center line of Washington Street in a northwesterly direction to the center line of East Front Street; thence along the center line of East Front Street in a southwesterly direction to the center line of Elm Place; thence along the center line of Elm Place in a northwesterly direction to the City Line in Green Brook; thence along the City Line in Green Brook in a southwesterly direction to the center line of Somerset Street; thence along the center line of Somerset Street in a southeasterly direction to the center line of Front Street; thence along the center line of Front Street in a northeasterly direction to the center line of Park Avenue; thence along the center line of Park Avenue in a southeasterly direction to the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the point or place of beginning.

Sec. 3. That the second election district of the First Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the First Ward bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Elm Place and the City Line in Green Brook and thence running in a southeasterly direction along the center line of Elm Place to the center line of East Front Street; thence along the center line of East Front Street in a northeasterly direction to the center line of Washington Street; thence along the center line of Washington Street in a southeasterly direction to the center line of East Third Street; thence along the center line of East Third Street in a northeasterly direction to the center line of Richmond Street; thence along the center line of Richmond Street and Norwood Avenue in a northwesterly direction to the City Line in Green Brook; thence along the City Line in Green Brook in a southwesterly direction to the center line of Elm Place, the point or place of beginning.

Sec. 4. That the third election district of the First Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the First Ward which is bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Norwood Avenue and the City Line in Green Brook; thence along the center line of Norwood Avenue and Richmond Street in a southeasterly direction to the center line of East Third Street; thence along the center line of East Third Street in a southwesterly direction to the center line of Washington Street; thence along the center line of Washington Street in a southeasterly direction to the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; thence along the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey in a northeasterly direction to the center line of Berckman Street; thence along the center line of Berckman Street in a northwesterly direction to the center line of East Front Street; thence along the center line of East Front Street in a northeasterly direction to the center line of Farragut Road; thence along the center line of Farragut Road in a northwesterly direction to the City Line in Green Brook; thence along the City Line in Green Brook in a southwesterly direction to the center line of Norwood Avenue, the point or place of beginning.

Sec. 5. That the fourth election district of the First Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the First Ward lying northeast of the center line of Farragut Road and the center line of Berckman Street, and southeast of the center line of East Front Street between Farragut Road and Berckman Street, being all that portion of the First Ward not included in the First, Second and Third Districts thereof.

Sec. 6. That the Second Ward of the City of Plainfield is hereby divided into four election districts with boundaries as hereinafter specified to be known respectively as the first, second, third and fourth election districts of the Second Ward.

Sec. 7. That the first election district of the Second Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the Second Ward bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Park Avenue and the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and running thence in a southeasterly direction along the center line of Park Avenue to the center line of Cedar Brook; thence in a northerly direction along the center line of Cedar Brook to the center line of Watchung Avenue; thence in a westerly direction along the center line of Watchung Avenue to the center line of Franklin Place; thence in a northerly direction along the center line of Franklin Place to the center line of East Seventh Street; thence in a southwesterly direction along the center line of East Seventh Street to the center line of Washington Street; thence in a northwesterly direction along the center line of Washington Street to the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; thence in a southwesterly direction along the center line of the said right of way to the center line of Park Avenue, the point or place of beginning.

Sec. 8. That the second election district of the Second Ward shall include all the territory and inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the Second Ward bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Park Avenue and the center line of Cedar Brook and running thence in a southeasterly direction along the center line of Park Avenue to the City Line; thence in an easterly, northerly and northeasterly direction along the City Line to a point where the same would be intersected by the center line of Putnam Avenue if extended; thence in a westerly direction along the center line of Putnam Avenue as thus extended and as opened to the center line of Franklin Place; thence in a southerly direction along the center line of Franklin Place to the center line of Watchung Avenue; thence in an easterly direction along the center line of Watchung Avenue to the center line of Cedar Brook; thence in a southwesterly direction along the center line of Cedar Brook to the center line of Park Avenue, the point or place of beginning.

Sec. 9. That the third election district of the Second Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the Second Ward which is bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Washington Street and the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; thence in a southeasterly direction along the center line of Washington Street to the center line of East Seventh Street; thence in a northeasterly direction along the center line of East Seventh Street to the center line of Franklin Place; thence in a southeasterly direction along the center line of Franklin Place to the center line of Putnam Avenue; thence along the center line of Putnam Avenue in an easterly direction to the center line of Berckman Street as projected; thence in a northwesterly direction along the center line of Berckman Street as projected and as opened to the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; thence in a southwesterly direction along the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey to the center line of Washington Street, the point or place of beginning.

Sec. 10. That the fourth election district of the Second Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the Second Ward which is bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point in the center line of Berckman Street where the same intersects the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; thence running in a southeasterly direction along the center line of Berckman Street as opened and as projected to the center line of Putnam Avenue; thence in an easterly direction along the center line of Putnam Avenue as the same would run if extended in its present course to the City Line; thence in a northeasterly and northwesterly direction along the City Line to the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; thence in a southwesterly direction along the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey to the center line of Berckman Street, the point or place of beginning.

Sec. 11. That the Third Ward of the City of Plainfield is hereby divided into four election districts with boundaries as hereinafter specified to be known respectively as the first, second, third and fourth election districts of the Third Ward.

Sec. 12. That the first election district of the Third Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the Third Ward which is bounded and described as follows:

BIG EVANGELISM

Forward Movement Endorsed by the General Assembly of Presbyterians.

DR CHAPMAN IS EULOGIZED.

Evangelist to Be the Ambassador of the Presbyterians of the United States to All the World.

In the Presbyterian General Assembly at Atlantic City yesterday two important matters were discussed—the union of the various boards of the church and the reduction in size of the assembly itself. One of these questions was set for further discussion today, and the other went over until Monday or Tuesday, dependent on progress in other affairs.

By unanimous vote the assemly approved the recommendation of the special committee on evangelistic work, providing for a great forward movement around the world—a movement in which all Presbyterian bodies in all countries can join.

With the approval of the general assembly an evangelistic committee of ministers and laymen was named as follows:

Chairman, C. L. Huston, Ministers, the Rev. Dr. W. H. Boyle, Dr. W. P. Fulton, Dr. A. E. Keigwin, Dr. Henry C. Minton, Dr. S. S. Palmer, Dr. E. B. Cobb and Dr. S. Edward Young. Laymen, John Willis Baer, Foster Copeland, E. A. K. Hackett, Ralph W. Harbison, L. H. Severance, Andrew Stevenson, Thomas W. Synnott and J. H. Jefferis.

This evangelistic committee is to name a committee of three which will make overtures to the other great Presbyterian bodies of the world. It was said by the moderator, the Rev. Dr. John F. Carson, of Brooklyn, that all other Presbyterians are waiting for the Presbyteians of the United States in this matter. So the action taken yesterday signalizes the real beginning of the united forward movement over the world.

When the vote had been taken, the Rev. Doctor Carson said to the great assemblage, this with the utmost fervency:

"Brethren, that vote marks the beginning of the greatest advance that Presbyterianism has ever made."

It is an incident to the world-wide plan, but of great consequence, too, that the able evangelist, the Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, is to make preparations at once to start on his evangelizing trip around the world. Every where that he goes he will be under the direction of the committee named today. He will be in one sense an ambassador from the Presbyterians of the United States to all the world. Owing to this new responsibility placed upon Doctor Chapman, he resigned his position as a member of the evangelistic committee.

Doctor Carson will be a member, ex-officio, of the committee. It seems eminently fitting that this should be so, for yesterday the spectacular feature of the proceedings was the magnificent extemporaneous address made by Doctor Carson in urging the general assembly to take this "great forward step for Christ and the cause of Christ," as he called it.

Dr. DeHart Coming to This City.

Rev. Dr. William DeHart, who has been pastor of the Reformed church at Raritan for many years, it is said, will soon resign his pastorate and give up active ministry. He contemplates removing to this city. Dr. DeHart is one of the best known clergymen in the State and has had a very successful ministry. His removal here will add another to the already long list of retired clergymen residing here.

Captain Daly Better.

Captain James Daly, who returned from Bermuda, Thursday, was seriously affected by the ocean voyage home and has since been confined to his bed. He was able to take nourishment this morning for the first in several days and is reported as being somewhat better.

Juniors to Attend Church.

The members of the local Junior O. U. A. M. Councils will attend divine service at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, tomorrow night and the pastor, Rev. C. S. Kemble, will preach a sermon on the subject, "Father and Sons."

Funeral of Mrs. Huntington.

The funeral service of Mrs. Samuel Huntington will be held at All Souls' church, Park avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 3:50 o'clock and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

SCHOOL BOYS VISIT 'OLD NASSAU' TODAY

Thirty-five boys form the local public schools, accompanied by the officers of the Princeton Club, of this city, went to Princeton today, to witness the Harvard-Princeton baseball game; also the Yale-Cornell-Princeton boat race. After the games the party will have dinner at the college, and this evening will visit the campus to hear the singing by the students.

The boys chosen are between the ages of fourteen and seventeen years and are from the city and borough high schools, John Leal's school and the Hartridge school. The outing was arranged by the Princeton Club with a view to stimulating an interest among the boys in Princeton University. It is part of a State-wide campaign inaugurated by Princeton men to secure new students. Today's affair was arranged by Henry C. Cochran, Lawrence Tweedy and D. C. Ivans.

FREEHOLDERS ENJOY PLANK SHAD DINNER

It was a jolly party of freeholders and their friends that went to Washington Park, Gloucester County, yesterday to enjoy the annual planked shad dinner of the directors of county affairs. There was plenty of plank shad, in fact, the piscatorial expects of the section had cornered all there was to appease the appetites of the freeholders, most of whom have reputations in the gastronomical line.

Union county affairs were forgotten. Even the numerous "road inspections," which seem to be so necessary of late, were not talked of, and as far as bridges for hamlets and villages are concerned the freeholders agreed that Goose Creek and ecery other creek from Rahway to Summit should be bridged so far as they were personally concerned. It was really a happy family gathering, just like the board's meetings, where no one ever questions anything and where the business is practically done several days before the meeting.

The committee in charge of the dinner was composed of County Collector Nathan R. Leavitt, Freeholders George C. Teller, J. Logan Fay, Thomas H. Pierson, Peter H. Meisel.

AN ADDRESS ON CHINA BY MRS. GILBERT REID.

Mrs. Gilbert Reid, who has spent eighteen years in China, where her husband was in charge of an institution for the education of Chinese boys and young men of the upper class, gave a talk of great interest before the Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church at a meeting held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert Barnes, of Mountain avenue.

Mrs. Reid's talk was made more real by a variety of photographs of the Chinese officials and their surroundings. A devotional service, led by Mrs. Anderson, preceded Mrs. Reid's talk and refreshments were served at the close.

Mr and Mrs. Reid with their two children expect to return to China this summer.

Plan "Bible School Day."

Rev. Dr. Everett T. Tomlinson, of Elizabeth, will exchange with Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, tomorrow morning, and will make an address appropriate to the observance of "Bible School Day" which will be observed all day. In the evening J. F. Barker, of the borough, and F. H. Andrews, of this city, county superintendent of home department work, will speak. Dr Chambliss will preside in the evening.

Long Auto Trip.

W. H. Peters and F. B. Collins, of Daytona, Fla., in their big Rambler touring car, were guests at the Kensington hotel this morning. They are touring the country in the car and expect to get as far west as Council Bluffs, Iowa, where the return trip to Florida will be begun. The machine looks as spick and span as though it had just been sent out from the factory.

Wilkes—Webster.

In the presence of a few friends at the home of the bride, 614 West Fourth street, on Thursday evening Miss Etta P. Webster and Henry R. Wilkes were married by Rev. E. W. Roberts, pastor of Shiloh Baptist church. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Wilkes will reside at their new home on West Fourth street.

Elected to Yale Society.

Edgar Wells Freeman, of this city, was elected to the "Wolf's Head" at the election of the three secret societies of Yale University, held this week on the campus at New Haven.

PARK CLUB SCORES

"The Henrietta" Pleases Even Larger Audience Than on Thursday Night.

MORE THAN $1,500 REALIZED.

Mrs. Barlow, Mr. Lyman and Others of the Cast Repeat Success—Compared with "Trelawney of the Wells."

There was a larger audience in the Plainfield theatre last night than there was on the preceding night and perhaps even a trifle more enthusiastic. The company which presented Bronson Howard's "The Henrietta," deserved the applause which it received from the beginning to the end of the play. Again Mrs. Charles Barlow and Charles H. Lyman held the audience in their hands making a greater impression than anything seen here in many a day.

J. M. Edgar Hart, stage director, was congratulated this morning on the results of his work with the members of the Park Comedy Club who produced "The Henrietta" after but three weeks' practice. Mr. Hart declared this morning that the work of the members of the cast is seldom exceeded by professionals and as a matter of fact, no better production of "The Henrietta" had been seen on any stage.

Alston M. Abbott, "the lamb," said that the financial returns were going to be very satisfactory. Some contrast of the play of last year was made by some of the audience. "Trelawney of the Wells," drew a larger crowd, but it is believed that the net returns of the play given last night will exceed the other.

No less than $1,500 for the treasury of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society is expected after the bills are all paid and the final returns from the reserved tickets are received. It is expected that the whole business of the affair will be finished today or on Monday at the latest and that it is possible that the above mentioned amount will be exceeded.

Anyway the company which produced the play and the Anti-Tuberculosis Society are satisfied that nothing but the best talent in the city took part in the play and that their efforts to aid the society will be regarded as one of the finest things yet done toward wiping out the great white plague.

Y. M. C. A. INAUGURATES SERIES OF STREET MEETINGS.

The Y. M. C. A. will tonight inaugurate a series of Saturday night street meetings, engaging different ones to speak to the crowds from an automobile. This evening, weather permitting, Rev. C. S. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will speak at Madison avenue and West Front street.

The meetings have been arranged by Secretary Herbert E. Parker as a means of reaching the masses on the street, and by means of the auto those in charge will be able to go from point to point, wherever there appears to be the most favorable opportunity to speak to the people.

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, of Scotch Plains, who has been the principal speaker at the shop meetings during the year will also talk. There will be special music. E. D. Young will play the cornet and Edward Brunn, a tenor, will sing. The services will last a half-hour, and will be under the auspices of the religious work committee of the association.

Demonstration Continued.

Owing to the success of the demonstration on Caloric Fireless Cook Stoves at A. M. Griffen Co.'s store, the demonstration will be continued next week Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday to give all those an opportunity to see this stove work who have not done so during the past week. We have baked bread, rolls, Boston brown bread, potatoes, meat pie, biscuits, cinnamon rolls, roasted chickens, pork, etc., to the entire delight and satisfaction of all those who have visited our store. Not only does it do all that any other stove will do, but actually saves 75 per cent. of your gas. ***

The Exhibitions of Paintings by Jonas Lie at the Plainfield Seminary, 123 West Seventh street, is open to the public every day from Tuesday, May 16, to Wednesday, May 31, inclusive, from 3 until 6:30 p. m., and 8 to 10 p. m., except Wednesday, May 24. Entrance on Arlington avenue. ***

H. J. HULL'S FUNERAL TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Horace J. Hull, aged forty years died yesterday at his home on Stone street, the borough, from meningitis. He was taken ill suddenly last Sunday. Mr. Hull was born at Daytona, Fla., and came to Plainfield about two years ago. He was a carpenter by trade and was engaged by local contractors.

Mr. Hull was married just a year ago yesterday to Miss Ella Hand, daughter of Samuel Hand, of this city. She with one young son by a former marriage, together with four brothers, one sister and a mother survive. All except Mrs. Hull reside at Daytona.

The funeral will be held at the late home on Stone street, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, will officiate. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

LAST SAD RITES FOR AUTO TRAGEDY VICTIMS

The funerals of Ellsworth Douglas Middlekauff and Miss Elsie Walpole, victims of the automobile tragedy at Chester, Wednesday night, were held yesterday afternoon. Both services were announced to be strictly private, but friends and neighbors were in attendance in each instance in addition to relatives.

Mr. Middlekauff's funeral took place at his late home on Rockview avenue, and was conducted by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery.

The service over the body of Miss Walpole was held at the home of her father, Lynus Walpole, of Scotch Plains, and was conducted by Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church.

There were many floral tributes in evidence from neighbors and friends. Interment was made in the Scotch Plains cemetery, the pall bearers being Edward Heath, Fred Clark, William Stanbery and Henry Demarest.

ACKERMAN SIGNED REQUISITION PAPERS

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, as acting Governor, during the absence from the State of Governor Woodrow Wilson, was called upon last night to sign requisition papers for the extradition of an Italian from Camden to Providence, R. I., where the man is wanted on a charge of murder.

The requisition papers were brought to New Jersey by a lieutenant of police from Providence. He first went to Trenton, where he believed he would find Governor Wilson. There he was informed that Senator Ackerman was acting in that capacity and that the latter had left for his home.

The official reached here late and at once made arrangements to meet Senator Ackerman and have him sign the papers. He explained briefly the circumstances of the case to Mr. Ackerman and the latter promptly affixed his signature to the papers. The Italian was taken from Camden to Providence today, where he will have to stand trial. It is said that the murder was committed during a drunken brawl.

Lasky's "Pianophiends" Coming.

Jesse L. Lasky, famed for his wonderful vaudeville productions and who is the owner of the "Follies Bergere," now having a phenomenal run in New York, will present his famous act, "The Pianophiend Minstrels," at Proctor's theatre on Monday. There are nine people in the company and they use five pianos, special scenery, costumes and the act will be the best yet seen here in vaudeville. On the same bill will be the Newark star, Nana Abel Brinker & Co., in the farce, "The Murder of Mumford." Miss Brinker will be a member of Proctor's stock company in Newark during the summer.

Private Exchange at Hospital.

The New York Telephone Company has just installed a modern private exchange system in Muhlenberg Hospital, whereby persons can get any department required without any unnecessary delay. The new telephone number at the hospital is 1750. The old number with which people were so familiar was 47, but under the new arrangement a more satisfactory service will result.

SIX CLUB LEAGUE

Scheme Discussed at a Meeting of Baseball Managers Last Night.

ORGANIZATION IS PROBABLE.

Scotch Plains, Westfield, Bound Brook, High Bridge and Plainfield in the Movement.

The prospects of forming a six-club baseball league among teams along the line of the New Jersey Central seem to be bright. A preliminary meeting was held in this city last night at which there were representatives of the teams in Bound Brook, Scotch Plains, Westfield and Plainfield, all of which will probably be in the proposed league and it is possible that High Bridge may enter its team.

The various managers are enthusiastic over the proposition and believe that the league will tend to create a great interest in the game among the fans in the nearby towns. Each of the towns mentioned has a good team and they are all about evenly matched, which would insure a close race for a pennant.

Among the managers present last night were Charles Newhouse, of Bound Brook; Joe Alberts, of Scotch Plains and Ernest Dorflinger, of this city. There were also representatives from Westfield and Somerville. The matter will be taken up with High Bridge and it is expected that a representative from that town will attend a meeting to be held at Bound Brook, some night next week, when steps will be taken to form a league and complete other details.

The plan to form a league was first suggested by Mr. Newhouse, of Bound Brook, who took the matter up with Mr. Dorflinger, of this city. The other managers were communicated with and all seemed to favor the idea. If the league is formed a series of away and home games will be arranged and the towns being so easy of access no doubt great rivalry will result.

WARNED NOT TO RIDE BIKES ON SIDEWALKS.

Mayor George W. V. Moy, who is suffering from a severe cold, held court as usual this morning, several bicycle riders being arraigned for riding their wheels on the sidewalks in various sections of the city. Michael Mango, an employe of the Shade Tree Commission, escaped a fine because he was ignorant of the law, James Gilbert, of the West End, paid a fine of two dollars and Edward Foster and Benjamin Taub escaped with a warning because of their youth. Albert Shultz, who has only been in this country about four months, received a reprimand for the same offense.

The arrests in these cases were made by patrolmen McGinley, Saffron and Flynn.

FIRST COMMUNION FOR A CLASS OF 250.

A class of 250 children will receive their first communion in St. Mary's church tomorrow morning. They will attend the 7:30 mass and will be addressed by Rev. Father Bogan. All the children will be dressed in white.

In the afternoon at 3:30 there will be a reception of all the junior societies of the church and the first communionists will be received into membership. They are not permitted to join any of the church organizations until after the initial communion. Interesting exercises will mark the afternoon service.

Boys Lectured by Mayor.

Charles Oxford, of West Fifth street, was arraigned before Mayor Moy this morning charged by John Dunn, an eleven-year-old son of Councilman John E. Dunn, with assault. The boys got into a scrap because of alleged imposition of authority by the Dunn boy. Mayor Moy lectured them both and dismissed the case.

Never Again.

Samuel Reese, of Bound Brook, who was arrested yesterday by Patrolman McGinley for being helplessly drunk, promised Mayor Moy this morning to never repeat the offense in this city and was let go with a reprimand.

Used Street as Stable.

Isaac Kuppenberg, of Dunellen, arrested yesterday afternoon for feeding his horse in the street, was warned by Mayor Moy this morning to stop the practice and the charge against him was dismissed.

PUPILS' EXHIBITION ATTRACTED PARENTS

Another and more extensively attended exhibition of the work done by the pupils of the Lincoln School was held last evening when the parents of the children were present and admired the work accomplished during the past year.

Particular attention was given to the work shown by pupils of the two grades of the kindergarten. Their sand house, farm and domestic animals reproductions in cardboard being intensely interesting to the parents many of whom had no idea of the amount of knowledge absorbed by the little folks.

Great credit is due to the teachers of this school for their excellent work especially Miss Griffin, the principal and Miss Addie Eastman, under whose tutelage the children have learned to create objects and animals which are of material and educational benefit to not only the children but all those who attended the exhibit.

GIRLS CLUB GIVES AN ENTERTAINMENT

The Girls' Club of North Plainfield entertained about two hundred friends at the Young Women's Christian Association yesterday afternoon The occasion proved to be one of the most enjoyable events in the history of the club. Music, both vocal and instrumental, besides elocutionary efforts served to entertain the young folks for a couple of hours during which refreshments were served on the porch of the building.

The entertainment included piano solos by Miss Aubrey Eaton, some beautifully sung selections by Miss Elizabeth Goddard and a couple of choruses rendered by the glee club of the North Plainfield High School.

All the girls from the High School, from the freshmen to the seniors, were present and joined in the singing. Miss Bessie Carson had charge of the refreshments, Miss Rose Andrews looked after the general entertainment of the guests and the music was in charge of Miss Clare Fleming. Herbert Stein rendered two baritone solos in acceptable style and Miss Goddard's songs were received with hearty applause. Among the choruses rendered by the glee club were an adaptation of Watson's "Anchored" and "Good Night, Beloved," both of which were splendidly sung. Miss Goodard's songs were especially pleasing and brought forth double encores.

The young men who assisted in the entertainment were Carroll Taylor, Percy Bailey, William Taylor, Edward Boding Herbert Stein and Courtlandt Fleming.

The rooms of the Y. W. C. A. were specially decorated in pink and white for the occasion under the direction of Miss Amy Tapping, secretary of the association.

An invitation has been extended to the junior members of the association by Mrs. Daniel Ginna and Mrs. Percy Stewart for a picnic on May 30. Many of the juniors have signified their intention of joining in the outing.

MENDEL PURCHASES THE DRIVING PARK.

The Plainfield Driving Park comprising about forty acres and including a fine half-mile track as well as a hotel, has been purchased by Milton Mendel, of Park avenue. The property was formerly owned by the American Silver Company, which secured it under foreclosure proceedings. Mr. Mendel does not contemplate any changes at present, but at some future date he will open the tract into Holy Park, which he has already developed.

The park, which has been the scene of many fine races, was also many years ago a popular place for holding country fairs. For many years the park was owned by J. Wesley Johnson. Prior to that the late Ellis Campbell owned the property and conducted a hotel there. Thomas Brantingham succeded Mr. Campbell. The Plainfield Driving and Riding Association will hold several matinee race meets at the park this summer and their plans will be carried out as originally announced.

Annual Outing of Editors.

The fifty-fifth annual meeting of the New Jersey Editorial Association will be held at Nantucket, Mass. The party will leave New York Friday evening, June 16, at 6 o'clock from Pier 40, North River, on the Steamer Maine of the New Bedford line. While at Nantucket the party will stop at Sea Cliff Inn. The trip will take about five days in all and promises to be an enjoyable outing.

NEW TROLLEY LINE

Dunellen's Board of Trade Would Have Big Extension Made.

REFUSES A LONG FRANCHISE.

To Affiliate with Middlesex Boards of Trade—Discuss Re-numbering of Houses and Street Work —Reports Received.

The Dunellen Board of Trade at a largely attended meeting last night, voted to give its unanimous support to a plan broached some time ago for the building of a direct trolley line from that borough to Metuchen to connect with the Perth Amboy and New Brunswick lines ending there. The matter has been under discussion more or less for the past few months and the approval of the Dunellen organization means a great deal to the promotors. The latter are men who have large real estate and other interests in the territory to be affected.

The trolley route as tentatively given is from the present Public Service line in Dunellen direct to New Market, then along the lake road to Samptown and South Plainfield and through to Metuchen, across private property. By connecting with the Perth Amboy division of the Public Service, it would give a short, straight line to the Staten Island sound. The new line would also open up a vast stretch of desirable residential and farm property.

The proposition will be taken up in earnest as soon as the preliminaries are disposed of.

The trade board took another another move in the right direction last night, by voting to affiliate with the affiliated Boards of Trade of Middlesex county. It will bring the borough in closer touch with the county seat and other Middlesex cities and towns. A committee composed of President Frank Wynkoop, secretary William P. Deering, Dr. T. J. Hogan and Lewis T. Churchill was appointed to confer with the affiliated boards. The subject will be gone into further at the next regular monthly meeting.

The board received a complete and interesting report from a committee recently appointed to investigate the advisability of re-numbering the Dunellen houses and straightening out several tangles in street names. The report was presented by the chairman, Edward Maurer, who was given a vote of thanks for the conscientious work he had put upon it. In due course of time, a petition to have the improvement work ordered will be presented to the borough council.

The New York Telephone Company application for a fifty year franchise in Dunellen was again discussed. In the end the board confirmed its previous decision to oppose it for the number of years specified. The belief exists that the franchise should not be given for more that fifteen or twenty years for the concession named.

The question of street work in Dunellen was briefly touched upon. It was the opinion that the recent re-surfacing of various thoroughfares with the stone taken from the trolley roadbed on North avenue could have been accomplished much cheaper by contracting it out than by the day's work as was done.

KITCHEN SHOWER FOR MISS HELEN PHILLIPS.

Hiss Helen Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Phillips, of Rockview avenue, was given a kitchen "shower" yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Mary Faber, of Mercer avenue, who arranged the affair, and she received a large collection of most useful articles, as well as congratulations upon her approaching wedding. The social features were greatly enjoyed by the thirty-five guests present.

Miss Phillips will be married to John F. Harper, of New York city, Saturday afternoon, July 1, at 5 o'clock at Grace church, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, the rector, officiating. Mr. Harper is vice-principal of one of the public schools in New York. Miss Phillips is prominent here in society, and especially in the work of the City Union of The King's Daughters, of which she has been an officer.

Co. K Vets Association.

Preliminary steps for the formation of a social organization to be known as the Company K Veterans Association was made at a meeting held Thursday night. Lieutenant Pearsall, of Westfield, was made temporary president and William F. Richards secretary. A second meeting will be held next Thursday night. The membership is to be composed of the honorably discharged members of Company K, of which there are sixty-one out of an enrollment of 387.

CONTEST

FOR PLAINFIELD PUPILS

The Plainfield Ice & Supply Co. will give a prize of $25 in cash to the pupil of any school, public or private, in Plainfield or North Plainfield, who shall submit the best written advertisement for the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company's business, to occupy a space equal to the space taken by this annoncement.

The judges will be the Editors of the Courier-News and Daily Press. The conditions will be as follows:

The advertisement as written should be sent to the office of the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., with a separate sheet of paper attached, bearing the writer's name, and name of the school he or she attends. Both sheets thus submitted will be numbered by the Company in the order received, and the sheet bearing the name of the contestant will be held by the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., and the advertisement with the corresponding number will be sent to the judges, so that the judges will have no knowledge of the name of the writer. The advertisement which is decided to be the best will be so marked, and sent to the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company, who will by reference to the sheets in their possession, determine the name of the successful contestant.

The contest will end May 30, all letters received up to midnight of that day being eligible to the competition.

Read this Plainfield testimony.

Richard H. Day, 95 Grove street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Nothing has occurred to alter my high regard for Doan's Kidney Pills and I willingly give permission for the continued publication of my testimonal. What Doan's Kidney Pills did for me, they will do for other kidney sufferers. I had a dull pain across the small of my back and there was an extreme lameness in my hips. Standing for any length of time or walking any distance aggravated by trouble greatly. As the attacks grew worse instead of better, I concluded that something must be done and as I had frequently read about Doan's Kidney Pills, I finally gave them a trial. The contents of two boxes cured me."

are directed and required by the Ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled, "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction and Repair of Sidewalks and Curbs," approved July 15, 1910, the Common Council of said City has directed such improvement to be made under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner, and further directed notice of such contemplated improvement to be given to the owner or owners of any lands thereby affected, and further directed that if such improvement shall not be completed within the time and in the manner directed in this notice, the Street Commissioner shall thereupon forthwith proceed to cause such improvement to be made by the City under his direction, as authorized by said Ordinance and the Act of the Legislature hereinafter referred to. The foregoing is a description of your property affected, sufficiently definite in terms to identify the same, and the following is a description of the required improvement, viz., the construction on said Denmark Road adjoining said property of a sidewalk to be laid as directed in said Ordinance (to which Ordinance and the record thereof in the City Clerk's Office reference is hereby made for greater certainty), at the expense of the abutting land owners, composed either (1) of bluestone flagging, smooth and even on the surface, and properly laid under the direction of the Street Commissioner, said blue-stone flags to be not less than four feet long transversely to the length of the street, not less than two feet wide lengthwise of said street, and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part; or (2) of concrete to be laid in conformity with the specifications for cement sidewalks as set forth in Standard Specifications for Portland Cement Sidewalks and Curbs, filed in the office of the City Clerk, April 11th, 1910. The Street Commissioner shall give the correct lines and grades in all cases.

Notice is further given that unless said improvement shall be completed within thirty days after the service of this notice, it is the intention of said City to make said improvement or cause the same to be made, pursuant to the authority of the Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled, "An Act to authorize cities to construct and repair sidewalks and curbs, and to provide for the payment of the cost thereof," approved April 13, 1908, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Proof under oath of the publication or service of this notice will be filed within two days thereafter in the Office of the City Collector, being the officer charged with the duty of making official searches for liens.

Said Act of the Legislature provides that in case of non-payment of the charges authorized thereby, the land and real estate subject to the liens of such charges may be sold in the manner provided for the sale of lands for the non-payment of assessments.

Dated, Plainfield, N. J., May 19, 1911.

REFUSE ICE CREAM

Mrs. John Hays Hammond Rebuked by Census Bureau Women Employes.

CHARITY NOT APPRECIATED.

Indignation Shown by Recipients of Frozen Sweetness—But There Will Be no Repetition.

Washington, May 20.— Mrs. John Hays Hammond, wife of the special ambassador of the United States to the coronation of King George and president of the women's welfare department of the National Civic Federation, thought it would be nice to send some ice cream to the 1,000 girls who were working in the Census Bureau yesterday. She acted on the generous impulse and the girls forthwith refused to accept it and held an indignation meeting. When the two wagons loaded with ice cream pulled up before the Census Bureau the representatives of the women's welfare department found the census employes several points hotter than they had been at any other time that day.

"If the women of the welfare department of the Civic Federation have money to spend let them buy ice cream for the poor of Washington," was the message of thanks that the welfare people got. One of the clerks, a woman, who gets $1,800 a year, acting as spokesman, said:

"It is ridiculous for these rich women who feel charitably inclined to send ice cream to 1,295 women in the census office, women who are receiving good salaries, ranging most of them from $900 to $1,200 a year. It is on a par with a suggestion made by the wife of a prominent member of Congress and later a member of the Cabinet and Presidential candidate who declared that the women clerks of the Government should wear uniforms so as to distinguish them from ladies. The women who are employed in the census office, like the women employed in other Government departments and bureaus, frequently come from far better families than some of the newly rich women who are seeking to benefit them by sending them ice cream."

Mrs. Hammond was very much surprised when she was informed of the action taken by the clerks.

"I called up the census office before sending the ice cream and asked permission to extend a simple courtesy to the women employed there on this very hot day," she said. "There was no intention on my part to be patronizing. It is the same kind of a courtesy that I frequently extend to my friends and neighbors and it was entirely in that spirit that the ice cream was sent."

TAKE PIN FROM CHILD'S THROAT.

A pin, which had lodged in the throat of Edith Thompson, two-year-old daughter of Thomas Thompson, of 92 Mill street, Bloomfield, was removed at the Mountainside Hospital, Montclair, Thursday. The operation is known as tracheotomny. It consisted of opening the windpipe and removing the pin. The operation was pronounced entirely successful and the girl is expected to recover. Several surgeons witnessed the operation.

The pin, which is of the variety known as "shawl pin," measured two and one half inches in length. Edith had swallowed it Wednesday while playing in her home. Dr. Robert F. Ringland, of Bloomfield, was called in, but ordinary measures to dislodge the impediment proved fruitless and he had the girl removed to the hospital.

The child later became blue in the face and suffocation was feared. The operation was then decided upon.

Dr. James S. Brown, who for years has been surgeon-in-chief at the Mountainside Hospital, made an incision in the tarchea and with instruments removed the pin, which was lodged head downward. It was found that the entire left lung had been closed up. Dr. Ringland assisted in the operation. A short time ago Dr. Brown discontinued his regular practise in order to devote his entire time to surgery.

PLAINFIELD'S RIVALS IN TODAY'S GAME

One of the best ball games of the season may be expected today when Plainfield and Somerville will cross bats on Crescent Oval for the first time this season. The Somerville aggregation is one of the best in years and can be depended upon to make Plainfield play its strongest game to win. Jimmie Clinton, the well-known twirler, will be in the box for Somerville, and Torpey will receive him behind the rubber. The other positions are filled with well-known players.

Plainfield will present its usual strong lineup, which includes Jimmie Montross and Walter Nelson as battery; Dave Driscoll at first, Harter at short, Ramsberger at third and Brit Martin at second and the regular outfield.

In view of the importance of the game, arrangements have been made to secure the services of an ex-league umpire from New York, who will officiate probably at all future games. The teams will lineup as follows:

P'ainfield—Martin, 2b; Cosgrove, rf; Driscoll, 1b; Harter, ss; Ramsberger, 3b; Nelson, c; Schott, lf; Fritts, cf; Montross,p.

Somerville—Swanson, 3b;Gordon, lf; Wolff, cf; McDonald, 1b; Grimes, rf; Gribbon, 2b; Jung,ss; Torpey, c; Clinton, p.

Baltimore wants to be represented in the major leagues next year. The matter was discussed by a number of leading business men of the Monumental City yesterday at the Merchants' Club and was received with unusual interest. Charles H. Dickey, chairman of the greater Baltimore committee, stated that he believed it was the one real thing needed in Baltimore. The suggestion was received with considerable attention and pleasure. Mr. Dickey announced that the greater Baltimore committee would look into the matter within a few days and ascertain the exact status of affairs in regard to the securing of a major league franchise for the next or the following years.

Mike Donlin, once the baseball pride of New York, when he was a member of the Giants, may become a "Cub" if a deal between Manager McGraw, of New York, and Frank Chance meets with the approval of President Charles W. Murphy, of the Chicago club. Manager Chance met Donlin in New York Wednesday after Donlin had talked with McGraw, and the once great ball player said he would like to become a member of the Cubs, and that he had said something about it to McGraw. Chance had asked for waivers on Pitcher Ed Reulbach, and Cincinnati, Boston and St. Louis refused to waive, so Donlin proposed that Chance offer Reulbach for Pitcher Leon Ames and any claims the New York club might have on him (Donlin). Chance telegraphed President Murphy, and if the Cub president approves the deal McGraw and Chance will make the trade.

POLO GROUNDS TO BE RE-OPENED ON JUNE 28.

President John T. Brush, of the New York Giants, plans a grand re-opening of the Polo Grounds on June 28. The plum will fall to the lot of Fred Tenney and his Doves. This is the first contest booked for the Giants in New York after their first trip through the West. The contractors have assured Mr. Brush that the stands will be ready by that time at least, so far as to accommodate a host of fans.

Work on the new concrete and steel horseshoe structure, which is to replace the wooden one destroyed by fire, has progressed very favorably. An army of workmen, divided into three shifts, are rushing the task in record time. By the end of the week all the concrete foundations will have been laid and most of them will have had time to set. Next week the steel framework will be put together. The foundation work was the most difficult part of the undertaking, as this had to be laid on the solid bedrock some forty feet below the surface of the field. The Polo Grounds was originally a pond and had to be filled in. Before any concrete was laid the foundations had to be piled.

The grandstand is to be a double-decker, but only the lower part will have been completed on the Giants' return from the West. The reserved upper section will be finished during the second trip.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The Brooklyn Jockey Club, of which Philip J. Dwyer is president, yesterday filed a certificate for the extension of the life of the corporation for twenty-five years with the County Clerk in Brooklyn. This is taken by racegoers to mean that the holders of the outstanding 4,200 shares of stock of the club expect a modification of the anti-gambling law. Richard Hyde is secretary of the club, which owns the Gravesend track.

Cornell is the favorite for the tri-cornered regetta between Yale, Cornell and Princeton at Princeton today, which will inaugurate rowing as a major sport in Princeton and signalize the resumption of rowing relations between Yale and Cornell. All three varsity crews went over the course slowly yesterday afternoon. Cornell showed well and Princeton seemed to have an appreciable advantage over Yale in form.

Announcement was made yesterday at Annapolis of the election of Midshipman John P. Dalton of next year's senior class as captain of the Naval Academy 1912 field and track team. Dalton, in addition to being the star of the football eleven and captain of next year's eleven, has been the track squad's crack hurdler and broad jumper for two years.

The annual spring dance of the Union Boat Club, Dyckman street and the Speedway was held last evening at the boat house. A general invitation to members of the Harlem Rixer Regetta Association was extended. The Union club's regatta will take place on June 17.

One of the best known semi-professional ball players in Greater New York will have a benefit in Meyerrose Park this afternoon. He is Al Farmer, who in previous years was the mainstay back of the plate for the Ridgewoods. The game will be between the Ridgewoods and a star picked team.

The Brooklyn National League team, headed by Manager Dahlen, will journey to Marquette Oval, Tenth street and Second avenue, Brooklyn, tomorrow, where they will play an exhibition game with the Marquettes, who have been strengthened by several crack semi-professional players. Knetzer or Schardt will pitch for the Superbas.

Ackerman Reviews G. A. R.

After spending two hours at the State House at Trenton, Thursday, attending to routine matters, Acting Governor Ackerman was the guest of honor of the reception committee of the Grand Army of the Republic. The Acting Governor also reviewed the parade of the veterans in the afternoon and he displayed much interest in the old soldiers who were in the parade.

Horace J. Hull.

Horace J. Hull, a carpenter, who came from Elizabeth to this city about three weeks ago, died yesterday morning at his boarding house at No. 20 Stone street, North Plainfield. It is not known whether the dead man had any relatives, either here or in Elizabeth, but the Elizabeth authorities have been notified of the death.

Wilson Christian Statesman.

A tribute to Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, as a "Christian statesman" was delivered at Atlantic City Thursday before the 123d annual session of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States on the Iron Pier by the Rev. Dr. Charles Little, of Wabash, Ind., the outgoing Moderator.

STATE MAY GAIN BY TRUST'S DISSOLUTION

The State of New Jersey will not lose so heavily through the dissolution of the Standard Oil Company as at first thought, according to calculation of the State Board of Assessors.

It was at first thought that the State would lose about $51,000, but the State assessors say that only $7,897.44 was paid into the State treasury as a tax by this concern during the past year.

The State is more likely to gain by the decision in corporation tax, as all the companies which were mergered in the trust and dissolved by the order, will re-incorporate. If all these concerns shall take out charters in New Jersey, the State treasury would probably receive considerably more than under the old order of things.

While the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was capitalized at $100,000,000 only about $82,000,000 of the stock is issued and outstanding. A considerable portion of the stock represents manufacturing business done in this State and under the corporation tax law such stock is exempt from taxation.

REWARD GOES TO FAMILY OF BRAVE BAGGAGEMAN.

The act of an old baggageman, who lost his life in a vain effort to save the lives of others, has been officially recognized by the Central Railroad of New Jersey, in its decision to pay to his family the full amount of the claim of his death. The family asked for $7,500. Word of the company's action was received today by Wilbur A. Helsley, formerly Judge, in a letter from Jackson E. Reynolds, counsel to the railroad.

"I have advised our executive officers," writes Reynolds, "that in my judgment $5,000 would be a liberal settlement, even including all the probabilities against us, but I have urged for their consideration the question you and I discussed, namely the heroic self-sacrifice and devotion to duty displayed by Mr. Saunders, the baggageman, when he met his death. Our officers feel such acts of loyal service to the company deserve its highest recognition, and they have, therefore, authorized me to say that we will pay the amount mentioned in your first and only offer to dispose of this case, $7,500."

Saunders was 60 years old. He was killed on last Easter Sunday at the Elizabeth avenue station, Elizabethport, when trying to pull three old women from the path of an express train.

DID NOT RETURN IN COFFIN.

But Harry Casterlin, Who Disappeared Years Ago, Is a Very Ill Man.

"I have sent Harry home. Make arrangements to meet him. (Signed) Friend," was the telegraphic message received by Mrs. George Thompson, of Newton yesterday. Thinking her brother was dead and that his body was being sent home, Mrs. Thompson employed an undertaker to go to the station with a coffin and meet the train. "Harry," however, stepped off the train, fully alive, although ill. He was sent to his sister's home in a carriage. He is Harry Casterlin, of Reading, Pa., who several years ago, according to the Newton police, with three others broke into a farm house in New Jersey. He was arested and held in $200 bail, but ran away, the police say, and nothing was heard of him again by his family or his friends until his sister received the message yesterday. His illness is said to be very serious.

GRADUATE COLLEGE WORK IS STARTED.

Princeton, May 20.—The first anniversary of the death of Isaac C. Wyman, '48, whose bequest to Princeton University made possible a graduate college of Princeton University, was marked yesterday by the official breaking of ground for the new building of the college to be erected on the golf links.

Dean Andrew F. West was the first to turn the sod, and he was followed by M. Taylor Pyne, Prof. H. B. Thompson of the committee on grounds and buildings, Parker D. Handy and A. C. Imbrie, of the trustees.

—A. C. Beckstein has sold the last piece of his property at Oak Tree to Mr. Neidlinger, of New York, who will occupy the same. The property consists of a house and one acre of land and was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William McIntosh. It is located on the South Plainfield road.

BOOM J. J. MANNING FOR STATE SENATOR

Former City Clerk James J. Manning, of Elizabeth is being boomed by Democrats in that city as a candidate for State Senator, and from indications at the present time there is a strong possibility that he may consent to run. When asked concerning the many rumors regarding his candidacy Mr. Manning smiled and said: "When the time comes I will let you know how I stand on that proposition."

At the time the question was put to the former city clerk he was in company with two of the best-known Democratic leaders in the downtown section. They insisted that Mr. Manning was in the race. He, however, declined to either affirm or deny the rumor.

Democrats downtown behind the Manning boom have a great deal of confidence in the strength of the former city official. The argument has been advanced by several that the fact that Mr. Manning is well known throughout the city and county and that he is a past president of the New Jersey Exempt Firemen's Association would be a big vote-getting influence should he decide to allow the use of his name at the primary as a candidate for the county office.

Within the past few months as president of the State Exempt Firemen's Association, Mr. Manning gained the good-will of thousands of former fire fighters in all parts of the State through his efforts to have passed at Trenton legislation which would be of special benefit to the vamps.

TRAMP TO PARTICIPATE IN DISTRIBUTION OF FORTUNE.

When the will of Miss Jennie Ralston, of Pittsburg, was read on Wednesday it was found that she had left $300,000 to her brother, William L. Ralston, who for the past year has been actively engaged working about the Rescue Mission in Elizabeth. The shock of his good fortune overcame Mr. Ralson and he declared that he would give $50,000 to the mission because he was converted there from his evil ways. It was alleged that he was a drunkard and "down and out" when brought into the mission a year ago and that notwithstanding his good fortune he will remain true to those who were instrumental in reforming him.

Miss Ralston's fortune is etimated to be something over $3,000,000. Ralston is forty-one years old and comes of an old Pittsburg family.

HERBERT VANCLEEF SUCCUMBS AT TRENTON.

Herbert VanCleef, aged thirty-six years, at one time one of the best known baseball players in the State, and who has several relatives in this city, died yesterday in St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, from the effects of heat prostration. He was taken ill on Thursday on the street and was first removed to his home. He soon became unconscious and was then taken to the hospital. He never regained consciousness.

Mr. VanCleef lost both of his legs in 1895 by falling from a train and after that he went about in a rolling chair. At one time he was one of the best baseball catchers in Trenton and he continued playing ball even after the accident, which resulted in ball from his chair in the pitcher's box.

Mr. VanCleef is survived by his mother and two brothers, one of whom is DeWitt VanCleef, the well-known National League umpire. The other brother is Harvey VanCleef.

Successful Operation.

Dr. A. H. Dundon, assisted by Dr. P. B. Cregar, operated upon Fireman Joseph Clark, at his home on East Second street, this morning, for the amputation of an infested finger. So far as known it was accomplished successfully.

Miss Sattie Warne, of New York, has returned home after an extended visit with Mrs M. J. Stillings, of Fairview avenue.

DRY CLEANING TALK

Number 4

The Pressers and Finishers

Those who have read our Dry Cleaning Talks are aware by this time that there is something to Dry Cleaning.

After the garments have been properly dusted and passed through their proper bath, properly dried, spotted, etc., they reach the Finishing Department.

It is the duty of this Department to prepare the work for return, also largely to inspect, proving the previous work.

Our Finishing Department is our pride and we know it is efficient. Our ever increasing trade confirms this fact. Send your next work to us.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The second annual dance given by Defender Fire Company in Junior Hall, last night, was one of the most successful of the season. A large crowd was in attendance, many coming from Plainfield and nearby towns. The members of the company were present in full uniform. Naylor's orchestra furnished a splendid musical program. The committee in charge was composed of Harry Shugers, C. Harry Dodwell, Charles E. Vail, John Stilger and William C. Brokaw. The proceeds will be added to the company's treasury.

J. C. Skinner, of Bristol, Conn., has purchased the Henry Wrage house on Prospect avenue, and with his family has taken possession. The household effects were moved here by H. Clifford Smith.

Work was commenced Thursday on the additions to the stores of Otis M. Weber and Oscar Victorsen, in the Dealaman building. They are to be built out to the rear property line.

A meeting of the Middlesex county assessors is being held in conjunction with a session of County Board of Taxation at New Brunswick today.

M'ADOO TO BE IN HOSPITAL A WEEK

William G. McAdoo, builder of the Hudson tubes, and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, a society woman, of New York, who were injured Thursday afternoon in an automobile accident in the road between Matawan and Keyport, were pronounced out of danger yesterday morning after a careful examination in St. Peter's General Hospital at New Brunswick, by surgeons from New York. It was ascertained, however, that McAdoo has three fractured ribs instead of two, and his right arm is severely fractured near the socket. He also has a scalp wound and many bruises and cuts. Mrs. Harriman has several cuts and bruises and she probably will be able to leave the hospital today, McAdoo will be there for a week at least.

The fear, however, is entertained one or the other may have been hurt internally. It will take several days to be assured such is not the case. Mrs. Harriman submitted to a thorough examination yesterday morning. Among the doctors present were Dr. George D. Stewart, of New York and Dr. Howard C. Voorhees. Mr. Harriman arrived from New York Thursday night. He said he will remain at the hospital until he can take his wife back to the city. After the examination Mrs. Harriman got up and reclined in an invalid chair. She still suffers much pain.

Doctors fear McAdoo's injuries being suffered so soon after the tunnel builder's recent operation for appendicitis might be more severe than they now appear. McAdoo, suffering intensely, was cheerful and joked about the accident. At the same time he made it clear he regarded himself as lucky in having escaped death. In a week McAdoo will be removed in a special car over the Pennsylvania Railroad to New York. He will then go to his home in Irvington.

Mrs. Harriman and McAdoo were riding swiftly down a hill which had a soft road. The machine, striking the unusually soft earth, was whirled around and turned turtle. The spot was a lonely one and the two lay helpless for some time. McAdoo was unable to move and Mrs. Harriman, who was semi-conscious, lay in the road. Presently an automobile came up and the passengers went to the aid of the two.

FORTY YEARS in BASEBALL

A History of the Great National Game

By

CAPT. A. C. ANSON

Former Manager of the Chicago National League Team

All that winter Sager and I practiced many hours a day in the loft of our barn. I had resolved to become an expert in the ball business and I was given every encouragement by my father and the ball-loving citizens of my native town.

CHAPTER V.

I Play My First Professional Game.

Somehow or other I don't exactly know how I have gained the reputation of being a believer in baseball trickery. Now I don't deny that I have in my past career resorted to certain little innocent devices to make matters interesting, but I decline to stand for the various kinds of skullduggery on the ball ground that have been ascribed to me from away back.

On one occasion, however, I must plead guilty to the charge of having made the attempt to deceive, and it was no fault of mine that I failed to turn the trick. It was shortly after I had signed with the Forest Citys, and if I had been detected in my attempt it might have been rather a serious handicap to my professional career. At that time rivalry ran high between the Des Moines and Clinton teams and both towns were worked up to a fever of excitement. For the time being baseball had become the chief interest in these enterprising Iowa cities.

A match game was on between these rival teams. Every possible means to make its nine more efficient was being resorted to by each club, including some, perhaps, that wouldn't bear the light of day. An instance in point was the offer to me to play with the Clinton team, with a bait of $50 attached to the tail of it. I was only a boy, and the money looked as big as a mountain to me. Besides, I had no special affection for the Des Moines outfit, bearing in mind the tough treatment we had been given when we recovered the trophy. Without taking time to consider I agreed to go into the game.

It soon occurred to me that it would never do to play ball with the Clintons as A. C. Anson, member of the Forest Citys. It would be easy enough to pick up a name for the occasion, but my red poll and long legs were too familiar in state baseball to pass unnoticed. It would be necessary for me to disguise myself. Right there I was up against a problem that kept me awake nights.

One thing was clear—whatever I did in the way of disguise would have to be pulled off between the time I left home and train time. Finally I hit on a scheme that looked so good to me that I resolved to try it. I would have my hair dyed just before taking the train for the capital. Of course every member of the Clinton club was sworn to secrecy, and I bound the Marshalltown barber with an oath that made him turn pale as he repeated it after me.

About an hour before train time I sneaked into the barber shop, and the professor soon got busy on his job. It was a matter of half an hour or so, and I kept warning him against leaving any traces of the original Anson. When I rose from the chair and caught the first glimpse of myself in the glass I saw that he had done as I had requested him to do. My hair, originally a sort of carroty blond, had been transformed into an inky purple, with streaks here and there of what appeared to be a muddy green. Some of the dye had adhered to the upper part of my forehead, and the whole effect was ridiculous in the extreme.

"Fine!" pronounced the professor, enthusiastically. "Your own father wouldn't know you."

He was mistaken about that. Halfway between the barber shop and the station I came face to face with the old gentleman, and I saw at once by the perplexed and horrified look on his face that he recognised me all right.

"What the —— have you been doing to yourself?" he demanded between a snap and sputter.

The jig was up. I had to confess, and the afterclap was both sudden and decided. "Get home as quick as you can. Don't let the grass grow under your feet!" was the verdict.

There was nothing to do but do, and I did it. Afterward the old gentleman read me a lecture that I have never forgotten. His manner was most dignified and kindly, but his words struck home with lots of force. He pointed out to me that my conduct was dishonest and would be regarded so by the public. In fact, he made me so ashamed of myself that I have been pretty careful ever since to fight shy of shady transactions. I couldn't help feeling sad over the $50 that I didn't get, but afterward, when I came to think it all over, I was glad that I had failed. Getting rid of that hair dye and keeping the affair from becoming public property were altogether different matters.

I shall never forget my first experience in my new position. I had been at Rockford only a day or so when I was ordered to report at the ball grounds for practice. It was early in the spring and so chilly that an overcoat was a necessity. I found when I reached the grounds that my ability as a batsman was going to be tested, and as I took my stand on the plate I shivered as though I was coming down with the ague. It wasn't all due to the cold, either; stage fright was responsible for part of it. Don't forget, please, that I was only a big kid, a stranger in a strange land, and that I was so anxious to make a first good impression that I was almost powerless.

Facing me, with a sardonic look on his weather beaten face, was "Cherokee" Fisher, a man of whom I had always stood in the greatest awe, one of the best of the old time underhand pitchers. In the stand were the directors of the team, who were taking in with an eagle eye my every movement. It was a trying position for a greenhorn, and I could feel my knees knock together. I remember I had some trouble in picking out a bat that suited me. I was wondering all the time whether or not I should be able to hit the ball. Finally I gave the signal to let her go and Fisher began sending them in with his customary speed.

I began by letting a couple go by. Then I sent one out into the right field, and that first hit put me square on my feet. After that I batted Fisher so successfully that everybody was satisfied and I was informed that I would do. I didn't know it at the time, but in after years I learned that the hit to the right field fence was considered the proper caper.

My first game as a professional was played on the Rockford grounds in 1871, our opponents being the Forest City team of Cleveland, O., a strong organization that finished fourth that season on the list for championship honors, the Athletics of Philadelphia, with whom I was to play for the following four years, carrying off the prize. I don't mind telling you that when that game began I was frightened almost out of my shoes. I had been informed at the last minute that owing to the non-arrival of our regular catcher I would be expected to fill the place, something in which I had had little experience. We were beaten by a score of 12 to 4, but I had the satisfaction of knowing that I played a fairly good game.

After that initial game I was never nervous over baseball. I settled down to play a steady game, and at the close of the season I led the team both in batting and fielding. I learned more of the world and its inhabitants that season than I had ever known before. We traveled all over the east and west, and it was more instructive to me than all the schooling I had ever had. I made lots of friends all over the country and some of them were of great service to me in after days. We were treated very well by the club managers, traveling in sleeping cars and stopping at good hotels. That was long before ball players had learned to demand the use of the bridal suite on their travels; and we did not grumble at two in a berth.

CHAPTER VI.

I Go to the Philadelphia Athletics.

When I signed with the Forest Citys it was understood by the folks at home that at the end of the season I should go back to Notre Dame and do some studying. In fact, the old gentleman made that one of the conditions before he would consent to let me join the Rockford club. I don't remember what my original intention was—I didn't usually think far enough ahead to have intentions—but when the end of my first season of professional baseball arrived nothing short of a straitjacket could have taken me back to college. Sink or swim, I had cast my lot with the game and nothing on the little old planet was going to swerve me now that my mind was made up.

I had some reason to feel that baseball was a substantial proposition. On several occasions during the past season I had been approached by managers of various clubs with offers that seemed almost fabulous to my youthful mind. What I really wanted, and tried my best to get, was a position with the Chicago club, then under the management of Tom Foley, the veteran billiard room keeper. Tom took my application as a joke, and finally informed me that he was looking for players of reputation and not for schoolboys with the baseball bug. Although I didn't know it at the time—I was mighty sore over my failure to get to Chicago—it so happened that old Tom's turndown was one of the most fortunate things that ever came my way.

The management of the Athletic club of Philadelphia had been keeping tab on my work with the Rockfords, and just before the close of the season I was offered the sum of $1,250 to play with that organization during the season of 1872. That offer looked mighty good to me, and I accepted with thanks. I didn't like to leave Rockford and the Forest Citys, for I had found the people of the little Illinois city the squarest ever, but they couldn't afford to keep me, although I gave them the first show. They were not certain that they would be able to maintain a professional team any longer, and so I jumped at the Philadelphia offer.

I don't remember just why, but I didn't think it necessary to consult the home folks before I attached my name with a spread eagle flourish to the Athletic contract. When the old gentleman, who was running the Anson house, heard of it his preliminary remarks, I was told by a witness, were, "Something awful." Devoted as he certainly was to the game, he didn't relish my way of doing things, and my latest exploit seemed to him like open rebellion. Long before I revisited Marshalltown, five years later, he had forgotten all about my unfilial conduct and that he had ever disapproved of the course I had taken, without his co-operation.

Late in the fall I said goodby to Rockford and went to Philadelphia with the purpose of making myself fit for the coming season of baseball as I could do the trick. All that winter I worked hard in the gymnasium, only occasionally playing billiards and taking in the sights of the great city as a relaxation.

In spite of the fact that the season of 1871 had been the most prosperous in the history of baseball, there were many changes in the membership of the professional league. Some of the clubs had fallen by the wayside and there were several newcomers in the ranks. Conspicuous among the absentees was the Chicago club, which I had tried so hard to get into. The big fire of October, 1871, which nearly wiped the Queen of the Inland Seas off the map, left the city without a baseball organization. Had I succeeded in my attempt to break into the team I should have been stranded with the others. My old club, the Forest Citys of Rockford, was also among the missing, so that it seemed providential that I had gone to the City of Brotherly Love.

At the opening of the regular playing season the Professional league had 11 teams on its list, but when the season was over only six were left to tell the tale. These were the Athletics of Philadelphia, the Baltimores, the Bostons, the Mutuals of New York and the Atlantics and Eckfords of Brooklyn. The first four of these were regularly salaried clubs, but the Brooklyn organizations were co-operative affairs.

With the possible exception of the Bostons, the team of which I was a member in that season of 1872 was the strongest that had yet appeared on the diamond. I don't care to say that the acquisition of A. C. Anson had a mighty lot to do with this, but my record for that season showed that I played ball some. We were especially strong at the bat, for among the first eleven on the batting record that year we numbered six, the Bostons coming next with three, and the Baltimores following.

I don't mind saying right here that in some respects we were a mighty sight stronger than the Bostons. It was their team work that put them in the front. So far they seemed to be about the only club in the country that realized the value of good team work in winning a championship. If more time and attention had been given to this vital point I feel certain that the Athletics would have topped the list that year. At the very first game we played with them I got wise to their strength and our weakness, and I made up my mind that if ever I got control of a nine I would make team work a feature. I didn't forget it either when I reached the managerial stage of my career.

During that first season with the Athletics I played third base. The Philadelphia folks, who had seen me play in that position with the Forest Citys, evidently thought I was at my best at third, and I had an idea at the time that it was my strong hold. Since most of the men in the Athletics' makeup that year remained with the club as long as I did and were my constant companions during four years' professional playing this will be a good place to name them. Fortunately for me I had got the diary habit and the books are still in my possession. As I look over these names, all baseball celebrities in the early seventies, I can't help comparing them with the best nines of the present, and I don't mind telling you that every man of them was a top notcher in his own particular way. Of course modesty compels me to make an exception of Anson, but I was learning to do a few entertaining stunts even at that early stage.

Malone, catcher; McBride, pitcher; Mack, first base; Fisler, second base; Anson, third base; McGeary, shortstop; Cuthbert, left field; Treacey, center field; Meyerle, right field. Can you beat it?

The first games I played with the Athletics were with the Baltimores, and I remember that our fielders didn't have a picnic by any means. The way these Maryland boys stood up to the racket made an impression on me that I have never forgotten. At the close of the first game the score stood 34 to 19 in our favor; and if there was any muscle in my makeup that didn't get into action on that occasion I have yet to learn its name and location. And all that was in spite of the fact that the ball was a "dead" one.

It didn't seem to worry the others especially, but it was a real blow to my system when the Bostons carried off the championship that year. They had played 49 games, wining 38 and losing 11. We had taken part in 46 games, wining 30 and being beaten 16 times. The only consolation I had was to sit down and gaze fondly at my batting record. I had figured in 28 championship games and had finished fourth on the list of batsmen, with 47 base hits to my credit, an average of 1.67 to the game. Looking over the batting records of recent years, I don't find anything to make me blush over that early showing.

CHAPTER VII.

I Combine Baseball and Wild Oats.

In the spring of 1873 our team started out with the united determination to give the Boston champions the struggle of their life to keep at the top of the list. All winter we had been preparing for the conflict, and we realized that in order to down the victors we must strengthen our weak places without damage to our strong ones. To accomplish this the management of the Athletics made a few changes in the make-up of the team. One of these was to put a new man named Fulton at third base, assigning me to shortstop. I suppose the Athletic folk had come to the conclusion that I was a sort of general utility man, playing equally well in any old position. I thought at the time they were mistaken, and I am of the same opinion still. You can take it from me that in baseball, as in most other professions, the jack-of-all-trades is very apt to be master of none.

Although we had a mighty strong team—stronger, I think, than that of the preceding season—we failed to make as good a showing as we did in 1872. The Boston folks had outgeneraled us in our effort to fortify ourselves and they had been more liberal with their "rhino." Altogether we played 50 games that season, winning 27 and losing 23. Out of the 14 exhibition games we won 12 and lost two. These two lost games were the gall and wormwood of the whole business—they were won by a rival club which had come into being, the Philadelphians, who had robbed us of two of our most famous players, Malone and Mack, and had started business with the avowed intention of wiping us off the map.

Take it straight from me that the staid citizens of "old Phillie" were tickled to death over the baseball civil war that had broken out, and they just rooted themselves speechless at the final contest, which landed our rivals in second place, the score standing 5 to 4. We left the field that night as disgusted with the business of living on the earth as if we had been treated to a dose of ipecac. The season was all over now and we were halted in our march to overtake the once more victorious beaneaters. As before, I was about the only member of the team who could find a crumb of comfort—I was still fourth on the batting list, and that was something.

Now, don't believe for a moment that the Athletic management was ready to call off the game. That club was founded on too firm a rock to have its bottom knocked out from under by the upstart that had tackled it. Instead of sitting down and crying over the milk that had been spilled, the club folks started right in to mend their fences so that they might stand a chance of regaining what they had lost, even if nothing better came of it. My salary was advanced to $1,500, and once again I was shifted—this time to right field. I did not say so at the time, but I knew then as well as I do now that the change was another piece of shortsightedness.

ELECTRIC POWER IS ECONOMICAL

What business man would continue to use steam power if he could be convinced that it was to his financial interest to change to electric power drive?

Given a fair opportunity, we believe we can demonstrate that the electric power is more advantageous than steam in nearly every instance.

We do not have to depend upon theories and calculations either. We have actual experience to fall back upon—experiences of men and firms who have made the change and are willing to testify to the advantages of Central Station Power over steam drive.

If others have profited by abandoning steam plants and substituting electric drive, why can't you?

Our engineers are ready to study your power problem and, without cost to you, tell you if we can save you money. A card will bring an expert to you without any assumption of obligation on your part.

TO SAVE BUTTONS.

Did you ever have a garment return from the laundry or the washerwoman with all the buttons on it that it possessed when it went? Never! Then here is a way to save future trouble by taking a little in the present.

Work two rows of buttonholes exactly opposite each other in both hems of the garment. Instead of sewing the buttons to the fabric sew them to a tape, being sure to have the distance between the buttons on the tape the same as that of the button holes. Fasten these buttons through the buttonholes on one hem, pinning at each end with a tiny safety pin. Each time the clothes are washed take out the tape and wash it at home. This idea can be used for every size of button and every texture of fabric.

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910, by Anna Katharine Rohlfs

"Explain! Where am I?"

"At Lakewood, in a hotel. You have been ill and are only just recovering."

Her hand went up to her cheek, the one that had been burned, and still showed the deep traces of that accident.

"I remember," said she. Then, with another glance at her dress, which had studiously been kept cheerful, she remarked, with deep reproach: "My sister is dead. Why am I not in black?"

The nurse, realizing her responsibility (she said afterward that it was the most serious moment of her life), subdued her own astonishment at this proof of her young patient's knowledge of a crime of which she was universally supposed to be entirely ignorant and, bestowing an assuring smile on the agitated girl, observed softly:

"You were too ill to be burdened with black. You are better now and may assume it if you will. I will help you buy your mourning."

"Yes; you look like a kind woman. What is your name, please, and are we here alone in this great hotel?"

Now, as a matter of expediency, to save Carmel from the unendurable curiosity of the crowd and herself from the importunities of the New York reporters, Miss Unwin had registered herself and her charge under assumed names. She was, therefore, forced to reply:

"My name is Huckins, and we are here alone. But that need not worry you. I have watched over you night and day for many weeks."

"You have? Because of this slight burn?" Again Carmel's hand went to her cheek.

"Not on account of that only. You have had a serious illness quite apart from that injury. But you are better; you are almost well—well enough to go home, if you will."

"I cannot go home—not just yet. I'm—I'm not strong enough. But we shouldn't be here alone without some man to look after us. Miss Huckins, where is my brother?"

At this question, uttered with emphasis, with anxiety—with indignation even—Miss Unwin felt the emotion she had so successfully subdued up to this moment betray itself in her voice as she answered with a quiet motion toward the elevator: "Let us go up to our room. There I will answer all your questions."

But Carmel, with the waywardness of her years, or perhaps with deeper reasoning powers than the other would be apt to attribute to her, broke softly away from Miss Unwin's detaining hand and, walking directly into the office, looked about for the newspaper stand. She reached it just as a boy stepped into view with the evening bulletin, on which had been written these words:

The last juror obtained in the trial of Arthur Cumberland for the murder of his sister, Adelaide.

Carmel saw and stood, a breathless image of horror. A couple of gentlemen came running, but the nurse waved them back and herself caught Carmel and upheld her, in momentary dread of another mental if not physical collapse.

But Carmel had come back into the world of consciousness to stay. Accepting her nurse's support, but giving no sign of waning faculties or imperfect understanding of what she had seen, she spoke quite clearly and with her eyes fixed upon Miss Unwin.

"So that is why I am here, away from all my friends. Was I too ill to accident explained and everything done for the unconscious woman which medical skill could suggest Carmel, finding a moment to herself, stole to the trunk and, lifting up the lid, looked in. She had been watchful of her nurse from the first and was suspicious of the actions which had led to this untoward accident. Seeing the two little books, she took them out. The notebook lay open, and on the page thus disclosed she beheld written:

Ap Lox Fidestum Trubum

Ridiculous nonsense—until she consulted the code. Then these detached and meaningless words took on a significance which she could not afford to ignore:

Ap—A change.
Lox—Makes remarkable statements.
Fidestum—Shall we return?
Trubum—Not tractable.

Carmel endeavored to find out for whom this telegram was intended. There was nothing to inform her. A moment of indecision was followed by quick action. She had noticed that she had been invariably addressed as Miss Campbell by every one who had come into the room.

Regaining her own room, which was on the other side of their common sitting room, she collected a few necessary articles and placed them in a bag, which she thrust under her bed. Hunting for money, she found quite an adequate amount in her own purse, which was attached to her person. Satisfied thus far, she chose her most inconspicuous hat and coat and, putting them on, went out by her own door into the corridor.

The time—it was the dinner hour—favored her attempt. She found her way to the office unobserved and, going frankly up to the clerk, informed him that she had some telegrams to send and that she would be out for some little time. Would he see that Miss Huckins was not neglected in her absence?

"I will see to it," said he. Then, as she turned to go, he ventured to add: "It is quite dark now. If you would like one of the boys to go with you"—But he received no encouragement and allowed his suggestion to remain unfinished.

She looked grateful for this and was pulling down her veil when she perceived two or three men on the other side of the room watching her in evident wonder. Stepping back to the desk, she addressed the clerk again, this time with a marked distinctness:

"I have been very ill, I know, and not always quite myself. But the shock of this accident to my nurse has cleared my brain and made me capable again of attending to my own affairs. You can trust me; I can do my errands all right, but perhaps I had better have one of the boys go with me."

The clerk, greatly relieved, rang his bell. With the first step into the street Carmel's freshly freed mind began its work. "Where is the railroad station?" she inquired of the boy who was trotting along at her side.

"Over there," he answered vaguely.

"Take me to it."

The sight of the station, from which a train was just leaving, frightened her for a moment with its bustle and many lights, but she rallied under the stress of her purpose and, entering, found the telegraph office, from which she sent this message, directed to her physician at home, Dr. Carpenter:

Look for me on early train. All is clear to me now, and I must return. Preserve silence till we meet.

This she signed with a pet name known only to themselves and dating back to her childish days.

Then she bought a ticket and studied the time table. When quite satisfied she returned to the hotel. She was met in the doorway by the physician who was attending the nurse. He paused when he saw her and asked a few questions, which she was penetrating enough to perceive were more for the purpose of testing her own condition than to express interest in his patient. She answered quietly and was met by a surprise and curiosity which evinced that he was greatly drawn toward her case. This alarmed her. She did not wish to be the object of any one's notice. On the contrary, she desired to obliterate herself, to be counted out so far as all these people were concerned. But, above all, she was anxious not to rouse suspicion. So she stopped and talked as naturally as she could about Miss Huckins' accident and what the prospects were for the night. These were favorable, or so the doctor declared, but the injured woman's condition called for great care, and he would send over a capable nurse at once. Meanwhile the maid who was with her would do very well. She herself need have no worry.

"You are very good," said Carmel. "I am tired and when I once get to bed shall certainly sleep. I shall give orders not to be disturbed. Isn't that right?"

"Shall I accompany you to the door of your room?" he asked.

She shook her head, with a smile.

"I am quite capable of finding my room. I hope Miss Huckins will be as well in a week from now as I am at this moment. But, doctor"—she had been struck by a strange possibility—"I should like to settle one little matter before we part. The money I have may not be quite safe in my hands. My memory might leave me again, and then Miss Huckins might suffer. If you will take charge of some of it on her account I shall feel relieved."

"It would be a wise precaution," he admitted. "But you could just as well leave it at the desk."

"So I can," she smiled. Then, as his eye remained fixed on her: "You are wondering if I have friends. We both have, and I have just come from telegraphing to one of them. You can leave us with an easy mind. All that I dread is that Miss Huckins will worry about me if her consciousness should return during the night."

"It will not return so soon. Next week we may look for it. Then you can be by to reassure her if she asks for you."

The doctor, lifting his hat, took his departure. The interview might have lasted five minutes. She felt as though it had lasted an hour.

She followed the doctor's advice and left half the money she had in charge of the clerk. Then she went upstairs. She was not seen to come down again but when the 8:45 train started out of the station that night it had for a passenger a young, heavily veiled girl, who went straight to her section. A balcony running by her window had favored her escape.

She was missed the next morning and an account of her erratic flight reached the papers and was published far and wide. But the name of Miss Caroline Campbell conveyed nothing to the public.

At the house of Dr. Carpenter she met Mr. Moffat. What she told him heartened him greatly for the struggle he saw before him. Indeed, it altered the whole tone of the defense. Perceiving from her story and from what the doctor could tell him of their meeting at the station that her return to town was as yet a secret to every one but themselves, he begged that the secret should continue to be kept.

Carmel wished her brother informed of her return, but the wily lawyer persuaded her to excuse him from telling Arthur into his confidence until the last moment. He knew that he would receive only opposition from his young and stubborn client. One of the stipulations which he had made in securing Mr. Moffat for his counsel was that Carmel's name was to be kept as much as possible out of the proceedings, and to this Mr. Moffat had subscribed, notwithstanding his conviction that the crime laid to the defendant's charge was a result of Ranelagh's passion for Carmel and consequently distinctly the work of Ranelagh's own hand.

He had thought that he could win his case by the powers of oratory and a somewhat free use of innuendo, but his view changed under the fresh enlightenment which he received in his conversation with Carmel. He saw unfolding before him a defense of unparalleled interest. True, it involved this interesting witness in a way that would be unpleasant to the brother, but he was not the man to sacrifice a client to any sentimental scruple—certainly not this client, whose worth he was just beginning to realize.

Carmel was not strong enough for much talk. Dr. Carpenter would not allow it, and the continued clearness of her mind was too invaluable to his case for this farseeing advocate to take any risk. She had told him enough to assure him that circumstances and not guilt had put Arthur where he was and had added to the assurance details of an unexpected nature—so unexpected, indeed, that the lawyer was led away by the prospect they offered of confounding the prosecution by a line of defense to which no clew had been given by anything that had appeared.

He planned then and there a dramatic climax which should take the breath away from his opponent and change the whole feeling of the court toward the prisoner. Strangely enough the subject of Adelaide's death was discussed in her hearing without any mention being made of strangulation as its immediate cause. Would her action have been different had she known that this was a conceded fact?

CHAPTER XXIII.

"I REMEMBERED THE ROOM."

As Carmel's gaze passed from her brother's face it traveled slowly and with glowing hesitation over the countenances of those near her, on and on past the judge, past the jury until they reached the spot where I sat. There they seemed to falter, and the beating of my heart became so loud that I instinctively shrank away from my neighbor. By so doing I drew her eye which fell full upon mine for one overwhelming minute; then she shrank and looked away, but not before the color had risen in a flood to her cheek.

The hope which had sprung to life under her first beautiful aspect vanished at sight of this flush, for it was not one of joy or surprise or even of unconscious sympathy. It was the banner of a deep, unendurable shame. But in a few minutes her features settled into a strange placidity, undisturbed by the leveled gaze of a hundred eyes. Her whole attention was concentrated on her brother and wavered only when the duties of the occasion demanded a recognition of the various gentlemen concerned in the trial.

Mr. Moffat prefaced his examination by the following words:

"May it please your honor, I wish to ask the indulgence of the court in my examination of this witness. She is just recovering from a long and dangerous illness, and, while I shall endeavor to keep within the rules of examination, I shall be grateful for any consideration which may be shown her by your honor and by the counsel on the other side."

Mr. Fox at once rose. He had by this time recovered from his astonishment at seeing before him and in a fair state of health the young girl whom he had every reason to believe to be still in a condition of partial forgetfulness at Lakewood and under the care of a woman entirely in his confidence and under his express orders. He had also mastered his chagrin at the triumph which her presence here and under these dramatic circumstances had given his adversary. He expressed in warm tones his deep desire to extend every possible indulgence.

Mr. Moffat bowed his acknowledgments and waited for his witness to take the oath, which she did with a simple grace which touched all hearts, even that of her constrained and unreconciled brother. Compelled by the silence and my own bounding pulses to look at her in my own despite, I caught the sweet and elevated look with which she laid her hand on the book and asked myself if her presence here was not a self accusation which would bring satisfaction to nobody, which would sink her and hers into an ignominy worse than the conviction of the brother whom she was supposedly there to save.

Tortured by this fear, I awaited events in indescribable agitation.

The cool voice of Mr. Moffat broke in upon my gloom. Carmel had reseated herself after taking the oath, and the customary question could be heard:

"Your name, if you please."

"Carmel Cumberland."

"Do you recognize the prisoner, Miss Cumberland?"

"Yes; he is my brother."

A thrill ran through the room. The lingering tone, the tender accent, told. Some of the feeling she thus expressed seemed to pass into every heart which contemplated the two. From this moment on he was looked upon with less harshness. People showed a disposition to discern innocence where perhaps they had secretly desired until now to discover guilt.

"Miss Cumberland, will you be good enough to tell us where you were at or near the hour of 10 on the evening of your sister's death?"

Saved by The Prudential Extended Insurance Clause.

"I wish to express my gratitude to The Prudential Company, and take this means of doing so," a resident of Yonkers, N. Y., writes. "My daughter was insured in your Company November 3rd, 1905. In November, 1909, the policy had to be canceled as we could not pay the premium. Ten months later she died. I told the Agent about the policy being lapsed. He said he would inquire about it. He did so and the Company paid me the amount due, explaining that the policy was in force under the automatic extended insurance clause. I cannot speak too highly of the liberality of The Prudential policies and will always recommend anyone to insure in your Company."

SENATOR MARTINE ON STANDARD OIL

Washington, May 20.—Such members of the New Jersey delegation as could be reached yesterday for opinions on the Supreme Court's decision in the Standard Oil case spoke as follows:

Senator James E. Martine said. "The knowledge that the Standard Oil Company has existed illegally, not only in restraint of trade, but against common decency, is not new. As a layman, rather than a lawyer, I am opposed to the 'reasonable-unreasonable' feature of the majority opinion of the court. I have always believed that there was no such thing as a good trust and that any restraint of trade was unreasonable."

Congressman William Hughes said: "It is most unfortunate that a condition exists whereby the judicial branch of the government may assume the principal function of the legislative branch. That is plainly what has been done in the case of the decision of a majority of the Supreme Court in the Standard Oil case."

"If it dissolves the Standard Oil Company," said Congressman Jas. A. Hamill, "it is a good thing. It seems to recognize a distinction between a good trust and a bad one, and I do not think any trust is a good trust."

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, conceded to be one of the ablest lawyers in the country, says: "The majority opinion of the court seems to have definitely determined that only contracts in unreasonable restraint of trade are prohibited by Section 1 of the anti-trust act. Chief Justice White follows the reasoning of his dissenting opinion in the case of the United States vs. Transmissouri Freight, and the majority of the court joins with him. Justice Harlan dissents in a vigorous opinion, holding that the section prohibits all contracts in restraint of trade whether the restraint be reasonable or unreasonable.

"This presents a most serious situation—too serious to hastily say what should be done. But to my mind, if we are going to have the law applied as now interpreted we must either fix some standard as to what constitutes unreasonable restraint or we must put upon the Supreme Court a burden which it could never discharge. It would make it the censor of the commercial affairs of the United States.

"There is this in the opinion of the court, however, which ought not to be overlooked, and that is that it holds that whenever the element of monopoly exists to any extent the matter comes within the prohibition of the law.

"I am coming to believe more and more in the views I expressed at the Columbia theatre last November that the government will never be able to restore competition—that the government must assume the burden of regulating the great industrial combinations producing or distributing the necessaries, even to the extent of regulating prices. This seems radical, but let some one sit down and try to work it out some other way and see what other conclusion can be reached.

"There are just three courses open; First, to go back to the old rule of competition; second, to permit these combinations and large concentrations of wealth to continue and regulate them; third, to own them."

NOT ON HAND FOR SENTENCE.

Convicted Lawyer's Absence from New Brunswick Doesn't Worry Court.

Harry B. Cook, a lawyer who was convicted of obtaining money under false pretences after two trials and who was to have been sentenced at New Brunswick yesterday, was out of town when sentence time arrived. Where he has gone or what his intentions are have not been definitely ascertained.

"Mr. Cook went away early this morning," his wife told a reporter. "His daughter went with him, and he went to see a party whom he thought could give him assistance in his difficulty. He does not intend to remain away. I have his word for it, and I have not the least doubt on the subject. His mother is prostrated, and he is not the man to leave her in that condition. He will be here when he is wanted. I believe he purposes to see Judge Daly and Prosecutor Booraem when he returns."

Court officials were inclined to believe that Mr. Cook's absence was only temporary. Prosecutor Booraem did not move for sentence because of representations that the defendant was too ill to appear. The defendant is not under bonds. Cook is a prominent Democratic politician and has been practicing at the Middlesex bar for twenty-nine years. His work was mostly criminal cases.

Rev. A. G. Wakefield, of Brooklyn Tabernacle, will give a free lecture tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at 536 West Fifth street, the subject being, "The Three Ways."

Rev. Dr. Arthur H. Goodenough, superintendent of the New York district, New York East Conference, will preach at the First M. E. church tomorrow morning on the theme, "The True Imperialism."

HIGH SCHOOL'S TEAM DEFEATS COLLEGE NINE

Upsala College baseball team came to Plainfield this morning and went home minus a ball after a most exciting ten inning contest. Clarke pitched for the home team and put it all over Berg, who twirled for the collegians.

Scoring began in the second inning when each team scored a run. After the visitors had scored one with the help of a couple of errors, P. H. S. retaliated with a brace of hits and a run. Clarke made a two bagger in this inning and Hanrahan followed it up with a single which was enough to score Clarke.

In the fourth session P. H. S. nailed the game only to lose her grip in the ninth, but in the tenth the local boys came back with another talley which finally put the pellet away in their bat bags.

The lineup—P. H. S.—Heron, 3b; Grisley, 2b; Davenport, ss; Good, rf; Clarke, p; Hanrahan, lf; Denny, rf; Ulrich c; Shrager, cf. Upsala College—Friendberg, 3b; Arthur, c; Haldia, 1b; M. A. Swanson, 2b; Bergquist, lf; M. L. Swanson, cf; Bostrom, ss; Berg, p; Armond, rf.

GOV. WILSON'S VIEWS ON 'OREGON SYSTEM'

Before a crowd that thronged the auditorium of the Third Regiment Armory to the doors at Portland, Oregon, last night Governor Wilson, of New Jersey, was received by a great crowd. The Governor took the "Oregon System" for his theme, though his talk was entitled, "Good Government," during which he explained that the initiative and referendum as well as direct primary nominating systems were a credit to the citizenship of the State.

Governor Wilson stated that some of the laws could be amended with a view of making them more intelligent as well as more effective and explaining his ideas on some of these points, he also took occasion to reiterate his aversion to the recalling of the judiciary. On this score he said:

"As to the recall it must be never very stubborn or very stupid. While I heartily favor the use of the recall for all administrative offices I do not approve of it for the judiciary on the theory that one of the greatest dangers with which we are beset in our efforts to secure better government is impatience. We are prone to use too much haste; to take too many short cuts. I admit that, logically, it is unanswerable that if we elect judges we have the right to recall them but I don't care a popper of corn for logic."

Governor Wilson and party left late last night for the North, being scheduled at Tacoma, Seattle and Spokane the next three days.

NOT GERAN'S BILL.

Assemblyman Disclaims Authorship of Measure.

Elmer H. Geran, father of the Geran act, delivered an address before the Men's League of the First Presbyterian church last night at Hoboken. After disclaiming authorship of the bill he said he was new in politics and not well posted.

He told how Governor Wilson at the conference over the bill overcame the objections, and then declared that 40 per cent. of the voters of Monmouth, Middlesex and Bergen counties were purchaseable and that he believed the so-called Geran bill would do away with much of that corruption.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Goodenough, of New York, are xisiting their son, Arthur T. Goodenough, of West Front street.

Mrs. Benjamin Evans, and daughters, Wilma and Margaret, of West Fourth street, are spending a few days with Mrs Evans' sister, Mrs. Joseph Dunham, of New York.

Mrs. Peter Floersch, who was badly cut by the turning up of a sharp chisel on which she stepped a week ago, is improving rapidly. Dr. P. J. Zeglio, the attending physician, said this morning that Mrs. Floersch had recovered from the shock of the accident and that the wound was healing nicely.

SEMI-FINAL RESULTS IN TENNIS TOURNEY

The feature of the tennis tournament at the Plainfield Country Club, yesterday afternoon, was that Miss Barbara Fleming, of this city, who captured a National indoor title last winter, together with Harold H. Hackett, defeated Miss Elizabeth H. Moore, the former National champion, and Lyle E. Mahan, 6-4, 6-1, in the semi-finals for the mixed doubles. The match was one of the best thus far played on the local courts and afforded Miss Fleming an excellent chance to show her ability.

Miss Adelaide Browning paired with W. M. Hall also won their match, defeating Miss Clara Kuttroff and G. C. Shafer, 6-4, 6-0. The semi-finals of the men's doubles also resulted in some fine playing, which brings Harold H. Hackett and C. R. Gardner in the final with T. R. Pell and Lyle E. Mahan. The summary:

Plainfield Mixed Doubles—Semi-Final Round—Miss Barbara Fleming and H. H. Hackett defeated Miss Elizabeth H. Moore and L. E. Mahan, 6-4, 6-1; Miss Adelaide Browning and W. M. Hall defeated Miss Clara Kuttroff and G. C. Shafer, 6-4, 6-0.

Men's doubles—Semi-final Round—H. H. Hackett and C. R. Gardner defeated G. F. Tourchard and G. C. Shafer, 6-3, 6-3; T. R. Bell and L. E. Mahan defeated W. B. Cragin, Jr., and W. M. Hall, 6-1, 6-8, 6-3.

P. H. S. SENIORS WALLOPED BY SOPHOMORE TEAM.

The sophomore team of the Plainfield High School won another game yesterday defeating the seniors by a score of 12 to 4, and gaining the lead in the interclass series. Coughlin's pitching had the seniors looking crosseyed from the very start while Banks' slants were batted all over the lot.

Six runs came across as the sophomores' portion in the first inning and they kept right on scoring in alternate innings until the end of the game. There was not a hit made off Coughlin until the seventh session when Banks and Clarke got to him for a couple of bingles. Exceptionally fine fielding support helped out for the sophs. No record was kept of the errors committed by the seniors, but they were many and frequent.

The lineup:

Seniors—Clarke, 2b; Shrager, ss; Wilson, rf; Berse, lf; Hatfield, 3b, Schuck, 1b; Schwed, cf; Banks, p; W. Banks, c. Sophomores—Sharkey, c; Heron, 2b; Rosenson, ss; McDowell, lf; Coughlin, p; Bryniskey, 3b; Guttridge, 1b; Jenkins, rf; B. Rosenson, cf.

Score by innings:

Seniors	0	1	0	0	0	1	0	2	0	—4
Sophomores	6	1	0	1	0	2	0	1	1	—12

HE BLAMES TARIFF

Senator James E. Martine Figures in Lively Clash With Senator Crawford.

ON RECIPROCITY QUESTION.

"Farmer-Orator" Interrupts Republican Senator's Speech Twice to Get a Whack at Protective Tariff.

Senator Martine, of New Jersey, and Senator Crawford, of South Dakota, indulged in a lively argument on the floor of the Senate during the latter's speech on the proposed Canadian reciprocity agreement. Senator Crawford took pessimistic view of the effect of the reciprocity agreement on the American farmer. "It will increase the number of abandoned farms, encourage soil waste and neglect and mark the beginning of the end of the American farmer in many lines of production, declared the South Dakota Senator.

"I should like to ask the Senator if abandoned farms have not been brought about under the system of Republican high protection?" broke in the New Jeresy Senator, as he continued: "Previous to Republican high protection did we ever hear of abandoned farms? Yet throughout New England—not in the in the far Dakotas, but in New England—farm after farm is today abandoned under the iniquitious system of your so-called high protection."

Mr. Crawford.—If the Senator from New Jersey will be patient I will discuss that, and I will show that under the present tariff on farm products and under present conditions, whatever abuses there may be, there has been a falling off in the number of abandoned farms in New England, and we want to let the progress we are now making go on.

Mr. Martine.—That has been largely due to immigration and not to the iniquitious system that has burdened the farmer.

Mr. Crawford—I do not agree with the Senator in his claim that it is because of immigration. It is because farming has become profitable and as long as farming can be kept profitable the number of abandoned farms will continue to grow less.

Mr. Martine—I want to ask under what system and what administration policy this horrid condition (congested living conditions in big cities) that is pictured in the eloquent address of the Stnator took places? Was it under Republican policy or under some other policy? Answer; please answer.

Mr. Crawford—We had in my recollection, as young as I am, about four of Democratic rule, and I do not remember that conditions were alleviated in one particular during that period.

Mr. Martine—You have not alleviated them in ten times four years.

Mr. Crawford—I say this will never come to pass if the bars are thrown down and the products of alien farmers admitted on the same basis with our own.

A little later in his speech Senator Crawford referred to the great cost of fertilizers that American farmers are compelled to buy. He declared that the wheat growing States in 1910 spent $40,409,000 for fertilizer, an increase in this item of expense of 51 per cent. in ten years. Here, again Senator Martine interrupted the North Dakota Senator, the Congressional Record reporting the debate as follows:

Mr. Martine—Will the Senator permit a word here.

Mr. Crawford— Yes, I do not care for extended remarks though.

Mr. Martine—No; I shall not make any. But fertilizer, of which the Senator speaks, is a prize necessity in this country, and growing more and more so each year. Then I ask, if the Senator's heart beats so fondly for the farmer, why is it in your scheme you have not relieved fertilizer from the iniquitious tax which is a burden? Kainit, German salats, which is the basis of fertilizer, and the other fertilizers—

Mr. Crawford—I am afraid the Senator from New Jersey is making a speech.

Mr. Martine—And the other fertilizers that are controlled by the Standard Oil Company are all on the tariff list. So, if the Senator believes that which he speaks, lift the burden and let us have fertilizer free, so that we need not ask odds of Canada or any other country.

Mr. Crawford—As for my sincerity, I cannot help the Senator's incredulity, but this very much accused Payne tariff law did take the tariff off sulphate of ammonia, and our Southern brethren were all demanding it, because it went into fertilizer. We did something, after all.

OPEN AIR MEETING DRAWS A BIG CROWD

The first of a series of open air meetings to be conducted by the Religious Work committee of the Y. M. C. A. was held at the Jackson building, corner of Front street and Madison avenue, Saturday night, and proved a great success. A crowd of fully 400 people remained throughout the service and paid marked attention to everything. Brief addresses were made by Rev. Charles S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue church, and Rev. Franklin K. Mathews, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church. Musical numbers were contributed by Edward Brunn, who sang two solos, and Edmund Young, cornetist. Secretary Herbert E. Parker, of the Association, was in charge. All were greatly pleased with the interest displayed and the belief exists that the series will prove of great spiritual benefit to those who cannot be reached by indoor services.

The next meeting will be held at the same corner next Saturday night at 8:15. The speakers will be Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, and Rev. Charles C. Caine, of Grace M. E. church. The participants use an automobile as an improvised platform and their position enables them to be easily heard and understood.

SCHOOLS' TEACHERS HOLD ANNUAL DANCE

The city public school teachers enjoyed their annual reception and dance Saturday night in the High School auditorium. Many friends of the teachers attended and helped to make the affair the most enjoyable yet held. The auditorium and platform were attractively decorated for the occasion the color scheme being pink and white. One teacher from each of the city schools was on the committee which had the affair in charge. A program of vocal and instrumental music preceded the dancing which was kept up until a late hour.

At intermission the teachers and their friends formed in line and executed a grand march which ended in the gymnasium where Benjamin Evans had prepared some dainty refreshments.

Among the pleasing features of the musical program were a soprano solo by Miss Edith Bechtel; baritone solos by Frederick Greene and Roy Titsworth; a chorus, "The Copper Moon," by the Misses Ada Stark, Dorotha Bull, Mary Searle, Lena Bass, Ethel Sleight, Pearl Knapp, Jean Gilfillan, Elizabeth, Greenleaf Helen Sadler, and Minie Copeland. Miss Mabel Maxson played acceptably a piano solo and Mr. Schultz contributed a violin solo. A quartet selection by Miss Eunice Eckert, Laura Bristol and Messrs. Roy Titsworth and Luther Banks proved a hit.

DE MOND SOMERSET'S DEMOCRATIC CHAIRMAN

William J. DeMond, of Somerville, was elected chairman of the Somerset County Democratic Committee, at the meeting on Saturday at Somerville, succeeding Michael W. Scully, who retired. The latter is now a member of the county tax board. Walter C. Linbarger, of the borough, was re-elected secretary.

The committee endorsed the administration of Governor Wilson and also the work of Assemblyman LaMonte. After the business session there was an informal explanation of the Geran election law. The committee was the guest of Assemblyman LaMonte at the Lake Hotel, after the meeting.

After Auto Speeders.

Mrs. John Harding, of Terrill road, reported to the police on Saturday that an automobilist was racing up and down that thoroughfare at the rate of fifty miles an hour. She reported the number as 73 M. Patrolman Saffron was sent to investigate and arrived in time to see the machine crossing Terrill road bridge at a forty mile clip. Another automobilist whose car number is 7,188 N. J. is sought by Mayor Moy. The charge against the owner will be speeding.

Exchanged Pulpits.

Rev. S. L. Loomis, D. D., of Westfield, occupied the pulpit of the Congregational church yesterday morning in exchange with Rev. Charles L. Goodrich. His sermon on "What's the Use" impressed a large congregation.

BOYS ENJOY VISIT TO PRINCETON UNIV.

More than thirty boys from the local schools enjoyed an automobile trip to Princeton on Saturday, where they witnessed the baseball game in which Princeton deefated Harvard 5 to 0; the boat race on Carnegie Lake, had a fine dinner and listened to the singing of the students on the campus in the evening. The affair was arranged by the Princeton Club of Plainfield, the object being to stimulate an interest among boys in Princeton University with a view to making them possible students.

Henry Cochran, Clinton Ivins and Lawrence Tweedy had charge of the outing and they enlisted the co-operation of George P. Mellick, Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, W. J. Buttfield, J. P. Stevens, Edward M. VanBuren, Dr. F. E. DuBois and Mrs. Frederic G. Mead, who kindly loaned their automobiles for the trip. The boys met William Roper, head coach; Captain White of the baseball team and Captain Hort of the football eleven.

These were in the party:

Warren Butler, Orton Dale, Jack Phillips, Jack Grossett, Walter Hedges, Voorhees Borden, Duncan Mellor, William Holstein, Bruce Buttfield, William Garrigues, Philip Garrigues, Jack Greason, William Mellor, Rodman Parvin, Jack Stevens, Robert Stevens, Nat Stevens, Dale Warren, Allan Heely, Tom Ladd, Charles Ivins, Morris VanBuren, Donald King, Clay Irons, William Irons, Tom Ball, Gus. 7th DAY BAPTIST MEN HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET.

The Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church held its annual meeting and banquet in the church parlors last night, when these officers were elected: President, Dr. Marcus L. Clawson; vice-president, Raymond E. Burdick; secretary, Frank A. Langworthy; treasurer, Roland M. Davis; executive committeemen, Dr. O. B. Whitford and C. W. Spicer.

Following the business session, the banquet took place. This was prepared and served in a satisfactory manner by Mrs. Henry Johnson. There were several short speeches by members of the club and humorous selections were given by Prof. King, of Newark. Dr. Henry M. Maxson gave a ten minute talk on "Education," in which he described a recent trip to several public schools in New York, where he witnessed a Wonderful transformation in the children through education in the schools.

The affair was in charge of the program committee of the club comprising O. S. Rogers, chairman; Dr. O. B. Whitford, Dr. Marcus L. Clawson, Rev. Edwin Shaw and C. W. Spicer.

TALKS TO JUNIORS

Rev. Mr. Kemble Preaches to Four Local Councils of the Jr. O. U. A. M.

AT MONROE AVENUE CHURCH.

The Pastor Points How Distinction Between Fatherhood and Motherhood is God's Treatment of Men.

Members of Franklin, Somerset, Benevolent and Plainfield Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., but chiefly from Somerset Council, attended services at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, last night, when Rev. C. S. Kemble, the pastor, preached. The edifice was decorated with the stars and stripes. There was special music, the offertory being rendered by William Stewart on a marimaphone, an instrument of his own invention.

Mr. Kemble took his text from Hebrews 12: "He dealth with you as sons," and in it he showed the distinction between fatherhood and motherhood in God's dealing with men. While tender as a mother in His comfortings, God does not coddle His sons, does not seek to shield them from every rough wind, from every cruel blow. He lets them receive hard knocks, meet rebuffs, suffre disappointments because only in such schools can manhood be wrought out.

"What God desires in men,' said Mr. Kemble, "is virtue, not innocence and virtue comes of temptation met and conquered. God gives men the perilous boon of liberty not because they could not be better cared for if swayed irresistibly toward right action, but because liberty is the only school that develops character.

"The patriotism of peace was exalted to an equality with the patriotism of war because it often took greater courage fro one to live every day, to live out the truth that he dreamt while his friends met his conduct with doubt and the world with contempt, than to die on the field of battle.

"That God allows us to meet every sort of danger and misfortune is not a sign that he does not love us, but only that his love is the rugged love of a father determined to have heroic sons, rather than the tender love of a mother intent on saving us pain."

Hold Union Service.

The Swedish Congregational church members joined in a union service with the members of the Congregational church last evening, the visitors singing some hymns, accompanying themselves on stringed instruments. There was a large attendance and the announcement was made that the debt of the Swedish church had been finally cancelled by contributions from its members.

PROMOTIONS MADE ON CADET CORPS

Three Plainfield students at Rutgers College received promotions for next year at the exhibition drill of the corps cadets in New Brunswick on Friday. Arthur B. Titsworth, class '12, was given the rank of cadet captain, from the position of second sergeant; G. Stanley Robins, class '13, was promoted to the rank of cadet first sergeant from cadet corporal and Cornelius F. Schenck, class '13, was advanced from the ranks to the position of cadet second sergeant.

According to the laws of the State militia, six cadets are recommended each year to the United States War Department and to the Adjutant-General of the State for having shown excellence in military drill and tactics. Frederic M. Smith, of this city, a senior and who has held the office of adjutant and captain in the battalion this year, received the honor of being among the six recommended men.

The exhibition drill this year was of exceptional merit. A skirmish and sham battle attack together with an exhibition of the Butt's manual exercises were the features of the affair. Cadet-Major John R. Sexton, of Long Branch, was in command of the battalion. He received the appoinement of best soldier for the year. First Lieutenant A. E. Ahrends, 29th U. S. Infantry, the commandant of the battalion, and three commissioned officers from the Second Regiment reviewed the drill. Many Plainfielders witnessed the exhibition, which was followed at night by a military ball in the college gymnasium.

LOUIS MILLER STRUCK BY AUTO, NO. 21,203, N. J.

While attempting to board a Netherwood trolley car on Saturday evening, Louis Miller, of 1322 Lake street, was struck by a passing automoblie and thrown about twenty feet. He was taken in a cab to the office of a local doctor where his wounds were dressed. No bones were broken but Mr. Miller was severely bruised about the body. His son, Raymond, who was with him assisted to put his father in the cab and a companied him to the doctor's. The number of the car was 21,203, N. J. The owner will be looked up.

Mrs. W. H. Scott Entertains.

Mrs. William H. Scott, of West Seventh street, gave a bridge whist party at her home Saturday afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock. There were forty guests from New York, Philadelphia, Long Island and Westfield and this city. Thirty-two people engaged in the play, which was spirited. At the conclusion awards were made to Mrs. P. B. Cregar, Mrs. Charles Rice, Mrs. C. O. Deakin and Mrs. F. C. Langhorne. The rooms were altractively decorated, the colors being pink and white. Maresi served refreshments.

ITALIAN IS INJURED IN TROLLEY ACCIDENT

A peculiar accident happened on Saturday afternoon at about 4:30 o'clock in which Joseph Primato, an Italian, was struck by a main line trolley car and seriously injured, although he received no broken bones.

Primato was about to cross Somerset street when the car came along in charge of Motorman John Morgan and Conductor George Frye, both of Elizabeth. As the car was about to pass the switch at this point the front trucks took the points all right, but the rear trucks skipped the switch and started the rear end of the car down Somerset street just as Primato started to cross the street. The car struck him and knocked him down.

Primato was hurried to Muhlenberg Hospital where City Physician C. F. Lufburrow made an examination of the injured man. After having his wounds dressed Primato was taken to his home on Cottage place and this morning he was reported to be improved. No arrests were made.

Marjorie Schind, of a daughter of Mrs. Louis Schind, of the borough, had a narrow escape from serious injury in the same accident. Miss Schind was struck on the arm and had her coat torn nearly off her body. Her arm was severely bruised.

REV. L. R. HOWARD TO ACCEPT A PASTORATE

Rev. Lawrence Riggs Howard, former pastor of Hope chapel, spent a part of Thursday and Friday visiting local friends. He had been in New York attending the graduation exercises at Union Theological Seminary and made the hasty trip to Plainfield previous to leaving for Binghamton, N. Y., where he preached yesterday. During his stay here he was a guest at the home of Mrs. Cairns, of West Fifth street.

Mr. Howard resigned his pastorate in this city last fall, because of his health. He has since been enjoying outdoor life at Glencoe, Ill., and in the State of Washington and has completely recovered physically. Mr. Howard has been living recently with Mrs. Howard's mother, Mrs. Kellogg, of Buffalo, but for the past three Sundays has occupied the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church at Binghamton. He has been verbally asked to occupy the pastorate and following a congregational meeting Thursday of this week, he will receive a formal call. Mr. Howard has announced his intention of accepting. The church building is of modern brick construction and has a large membership. There is a handsome manse attached.

The fact that Mr. Howard has regained his strength and is able to resume pastoral work is a source of much pleasure to all who bespeak success for him in his new field.

EDWARD A. MOSHER DIES IN 73RD YEAR

Edward A. Mosher, aged seventy-two years, for twenty-eight years a proof-reader on the New York World, died at his home, 509 Greene avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday of heart trouble. He was the son of Pinkham Mosher, of New Market, and he was born at the old homestead in 1840. He resided in this vicinity for nearly thirty years. When the Sabbath Recorder was published in New York many years ago, Mr. Mosher was employed on that publication, and he had always been engaged in newspaper work.

Mr. Mosher is survived by his wife, two sons, Clinton E. Mosher, of Brooklyn, and Arthur Mosher, of this city; one brother, Henry Mosher, of this city, a sister Mrs Sarah Burdick, of Westerly, R. I., three nephews, William and Edward Mosher and Joseph M. Harkins, and two nieces, Miss Florence G. Harkins and Mrs. Charles H. Dunham, all of this city.

The funeral will be held at the late home tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and the burial will probably be in Hillside cemetery.

Dr. Ward Unable to Preach.

Rev. Dr. George M. Ward, president of Wells College, who was announced to preach at the Crescent Avenue church, yesterday, was unable to do so, being taken suddenly ill. Rev. Dr. S. T. Carter, of this city, occupied the pulpit in the morning and in the evening William D. Murray had charge of the service and spoke on the subject, "The Christian Laymen."

SUIT AGAINST CITY

Certiorari Proceedings Instituted in Kensington Ave. Extension Matter.

WILLIAMS SERVES THE PAPERS.

Common Council's Action in Passing Ordinance Over Mayor's Veto —There Will be a Hearing in Supreme Court.

Howard H. Williams, one of the affected property-owners, today srved papers on Mayor G. W. V. Moy, in certiorari proceedings brought in the matter of the ordinance and resolutions passed by the Common Council for the proposed opening and extension of Kensington avenue.

The writ which was allowed by Justice James J. Bergen, of the Supreme Court, is returnable on June 5 at Trenton, and will be argued at the June term of the Supreme Court.

The purpose of the action on the part of the protesting property-owners is to test the right of the Common Council to open and extend Kensintgon avenue. The ordinance in this matter was passed on December 5, 1908, and a further resolution providing for the appointment of commissioners to treat with the property-owners was adopted May, 1, 1911. This resolution was passed notwithstanding the objection of Mayor Moy, who vetoed the measure.

The Common Council passed the resolution in the face of strong protest made by property owners residing on Kensington avenue, who not only objected to the way in which it was proposed to open and extend the avenue, but also the heavy expense that would follow.

The action of the property owners will tend to hold the matter up for an indefinite period.

RICHARD BALDWIN HURT WHEN AUTO HITS HORSE.

Richard Baldwin, of North Plainfield, was injured by being knocked from a horse he was riding on Saturday afternoon near New Providence. The animal was later shot. According to reports an automobile driven by the proprietor of a Paterson silk mill struck the animal ridden by Mr. Baldwin and knocked them both to the ground.

The driver of the automobile, which contained relatives of Ernest B. Rubsamen, a member of the silk concern, failed to say anything about the accident beyond the fact that he thought it unavoidable. The chauffeur was put under $1,000 bonds for an appearance before the court. Bail was furnished by Mr. Rubsamen.

MRS. ANNA L. HURST, AGED TWENTY-EIGHT, DEAD.

Mrs. Anna L. Hurst, aged twenty-eight years, wife of Charles W. Hurst, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Pitts, died yesterday at her home, 51 Leland avenue, from pulmonary trouble. She had been ill some time. She is survived by her parents, a husband and three children, two sons and a daughter. The funeral will be held at the late home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will officiate and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Talk on Olympic.

The "Olympic," which will start on her maiden voyage to New York June 14, adds interest to an illustrated lecture to be given tomorrow night at 8:15 at Hope chapel by Emerson E. Parvin, secretary of the International Mercantile company, of New York, the owners of the White Star Line. This free lecture, entitled, "The Largest Steamer in the World," will be given under the auspices of Howard McWilliams' Bible class, and will be illustrated by lantern slides never before shown, and during the course of the lecture many interesting details of the great steamer, and of ocean travel generally, will be touched upon.

Mrs. VanWinkle President.

COW REFORM.

Has the Plainfield Cato Betrayed the Plain People?

To the Editor of The Sun—Sir: In the interesting editorial in The Sun of Friday on "Cow Day in the Senate" you quote Farmer Jim Martine, of Plainfield, as saying that he can find hundreds of cows in New Jersey for $45 to $50. For the benefit and uplift of the farmers of Morris and Sussex counties, will you ask the Hon. Jim where in this State he can purchase a good milker for any such price? When Martine went to the Senate in March an ordinary cow was worth $75 and a good cow brought from $80 to $125. Has Jim gone back on the "plain people" and put cows on the free list?

are directed and required by the Ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled, "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction and Repair of Sidewalks and Curbs," approved July 15, 1910, the Common Council of said City has directed such improvement to be made under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner, and further directed notice of such contemplated improvement to be given to the owner or owners of any lands thereby affected, and further directed that if such improvement shall not be completed within the time and in the manner directed in this notice, the Street Commissioner shall thereupon forthwith proceed to cause such improvement to be made by the City under his direction, as authorized by said Ordinance and the Act of the Legislature hereinafter referred to. The foregoing is a description of your property affected sufficiently definite in terms to identify the same; and the following is a description of the required improvement, viz., the construction on said Denmark Road adjoining said property of a sidewalk to be laid as directed in said Ordinance (to which Ordinance and the record thereof in the City Clerk's Office reference is hereby made for greater certainty), at the expense of the abutting land owners, composed either (1) of bluestone flagging, smooth and even on the surface, and properly laid under the direction of the Street Commissioner, said blue-stone flags to be not less than four feet long transversely to the length of the street, not less than two feet wide lengthwise of said street, and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part, or (2) of concrete to be laid in conformity with the specifications for cement sidewalks as set forth in Standard Specifications for Portland Cement Sidewalks and Curbs, filed in the office of the City Clerk, April 11th, 1910. The Street Commissioner shall give the correct lines and grades in all cases.

Notice is further given that unless said improvement shall be completed within thirty days after the service of this notice, it is the intention of said City to make said improvement or cause the same to be made, pursuant to the authority of the Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled, "An Act to authorize cities to construct and repair sidewalks and curbs, and to provide for the payment of the cost thereof," approved April 13, 1908, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Proof under oath of the publication or service of this notice will be filed within two days thereafter in the Office of the City Collector, being the officer charged with the duty of making official searches for liens.

Said Act of the Legislature provides that in case of non-payment of the charges authorized thereby, the land and real estate subject to the liens of such charges may be sold in the manner provided for the sale of lands for the non-payment of assessments.

CONTEST

FOR PLAINFIELD PUPILS

The Plainfield Ice & Supply Co. will give a prize of $25 in cash to the pupil of any school, public or private, in Plainfield or North Plainfield, who shall submit the best written advertisement for the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company's business, to occupy a space equal to the space taken by this announcement.

The judges will be the Editors of the Courier-News and Daily Press. The conditions will be as follows:

The advertisement as written should be sent to the office of the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., with a separate sheet of paper attached, bearing the writer's name, and name of the school he or she attends. Both sheets thus submitted will be numbered by the Company in the order received, and the sheet bearing the name of the contestant will be held by the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., and the advertisement with the corresponding number will be sent to the judges, so that the judges will have no knowledge of the name of the writer. The advertisement which is decided to be the best will be so marked, and sent to the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company, who will by reference to the sheets in their possession, determine the name of the successful contestant.

The contest will end May 30, all letters received up to midnight of that day being eligible to the competition.

OUR VOLATILE WEATHER MAP

Washington, May 22—Snow was falling Saturday morning in Yellowstone Park, and it was freezing in Wyoming and Nevada, while in Middle West and Eastern States were swelting in the hotest weather of the season.

A general break in the hot wave was predicted by the weather experts within the next thirty-six or forty-eight hours, bringing relief to the populous section of the country, where in the large cities the heat has caused many prostrations.

Considerably cooler weather prevails generally over the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains and plateau region, caused by a distrubance moving eastward from the North Pacific coast.

Belated Wedding Announcement.

Announcement is made today of the marriage of Miss Edith Mattox, daughter of William Mattox, of Webster place, and George Nesler, of Roselle. The couple was married on March 8 last by Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, and decided to keep the fact a secret until this time. Mr. and Mrs. Nesler are living at Westfield. Mr. Nesler is employed at Cook's poultry farm at Scotch Plains.

Adam Boatman Stricken.

PRESBYTERIANS NOTE SABBATH DESECRATION

The drastic report of the committee on Sabbath observance was adopted Saturday by the Presbyterian General Assembly in session at Atlantic City.

"Social Sunday desecration, practised by the smart set, with particular mention of the national capital's "ultra-fashionables," was decried in the report.

"Smart dinners are regular Sunday occurances at the Chevy Chase Club and an equal number of big dinners and golf matches are given under the supervision of the club," reads the report. Real estate brokers who take free excursions to suburban districts on the Sabbath to boom their holdings were also rebuked.

Announcement that closing of the Federal Postoffice on Sunday had been secured by the church people of thirty big cities was followed by applause. Chairman Yereance, who made the report, also asserted that labor leaders favor the six day a week program of work for their men, because it tends to solve the problem of the unemployed by giving work to one-seventh more men.

Omission of Monday morning recitations to obviate possible Sunday study by students was a recommendation in the report intended for the faculties of schools and colleges. Another section took exception to the rule of the national Government in permitting Sunday sports in the army and navy. Sunday automobiling, theatricals, aviation meets, baseball games and travelling were censured in the report.

Arguments advanced by Dr. William H. Black, of Marshall, Mo., led to the adoption Saturday of the report and recommendations of the executive commission to federate the boards. The debate on the measure took up the entire afternoon session The review of the evidence in the Grant heresy appeal was heard by the judicial commission, which decided to entertain the papers and give a trial this morning.

Defeat for the board consolidation measure was generally conceded when Dr. Black demanded as a member of the commission that framed the plan to be heard in the interests of fair play. A motion had already been made to place the whole proposition on the table for another year. The motion was not debatable but the assembly set a precedent in giving Dr. Black the floor with no time limit.

He declared that certain speakers had branded the federation scheme one of "standard oilization" methods. His address lasted an hour. Mark A. Mathews, defeated candidate for moderator, had previously defended the present system.

The defeat of the motion to unite the board of education with the college board followed the plea of Dr. B. L. Agnew of Philadelphia for continuance of the plan now in force. Under the recommendations of the commission the boards of freedmen, home missions and church erection are merged into one body, with a reduction from the present membership of sixty-eight to a body of thirty.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The ways and means committee of Hope chapel will hold a meeting at the chapel tonight.

The new numerals and letters for the hymn board at Trinity Reformed church were presented by Mrs. William A. Woodruff.

In the absence of Superintendent G. Herbert Condict, who is in the south on business, J. H. Manning, the assistant, was in charge of the Sunday-school at Hope chapel yesterday.

A FRENCH ESTIMATE OF THE SUN'S LUMINOSITY.

There have recently been published in France some stupendous figures with reference to the luminosity of the sun, as calculated by Nordmann, of the Paris observatory.

By him, states a writer in the Scientific American, the solar heat is placed at 6,482 degrees C. The sun's total candle-power is represented by him in a string of figures beginning with eighteen followed by twenty-seven noughts. This inconceivable sum is equivalent to 1,994,000 for every square inch of the sun's surface. Again, some idea of the amount of light these figures represent may be had from the fact that the most powerful electric arc light has an illuminating power of only 20,000 candles.

Professor Nordmann states that, from every bit of the sun's surface the size of a finger nail there issues a quantity of light that would be sufficient to illuminate the entire Avenue de l'Opera for a whole night. Inasmuch as the sun's surface is estimated to be some 200,000,444 square miles, its total luminosity may be placed at 51,000,000,000,000 times that of the street mentioned.

The French observer has also undertaken the task of measuring the light and heat of various large stars some of which are stated to be even more powerful illuminants that the sun. For example, Sirius is found by him to be about thirty times hotter than the sun, i. e., 190,600 degrees C., while the Polar Star is a comparatively cold body of merely 8,200 degrees.

Tragedy Auto Here.

The big American touring car which figured in the fatal accident at Chester, Wednesday, was brought to this city yesterday. It was carried over from Morristown on an auto truck and taken to Martin's garage. It is understood the car can be repaired, although it was badly wrecked and burned.

REMARKABLE SERMONS.

Sermons are not so lengthy as they used to be, and one seldom sees in the comic prints the joke, so familiar in other times, wherein the minister was chided for his "fourteenthly' remark, which was supposed to mark a period in his sermon somewhat toward its close.

It is said that Thomas Hooker thought his duty ill performed if his sermon did not consume three hours. Once it is related that the famous divine did deliver a really short sermon—preaching exactly fifteen minutes. He sat down; but, after a brief rest, was up and at it again for two hours more. Everyone of Cranmer's sermons was a small volumne in itself, and Bunyon, Calvin, Baxter and Knox are all said to have been only a little more merciful to their hearers.

In striking contrast to these long winded discourses may be mentioned some startlingly brief sermons of late years. Perhaps the shortest of all was that delivered by a clergyman at Ocean Grove, New Jersey who, after announcing his text, impressively surveyed his congregation, and then said:

"Don't worry; it's wicked." He then sat down.

It would be difficult to exceed this in brevity and effectiveness; but a north of England vicar in the last century closely approximated it. He gave out the text, "God so loved the world," etc., to which he added this observation:

"My friends, did I speak an hour, I couldn't make that message any plainer. I'll just leave it with you."

Another example of a brief but extraordinary effective sermon was furnished by an aged and feeble clergyman in Ohio. He had been requested to deliver a charity address on behalf of orphan children; but his strength was unequal to the task. It was therefore an inspiration indeed that moved him to stretch forth one feeble arm in the direction of the little unfortunates sitting near the pulpit, and to exclaim with no little pathos, "Whence shall we find bread that these may eat?"

So impressed was the congregation that the collection was the largest ever taken in that vicinity.

Scrappers in Court.

George Connors, Frank Waters and John Conshay, were arrested by Marshal Weiss and Keller in the borough Saturday night, for fighting on Somerset street. In court this morning Connors and Waters were fined $3 each and a ninety days sentence was suspended over Conshay.

Clan Mackenzie, No. 204, Order Scottish Clans will hold its regular meeting this evening at 109 Park avenue. Several matters of importance will be acted upon.

IF you have never had a bank account you cannot understand the feeling of independence and happiness that comes with the possession if one.

A great writer has said that many people with good incomes are more unhappy than beggars because they live beyond their means. If you have never had a bank account you realize the truth of this assertion and cannot understand the feeling or independence and happiness that you may so easily enjoy.

Announcement!
ALBERTO BUCCINI
347 Fifth Ave., New York City

Respectfully announces that he is now ready to offer to the Plainfield public his new artistic ideas and the execution of work for the interior decorations of residences. He has just completed the decorations of Mr. R. A. Meeker's residence, at Belvidere avenue, Plainfield, to the full satisfaction of the owner. Mr. Buccini had also decorated many high class residences in New York City and New Jersey and is ready to submit references and credentials on request. Any resident contemplating to make his home more beautiful will do well to communicate or call at Buccini's Studios to inspect the kind of work that he produces. He would appreciate the privilege of estimating on any work that may be desired

DR. COLES PROVIDES FOR HOMES EXTENSION

A new wing added to Dr. J. Ackerman Coles to the Country Home for Children at Westfield, where each summer little patients from the Home for Crippled Children are given an opportunity to regain health and strength, will make possible the entertainment of many more than heretofore. In making this extension and other improvements, Dr. Coles has added $5,000 to the $10,000 already spent by him on this building.

This home was founded by the women of Westfield, but Dr. Coles became interested in the project before its completion, and, finding the women's organization had not sufficient means to finish it, he did so himself. Another improvement made since last summer, included with the gift of the addition to the main building, is a bungalow built on the grounds, but at some little distance, intended for use in case of contagious diseases for isolating cases. About six patients may be accommodated. The convalescent children are the ones sent on outings to the Westfield home, and are therefore chiefly from among the clinic patients. They are taken in groups by the nurses, some fifteen or twenty in each party; a few remain for the entire season. The ample grounds are furnished with swings and such outdoor pleasures as are available to the handicapped little ones are provided. It is said the children previously taken from the Home for Crippled Children respond quickly to the invigorating influences of the mountain air and wholesome country diet. The managers of the Home for Crippled Children express much appreciation for this means of giving an outing to such as are able to go, feeling that their work of restoring children to a normal condition may be confirmed by this stay in ideally healthful surroundings.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Senior and Junior C. E. Societies of Hope chapel held a union meeting last night. The attendance was large, about eighty Endeavorers being present. J. H. Manning, assistant superintendent, was in charge.

The Elizabeth District semi-annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will be held at Clinton on Friday, with morning and afternoon sessions. The women from this city will take the train leaving the North Avenue station at 8:17.

The special committee of trustees and deacons appointed a week ago on the resignation of the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, will make recommendations for action by the church at a business meeting at the First Baptist church Wednesday night. New members will also be received at that time.

ALLEGED HE WAS FROM PLAINFIELD.

Reginald Kelley, who gave his address to the New York police as Plainfield, was arrested together with another man who gave his name as Arthur McMillan, at Williamsburg terminus of the Manhattan Bridge, early Saturday morning. They were accused of speeding and were followed by Patrolman Finian from the Parkway to the bridge, where telephone signals caused their arrest at the New York end.

The two young men were locked up in the Clymer street police station in Brooklyn. Each was fined $5. There is no name in the directory of Plainfield corresponding to the names given in the police station by the prisoners.

Observed "Bible School Day."

Services appropriate to "Bible School Day" were held at the First Baptist church yesterday. In the morning Rev. Dr. Everett Tomlinson, of Elizabeth, made an interesting informal address on the subject, "Lead the Children Softly." In the afternoon informal exercises were held by the Sunday-school. Last evening James F. Parker, of the borough, spoke on "The Value of the Bible in the Home." F. H. Andrews was also intended to speak at this service, but another engagement prevented.

For Stealing Rides.

Central Railroad detectives brought to Police headquarters this morning Frank Cello, an Italian, whom they accused of stealing rides on freight trains. Judge DeMeza released the man until tomorrow morning. Cello is now under $500 bonds as a material witness in the Bargazzio shooting affair which occurred on May 7, at the east end.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Mrs Franklin K. Mathiews led the Union meeting of the B. Y. P. U. and Epworth League of the Methodist church which was held last night in the parlors of the Baptist church. The meeting was well attended and there is no doubt but what the two societies will arrange to hold others during the summer months.

A number of friends of Miss Mildred Drake, of Glenside Park, tendered her a surprise party Saturday afternoon. About twenty of her school friends attended and several pleasant hours were enjoyed playing games and enjoying music, after which refreshments were served.

The local ball team received the new uniforms Friday night and the team looks natty and up to date. Although the games put up Saturday and Sunday shows that the boys will have to fit usual to wearing new clothes. Never mind they all have off days.

The Township Comittee has posted large signs on Park avenue and Front street, warning automobilists to run slow on account of the dangerous corner by the hotel. The warning has had no effect on the "joy" riders.

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, of the Baptist church, exchanged pulpits yesterday morning with Rev. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, Plainfield.

LAST SAD RITES FOR MRS. SAMUEL HUNTINGTON.

The funeral services of Mrs. Samuel Huntington were held at All Souls' church on Park avenue, at 3:50 o'clock yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including representatives from the Monday Afternoon Club, the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, the Woman's Auxiliary of Muhlenberg Hospital and the Woman's Exchange, of which Mrs. Huntington was a member. There were also many beautiful floral tributes.

Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of the church, conducted the services, reading appropriate Scripture selections and making a short address in which he referred to the active and exemplary life of the departed. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Gurnell's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Gurnell, wife of John Gurnell, who died at her home in Flatbush, L. I., was held in St. Marry's church this morning. The mass was said by Rev. Father Hogan in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the pall bearers being three nephews, Den J. Martin, Peter Gallowith and Dennis J. O'Keefe. The Gurnell family resided on West Sixth street for many years.

Harry Skull a Visitor.

Harry E. Skull, a former well known local resident and prominent in athletics at the Y. M. C. A., is spending two weeks at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Skull, of East Sixth street. It is Mr. Skull's first visit here in three years as he has been in Memphis, Tenn., where he is connected with the Despatch Fruit Company. He is enjoying splendid health and his looks corroborate the statement that the southern climate agrees with him.

Announce Engagament.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. D. B. F. Randolph, of Sandford avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss May Randolph, to Arthur Humble, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Humble, of the borough. The wedding will take place in the fall.

EXTRA! EXTRA—Owing to the increased circulation of The Daily Press I presume I will be called upon to receive cut rates for advertising soon. But that is one of my secrets. Don't mention it. Your known I like to write ads so well that when you bring your property to me, I shall ask you to take off your hat and leave a check for fifteen dollars for advertising. Shall use this paper and two others, and when you go to give me a check for commission I shall tell you to deduct the fifteen dollars that did the business! Of course, if signs sell your property, I will get left. I hope I will get left. D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours. 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 19 tf

CONEY ISLAND—The first fellow who came to see the Park street, Brooklyn properties near Coney Island, that are to exchange for your property, did not care to go to Coney Island. I just told him that he could count the ties over. He went over and back and is now ready to take one. Now the thing is! Suppose you all go over without me and take one, how will I get to Coney Island? D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours, 159 North avenue, 'phone 1907.

MY TEXT—Old Colony Insurance Co., of Boston, Mass. This is the first time I ever knew myself to take off my hat to the word "Old" because it always looked like a jar to me, but in this case it sounds substantial. And the word Boston sounds like literary to me, or five o'clock teas. And five o'clock teas keep money in circulation for did you ever see one gown that would be literary to two teas That is what I want to do, keep money in circulation, only I want it to circulate my way. That is the reason I represent that word "Old." I insure anything but your life and that I want you to keep; but bring me your houses, and your literary automobiles. D. LIVE STOCK

KEEP THE MARES.

They Should Be Well Taken Care of So That They May Breed Healthy Colts.

The ideal farm motive power is the big, roomy mare that is able to produce a valuable foal each year as well as do her share of the farm work. Most live stock farmers realize these facts, yet still many have several geldings on their farms. The reasons are that the horse represents quite an outlay of cash, and buying and selling contain an element of chance. A new horse is somewhat of a doubtful proposition, so the farmer hesitates in making a change. The average work horse lasts many years, and it is not surprising that the conservative farmer often operates the business with a limited number of animals.

To secure two or more satisfactory teams is not such a big proposition. With one good 1,400 pound mare as a start at least two such teams can be produced in ten years. The old mare and her fillies should surely produce them. But the very thing that impels farmers usually ruins their chances—that is, desire for money. They either will not invest enough in a stallion fee or cannot resist big offers for the young mares. Farmers should learn to hold promising young mares at their real farm value, which no buyer for city trade can touch, and should figure future income from present investment.

The mares that prove the best breeders are not always the show ring winners nor the most pleasing to the eye. The things most essential in a brood mare are a big, roomy middle—a barrel big enough to hold a large, strong youngster. She must have wide hips for room in foaling and absence of hereditary diseases. She may be plain, even coarse, in the terms of the show ring, but if healthy and bred to a good sire it is a pretty safe guess that the colt will be a dandy. While quality is desirable, it is not always an economical element in a brood mare from which to produce drafters for the market. Quality has a cash value, but the right kind of sire will put lots of it in his colts from plain but rugged mares.

OILMEAL FOR LIVE STOCK.

Growing Calves, Sheep and Hogs Particularly Thrive on It—Its Use For Horses Not Approved.

Oil cake or oilmeal in proper quantities is considered by our best stockmen to be one of the most healthful foods that are on the market, states Professor G. C. Humphrey of the animal husbandry department of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin. Its value is that it keeps the animal in the most healthy condition, no other feed having such a beneficial effect on the digestive tract.

The price of the feed is considered prohibitive by many farmers; but, considering the fact that it contains nearly 30 per cent of digestible protein, the stockman can well afford to pay the market price in order to have at least a small quantity of this feed available.

Old process rather than new process oilmeal should be secured so far as possible for the reason that 94 per cent of the protein in old process oilmeal is digestible as compared with only 84 per cent of the new process meal.

Oilmeal may be fed to all classes of farm stock. Fattening steers will use to great advantage from two to three pounds of oilmeal daily in connection with other feeds. Larger amounts can be used profitably when prices are not too high. Feeding oilmeal in the form of nut sized cakes is considered preferable to the loose meal by most of our steer feeders.

Dairy cows will consume one or two pounds of oilmeal daily with their grain rations, and during the winter feeding period more or less oilmeal is almost indispensable in order to keep the cows in the best condition for producing milk and butter fat. For growing calves, sheep and hogs oilmeal can constitute about one-tenth of the grain ration fed and prove very beneficial. Horses may be fed small quantities, although its general use for horses is not recommended.

Good Covering on Floor.

Cold rains are prevalent in early spring and often cause sickness among a flock of fowls. To avoid the dampness the floors should be heavily covered with straw or leaves.

PROPER MATING.

A Thing That Must Be Observed, Especially Where Flocks Are Small.

The importance of properly mating the breeding pens cannot be too strongly urged upon the farmer and those who simply keep a few fowls and raise a small number of chicks. These people as a class do not make any particular matings.

They have one or more males running with the flock. When they want eggs for hatching they simply select those of good size and shape regardless of what hen laid them. This means degeneracy. No man can breed from all the females he raises to maturity and keep up the standard of his flock.

No matter how good the stock is at the start, if this method is practiced it will be but a short time before the flock will lose its breed characteristics and be no better than mongrels. No more than 50 per cent of the pullets raised are fit to go into breeding pens when we consider only the outward appearance, and when looking for profit it is safe to say that not more than half this 50 per cent will make profitable breeds. It is by careful selection that we are able to build up a profitable flock.

A STURDY BREED.

The Barred Plymouth Rock an Exceptionally Strong Bird That Will Take Care of Itself.

When it comes to the question of hardihood, of vigor and endurance and of quick growth and early maturity the Barred Plymouth Rock stands in the front rank. The young Rock, if well bred, will start off in growth and will maintain a degree of development along during the weeks and months of its upclimbing that cannot be surpassed.

A large breeder of this variety remembers that on one occasion he had some fifteen or twenty young Barred Rocks in a box coop with a fireless hover in the back room of an outhouse, by a window. They had no runway and had never set foot on Mother Earth. But they were well fed and cared for, and their growth was really remarkable; also the way in which they feathered out in a nice suit of beautifully barred feathers. The weather turning mild, they were then cooped out of doors on the ground, and their growth was continuous and rapid, and they made some of the nicest specimens he ever raised.

On another occasion he had some hens with some young Barred Plymouth Rocks in some coops down by the garden. For fear of cats and the early morning dew he kept them inclosed in their coops until the sun was well up. But he neglected to inclose them a time or two, and as no accident had befallen them he quit fastening them in. Then they showed the stuff they were made of by getting out as soon as it was light and foraging down in the garden. It seemed to infuse them with renewed vigor and health, for they shot up like young weeds in June time and were pot filling size before he realized it.

These instances, with numerous others of personal experience, convinced one that the Barred Plymouth Rock is a very sturdy breed.

Phosphoric Acid Necessary.

Phosphoric acid is the element that is most needed to form the corn kernel. This element should be present in corn soils in available form if good yields are expected. Where the soil is lacking in this element it may be supplied in acid phosphate.

POULTRY NOTES

The incubator may beat the hen when it comes to hatching, but it can't lay eggs yet.

Turkeys are great foragers and when permitted destroy many insect pests during the year. Every orchardist should keep a flock of turkeys.

Geese and ducks are not well known and are not found in many barn lots. There are many good reasons why ducks and geese deserve more consideration.

Guineas have many peculiarities, some of which are not to be treated lightly, but they are good egg producers. As a table fowl the guinea stands high.

Give your children pets and teach them to be kind to animals. Pet animals always interest children, and there are many reasons why pets should be given to them.

THE FINAL POSE.

He Wanted to Make the Thing Harmonious and Complete All Around.

In the early days of traveling by stagecoach across the Rocky mountains the trip was likely to be relieved of monotony by incidents of no ordinary occurrence. But the fatigue of the journey was apt to wear upon the nerves of the weak and the timid. Sometimes the passengers became so worn out as to lead to a suspicion of their sanity. The Right Rev. D. S. Tuttle in his "Reminiscences of a Missionary Bishop" describes an instance in point.

One forenoon the coach rolled into Denver, and the six horses came prancing up to the office of Wells, Fargo & Co. A large crowd was assembled, as the incoming and the outgoing of the daily coaches were the great events for the town.

At the stop the only passenger quickly threw open the coach door, leaped to the ground, ran hurriedly across the street and, turning a handspring, stood on his head with his heels up against a supporting wall.

Several men followed him, quite sure that here was another passenger crazed by the long, sleepless ride. One said to him in a tone of sympathy, "Why, cap'n, what's the matter?"

Slowly coming to a right side up posture, the man answered: "Well, my friend, I'll tell you what it is. This standing on my head is the only position which I haven't been in during the last twenty-four hours in yonder coach, and I wanted to make the thing harmonious and complete all round."

IN A CHINESE BANK.

The Way the Clerks Use the Abacus and Counting Boards.

The Chinese have a way of getting hold of the first principles of things, even though they may not have developed them into elaborate and scientific systems.

A foreigner, especially if he be of prepossessing appearance, is received with great civility at a Chinese bank. "Schroff!" shouts the head clerk. This word is not, as it sounds, German, but a corruption of Hindoo "sarraf," or banker's assistant. In response to this call a native cashier appears, noiseless and deferential, with a smooth shaven skull, a four foot pigtail and a spotless, flowing garment.

With great rapidity he will make an exchange of notes, doing his calculating on an abacus, a frame of wire and beads similar to those used in country schools everywhere years ago. His long, lithe fingers move over the beads more quickly than the eye can follow, but there's no mistake in the total.

Perhaps the visitor will want a large piece of money changed into small coin. Instead of going through the wearisome operation of counting out the 300 pieces included in this transaction a simple, ingenious device is employed. A flat wooden tray is produced containing a hundred recesses, each just big enough to lodge one coin and just shallow enough to prevent the possibility of two lurking together.

The pile of small coins is poured out on this tray, and with one jerk of the clerk's wrist the hundred recesses are filled and the surplus swept off.—Harper's Weekly.

A Bit of Correspondence.

The following correspondence, ending in true Irish fashion, actually passed between two men in England some years ago:

"Mr. Thompson presents his compliments to Mr. Simpson and begs to request that he will keep his doggs from trespassing on his grounds."

"Mr. Simpson presents his compliments to Mr. Thompson and begs to suggest that in future he should not spell 'dogs' with two gees."

"Mr. Thompson's respects to Mr. Simpson and will feel obliged if he will add the letter 'e' to the last word in the note just received, so as to represent Mr. Simpson and lady."

"Mr. Simpson returns Mr. Thompson's note unopened, the impertinence it contains being only equaled by its vulgarity."

He Got the Book.

Bishop Doane used to tell the following story on himself:

"Dr. Doane," said a parishioner at the end of a service, "I enjoyed your sermon this morning. I welcomed it like an old friend. I have, you know, a book at home containing every word of it."

"You have not," said Dr. Doane.

"I have so," said the parishioner.

"Well, send that book to me. I'd like to see it."

"I'll send it," was the reply.

The next morning an unabridged dictionary was sent to the rector.—Judge.

Quite Real.

"And can't he act at all?" demanded Hi Tragedy.

"Well, upon occasion he can," replied Lowe Comedy. "For instance, only today I saw him getting next to some free lunch, and he acted for all the world like a man who was starved to death."—Catholic Standard and Times.

The House of the Whispering Pines

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910, by Anna Katharine Rohlfs

"I was in the clubhouse—in the house you call the Whispering Pines."

At this astounding reply, unexpected by every one present save myself and the unhappy prisoner, incredulity, seasoned with amazement, marked every countenance. Carmel Cumberland in the clubhouse that night—she who had been found at a late hour in her own home, injured and unconscious! It was not to be believed, or it would not have been if Arthur, with less self control than he had hitherto maintained, had not shown by his morose air and the silent drooping of his head that he accepted this statement, wild and improbable as it seemed. Mr. Fox started to rise at her words; but, noting the prisoner's attitude, he hastily reseated himself, realizing, perhaps, that evidence of which he had never dreamed lay at the bottom of the client's manner and the counsel's complacency.

Mr. Moffat, who saw everything, smiled slightly as he spoke encouragingly to his witness and propounded his next question:

"Miss Cumberland, was your sister with you when you went to the clubhouse?"

"No; we went separately."

"How? Will you explain?"

"I drove there. I don't know how Adelaide went."

"You drove there?"

"Yes. I had Arthur harness up his horse for me, and I drove there."

A moment of silence, then a slow awakening on the part of judge, jury and prosecution to the fact that the case was taking a turn for which they were ill prepared. To Mr. Moffat it was a moment of intense self congratulation, and something of the gratification he felt crept into his voice as he said:

"Miss Cumberland, will you describe this horse?"

"It was a gray horse. It has a large black spot on its left shoulder."

"To what vehicle was it attached?"

"To a cutter—my brother's cutter."

"Was that brother with you? Did he accompany you in your ride to the Whispering Pines?"

"No. I went quite alone."

Entrancement had now seized upon every mind. Even if her testimony were not true, but merely the wanderings of a mind not fully restored, the interest of it was intense.

"And how did you return? With whom and by what means did you regain your own house?"

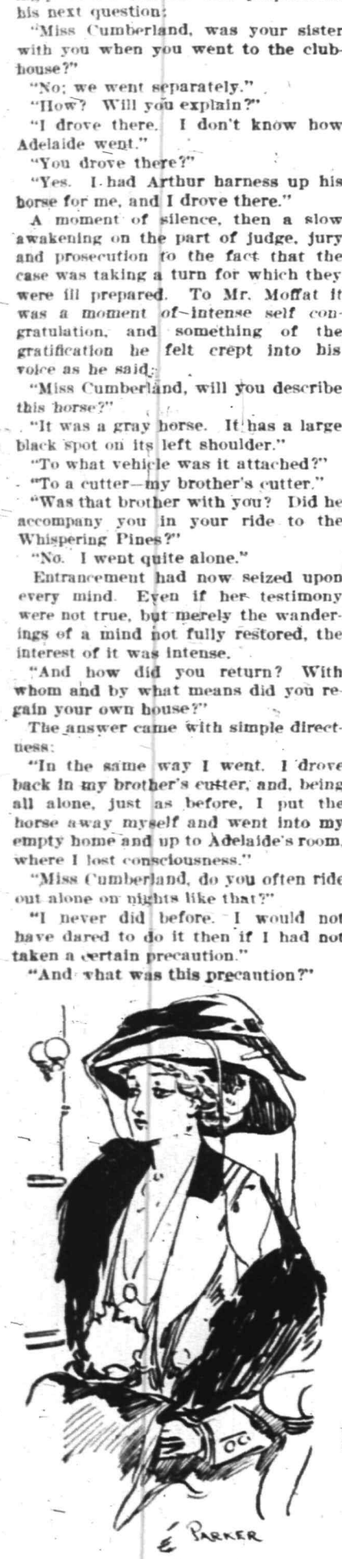
The answer came with simple directness:

"In the same way I went. I drove back in my brother's cutter, and, being all alone, just as before, I put the horse away myself and went into my empty home and up to Adelaide's room, where I lost consciousness."

"Miss Cumberland, do you often ride out alone on nights like that?"

"I never did before. I would not have dared to do it then if I had not taken a certain precaution."

"And what was this precaution?"



I DREW HER EYE.

"I wore an old coat of my brother's over my dress and one of his hats on my head."

It was out—the fact for the suppression of which I had suffered arrest without a word, because of which Arthur had gone even further and submitted to trial with the same constancy. Instinctively his eyes and mine met, and at that moment there was established between us an understanding that was in strong contrast to the surrounding turmoil, which now exceeded all limits, as the highly wrought up spectators realized that these statements, if corroborated, destroyed one of the strongest points which had been made by the prosecution. This caused a stay in the proceedings until order was partially restored, and the judge's voice could be heard in a warning that the courtroom would be cleared of all spectators if this break of decorum was repeated.

"Miss Cumberland, will you now give the jury the full particulars of that evening's occurrences as witnessed by yourself? Begin your relation, if you please, with an account of the last meal you had together," said Mr. Moffat when the trial was resumed.

Carmel hesitated. Her youth—her conscience, perhaps—shrank in manifest distress from this inquisition.

"Ask me a question," she prayed. "I do not known how to begin."

"Very, well. Who were seated at the dinner table that night?"

"My sister, my brother, Mr. Ranelagh and myself."

"Did anything uncommon happen during the meal?"

"Yes; my sister ordered wine and had our glasses all filled. She never drank wine herself, but she had her glass filled also. Then she dismissed Helen, the waitress, and when the girl was gone she rose and held up her glass and invited us to do the same. 'We will drink to my coming marriage,' said she, but when we had done this she turned upon Arthur, with bitter words about his habits, and, declaring that another bottle of wine should never be opened again in the house, unclosed her fingers and let her glass drop on the table, where it broke. Arthur then let his fall and I mine. We all three let our glasses fall and break."

"And Mr. Ranelagh?"

"He did not let his fall. He set it down on the cloth. He had not drunk from it."

Clear, perfectly clear, tallying with what we had heard from other sources.

"Miss Cumberland, where were you looking when you let your glass fall?"

My heart gave a bound. I remembered that moment well. So did she, as could be seen from the tremulous flush and the determination with which she forced herself to speak.

"At Mr. Ranelagh," she answered finally.

"Not at your brother?"

"No."

"And at whom was Mr. Ranelagh looking?"

"At—at me."

"Not at your sister?"

"No."

"Was anything said?"

"Not then. With the dropping of the glasses we all drew back from the table and walked toward a little room where we sometimes sat before going into the library. Arthur went first, and Mr. Ranelagh and I followed, Adelaide coming last. We—we went this way into the little room and—what other question do you wish to ask?" she finished, with a burning blush.

Mr. Moffat was equal to the appeal.

"Did anything happen? Did Mr. Ranelagh speak to you or you to him, or did your sister Adelaide speak?"

"No one spoke, but Mr. Ranelagh put a little slip of paper into my hand—a—a note. As he did this my brother looked round. I don't know whether he saw the note or not, but his eye caught mine, and I may have blushed. Next moment he was looking past me, and presently he flung himself out of the room and I heard him going upstairs. Adelaide had joined me by this time, and Mr. Ranelagh turned to speak to her, and—and I went over to the bookshelves to read my note."

"And did you read it then?"

"No; I was afraid. I waited till Mr Ranelagh was gone, then I went up to my room and read it. It was not a—a note to be glad of—I mean, proud of. I'm afraid I was a little glad of it at first. I was a wicked girl."

"I WAS A WICKED GIRL."

"Miss Cumberland, before you tell us about this note will you be good enough to inform us whether any words passed between you and your sister before you went upstairs?"

"Oh, yes; we talked. We all three talked, but it was about indifferent matters. The servants were going to a ball, and we spoke of that. Mr. Ranelagh did not stay long. Very soon he remarked that he had a busy evening before him and took his leave. I was not in the room with them when he did this. I was in the adjoining one, but I heard his remark and saw him go. I did not wait to talk to Adelaide."

"Now, about the note?"

"I read it as soon as I reached my room. Then I sat still for a long time."

"Miss Cumberland, pardon my request, but will you tell us what was in that note?"

She lifted her patient eyes and looked straight at her brother. He did not meet her gaze, but the dull flush which lit up the dead white of his cheek showed how he suffered under this ordeal. At me she never glanced.

"I do not remember the words," she said finally as her eyes fell again to her lap. "But I remember its meaning. It was an invitation for me to leave town with him that very evening and be married at some place he mentioned. He said it would be the best way to—to end—matters."

CHAPTER XXIV.

"I LOVED ADELAIDE BETTER THAN MYSELF."

THIS brought Mr. Fox to his feet. Turning to the judge, he cried:

"This testimony is irrelevant and incompetent, and I ask to have it stricken out."

Mr. Moffat's voice as he arose to answer this was like honey poured upon gall.

"It is neither irrelevant nor incompetent, and if it were the objection comes too late. My friend should have objected to the question

"The whole course of counsel has been very unusual," began Mr. Fox.

"Yes, but so is the case. I beg your honor to believe that in some of its features this case is not only unusual, but almost without a precedent. I beg that my witness may be allowed to proceed and tell her story in all its details."

"The motion is denied," declared the judge.

Mr. Fox sat down, to the universal relief of all but the two persons most interested—Arthur and myself.

Mr. Moffat, generous enough or discreet enough to take no note of his opponent's discomfiture, lifted a paper from the table and held it toward the witness.

"Do you recognize these lines?" he asked, placing the remnants of my half burned communication in her hands.

She started at sight of them. Evidently she had never expected to see them again.

"Yes," she answered after a moment. "This is a portion of the note I have mentioned."

"You recognize it as such?"

"I do."

Her eyes lingered on the scrap and followed it as it was passed back and marked as an exhibit.

Mr. Moffat recalled her to the matter in hand.

"What did you do next, Miss Cumberland?"

"I answered the note."

"May I ask to what effect?"

"I refused Mr. Ranelagh's request. I said that I could not do what he asked and told him to wait till the next day and he would see how I felt toward him and toward Adelaide. That was all. I could not write much. I was suffering greatly."

"Suffering in mind or suffering in body?"

"Suffering in my mind. I was terrified, but that feeling did not last very long. Soon I grew happy, happier than I had been in weeks, happier than I had ever been in all my life before. I found that I loved Adelaide better than I did myself. This made everything easy, even the sending of the answer I have told you about to Mr. Ranelagh."

"Miss Cumberland, how did you get this answer to Mr. Ranelagh?"

"By means of a gentleman who was going away on the very train I had been asked to leave on. He was a guest next door, and I carried the note in to him."

"Did you do this openly?"

"No; I'm afraid not. I slipped out by the side door in as careful a way as I could."

"Did this attempt at secrecy succeed? Were you able to go and come without meeting any one?"

"No. Adelaide was at the head of the stairs when I came back, standing there, very stiff and quiet."

"Did she speak to you?"

"No. She just looked at me. But it wasn't a common look. I shall never forget it."

"And what did you do then?"

"I went to my room."

"Miss Cumberland, did you see anybody else when you came in at this time?"

"Yes, our maid, Helen. She was just laying down a bunch of keys on the table in the lower hall. I stopped and looked at the keys. I had recognized them as the ones I had seen in Mr. Ranelagh's hands many times. He had gone, yet there were his keys. One of them unlocked the clubhouse. I noticed it among the others, but I didn't touch it then. Helen was still in the hall, and I ran straight upstairs, where I met my sister, as I have just told you."

"Miss Cumberland, continue the story. What did you do after re-entering your room?"

"I don't know what I did first. I was very excited—elated one minute, deeply wretched and very frightened the next. I must have sat down, for I was shaking very much and felt a little sick. The sight of that key had brought up pictures of the clubhouse, and I thought and thought how quiet it was and how far away and how cold it was, too, and how secret. I would go there for what I had to do—there! And then I saw in my fancy one of its rooms, with the moon in it, and—but I soon shut my eyes to that. I heard Arthur moving about his room, and this made me start up and go out into the hall again.

"Arthur's room is near and Adelaide's far off, but I went to Adelaide's first. Her door was shut, and when I went to open it I found it locked. Calling her name, I said that I was tired and would be glad to say good night. She did not answer at once. When she did her voice was strange, though what she said was very simple—I was to please myself; she was going to retire too. And then she tried to say good night, but she only half said it, like one who is choked with tears or some other dreadful emotion. I cannot tell you how this made me feel, but you don't care for that. You want to know what I did—what Adelaide did. I will tell you, but I cannot hurry."

"Take your time, Miss Cumberland; we have no wish to hurry you."

THE PLAINFIELD TRUST COMPANY

PLAINFIELD 'EASY'

Rattling Good Game up to 8th Inning When Somerville Gets Busy.

MONTROSS' NUMBER IS TAKEN.

Clinton in Fine Form—Shott Makes a Great Play in Seventh Session—The Game in Detail.

Plainfield lost its first game of the season on Saturday afternoon to the husky bunch from Somerville by a score of 13 to 2. Whether it was bebause Jimmy Montross lost his nerve or his confidence will probably never be known, but it is a fact that in the eighth inning Somerville got to him for a brace of two baggers and six singles, which coupled with a brace of errors netted the visitors eight runs.

Some sensational fielding marked the game, and a peculiar play in the second session helped to swell Somerville's score. Clinton was invincible in the pinches and he managed to smash out a ripping single with two men on the bags and help to swell the total of runs gathered by the visitors.

Jack Dillon, who umpired the game, performed his work in big league style and but for the one questionable decision in the second inning there was nothing left to be desired in his work. His judgments on balls and strikes was practically perfect and there were no kicks. Somerville started off well in the second inning with a brace of talleys but the locals came back and tied the score with a talley in the same inning and another in the fourth. Brilliant work marked the two teams until in the eighth Montross weakened and the visitors slammed the ball all over the lot. Strangely enough errors were not common when the fusilade began and every man kept his head. Schott, in leftfield, made a remarkable catch in the seventh session. With a run and jump he attempted to gather in Gibbon's high fly. Just as the ball was falling Schott stumbled and for a moment he was on his knees. Quickly recovering his equilibrium he arose just in time to gather in the pellet before it struck the ground. He was cheered to the echo for this fine piece of work.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

"Jiggs" Donohue, once first baseman of the White Sox, is a real manager. He will try to win a pennant with the Galveston team of the Ttxas League at $350 a month.

The following message from Chicago tells much in a little: "President Murphy, of the Cubs, will separate any player from payroll who incurs displeasure of 'umps' to extent of getting suspended by President Lynch. Cub management angry over light sentence imposed on Phillies for Thursday's row." Is it possible that a reform has been worked and that "Chubby Charley" is in earnest?

Abel Kiviat, Jim Rosenberger, Gwyn Henry, Dick Edwards, Pat McDonald, Jim Dunsan, Eddie Frick and Martin Sheridan are among the track and field stars who have entered for the annual games of the New York Postoffice Clerks' Association at Celtic Park on May 28. Duncan and Sheridan will continue their shot-putting duel begun at the Pastime Athletic Club games, when the latter won by less than a foot on his last put. The program promises to be attractive and varied enough to satisfy the most captious.

Tel Berna, the two-mile intercollegiate champion, has entered the two-mile run at the Irish-American Athletic Club games at Celtic Park on Memorial Day. In all probabilities he will meet George V. Bonhag, who holds a trunk full of American distance records, which no doubt maens more smashing of old marks, if conditions are favorable.

When Matt Wells, the English light-weight champion, lands in this country one of the first challengers will be Paddy Sullivan. The latter met Wells when the present champion was in this country last year, and had little trouble in outpointing him. Sullivan feels that he is entitled to a match with Wells, and has plenty of backers. He has met and defeated Paddy Lavin, the Buffalo boxer; Dick Howell, Johnny Dohan, Benny Fraklin and many other boys in the last year, while Harry Ferns proved no match for the rugged little Irish lad and was lulled to sleep after four rounds of boxing.

In the bout with Wells which toook place at the Olympic Club, of Harlem, Sullivan not only outboxed the Briton, but really outclassed him in the infighting, and at the end Wells was a tired athlete. Johnny Dohan, who proved easy for Sullivan, boxed a draw with Wells at the Fairmont Club, of the Bronx.

When Zbyszbo, the massive Polish wrestler, sails for Europe on Tuesday, he will have the distinction of having engaged in more matches than any other first class man in the game. He will wind up his tour today in a finish match with Paul Samson, the German giant, at the St. Nicholas Rink, 66th street and Columbus avenue. Zbyszbo, since he came to this country early last fall, has taken part in no less than two hundred matches.

ESSEX B WINS TWO CUPS AT STELTON

Peter Hauck, Jr.'s eccentric "Essex B," won two cups Saturday at the amateur race meet at Louis Batjer's Meadow Lark farm, at Stelton, surprising the big crowd in attendance. Sullivan rode Mr. Hauck's gelding in the Wexford cup, the first race he captured, and he did so well that he was started in the Sir Gaze cup the last event on the card and won easily under Sullivan's clever riding.

Essex B., is will be remembered started in one of the races at the Plainfield Driving Park, a week ago, and failed to finish. The horse followed everything but the course, and the jockey was unable to do anything with the animal. Essex B. was not the only two-time winner, however, for Wells Clark's Leftover, with Bernald in the saddle, also won two cups for his owner, the Delaval cup and the Mouden Light trophy.

Dan Moynahan, on Flim Flam, another well-known horse here, narrowly escaped a serious accident. It was his first mount since last August, when he was thrown by Felix Ishman on Charles Pfizer's farm, receiving injuries which kept him in the hospital for six months. On his first time around Saturday he lost his stirrup and before he could regain it his mount ran away with him. After the greatest difficulty Moynahan stopped the animal in the barnyard, but did not finish the race. All of the horses in the races were familiar, but did not include any from this city.

Stole His Pigeons.

Some miscreant broke the lock on the door of Chauncey F. Stout's barn on East Front street on Saturday night and stole a dozen of his pigeons.

DUNELLEN WON OUT IN THE NINTH INNING

Dunellen won its game from the Rahway Field Club on Saturday by a score of 6 to 5, with only one out when the winning run was made. Wendt pitched a great game for the Dunellen lads holding them tight in the pinches. While Collins allowed only seven hits, they were made just when they were most needed. Only four errors were chalked against Dunellen while Rahway was charged with five.

PELHAM WILMERDING WINS FIRST HONORS

The first annual track meet of the East End Athletic Association was held Saturday afternoon at the horse show grounds and Pelham C. Wilmerding won first honors, V. Crook, second and O'Horan third. The winner received a handsome silver medal and second and third were presented with hand painted ribbons as rewards for the prowess.

After the games the whole number of boys were entertained at the home of A. Clinton Wilmerding, an Belvidere avenue, where they were served with refreshments and given a talk on athletics.

The summary:

50 yard dash—First, P. Wilmerding, second O. Horan, third, V. Crook; time 5 seconds. 100 yard dash—First, P. Wilmerding, second, V. Crook, third O. Horan; time, 12 1-5 seconds. 440 yard dash—First, P. Wilmerding, second, V. Crook, third, O. Horan; time 1 minute, 10 seconds. One mile bicycle race—First, V. Crook, second P. Wilmerding, third, O. Horan; time, 3 minutes, 56 seconds. A 440 yard consolation race was run for non-winners. This event was captured by H. Anderson, with H. Wilmerding as the runner up and H. Christiansen third. The time was 90 seconds.

The judges of the games were M. C. Steward, G. H. Parker and A. C. Wilmerding; timers, Robert C. Woodhouse, and starter, Kenneth Platt. Handicaps were allowed in all but the 100 yard dash.

PASTIME 6, FAIRVIEW 4.

On Hyde Field on Saturday the Pastimes defeated the Fairviews by a score of 6 to 5. Seidel and LaPorte was the battery for the Pastimes while Kenney and Becker did similar service for the Fairviews. The game was called in the sixth inning by agreement.

Score by innings:
Pastime .....1 2 0 0 3 0—6
Fairview .....0 0 2 1 1 1—4

BIRDS' FAST TIME

In 200 Mile Race First Pigeon Averages 882 Yards Per Minute.

132 IN START AT MANASSAS.

Robert S. Parson's Loft Gets First and Second While C. E. Faber's Comes in for the Third Diploma.

In the two hundred mile homing pigeon race yesterday under the auspices of the Plainfield Homing Pigeon Association, were 132 birds representing six lofts competing, and Robert S. Parson's birds won the first and second diplomas, with C. E. Faber's third. The birds were sent to Manassas, Va., from which point they were liberated at 6:30 o'clock, yesterday morning. Mr. Parson's were the first ones to reach their loft, arriving there at 1:22 in the afternoon. The first bird in is one year old. The flight is remarkable considering the heavy east wind which the birds had to face.

On Sunday, May 14, in the one hundred mile race from Newark, Del., Mr. Parson's birds won the first and second diplomas. In that race they averaged 1010.56 yards per minute, while yesterday his first bird in averaged a speed per minute of 882.14 yards, the conditions not being so favorable, while the race was twice the distance.

A week ago the birds were liberated at Newark, Del., at 7:11 in the morning and reached home at 9:56, covering the distance in two hours and forty-five minutes. The result of yesterday's race:

First, won by R. S. Parsons, average speed per minute, 882.14 yards; second, R. S. Parsons, average speed per minute, 881.39; third, C. E. Faber, average speed per minute, 873.90; fourth, F. C. Brunner average speed per minute, 872.46; fifth, E. H. Hobbie, average speed per minute, 862.84; sixth, D. C. Anderson, average speed per minute, 833.99; seventh, R. W. K. Anderson, average speed per minute, 819.19.

On May 14, 142 birds, representing six lofts, competed, and the result of the one hundred mile race, follows:

First, R. S. Parsons, average speed per minute, 1010.56 yards; second, R. S. Parsons, average speed per minute, 1008.83; third, E. H. Hobbie, average speed per minute, 1005.37; fourth, F. C. Brunner, average speed per minute, 1004.11; fifth, D. C. Anderson, averaged speed per minute, 992.95; sixth, C. E. Faber, average speed per minute, 973.13; R. W. K. Anderson, average speed per minute, 891.84.

On May 27 there will be a 300 mile race from Faber, Va., and on June 10, a 400 mile race from Reedsville, N. C., while on June 24, there will be a 500 mile race from Newton, S. C. A 600 mile race is scheduled from Belton, S. C., the date to be announced later. The local club is growing fast, among the new members being John Fisher, of Westfield, secretary of the national federation, and J. P. W. Taylor, of this city.

PLAY FOR TWO CUPS ON PARK CLUB LINKS

The weekly competition for the President's and golf club cups attracted a large number of golfers to the Park Golf Club, Saturday, and the play resulted in a number of fine cards being returned. R.V. Carpenter, J. V. Beekman and U. G. Tingley won the points for the President's cup, while Mr. Carpenter, Mr. Tingley, Dr. Carroll and S. St. John McCutchen divided the points for the scratch trophy. These scores were returned:

R. V. Carpenter, 97, 18-79; J. V. Beekman, 112, 22-90; U. G. Tingley, 100, 9191; H. L. Moody, 123, 31-92; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 104, 11-93; S. St. McCutchen, 104, 10-94; A. M. Morrell, 120, 26-94; Alexander Gilbert, 113, 17-96.

Netherwood 9, Park Avenue 0.

Another interesting game on Saturday afternoon was played between the Netherwood Juniors and the Park Avenue Baptist Boys' Club, the former winning by a score of 9 to 0. The Netherwoods' battery was too much for the Baptist boys, only three hits being recorded against Flave while Frederickson was hit at will by the Netherwood club. George Curtis umpired the game and his decisions were not disputed.

Score by innings:
Netherwood ....1 1 2 1 2 0 0 0 2—9

Mrs. Edwin More Daniel Jr., of this city, was the guest of honor at a reception given by her aunt Mrs. A. E. D. Tabb of Ridge street, Newark on Saturday, May 13.

Mrs. Hilton, the bride of John Hilton, superintendent of the Plainfield Country Club, arrived in New York today on the Cedric and reached Plainfield this afternon. This is her first visit to this country.

BRILLIANT TENNIS IN FINAL ROUNDS

Miss Adelaide Browning and Walter M. Bell won the final in the mixed doubles on the courts of the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday after noon, defeating Miss Barbara Fleming, of this city, and Harold H. Hackett. The result was a surprise, for the pair defeated the two holders of national championships in straight sets by the score of 6-4, 6-1.

T. R. Bell and Lyle E. Mahan won a great victory over Harold H. Hackett and Carl R. Gardner in the final of the men's doubles, three out of five sets. The match went the full five sets and gave the spectators an unusually fine exhibition of tennis playing. Hockett and Gardner were not as steady as usual and this fact had much to do with their defeat. The closeness of the games can be judged by the following scores: 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2. The total game tally was 24 games for the winning pair to 21 for the losers.

The final in the mixed doubles was the event of the day. Miss Browning and Mr. Hall played such a fast game throughout that their oponents found it difficult to keep up with the pace. Miss Fleming displayed great pluck, but she was unequal to the occasion, and she and her partner finally lost out. The summary:

Mixed doubles (final round)—Miss Adelaide Browning and Walter Merrill Hall defeated Miss Barbara Fleming and Harold H. Hackett, 6-4, 6-1.

Men's doubles (final round)—Theodore Roosevelt Pell and Lyle E. Mahan defeated Harold H. Hackett and Carlton R. Gardner, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

EIGHTEEN HOLE EVENT ON THE P.C.C. COURSE

The golfing event of interest at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, was an 18-holes, match play, handicap, against par, in which some fine scores were returned. Every player likes to take a whack against par, and such a competition usually attracts a large field. The play on Saturday was for both classes.

In addition to the golfing there were the usual delightful social features at the clubhouse in the afternoon and the weekly dinner-dance in the evening, which was largely attended by members and friends. The tennis tournament also served to attract a large number, there being about 300 spectators on the courts. The result of the golf even follows:

Class A—W. Lester Glenney, 2 down; Arthur L. Wills, 2 down; Morris J. Dumont, 3 down; Henry D. Hibbard, 5 down; Clifton Wharton, Jr., 7 down, R. G. Morse, 7 down.

Class B—C. C. Riggs, 3 down; C. W. King, 5 down; A. W. Kleinecke, 9 down; LeRoy H. Gates, 11 down.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Conger, of Roselle, formerly of this city, are parents of a boy born to them on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rush, of Madison avenue, have returned home after a ten days' trip in the Pocono Mountains.

SCHOOLS WELFARE

Franklin - Whittier - Stillman Parent - Teacher Association's Yearly Meeting.

MRS. S. H. VOORHEES PRESIDENT

Congratulated by Mayor and School Superintendent—Organization is in a Flourishing Condition.

One of the most enjoyable gatherings of the Franklin-Whittier-Stillman Paretn-Teacher Association took place last night when more than sixty teachers and parents of pupils in the public schools gathered in the Franklin school for the annual meeting and election of officers. The reports read by the secretary and treasurer of the association showed that the organization was in good shape and that it had a balance in the treasury. During the business meeting Mayor George W. V. Moy and Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Henry M. Maxson spoke on timely topics after which a musicale and some refreshments were enjoyed.

These officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Stephen H. Voorhees; first vice-president, Miss Bullock, principal of the Franklin school; second vice-president, Miss Day, principal of the Whittier school; third vice-president, Mrs. Frank L. Holt; recording secretary, Mrs. Arthur Crone; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Warren B. Travell; treasurer, Mrs. W. H. P. Vesey.

President Mrs. Voorhees introduced Superintendent Maxon as the first speaker. Dr. Maxson said that faithfulness, loyalty and love were the keynotes to success in any enterprise, especially was this so in the school life. He drew a picture of the faithfulness of his own dog and showed by analogy that the faithfulness of the dog was exemplified the faithfulness of creatures whose environment was a conducive to betterment. "A child," he said, "whose environment is bad must of necessity be influenced by his surroundings, but there is the remedy of better environment which we are all striving for and which will eventually improve the child. It sometimes changes the charatcer of the child."

Mayor Moy had nothing but praise to offer to the members of the association. He placed the stamp of approval upon the work being done by the mothers and teachers, saying that without the co-operation of both the work would be nullified. He congratulated the association on the success of its work and hoped that the progress would not be stayed by anything inadvertent.

G. Stuart Simons suggested in a motion that the school session be shortened when hot weather depresses the pupils. After considerable debate the question was left with Superintendent Maxson who will take some action as soon as advised as to the advisability of making some change. In this connection Mrs. C. B. Detweiler opined that children were better off in school whether the thermometer was high or low and she declared her belief that it was better for them, especially the younger ones, to be in school rather than running about the streets. Opinion was divided on this subject, but the matter was left entirely with Dr. Maxson, who in a second speech declared that "overheating" was merely a matter of suggestion.

The musical program rendered included a piano duet by Misses Knapp and Wilkins, three folk songs, beautifully sung by Mrs. Duncan F. Taylor; a piano solo by Miss Wilkins, two songs by Miss Sadler and a chorus sung by the Misses Bull, Smith, Searles, Knapp, Wilkins, Beard, Ross and Sadler. All of the musical numbers reflected great credit on the performers and were thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

The matter of the "question box" will be taken up at the next meeting which will be held in October next. Mrs. Voorhees spoke briefly on the matter of the coming Mothers' Congress which is to be held in this city next November.

Another thing which was discussed afterwards was the Frelinghuysen law, which makes it imperative that children before being admitted to the High School must pass an examination similar in character to that required by the Regents in New York State. Mr. Maxson expressed the belief that this feature of the law would be amended at the next session of the State Legislature because of the hardships it would work in actual practice. Many of the teachers present concurred in this opinion.

A Hot Weather Suggestion:

A summer membership in the Y. M. C. A., good from date to Sept. 1, costs but $3. New showers and clean water in the pool. Any self-respecting man may join. 5 23 2

TO DECIDE ON BRIDGE FOR WASHINGTON AVE.

The bridge committee of the Union County Board of Freeholders will meet the Somerset County Board of Freeholders at the Washington avenue bridge, tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, when it is expected that plans will be decided upon for the erection of a new concrete and iron structure there to replace the present worn out wooden one. In addition to the freeholders there will also be present Mayor G. W. V. Moy, of this city; Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough, together with other leading citizens of both municipalities.

The Washington avenue bridge has been condemned as unsafe for travel, signs being posted to warn the public. The Union county freeholders have always favored the erection of a concrete and iron bridge there, but the Somerset county officials have been opposed to such an expensive proposition.

NEW MARKET DAM MAY BE RECONSTRUCTED

Residents of New Market have received the glad information that there is a possibility of the lake dam being rebuilt. It was broken down last winter by an unusually heavy weight of loose ice which stacked against it and now remains just as it fell. The water was let out of the lake and what was formerly a pretty and attractive water sheet is now nothing but an unsightly mud bog. The lake drew hundreds of visitors to the village because of the boating, all of which has been done away with.

The dam and adjacent ground is the property of the Middlesex Water Company, which has offices at Woodbridge. An engineer was sent to New Market to look the ground over with an idea of getting an estimate as to what it would cost to rebuild the dam. He found that the expense would probably reach $1,000. An official of the company was spoken to over the telephone today and said the work would be authorized providing a tenant is secured for the mill on the property. This became useless when the water power was lost but there is hardly any doubt that it will readily be leased when the circumstances become known.

COCKRAN'S TALK NETS $2,000 FOR COLLEGE

At the recent lecture given by Bourke Cockran, of New York, in Elizabeth, for the benefit of Mount St. Mary College there was a remarkably large attendance, but the actual proceeds of the affair did not become known until today when the Mother Superior received $2,000. The only expenses connected with the affair were met by the committee therefore the net total is represented in the $2,000.

A lecture was given to the pupils of Mount St. Mary College last evening by Mlle. Du Toit, in which the speaker showed the architecture of France and particularly the Chateaux de la Loire, as it existed in the middle ages. The lecture was so much appreciated that the young people hope that Mlle DeToit will visit them again and tell some more about the things of the past which are of interest to students of architecture and history.

The lecture, which was beautifully illustrated, was given in French.

Supper Committee.

The committee of arrangements for the lawn fete and chicken supper to be given by the Temple Baptist church on Friday afternoon and evening next at 330 East Second street includes Frank Stewart, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baker, Sr., Mrs. Joslin, Mrs. Bouton, L. W. Randolph, U. B. Crane, Miss Bessie Van Nest, Mrs. Charles Smith, Christopher Myers, Clarence B. LaRue, Chas. Post, Alexander Campbell and others.

Entertainment for Building Fund.

The first entertainment of the finance committee of the building fund of the Congregational church will be held at the church, Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock. Mrs. Royle T. Phillips has planned the entertainment and with a corps of talented associates, will provide the entertainment.

343 Dogs Licensed.

Only 343 dog licenses have been issued by City Clerk MacMurray so far this year. There are about 900 dogs whose owners ought to take out licenses and Chief Kiely said this morning that as the time has expired in which license should be taken out the police will begin to make arrests.

Dooley, Thomas Farrell, P. J. Duffy, James Forrestel and Edward Feiring.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED BY A SUNSHINE BAND.

The Sunshine Mission Band of the Crescent Avenue church held its annual meeting at the church yesterday afternoon when under the direction of Miss Goddard, who has general supervision of the work of the band, officers were chosen. The band is divided into three departments, mission study class, sewing class and the find-out club. Miss Goddard takes charge of the work of the find-out club; Miss Helen Brown is in charge of the sewing class and Miss Edna Brown, the mission study class.

These are Miss Goddard's assistants: Vice-president, Julia Taylor; treasurer, Helen Newman. These are Miss Edna Brown's assistants: Vice-president, Janet Lane; treasurer, Louise Patterson. Miss Helen Brown's assistants are vice-president, Margaret Miller, while Helen Terry and Dorcas Boman are membership leaders. After the business there were short talks on Corea, which was studied during the year, and a social hour with refreshments.

Meeting of the East Association.

The thirty-third annual basket meeting of the Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of the East Association of New Jersey will be held in the Central Baptist church, Elizabeth, on Friday, May 26. Mrs. Gabriel Maguire will preside. The morning session, beginning at 10 o'clock will be devoted to reports, business and the "Institute Outlook." The afternoon session beginning with a praise service at 1:45, will be addressed by Mrs. W. L. Ferguson, of Madras, India.

An Accident.

While the Misses Harris, of Central avenue, were driving a runabout through Park avenue yesterday afternoon at about 4 o'clock, their horse shied as they were about to pass a milk wagon driven by John Phillips, of West Second street. The front wheels of the wagon and the shafts were broken and the younger of the two girls was pitched out of the vehicle, landing, however, without sustaining any injury. The horse ran away, but was stopped at Fourth street and Park avenue.

31ST ANNIVERSARY OF HIS ORDINATION

Rev. Andrew M. Egan, a former pastor of St. Mary's church, this city, and now pastor of St. Mary's church, Bayonne, yesterday celebrated the thirty-first anniversary of his ordination as a priest. He was ordained in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Newark, by the late Archbishop Corrigan. He has been at St. Mary's church, Bayonne, for the last six years as pastor.

During that time he has not only paid off a debt of $50,000 on the church property, but has erected a convent for the sisters, enlarged the church and made various improvements. Next Sunday Father Egan will hold the annual parish May walk, when more than two thousand children will march about the church property and benedictions will be pronounced on the lawn.

CITY RECEIVES $5,000 FOR THE PLAYGROUNDS

The Common Council at its adjourned meeting last night received a check for $5,000 from Joseph P. Tate, executor of the estate of Mrs. M. E. Edgerton, it being the bequest of Mrs. Edgerton to the Playground Commission. The matter was referred to the finance committee and later on motion of Mr. Buxton was turned over to the Playground Commission for the purposes named in the bequest.

A certified copy of the Geran election law was received and ordered filed. Upon request of the National Surety Company, the bond of John C. Traynor, issued by the company when the latter was delinquent tax collector, was cancelled. Samuel J. Robinson and others petitioned the Council to establish the building line on West Third street, betweet Spooner and Grant avenues. This was referred to the committee on laws and ordinances. A petition from residents of Leland avenue asking that that thoroughfare be sprinkled, was referred to the street committee.

Mary K. Willis, of Cameron avenue, petitioned for sanitary sewers in her neighborhood and requesting that a grade be established whereby it would be possible for the residents to connect with such a sewer. This was referred to the sewer committee, and a petition from Mrs. Agnes Conway, of 543 West Fourth street, asking that a henhouse adjoining her house be removed, was referred to the Board of Health.

Dr. Charles G. Davis, secretary of the Plainfield Dental Society, thanked the Council for its consideration of the proposition to appropriate $1,000 for a dental clinic; also expressing disappointment that it was not passed. A communication from the Chamber of Commerce, received too late for the last meeting, inviting the members to a meeting to be held at the Chamber, was filed.

Councilman Duncan W. Taylor, chairman of the fire committee, offered a resolution, which was adopted, calling for bids for 1,000 bags of the best oats, 50 tons of hay and 25 tons of straw for the use of the city departments. They will be received at the meeting on June 5.

The petition of residents of East Third street for an electric light to be located between Church and Washington streets, was granted in accordance with a resolution by Mr. Clay.

Family Trouble.

Cecelia Jaegara answered to the call made for her husband in the city court this morning and was told to go home. Jaegara was summoned to court to answer to the charge of neglecting to send his children to school. Mrs. Jaegara said her husband was out looking for work, but would probably be at their home on Cottage place this evening. He will be apprehended then. The complaint was made by the school authorities.

J. B. R. Smith to Quit.

Announcement was made yesterday that Assistant Secretary of State, J. B. R. Smith will resign his office some time between now and April 1, next, when the term of Secretary of State Dickinson expires. The reason as given is because of Mr. Smith's election to the presidency of the Maintenance Company, whose offices will be in the Essex building, Newark.

A Collision.

A horse and wagon belonging to P. H. Currin, of Somerset street, was struck by an automobile yesterday at 12:15 p. m. William Acker, who was driving the rig was thrown out when the horse ran away, and bruised by his fall. The wagon was damaged and the horse was found to have been injured about the legs. The number of the automobile was 609M.

ACT ON CERTIORARI

Kensington Avenue Property Owners Suit Discussed by the Common Council.

TO GET LEGAL ADVICE FIRST.

Another Meeting Tomorrow Night—Plan to Restrain City From Extending a Thoroughfare.

Members of the Common Council changed their minds about holding a meeting last night following the exclusive announcement in The Daily Press of yesterday that property-owners on Kensington avenue had taken up on certiorari the proposed action of the Council to open and extend Kensington avenue. An adjourned meeting had been arranged, but this was called off several days ago, it being understood up to yesterday that no session would be held. When it was learned of the move of the property-owners of Kensington avenue, the members thought best to have a meeting.

The legal papers in the certiorari proceedings, copies of which were served on Mayor G. W. V. Moy and City Clerk J. T. MacMurray were read by the clerk last night, and referred to the finance committee, of which Councilman Buxton is chairman. Then followed a recess lasting three-quarters of an hour when, it is understood, that the members decided to secure additional legal advice from their lawyer, Gilbert Collins, of Jersey City. Another matter was also brought to the attention of the city fathers. It was also decided to hold another meeting tomorrow night when a report will be made. The Council on behalf of the city will be obliged to respond to the writ on or before returnable June 5 at Trenton.

This proposed improvement has been a matter of contention for a long time, in fact ever since it was first introduced in December, 1908, through an ordinance. On May 1 last, a resolution was adopted, notwithstanding the veto of the Mayor, providing for the appointment of Elliot T. Barrows, J. Fred MacDonald and W. A. Garrigues, as commissioners to treat with property-owners. Last night was the time fixed for the first meeting of the commissioners They met in the Common Council rooms at 8 o'clock last night, but none of the property-owners appeared. The commissioners then adjourned to meet on Thursday night, June 1, in the office of Mayor Moy.

In the absence of a corporation counsel, the council will seek legal advise from Gilbert Collins as usual. He recently gave the finance committee an opinion that the city could not proceed with the opening of the avenue, and the following day he informed the committee that it could undertake the improvement, explaining in his communication that upon further investigation he had learned that the objecting property-owners did not file their protest within a specified time. On the strength of this the members went ahead with their original plans.

Howard H. Williams, one of the affected property-owners, who served the papers on the mayor and clerk, yesterday, has associated Winfield S. Angleman with him in the matter, and the case will be argued at the June term of the Supreme Court.

AUTOIST SETTLES FOR INJURIES TO MILLER.

It was learned yesterday afternoon that the automobile which struck Louis Miller, while he was attempting to board a Netherwood trolley car on Sunday night at 9:15, belonged to Samuel Silverstein, of Westfield.

Mr. Silverstein came to this city yesterday at the invitation of Chief of Police Kiely, bringing with him Frederick Taggart, a lawyer. On advice of the chief, Mr. Taggart visited Dr. Lowrie, who attended Miller and Miller himself in his home and it was said that a satisfactory settlement was made in the matter. Mr. Silverstein said the accident was quite unavoidable.

Violated Health Ordinance.

James Putanzzi, a West Front street fruit dealer, was charged this morning in the city court with exposing his wares to the dust and dirt of the street through open windows. Judge DeMeza dismissed the charge after hearing the explanation of the dealer who said he wanted to have plenty of air.

McCready Sykes Spoke.

Among the guests at the commercial banquet given at Portland, Oregon, recently, to Governor Woodrow Wilson, was McCready Sykes, formerly of Scotch Plains, but who is now located at Flaggstaff, Idaho. He responded to the toast, "State of Idaho."

PLANS FOR WEDDING OF MISS HEGEMAN

Miss Virginia Hegeman, whose marriage to Baron Tibor Podmaniczky, of Hungary, is announced for Friday afternoon, June 2, at the Church of the Holy Cross, North Plainfield, has selected Mrs. Albert S. Church, of New York, as her matron of honor, and Miss Alice McCutcheon, of Greenwich, for her maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Jessica Marshall, of Duluth, Minn., and Miss Marguerite McCutchen, of North Plainfield.

Harold H. Hegeman, a brother of Miss Hegeman, will be the best man, and the ushers will be Peter B. Matthews, of the borough; Rougier Thorne, Howard Roome and Clarence Sandford Roome, of New York city.

Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, will perform the ceremony, and a reception will follow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen on Rockview avenue.

DRIVER SAVED SELF, BUT HORSE MET DEATH

While Edward Brokaw, of Regent street, was driving a four-ton load of stone from the crusher to the scales at the Smalley stone quarry yesterday afternoon, the bit broke in the mouth of one of the horses. There is a steep decline at the point where it occurred and in an instant the team became unmanageable. They dashed down the hill with the heavy load gaining impetus at every step and Brokaw was helpless to stop them.

The horses headed straight for a tree and when the driver saw a crash was inevitable he jumped just in time to save himself. One of the animals struck the tree head on while the pole of the wagon snapped off short allowing the four-ton weight to crush it against the obstruction. The animal was instantly killed, but its mate suffered no injury. The wagon was badly wrecked.

The team belonged to Brokaw who purchase them about a month ago at a cost of $50. He is a brother to Clifford Brokaw, who is now on trial in Middlesex county for the shooting of a man at Lincoln two years ago.

CHAMBERLAIN HOUSE IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

The old Chamberlain house at the intersection of Plainfield avenue and the Samptown road, one of the best known landmarks in this section, was badly damaged by a fire discovered in the upper part at noon today. An alarm was sounded in South Plainfield and the village department responded promptly in charge of Chief William J. Hamilton. A thousand feet of hose had to be laid to get a hydrant connection but this was accomplished quickly and within a half hour after the alarm was received the blaze was under control. The damage will be $600, covered by insurance.

The property is owned by William Voorhees, of Brooklyn, and is occupied by Henry Watkins, an employe of the Watchung Hunt Club. The fire evidently started from an overheated stove pipe which runs into the chimney at one side of the attic. Mrs. Watkins was the only one at home at the time and the roof was all ablaze when she discovered it. She called to Oscar Thorne, a near neighbor, who gave the alarm in the village. A large part of the furniture had been carried out by neighbors before the firemen arrived. In the excitement Mrs. Watkins lost a $50 scarf pin which was in a cushion she was taking to a place of safety. The lower part of the house was not burned much but suffered water damage.

Someone in the neighborhood telephoned the Plainfield department that a bad fire was in progress and acting chief Jennings sent No. 1 hose wagon to the scene. The blaze was practically out when the apparatus reached the scene.

No Ascension Day Services.

The members of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., have made no plans to observe Ascension Day tomorrow, contrary to the usual custom. Usually the Knights attend divine services upon the invitation of some clergyman, but no such invitation was received this year and in consequence no arrangements were made to observe the day.

STRIKERS GO BACK

Masons and Hodcarriers Accept Compromise on Wage Demand.

NEW SCALE AFTER SEPT. 1.

The Masons Will Get $5 and the Hodcarriers $3 per Day—Journeymen out of Work for Three Weeks.

The strike of the local masons and hod-carriers for higher pay which has been in progress for the past three weeks, was officially declared off late yesterday afternoon, following a conference of both sides with James Bowen, of Indianapolis, president of the Bricklayers and Masons International Union.

The men are to return to work at once and beginning September are to receive an increase of two-and-a-half cents per hour, making a day rate of $5 for all classes of masons. The hodcarriers side of the question was not gone into, as they are not affiliated with the other union, but it is understood that they will receive an increase of twenty cents over the old day rate of $2.80.

The conference was held in Trades Council Hall, the opposing sides being represented by committees. All but two or three bosses were present and Joseph Baker, Theodore Mason and John Page spoke for the strikers. The main point in the argument of the employers against granting the increase of forty cents a day was to the effect that its payment at this time would result in a loss to them on present contracts. A large number were figured on at the basis of $4.80 a day for masons and $2.80 for hod-carriers. Against this the men made the statement that official notice had been given on January 1 of the present year that a new scale would be asked for on May 1 and they should have been governed accordingly. One exception developed, however, and on it hinged the principal reason why the strikers were willing to compromise.

The exception specified was the case of Cuniff Brothers, who are building St. Joseph's new church. This is one of the largest contracts now under way and the bids for the work was made long before any intimation had been made of a coming request for more pay. It will be a long time before the mason work on the structure is completed and the payment of $5.20 and $3 a day would cost the Cuniff's an amount too large for them to stand, probably meaning a suspension of all operation. This fact was fully realized by the masons and the persuasive talk of President Bowen resulted in the compromise.

The action of the strike committee was immediately ratified by the masons' union and numerous contracts in various parts of the city were commenced this morning. The old scale will remain in force practically long enough for all to be completed before the increase becomes effective.

WAS THE WATCH FOUND OR WAS IT STOLEN?

Charged with stealing a watch supposed to be the property of Thomas Finneran, caretaker at Mt. St. Mary College, Giuseppe DeSanti, of Scotch Plains was arrested yesterday by Marshal Rabig and later released under $100 bail.

De Santi denied that he had stolen the watch declaring with emphasis that he picked it up several months ago while working about the college and that he had before reported his find to several people. The watch was lost last June while DeSanti was working about the college grounds and it was only yesterday that Finneran learned that the Italian had a time piece. Finneran could not positively identify the watch, but DeSanti will be given a chance to tell his story to Justice Collins.

Stealing Rides.

Emilio Ciocci, the Italian arrested yesterday afternoon for riding on a freight train through this city, was discharged this morning by Judge DeMeza in the city court with a warning. The detectives are trying to put a stop to the habit of stealing rides from one end of the city to the other and Judge DeMeza will help them out by fining the next person found guilty of doing it.

A Chimney Blaze.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters at 10 o'clock this morning for a chimney blaze at the home of James DeGraff, on Central avenue. Apparatus was sent out and the trouble was quickly overcome.

WESTFIELD.

Feed supplies for the horses of the Westfield Fire Department continue to be a source of trouble. It was the furnishing of feed to the department that led to the late investigation into the affairs of the Council. Some time ago the council awarded the contract for furnishing feed and hay for the department to a Rahway firm, the lowest bidder. Almost every load of supplies sent had been in part or wholly condemned by Chairman Hohenstein, of the Fire Committee. Saturday a load of hay was not up to standard and was ordered taken back along with the condemned hay.

Funeral services for Henry B. Miller were held at his late home Sunday afternoon. Rev. W. I. Stearns officiated. The Master Builders' Association, of which the deceased was a resident, attended in a body.

The Judges will be the Editors of the Courier-News and Daily Press. The conditions will be as follows:
The advertisement as written should be sent to the office of the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., with a separate sheet of paper attached, bearing the writer's name, and name of the school he or she attends. Both sheets thus submitted will be numbered by the Company in the order received, and the sheet bearing the name of the contestant will be held by the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., and the advertisement with the corresponding number will be sent to the judges, so that the judges will have no knowledge of the name of the writer. The advertisement which is decided to be the best will be so marked, and sent to the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company, who will by reference to the sheets in their possession, determine the name of the successful contestant.
The contest will end May 30, all letters received up to midnight of that day being eligible to the competition.

NOTICE FOR SIDEWALKS.

Office of the Street Commissioner
City of Plainfield, N. J.

To Eliza Newman, Charles E. Hazeltine, Eva E. Lockwood, unknown owner, Louise Shaw Richards, Robert G. Langdon, William Ray Delano, Alice E. Walsh, Sarah P. Cudlipp, owners of lands affected by contemplated improvement to sidewalks thereof.

You having neglected for the space of thirty days to make the improvement to the sidewalk of the property situate at Nos. 1246 to 1254, 1264 to 1272, 1318 to 1346, 1348 to 1358, 1289 to 1297, 1299 to 1313, 1315 to 1321, 1341 to 1347, and 1349 to 1359 Denmark Road, Plainfield, New Jersey, and respectively known and designated on the "Block Assessment Maps of the City of Plainfield, Union County, New Jersey, Second Ward, 1909," on file in the office of the Collector of Taxes, as

No. 1246 to 1254 Denmark Road, Block 285 G, Eliza Newman;
No. 1264 to 1272 Denmark Road, Block 285 G, Chas. E. Hazeltine;
No. 1318 to 1346 Denmark Road, Block 285 G, Eva E. Lockwood;
No. 1348 to 1358 Denmark Road, Block 285 G, Unknown Owner;
No. 1289 to 1297 Denmark Road, Block 285 H, Louisa Shaw Richards;
No. 1299 to 1313 Denmark Road, Block 285 H, Robert G. Langdon;
No. 1315 to 1321 Denmark Road, Block 285 H, William Ray Delano;
No. 1341 to 1347 Denmark Road, Block 285 H, Alice E. Walsh;
No. 1349 to 1359 Denmark Road, Block 285 H, Sarah P. Cudlipp;

are directed and required by the Ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled, "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction and Repair of Sidewalks and Curbs," approved July 15, 1910, the Common Council of said City has directed such improvement to be made under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner, and further directed notice of such contemplated improvement to be given to the owner or owners of any lands thereby affected, and further directed that if such improvement shall not be completed within the time and in the manner directed in this notice, the Street Commissioner shall thereupon forthwith proceed to cause such improvement to be made by the City under his direction, as authorized by said Ordinance and the Act of the Legislature hereinafter referred to. The foregoing is a description of your property affected, sufficiently definite in terms to identify the same, and the following is a description of the required improvement, viz., the construction on said Denmark Road adjoining said property of a sidewalk to be laid as directed in said Ordinance (to which Ordinance and the record thereof in the City Clerk's Office reference is hereby made for greater certainty), at the expense of the abutting land owners, composed either (1) of bluestone flagging, smooth and even on the surface, and properly laid under the direction of the Street Commissioner, said blue-stone flags to be not less than four feet long transversely to the length of the street, not less than two feet wide lengthwise of said street, and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part; or (2) of concrete to be laid in conformity with the specifications for cement sidewalks as set forth in Standard Specifications for Portland Cement Sidewalks and Curbs, filed in the office of the City Clerk, April 11th, 1910. The Street Commissioner shall give the correct lines and grades in all cases.

Notice is further given that unless said improvement shall be completed within thirty days after the service of this notice, it is the intention of said City to make said improvement or cause the same to be made, pursuant to the authority of the Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled, "An Act to authorize cities to construct and repair sidewalks and curbs, and to provide for the payment of the cost thereof," approved April 13, 1908, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Proof under oath of the publication or service of this notice will be filed within two days thereafter in the Office of the City Collector, being the officer charged with the duty of making official searches for liens.

Said Act of the Legislature provides that in case of non-payment of the charges authorized thereby, the land and real estate subject to the liens of such charges may be sold in the manner provided for the sale of lands for the non-payment of assessments.

Dated, Plainfield, N. J., May 19, 1911.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Alfred de Oro, of New York, and Charles Weston, of Chicago, will play for the pool championship at John Doyle's Forty-second street Academy, Manhattan, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights of this week. This will be the final match of the season among the pool experts. Advices from Chicago, where Weston has been practising, show the challenger to be in excellent form. It was Weston who first defeated Thomas Huesston when the latter was in his prime and considered invincible.

At a conference at Cambridge Saturday between Managers Soule and Floyd, of the Yale and Harvard track teams, it was decided to accept the challenges of Oxford and Cambridge universities for a joint meet in London in July.

Harry Smith and Harry Jensen, of the Pastime A. C., and Alex Ahlgren, unattached, finished in the order named in the Seaside A. C. seven-and-a-half-mile road run, starting and finishing at Brighton Beach Park, Sunday afternoon, in the good time of 43 minutes flat.

GOLF

There will be ten moneys in the national open golf championship tournament to be held over the links of the Chicago Golf Club at Wheaton, Ill., on June 23 and 24. The winner will receive $300 and a gold medal. The other prizes are as follows: Second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $80; fifth, $70; sixth, $60; seventh, $50; eighth, $40; ninth, $30; tenth, $20.

As usual, the competition will be at medal play. Thirty-six holes will be played on June 23 and a like number the following day, making seventy-two holes in all. Contestants whose scores at the finish of Friday's play exceed by fifteen strokes the tenth place shall not continue in the competition nor play in Saturday's rounds. The entrance fee is $5, and must be received by Robert C. Watson, the secretary, at No. 51 East 44th street, New York city, not later than 6 p. m. on Friday, June 16.

The competitive season of the Sound Beach Golf and Country Club will begin on Saturday, May 27, and continue until the end of September. A home-and-home team match has been arranged with the New Canaan Golf Club. On July 22 the opposing forces will muster at Sound Beach, while on August 12 the scene will shift to New Canaan. Matches have also been arranged with the Wee Burn Golf Club—the first at Sound Beach, on July 29, and the second at Stamford, on August 19. The club championship, at thirty-six holes medal play, will be decided on September 23.

BASEBALL.

Manager Frank Chance, of the Chicago Nationals, has a scheme in force with the Cubs to make the pitchers give their best efforts. Nearly every one of the Chicago staff has a provisional contract, by which they get a bonus for winning a certain number of games. In case any one of the number is hit sufficiently hard to warrant being taken out of the game, and the new pitcher can hold the opposition down while the Cubs bat out enough runs to win, Manager Chance deducts a certain proportion of the sum promised and gives it to the rescue pitcher who makes good. In Saturday's game Cole, who has a provisional contract, was jacked out in the sixth inning and Brown successfully held the Phillies down. Manager Chance on next pay day will give Brown something like $200 that would otherwise have gone to Cole had he been able to successfully finish the game.

Kid Elberfeld, the third baseman of the Washington Senators, will be out of the game for a few days on account of injuries. In the eighth inning of the game against the Naps, Sunday, the former Yankee injured his knee and had to retire from the game. While in the game he poled out three hits and accepted five chances in the field.

WORLD'S BEST CIRCUS COMING.

Forepaugh and Sells Bros.' Show Announced for Early Appearance.

The great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' circus will give two performances in Plainfield on Friday, June 9. Added glory attaches to this show because of the splendid impression it has made since its opening early in April with its new $3,200,000 equipment.

After an absence of several seasons it now comes clothed in new splendors. In every particular it is more attractive than ever before. Its long trains, stretching out over one mile of track, groans and creaks under the burden of world-wide wonders that have been gathered from every corner of the earth. The menagerie tent is the home of 780 wild beasts, representing a complete chain of all animal creation now extant. The main tent is the largest spread of canvas ever lifted into the air. It is the most remarkable audience room in the world, seating 15,000 persons.

The organization of this year numbers 1,000 people, of whom 350 are the picked stars of Europe, Asia and America. In the stables are 600 horses. The show covers ten acres of ground. The parade in itself cost $1,000,000. It is a comprehensive panorama of the whole world's history from the ancient spectacles of modern times. It is a world's fair of knowledge and diversified interest, a horse fair, a congress of nations, a garden of mythology, a gallery of sculpture, a musical convention, a congress of myths and fairies and a tremendous zoo, all rolled into one grand line three miles long.

This is the great metropolitan circus which for many years has been the pride and boast of New York city, where it makes its home in the Madison Square Garden. It is the highest standard of excellence, by which all circus owners make their comparisons.

The Bible study in Paul's Epistle to the Galatians, led by W. D. Murray, will be continued at the Crescent Avenue church tomorrow night.

VOTED $35,000 FOR HIGH SCHOOL WINGS

The Board of School Estimate at a meeting held last night for the purpose adopted a resolution calling for the expenditure of $35,000 with which to erect two wings on the Plainfield High School building, the plans for which were exclusively announced in The Daily Press. All the members of the board voted for the resolution, except Mayor G. W. V. Moy, who took a stand against the expenditure at this time. In the opinion of the Mayor, the addition is made necessary now by reason of the large number of outside pupils attending the high school, there being seventy-two occupying two class rooms. The outside pupils, he says, naturally use room that would provide accommodations for Plainfield pupils.

The action of the Board of School Estimate will necessitate the issuance of bonds on the part of the Common Council to raise the amount of money desired. The plans call for six additional class rooms at the rear of the present ones, each having a dimension of 25x32 feet. The estimated cost of construction is $30,000, with an appropriation of $2,700 for furnishings and $2,300 for a ventilating system.

The board also determined at its meeting that the sum of $74,000 would be needed for general expenses of the schools for next year. Last year the school budget amounted to $67,659.76, making the net increase $6,340.24. This is partially due to the increase allowed in the salaries of the teachers.

THE FORUM.

Coney Near at Hand

May 23, 1911.

Editor, The Daily Press:—

Some day when you feel as though you would like to take a trip to Coney Island but do not feel as though you could spare the time, take a ride on the "Rock-a-by" division of the Public Service Corporation, in other words, a car to Netherwood and I will guarantee for real hair raising sensation, it has automobile "Joy riding" beaten to a "frazzle."

We hear much these days of the "flexibility" of this or that automobile but if you want to see real flexibility sit in a rear seat and observe the car go round a curve. It behaves exactly like a snake, by way of a preliminary it gives a few wriggles, then bends in the middle, then at both ends and finally after a few more contortions straightens out and goes on its course rejoicing. Sometimes by way of variation it gives a few festive bucks like a bronco.

Have the "City Fathers" retired into a state of innocuous desuetude?

Boy's Timely Act.

Frank Conway, a sixteen year old boy prevented what might have been a serious accident yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. A horse belonging to M. R. Giles, a butcher of West Second street, became unmanageable on Richmond street and taking the bit in his teeth ran away. Andrew Olssen, the driver, was unable to control the animal and just as he was becoming frightened young Conway jumped from the curb and caught the horse's bridle bringing it to a stop within a few feet of East Front street. Young Conway was complimented by several people in the neighborhood.

His Arm Broken.

While attempting to lift a barrel of cement this morning on Union street, John Wasilo, a Pole, slipped and fell under his burden. As he fell the horse of the wagon which he had been driving started to move away, and one of the wheels passed over the prostrate man. The police patrol removed Wasilo to the hospital where it was found that his right arm was broken and that he had sustained several severe bruises about the body. Wasilo has been in the employ of McDonough Brothers for a number of years and is considered a careful man by his employers.

James Edward Phillips.

James Edward Phillips, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Phillips, of Watchung avenue, died this morning after a brief illness. The funeral will be private.

The Junior Mission Band, of the First Baptist church will meet Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mulford Estil, of Park avenue, returned today from Atlantic City, where he has been spending a week.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK TOPIC FOR TEACHERS

An interesting session of the Sunday School Teachers' Graded Union in the afternoon at the First Presbyterian church was followed by another at night at which Louis H. Koehler, general secretary of the Sunday School Union, gave an address helpful to all Sunday school teachers. Those who spoke on "Graded Lessons" in the afternoon were Miss Elmira Runyon, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, who talked on the education of the children of the Primary department, giving some fine illustrations for the benefit of the fifty members present.

An intermediate conference at 7 o'clock in the evening was conducted by Miss Vera M. Day. The junior lesson was given by Arthur M. Harris, superintendent of the junior department of the First Baptist Sunday school. Miss Harriet Halloway, of Elizabeth, conducted the 8 o'clock meeting which had for its subject, "Missionary Work in the Sunday School." Her remarks on this subject were listened to with considerable interest by all those present.

Mr. Kohler's address proved a strong appeal for teachers in the Sunday school. He believes that every community ought to produce the necessary instructors in Christian living and that these teachers should be equipped with the best armor that study can provide. Mr. Koehler laid great stress upon the need of careful study by all those who desire to instruct the young, but the greater strees was laid on the necessity of preparation for those to whom it will fall to teach the older children.

The visiting members were entertained at supper by a committee of which Mrs. George A. Ballantyne was chairman and Mrs. Whilliam H. Manning had charge of the decorations. James E. Church offered prayer.

Horses Taken Sick.

A team of horses belonging to the the Hand Storage Co., on Somerset street, were taken sick yesterday on Park avenue and needed the attention of a veterinary. The driver of the team called Dr. L. S. Pocock whose work managed to save the animals. Dr. Pocock declared that the horses had been underworked and overfed but that they would recover.

Ministers' Picture.

The local ministers who will take part in the baseball game to be played with the local doctors for the benefit of Muhlenberg hospital on June 17, will meet at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at Stone's gallery to have a group picture taken.

Miss Edna Perrine, of West Orange, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Chas. Mehlenbeck, of East Sixth street.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Danish Lutheran church will hold a fair in the W. C. T. U. rooms, Babcock building, tomorrow afternoon and evening.

The regular business meeting of the First Baptist church will be held tomorrow night, when the special committee will report on the resignation of Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, and future action will be determined.

There will be an all-day meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the East New Jersey Baptist Association, at the Central Baptist church, Elizabeth, Friday, and the local churches will be largely represented.

Chief T. O. Doane is detained at his home on West Fifth street by illness. Mrs. Doane, who has also been quite ill is reported as being improved.

With gentle spring have now returned
The days of rapture, when
We shed our winter underwear—
And put it on again.

MRS. L. T. CLAWSON DIED THIS MORNING

Mrs. Amanda Langworthy Clawson, formerly of Westerly, R. I., died suddenly this morning at the home of her niece, Mrs. Asa F. Randolph, on Park avenue, where she had been visiting for a short time, after spending the winter in the south, and prior to going to her summer home at Bethlehem, N. H.

Mrs. Clawson and her husband for many years have been accustomed to stopping here each spring and fall, spending the winter at Weirsdale, Fla., where they had their winter hotel, and the summer at Bethlehem, N. H., where they had a summer hotel. Mr. Clawson is a brother of James Clawson, the grocer of West Second street and Madison avenue.

Mrs. Calwson was a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of Westerly, R. I., being one of the most active workers there for many years. She first made her home at Westerly in 1874. Beside her husband she leaves one daughter, Mrs. L. W. Burton, of Brooklyn. The funeral service will be held at the residence of Mrs. Asa F. Randolph, 525 Park avenue, Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

He Was Seeing Things.

Frank Cello, an Italian cobbler, got so drunk yesterday that he thought he was being pursued by the "black hand." He went to police headquarters and asked the chief to lock him up to keep his enemies away. Chief Kiely accommodated the man and this morning when Judge DeMeza heard the circumstances he warned Cello to leave the liquor alone and suspended sentence.

Elks Ball Team.

The baseball team which the local Elks are going to put in the field this year promises to be one of the fastest in the Elks' League. The games will begin on July 6 and Brooklyn will probably be the first bunch which the locals will play. This is the Elks' lineup: MacLaughlin, p; Torpey, c; McNaughton, 1b; Evans, 2b; Hoyt, ss, and captain; Craig, 3b; Flannery, cf; Smith, lf; Townley, rf.

Pupils' Recital Tonight.

The annual musicale by the pupils of Miss May Vincent Whitney, will be given at the Plainfield High School auditorium this evening at 8:15 o'clock. They will be assisted by William N. Searles, Jr., basso cantante, of Newark, who has been heard on former occasions with a great deal of pleasure.

John C. Bowers, of Pumptown, reported to the police of this city last night that a gold watch had been taken from his premises and asked that a lookout be kept for the timepiece.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE AT THE CITY NATIONAL

When the extensive improvements now being made at the City National Bank are complete the institution will be one of the most complete and best equipped banking houses in the State. Owing to the nature of the work, the progress is slow. Operations were begun in February and the contractors cannot definitely say when the changes will be finished.

Perhaps, the most notable change is the addition to the bank proper, made possible by utilizing the space formerly used by Charles E. Vail, the jeweler, on Park avenue. A second floor room, twenty feet square is provided on the second floor, and one of equal size on the ground floor. The upper room will be used for the director's meetings, and in addition there will be room, whereby it will be possible to prepare light lunches for the employes at certain times, when business details them at the bank. Handsome lavatory conveniences are also provided for on the second floor. Access to the upper room will be by the way of a pair of stairs from the bank room proper.

Numerous other changes are being made on the ground floor. The new addition includes a roomy space for the clerks on one side, coupon rooms and little offices on the other. Today 150 new steel lock boxes of the latest improved pattern were installed to meet the increasing demand, while increased vault facilities are included in the improvements.

In the front part of the main banking room, larger space has been arranged for the women's department, which will be appreciated by women having business with the bank. The whole interior is being re-decorated by Woolston & Buckle, and the ceiling decoration will be something unusually attractive. Anaglypta, a composition made in England for ceiling decorations, will be used probably for the first time in a business institution in this city. The effect is unusually attractive.

In the Borough Court.

The four Italians arrested in the poker game raid on Brook avenue Sunday, were fined $5 each by Mayor Smalley last night. Two stone wagon men who drove on the sidewalk on upper Somerset street because of the trolley track repair work were lectured and warned not to repeat the offense.

Irving School Team Defeated.

In a ten-inning pitchers' battle, on Crescent Oval, yesterday afternoon, the boys of Miss Barrett's class defeated the Irving School nine, by a score of 7 to 6, making the second victory this season for the 7-D boys. The score was tied in the ninth inning and then the 7-D boys won out in the tenth.

DRY CLEANING TALK
Number 4
The Pressers and Finishers

Those who have read our Dry Cleaning Talks are aware by this time that there is something to Dry Cleaning.

After the garments have been properly dusted and passed through their proper bath, properly dried, spotted, etc., they reach the Finishing Department.

It is the duty of this Department to prepare the work for return, also largely to inspect, proving the previous work.

Our Finishing Department is our pride and we know it is efficient. Our ever increasing trade confirms this fact. Send your next work to us.

Corporation Notice.

Proposals for Oats, Hay and Straw.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J., at a regular adjourned meeting held May 22nd, 1911, notice is hereby given that the Common Council will meet on Monday, the fifth day of June, A. D. 1911, at eight o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, No. 149-151 North Avenue, at which time and place said Common Council will receive sealed proposals for furnishing the following, that is to say:

1,000 bags, more or less, of best No. 2 natural white Oats, old oats to be furnished up to November 1st.

50 tons, more or less, of No. 1 Timothy Hay.

25 Tons more or less of Rye Straw.

To be delivered at the various engine houses, police station and alms house in quantities as required by each of said departments, during the remainder of the current year, with the privilege on the part of the City to purchase at same prices for the first three months of 1912.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Council.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved by the Common Council. Proposals should be endorsed "Proposals for Oats, Hay and Straw."

By order of the Common Council.
JAMES T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Miss Grace Parker, of First street, entertained the girl graduates of the class of 1910, Plainfield High School, at her home, Saturday afternoon. There were twelve in attendance and a very enjoyable time was had. Miss Parker is a member of the class and since last fall has been teaching school at Spotswood.

Day officer Wyhusky raided a baseball game which was in progress on Madison avenue Sunday. The authorities have placed a ban on this form of Sabbath amusement and will not permit it within the confines. The officer did not make any arrest Sunday but warned the players not to repeat the offense.

A delegation of members from the Dunellen P. O. S. of A., Camp will attend a district meeting to be conducted at New Brunswick tonight by Camp 51. There will be a class initiation followed by an entertaining program. State officers are expected to be presentd.

Walter Harrison, the young son of Oscar Harrison, is ill with diphtheria. He is an attendant at the Lincoln school and the building was thoroughly fumigated Saturday afternoon.

Miss M. E. Brower, organist at the Presbyterian church, was unable to perform the duties, Sunday, because of illness and her place was acceptably taken by Mrs. W. S. Fredericks

The Misses Bessie McLaughlin and Melissa Stelle, of Paterson, were guests at the home of Captain and Mrs. B. A. Cole, of Washington avenue.

Assessor John H. L. Peters began his rounds of the borough yesterday, placing values upon the property of owners and residents.

The Misses Emily and Florence Gangloff, of the borough, were the guests of friends in the Bronx, New York, Sunday.

Mrs. J. C. Smith returned Sunday afternoon after a week's visit with relatives in Connecticut.

Maurand Alliman, of South Plainfield, has been visiting friends in the borough.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The local ball team will be represented at the meeting to be held tonight at Bound Brook, for the purpose of talking over the advisability of forming an Inter-town League between Westfield, the 'Plains, Plainfield, Bound Brook and possibly High Bridge.

Marshal George Rabig broke up an Italian growler party, which was being held in Park avenue, Saturday night. Two hours spent in the "coop" was the warning which was impressed upon the offenders not to repeat the offense.

Miss May Cotton, a former popular teacher in school number 1, but now teaching in one of the Glen Cove, L. I. schools, spent the week end with friends in town.

The borough authorities have posted the borough streets with signs warning automobilists to keep within the speed limit.

The local ball team play two games with the Plainfield team Memorial Day, both games to be played at Crescent Oval.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rabig, of Westfield avenue, have been entertaining friends from out of town.

James Corrano, of Stanbury avenue, has taken a position with Miller, the painter.

THERE'S NO SQUIRE NOW IN SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Justice of the Peace William E. Smith, of South Plainfield, who was re-elected to his office last fall, failed to qualify at the proper time and in consequence that place is without a squire for the first time in five years. During his term of office he has held the respect of all the citizens and has been commended for the fair way in which he administered his duties.

Friends of the justice are about to circulate petition, requesting the township committee to appoint Mr. Smith as township recorder. The petition will be presented to the committee at its regular meeting in June and it is expected that the action will be favorable.

Dunellen vs. Plainfield.

The crack Dunellen team, which is considered stronger than the nine which took Plainfield into camp last year, will play Plainfield at Dunellen on Saturday afternoon. Wendt, the Dunellen crack, who is thought by many to be the best pitcher in this section, will be in the box for Manager Bogardus' team, and Lidgate will hold him. When Dunellen and Plainfield get together a good game always seems to be the ultimate outcome. Last year in two games which took twenty-one innings altogether to decide, Dunellen scored three runs and Plainfield two.

Want Legal Advice.

The Board of Health communicated with the Common Council last night regarding the question of obtaining legal advice. It reported that there were several matters calling for such advice and a request was made that relief be given. The board also called attention to the fact that cesspools on Laramie road are overflowing and urging upon the necessity of the city installing sewers in that part of the city. This was referred to the sewer committee.

Farewell for Miss Newmiller.

The members of the choir of the Evangelical Lutheran church met at the parsonage on Stone street, last evening to bid farewell to Miss Pauline Newmiller, who will soon remove to Hoboken. A pleasant evening was spent and all expressed their regrets that Miss Newmiller is to leave Plainfield.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed at Trinity Reformed chruch, Sunday morning, June 4.

Ascension Day will be observed at the Evangelical Lutheran church at Grove street and Mercer avenue with a service at 8 o'clock in the evening.

EXTRA! EXTRA—Owing to the increased circulation of The Daily Press I presume I will be called upon to receive cut rates for advertising soon. But that is one of my secrets. Don't mention it. You known I like to write ads so well that when you bring your property to me, I shall ask you to take off your hat and leave a check for fifteen dollars for advertising. Shall use this paper and two others, and when you go to give me a check for commission I shall tell you to deduct the fifteen dollars that did the business! Of course, if signs sell your property, I will get left. I hope I will get left. D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours. 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 19 tf

CONEY ISLAND—The first fellow who came to see the Park street, Brooklyn properties near Coney Island, that are to exchange for your property, did not care to go to Coney Island. I just told him that he could count the ties over. He went over and back and is now ready to take one. Now the thing is! Suppose you all go over without me and take one, how will I get to Coney Island? D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours, 159 North avenue, 'phone 1907.

MY TEXT—Old Colony Insurance Co., of Boston, Mass. This is the first time I ever knew myself to take off my hat to the word "Old" because it always looked like a jar to me, but in this case it sounds substantial. And the word Boston sounds like literary to me, or five o'clock teas. And five o'clock teas keep money in circulation for did you ever see one gown that would be literary to two teas That is what I want to do, keep money in circulation, only I want it to circulate my way. That is the reason I represent that word "Old." I insure anything but your life and that I want you to keep; but bring me your houses, and your literary automobiles. D. Foster Updike, 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 22 tf

GOOD NEIGHBORHOOD — The first one that came around to buy that $1,000 down, $28 per month house, had just two dollars and thirty cents. He wishes he missed me. I have been too modest to tell you that this house is in a good neighborhood, it is. It adjoins my residence. The neighbors there when there is trouble, do not send in their maids to see what can't be done, they send themselves in to see what can be done. Get in a good neighborhood. D. Foster Updike. 5 23 2

THE STRIKE is over and I am glad of it for I am geting tired of seeing uncovered bricks in my sidewalls; there would have been a brick strike soon. Got in two desks, a dozen chairs, another typewriter and a stenographer yesterday. But I forget my cuspidors, but I guess my shoes are quite good. Guess who takes charge of my insurance and rental department? Will give you a hunt. Our father and uncles are the ice man; who could the ice man be? Will tell you something about him. I forget to ask him for a bond. He belongs to the church where the people are so loyal that they go whenever the bell rings. Glad ours don't ring so often Some are good enough to think it a nuisance anyhow. Had they come around I would have wanted two bonds. The gentleman who came down from Hunterdon county yesterday to take charge of my farm department had an accident to start with. The first man he met was our brother in the same business. The poor fellow never knew he was saying anything out of the way when the conversation led to his saying he sold over forty farms last year. The other fellow seems to think that I brought him down to look at farms, not sell them. I would not dare to tell you what I did last week. D. Foster Updike. 5 23 2

LEGENDS OF ANIMALS

Interesting Old Time Stories of Bird and Beast.

THE HORSE AND THE CAMEL.

An Arabian Folklore Tale Tells Why Every Steed Shudders on a First Meeting With a Camel—Solomon and the Neck of the Vulture.

In the beginning the birds had no feathers, but at last word was brought that the Great Spirit had their clothes ready if they would send some one for them. As the distance was long, the turkey buzzard was selected on account of his endurance, and in recognition of the service he was to have first choice of apparel, the one condition being that he could try no suit on the second time. Can you guess the result? For one trifling objection or another he let all the fine feathers go by until, to his horrified astonishment, there was nothing left but the poor, commonplace suit that he wears today.

We talk conceitedly of the airship as though a brand new invention of the modern brain when thousands of years ago King Solomon had a most satisfactory one, a magic carpet upon which he frequently took a spin through space. Only one fault could be found with this carpet touring car. It had no covering, and too often the sun shone uncomfortably upon the royal head. Now, the wisdom of Solomon included a rare linguistic accomplishment. The king spoke the language of birds. So one day when out riding on his carpet he called upon some passing vultures to hold their wings over him by way of awning. But they were going north, the king toward the south, and to his righteous indignation the birds insolently refused.

"Cursed be ye, O vultures!" he cried in wrath. "And because you will not obey the commands of your lord who rules over the whole world the feathers of your necks shall fall off and the heat of the sun and the coldness of winter and the keenness of the wind and the beating of the rain shall fall upon your rebellious necks, which shall not be protected with feathers like the necks of other birds, and, whereas you have hitherto fared delicately, henceforward you shall eat carrion and your race shall be impure until the end of the world."

According to Arab folklore, one day Allah called the south wind to him, condensed it, took a handful, blew upon it the breath of life and thus created a horse. But the steed at once began to find fault. His neck, he complained, was too short to reach the grass, his back had nothing to steady a saddle, his hoofs were so sharp that they would surely sink into the sand. Instead of reproving his ingratitude in words Allah then created the camel as an object lesson of reproach.

The horse shuddered at the sight of what he wanted to become, and this is the reason that every horse starts when first meeting his caricature.

Perhaps you have not had the opportunity of gazing dentist-wise into the mouth of a coyote and so have never wondered why its back teeth looked as though they were broken off and forced down into the gums, but you must surely have come across many an empty locust skin.

To the south of the Zuni lands in New Mexico a coyote once started out hunting, but got no farther than the foot of a certain old pine tree, so fascinated did he become in a locust who sat playing a flute and singing in one of its branches. In fact, such was the animal's enthusiasm that he insisted upon taking a lesson on the spot. His voice proved hoarse and growly, but he persevered until he learned the words of the locust song and turned homeward, proudly repeating them, when by bad luck he fell into a gopher's hole, said other words under his breath and forgot his lines.

Back to the pine tree he trotted, again imposed upon the locust's good nature, once more sallied forth in triumph. But this time as he practiced aloud he frightened a flock of pigeons that flew out with such a noise as completely to muddle his brain, and there was nothing left for him but another appeal to the wornout locust.

Now, even a music teacher will turn, and the locust, seeing him coming from afar and having heard that coyotes ate insects, decided to rid himself of this tiresome fellow. No sooner thought than done. In a flash he swelled up, split his skin and crawled out. Finding at hand a clear, light colored bit of quartz, he put it in the empty skin, mucilaged it up the back with pitch and flew off to another tree.

The trick worked to a charm. The coyote called out to the supposed locust again and again without receiving a reply, became enraged, snatched the effigy out of the tree and bit so hard on the stone that he ran yelping away. The water of a creek partly soothed his pain, but ever since the mouth of a coyote has shown the effect of that tragic bite, and "whenever a locust ventures out on a summer morning to sing a song it is his custom to protect himself from the consequences of attracting too much attention by skinning himself and leaving his counterpart in the tree."—May C. Ringwalt in Los Angeles Times.

GERMAN CUSTOMS LAW.

It May Not Always Be Expensive, but It Invariably Causes a Lot of Trouble.

"If you travel in Germany you want to be careful to declare all dutiable goods at the border, even down to a toothpick," said a former attache. "It may not save you much money, but it will save you vexatious delays.

"With a friend I came over from St. Petersburg by way of Stockholm to Kiel on our way to Berlin. I had bought in Russia half a dozen gun metal holders for tea glasses, not worth over 15 cents apiece, and I had packed them in a Russian helmet. The latter had a spike on top of it.

"The customs officer at Kiel asked whether I had anything dutiable, and as the holders were of insignificant value I said 'No.'

"That did not satisfy him. He thrust his hand down into the bag roughly, and the first thing he came into contact with was the spike of that helmet. He jumped back, with a German oath, and then he reached down more cautiously, grabbed the spike and pulled the helmet up, the contents dropping out.

"'Aha! So!' he exclaimed in triumph, transfixing me with a look.

"Then he charged me with evading the law and with smuggling. He left us under guard, and there we stayed while we saw our train pull out. Finally the Herr Oberinspektor, in brilliant uniform and with sword clanking, came along back with him. He pomposily inquired who we were. We explained.

"'I believe you, gentlemen,' he replied after some questioning and considerable deliberation, 'but you are amenable to the law and will have to pay the duty and a fine equal to the amount of duty.' Then he hurried away to get the articles appraised.

"We felt we had got into a mixup. We counted over the German money we had between us, and it amounted to less than $3. We had nothing besides but drafts on Berlin, and if the duty and fine amounted to much we were in for all sorts of trouble.

"Finally the Herr Oberinspektor came back with a bundle of papers in his hands. He informed us that we could be liberated upon the payment of 60 pfennigs, which is about 15 cents. For this we had lost three hours."—New York Sun.

COSTLY ACCIDENTS.

A Lost Tin Mine and a Lead Mine's Bottomless Pit.

Immense plans which seemed about to be completed, but have been brought to disastrous failure at the last moment, are frequent enough in the history of industry.

London Answers tells the story of a tin mine in England which might have yielded a fortune but for a storm.

With the finding of a new vein of ore running out toward the sea a new level was driven out below the water; then it was found that the lode bent upward too near the sea bottom for mining to be safely carried on. Undiscouraged, the owner borrowed money, built a sea wall to cut off the water, erected pumps and again went to work.

On the sixth day, just as an enormous mass of rich ore was being tapped, a gale came up, a ship was blown upon the wall, which went to pieces at once, and the sea drove the heavy stones in upon the thin roof of the mine. In a moment the workings were hopelessly flooded and the owner was a ruined man.

A story equally tragic is told of the Speedwell lead mine in Derbyshire. Believing that a rich vein of ore existed in a nearby hill, the owner risked his entire capital to bore a tunnel 3,000 feet long into the heart of the mountain. Suddenly the miners broke through a wall of rock into a vast hidden cavern, through which flowed a stream of water.

They began to dump rock into the stream, and after 10,000 tons a bridge began to rise out of the darkness, and then their farther progress was stopped. Month after month they toiled, and at last, after 40,000 tons in all had been cast into the cavern, they gave it up.

That narrow rift is known to this day as the Bottomless Pit.

The Elements.

Of the seventy-one elementary substances of earthly matter enumerated by chemists thirty-two are known certainly to exist in the sun's atmosphere, ten or fifteen more can probably be traced there, and there are only six or eight as to which in the present state of our knowledge there is negative evidence that they are not present there. The elements whose presence is proved comprise many of those which are the most common in the composition of the earth, and the fact is pretty firmly established that matter is the same throughout all space, from the minutest atom to the most distant star.—New York American.

His Fair Mindedness.

"Why do you insist on reading that newspaper? It always seems to offend you."

"Because," answered Mr. Sirius Barker, "I believe in always looking at both sides of a question. I rely on that publication for arguments on the wrong side."—Washington Star.

POULTRY

WHEAT BRAN FOR POULTRY.

It Is Most Beneficial For Laying Hens as Well as Developing Chicks.

The dry feed theory for poultry was in vogue some years ago, and it gradually spread to other sections. Many, however, never gave it much thought until they saw the progress their neighbors' flocks were making. Here is a typical experience of a man who at first doubted the efficacy of wheat bran. He writes:

After feeding this sort of dry feed for some time we became convinced that the wheat bran was the most helpful feature of the mixture, and so we are now feeding the latter only, in connection with grain in litter, and we find that it makes a good ration for the hens. The hens like the wheat bran, and they eat of it largely, and it gives them a good full craw to take to roost with them at night, which is digested by morning to their benefit in egg formation and thus in working a betterment in the whole flock in the way of laying. Not only is the wheat bran diet good for laying hens, but it is also beneficial in developing the growth of the young stock. Experienced breeders who raise hundreds of chickens annually keep this kind of feed accessible to their young chickens all the time, and they claim it is splendid in its feather and bone forming effects on the growing chicks. We kept our mixture of wheat bran and corn hearts before our young chickens all the time last season, and we could see its beneficial effects in their development. They all seemed to be satisfied with the provision made for them and to grow very uniformly. There were no undersized runts or weaklings among them, for every one of them had a chance to eat at any hour or any minute during the day, and so there were no empty craws.

That wheat bran is a comparatively cheap feed every one knows, and for this reason it is acceptable asifle from its beneficial effects.

Keep One Variety of Corn.

It is best, as a general thing, to have but one variety of corn and keep it from mixing with other varieties. It is a very difficult matter to keep varieties from mixing when several are grown on the same farm or where different strains or varieties are grown on adjoining farms. Seed breeders realize these difficulties and always plant corn on a portion of the farm that is removed from other cornfields.

Provide Plenty of Feed.

One of the first steps in making the farm profitable is to provide plenty of feed for the animals and supplies for the family table. The first crop that should have consideration in this rotation is corn. Without an abundance of corn it is a difficult matter to make the farm life independent and the rotation suitable to a progressive system of management.

Feeding Value of Corn.

There is much difference in the feeding value of corn, and this should have more thought. Corn should be valued according to the protein, carbohydrates and fat that it contains. A careful study of the kernel will enable you to determine with a reasonable degree of accuracy the feeding value of the ear. Study your corn variety and breed it up.

Late Plowing Dangerous.

Late plowing is responsible for more destruction of vegetable matter than any other fault on the farm. Those who wait until the last minute to turn the soil find it impracticable to turn under the stalks; hence they are raked and burned. This is certain to impoverish the soil and may drive your children from the farm.

Select Good Seed.

Select a seed breeding plat for your corn and make preliminary arrangements to improve the yield of your strain. The first essential in making larger crops is to plant better seed. You can never be altogether sure that the seed is better without breeding better plants from which to save seed.

Sunshine Kills Disease.

Plenty of glass on the south side of the poultry house will tend to promote the healthfulness of the flock, for sunshine is death to any disease that may be lurking in any damp poultry house. Give the fowls plenty of sunshine, fresh air and exercise and they won't need any doctoring.

The House of the Whispering Pines

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910, by Anna Katharine Rohlfs

I can go on now. The next thing I did was to knock at Arthur's door. I heard him getting ready to go out, and I wanted to speak to him before he went. When he heard me he opened the door and let me in. He began at once on his grievances, but I could not listen to them. I wanted him to harness the gray mare for me and leave it standing in the stable. I explained the request by saying that it was necessary for me to see a certain friend of mine immediately and that no one would notice me in the cutter under the bearskins. He didn't approve, but I persuaded him. I even persuaded him to wait till Zadok was gone, so that Adelaide would know nothing about it. He looked glum, but he promised.

"He was going away when I heard Adelaide's steps in the adjoining room. This frightened me. The partition is very thin between these two rooms, and I was afraid she had heard me ask Arthur for the gray mare and cutter. I could hear her rattling the bottles in the medicine cabinet hanging on this very wall. I hurried back to my own room, where I collected such little articles as I needed for the expedition before me.

"I had hardly done this when I heard the servants on the walk outside, then Arthur going down. The impulse to see and speak to him again was irresistible. I flew after him and caught him in the lower hall. 'Arthur,' I cried, 'look at me—look at me well—and then—kiss me!' And he did kiss me. I'm glad when I think of it, though he did say next minute: 'What is the matter with you? What are you going to do—to meet that villain?'

"I looked straight into his face. I waited till I saw I had his whole attention. Then I said as slowly and emphatically as I could: 'If you mean Elwood—no! I shall never meet him again, except in Adelaide's presence. He will not want to meet me. You may be at ease about that. Tomorrow all will be well and Adelaide very happy.'

"He shrugged his shoulders and reached for his coat and hat. As he was putting them on I said, 'Don't forget to harness up Jenny.' Jenny is the gray mare. 'And leave off the bells,' I urged. 'I don't want Adelaide to hear me go out.'

"He swung about at this. 'You and Adelaide are not very good friends, it seems.' 'As good as you and she are,' I answered. Then I flung my arms about him. 'Don't go down street tonight,' I prayed. 'Stay home for this one night. Stay in the house with Adelaide. Stay till I come home.' He stared, and I saw his color change. Then he flung me off, but not rudely. 'Why don't you stay?' he asked. Then he laughed and added, 'I'll go harness the mare.'

"'The key's in the kitchen,' I said. 'I'll go get it for you. I heard Zadok bring it in.' He did not answer, and I went for the key. I found two on the nail, and I brought them both, but I only handed him one, the key to the stable door. 'Which way are you going?' I asked as he looked at the key, then back toward the kitchen. 'The short way, of course.' 'Then here's the key to the Fulton grounds.'

"As he took the key I prayed again 'Don't do what's in your mind, Arthur. Don't drink tonight.' He only laughed, and I said my last word: 'If you do it will be for the last time. You'll never drink again after tomorrow.'

"He made no answer to this, and I went slowly upstairs. Everything was quiet—quiet as death—in the whole house. If Adelaide had heard us she made no sign. Going to my own room, I waited until I heard Arthur come out of the stable and go away by the door in the rear wall. Then I stole out again. I carried a small bag with me, but no coat or hat.

"Pausing and listening again and again, I crept downstairs and halted at the table under the rack. The keys were still there. Putting them in my bag, I searched the rack for one of my brother's warm coats. But I took none I saw. I remembered an old one which Adelaide had put away in the closet under the stairs. Getting this, I put it on, and, finding a hat there, too, I took that also, and when I had pulled it over my forehead and drawn up the collar of the coat I was quite unrecognizable. I was going out when I remembered there would be no light in the clubhouse. I had put a box of matches in my bag while I was upstairs, but I needed a candle. Slipping back, I took a candlestick and candle from the dining room mantel and drove swiftly away."

"How did you leave the stable door?"

"Open."

"Can you tell us what time it was when you started?"

"No. I did not look. Time meant nothing to me. I drove as fast as I could straight down the hill and out toward the Whispering Pines. I had seen Adelaide in her window as I went flying by the house, but not a soul on the road nor a sign of life near or far. The whistle of a train blew as I stopped in the thicket near the clubhouse door. If it was the express train you can tell!"

"Never mind the if," said Mr. Mat-

"I LAID THEM RIGHT ACROSS MY CHEEK."

tat. "It is enough that you heard the whistle. Go on with what you did."

"I tied up my horse, then I went into the house. I had used Mr. Ranelagh's key to open the door, and for some reason I took it out of the lock when I got in and put the whole bunch back into my satchel. But I did not lock the door. Then I lit my candle and then—I went upstairs.

"There is a room upstairs in the clubhouse where I have often been with Adelaide. It has a fireplace in it, and I had seen a box there half filled with wood the day before. This is the room I went to, and here I built a fire. When it was quite bright I took out something I had brought in my satchel and thrust it into the flame. Then I got up and walked away. I—I did not feel very strong and sank on my knees when I got to the couch and buried my face in my arms. But I felt better when I came back to the fire again and very brave till I caught a glimpse of my face in the mirror over the mantelpiece. That—that unnerved me, and I think I screamed. Some one screamed, and I think it was I. I know my hands went out—I saw them in the glass; then they fell straight down at my side, and I looked and looked at myself till I saw all the terror go out of my face, and when it was quite calm again I stooped down and pulled out the little tongs I had been heating in the fire and laid them quick—quick, before I could be sorry again, right across my cheek, and then"—

Uproar in the court. If she had screamed when she said she did, so some one cried out loudly now. I think that pitiful person was myself. They say I had been standing straight up in my place for the last two minutes.

CHAPTER XXV.

"CHOOSE."

"I HAVE not finished," were the first words we heard from Carmel when order was restored and we were all in a condition to listen again.

"I had to relate what you have just heard that you might understand what happened next. I was not used to pain, and I could never have kept on pressing those irons to my cheek if I had not had the strength given me by my own reflection in the glass. When I thought the burn was quite deep enough I tore the tongs away and was lifting them to the other cheek when I saw the door behind me open inch by inch, as though pushed by hesitating touches.

"Instantly I forgot my pain, almost my purpose, watching that door. I saw it slowly swing to its full width and disclose my sister standing in the gap with a look and in an attitude which terrified me more than the fire had done. Dropping the tongs, I turned and faced her, covering my cheek instinctively with my hand.

"I saw her eyes run over my elaborate dinner dress—my little hand bag and the candle burning in a room made warm with a fire on the hearth—this before she spoke a single word. Then, with a deep laboring breath, she looked me in the eye again with the simple question:

"'And where is he?'"

Carmel's head had drooped at this, but she raised it almost instantly. Mine did not rise so readily.

"'Do you mean Elwood?' I asked 'You know!' said she. 'The veil is down between us, Carmel. We will speak plainly now. I saw him give you the letter. I heard you ask Arthur to harness up the horse. I have demeaned myself to follow you, and we will have no subterfuges now. You expect him here?'

"'No,' I cried. 'I am not so bad as that, Adelaide—nor is he. Here is the note. You will see by it what he expects and at what place I should have joined him if I had been the selfish creature you think.' I had the note hidden in my breast. I took it out and held it toward her. I did not feel the burn at all, but I kept it covered. She glanced down at the words, and I felt like falling at her feet, she looked so miserable.

"She glanced down at the paper and let it drop almost immediately from her hand. 'I cannot read his words!' she cried. 'I do not need to. We both know which of us he loves best. You cannot say that it is I, his engaged wife.' I was silent, and her face took on an awful pallor. 'Carmel,' said she, 'do you know what this man's love has been to me? You are a child, a warm hearted and passionate child, but you do not know a woman's heart. Certainly you do not know mine. I doubt if any one does—even he. Cares have warped my life. I have no charms to rival yours; I have only love, such love as you cannot dream of at your age. And this is no longer desirable to him!'

"You see that I remember every word she spoke. They burned more fiercely than the iron. That did not burn at all just then. I was cold instead—bitterly, awfully cold. My very heart seemed frozen, and the silence was dreadful. But I could not speak; I could not answer her.

"'You have everything,' she now went on. 'Why did you rob me of my one happiness? And you have robbed me. Carmel, do you know why I am here?' I shook my head. 'I am here to end it all,' said she.

"I tottered at this threat, and she, a mother to me from my cradle, started instinctively to catch me, but the feeling left her before she had taken two steps, and she stopped still. 'Drop your hand!' she cried. 'I want to see your whole face while I ask you one last question. I could not read the note. Why did you come here? I dropped my hand, and she stood staring; then she uttered a cry and ran quickly toward me. 'What is it?' she cried. 'What has happened to you? Is it the shadow or'—

"I caught her by the hand. I could speak now. 'Adelaide,' said I, 'you are not the only one to love to the point of hurt. I love you. Let this little scar be witness.' Then, as her eyes opened and she staggered, I caught her to my breast and hid my face on her shoulder. 'You say that tomorrow I shall be free to receive notes. He will not wish to write them tomorrow. The beauty he liked is gone. If it weighed overmuch with him, then you and I are on a plane again—or I am on an inferior one. Your joy will be sweeter for this break.'

"She started, raised my head from her shoulder, looked at me and shuddered, but no longer with hate. 'Carmel,' she whispered, 'the story—the story I read you of Francis I. and'—

"'Yes,' I agreed, 'that made me think.' Her knees bent under her; she sank at my feet, but her eyes never left my face. 'And—and Elwood?' 'He knows nothing. I did not make up my mind till tonight. Adelaide, it had to be. I hadn't the strength to—to leave you all or—or to say no if he ever asked me to my face what he asked me in that note.'

"And then I tried to lift her, but she was kissing my feet, kissing my dress, sobbing out her life on my hands. Oh, I was happy! My future looked very simple to me. But my cheek began to burn, and instinctively I put up my hand. This brought her to her feet. 'You are suffering,' she cried. 'You must go home at once, at once, while I telephone to Dr. Carpenter.' 'We will go together,' I said. 'We can telephone from there.' But at this the awful look came back into her face, and, seeing her forget my hurt, I forgot it, too, in dread of what she would say when she found strength to speak.

"It was worse than anything I had imagined; she refused absolutely to go back home. 'Carmel,' said she, 'I have done injustice to your youth. You love him, too—not like a child, but a woman. The tangle is worse than I thought; your heart is caught in it as well as mine, and you shall have your chance. My death will give it to you.'

"I tried to dissuade her. I urged every plea, even that of my own sacrifice. But she was no more her natural self. She had taken up the note and read it during my entreaties, and my words fell on deaf ears. 'Why, these words have killed me!' she cried, crumpling the note in her hand. 'What will a little poison do? It can only finish what he has begun.'

"Poison! I remembered how I had heard her pushing about bottles in the medicine cabinet and felt my legs grow weak and my head swim. 'You will not!' I cried, watching her hand, in terror of seeing it rise to her breast.

"'When I came here,' she said, 'I brought a bottle of cordial with me and three glasses. I brought a little vial of poison, too, once ordered for sickness. I expected to find Elwood here. If I had I meant to drop the poison into one glass and then fill them all up with the cordial. We should have drunk, each one of us his glass, and one of us would have fallen. I did not care which, you or Elwood or myself. But he is not here, and the cast of the die is between us two, unless you wish a certainty, Carmel, in which case I will pour out but one glass and drink that myself.'

"She was in a fever now and desperate. Death was in the room. I felt it in my lifted hair and in her strangely drawn face. If I screamed who would hear me? I never thought of the telephone, and I doubt if she would have let me use it then. The power she had always exerted over me was very strong in her at this moment.

"'Shall I drink alone?' she repeated, and I cried out, 'No,' at which her hand went to her breast, as I had so long expected, and I saw the glitter of a little vial as she drew it forth.

"'Oh, Adelaide!' I began, but she heeded me no more than the dead.

"On leaving home she had put on a long coat with pockets, and this coat was still on her and the pockets gaping. Thrusting her other hand into one of these she drew out a little flask covered with wicker and set it on a stand beside her. Then she pulled out two small glasses and set them down also, and then she turned her back. I could hear the drop-drop of the liquor, and dark as the room was it seemed to turn darker till I put out my hands like one groping in a sudden night. But everything cleared before me when she turned around again. Features set like hers force themselves to be seen.

"She advanced, a glass in either hand. As she came the floor swayed and the walls seemed to bow together, but they did not sway her. Step by step she drew near, and when she reached my side she smiled in my face once. Then she said: 'Choose aright, dear heart. Leave the poisoned one for me.'

"Fascinated, I stared at one glass, then at the other. Had either of her hands trembled I should have grasped at the glass it held, but not a tremor shook those icy fingers, nor did her eyes wander to the right hand or to the left. 'Adelaide,' I shrieked out, 'toss them behind you. Let us live—live!' But she only reiterated that awful word, 'Choose!' and I dare not hesitate longer lest I lose my chance to save her. Groping, I touched a glass—I never knew which one—and, drawing it from her fingers, I lifted it to my mouth. Instantly her other hand rose. 'I don't know which is which myself,' she said and drank. That made me drink also.

"The two glasses sent out a clicking sound as we set them back on the stand. Then we waited, looking at each other. 'Which?' her lips seemed to say. 'Which?' In another moment we knew. 'Your choice was the right one,' said she and she sank back into a chair. 'Don't leave me!' she called out, for I was about to run shrieking out into the night. 'I—I am happy now that it is all settled, but I do not want to die alone. Oh, how hot I am!' And, leaping up, she flung off her coat and went gasping about the room for air. When she sank down again it was on the lounge, and again I tried to fly for help, and again she would not let me.

"I tried to soothe her—to keep down my awful fear and soothe her. But the nearness of death had calmed her poor heart into its old love and habitual thoughtfulness. She was terrified at my position. She recalled our mother and the oath she had taken at that mother's deathbed to protect me and care for me and my brother. 'And I have failed to do either,' she cried. 'Arthur I have alienated, and you I am leaving to unknown trouble and danger.'

"She was not to be comforted. I saw her life ebbing and could do nothing. She clung to me while she called up all her powers and made plans for me and showed me a way of escape. I was to burn the note, fling two of the glasses from the window and leave the other and the deadly vial near her hand—this before I left the room. Then I was to call up the police and say there was something wrong at the clubhouse, but I was not to give my name or ever acknowledge I was there. 'Nothing can save trouble,' she said, 'but that trouble must not come near you. Swear that you will heed my words—swear that you will do what I say.'

"I swore. All that she asked I promised. I was almost dying, too, and had the light gone out and the rafters of the house fallen in and buried us both it would have been better. But the light burned on, and the life in her eyes faded out, and the hands grasping mine relaxed. I heard one little gasp, then a low prayer, 'Tell Arthur never—never—again to'— Then—silence!"

A Metropolitan dressmaker, who has been responsible for many of the prettiest dresses we have had in our stock this season has just closed out to us his entire remaining stock of this season's dresses and we cleaned up the lot at a price of our own naming, bringing us the most charming dresses at a price making it easy for us to pass them along to our patrons at about half what it would cost any one to have a dressmaker make them to say nothing of the cost of the materials.

Coming as they do from this fashion maker, the styles are the very latest and best—beautiful dresses that every woman will admire and covet, and they will be so easy to buy at the little price we name.

The materials embrace Novelty Chiffons and Eoliennes, Messalines, Pongees, Foulards, Rajahs, Cloth of Gold, Serges, in solid colors, stripes and checks.

It would be almost folly to attempt to describe styles for almost any dress of these hundreds differs in some particular. We have said enough when we say they are all very beautiful, indeed, and the best styles that have been evolved this season.

There are dresses for afternoon, dresses for evening, party dresses, reception dresses, theatre dresses, seashore dresses, dresses, in fact, for almost any occasion—dresses that are wearable now and will be right throughout the Summer.

The materials are very fine, indeed—choice in every way, and the colorings are just as beautiful as the styles, making it possible for you to get just the shade you like best, and the sizes embrace everything from very small women to the extra large, so that every one from comparatively young girls to matronly women may be rightly fitted. Let us repeat the pricings—

GOVERNOR ACKERMAN ISSUES PROCLAMATION

Acting Governor Ernest R. Ackerman today issued the following proclamation for the proper observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the Civil War:

"To the People of New Jersey:—

"Just half a century ago this fair land of ours was stirred, as no country hitherto had been, by internal strife. Many a man's hand was against his own brother. The gentle influence of spring which was awaking the life of nature was rudely disturbed by the booming of cannon and the clash of arms. A mighty conflict had been set in motion by forces which had been slowly accumulating strength for many generations.

"For four long years the country continued to be torn by conflicting emotions. Riots, desolation and destruction held high carnival. Bitterness and animosity, rancor and passion, were everywhere prevalent, hundreds of thousands of lives were sacrificed, millions of dollars of property destroyed.

"At last the storm abated, the tumult ceased and the survivors under both banners, laid down their arms and peace crept cautiously from her hiding place and began to spread her benign influence abroad. An era of reconciliation was inaugurated. Industry revived and thousands found a refuge here from foreign lands, while wealth increased. But the many graves which had multiplied during the fearful conflict, had not received during the tempest, the loving care and attention they deserve. A few of the women of the South first instituted the gracious custom of annually caring for the last resting places of those who had fallen during the conflict, but the time of observance varied in different localities. At first the Blue and the Gray within their respective folds, cherished the memories of those who had crossed the River and with loving hands decorated with symbols of affection, the resting places of those who as President Lincoln said "had died that others might live." Time has flown on apace. The Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic took up the matter and unified and nationalized the observance. Among those remaining on both sides, the slowly fading embers of hate have cooled to such a degree that mutual recognition of the valor and the honesty of purpose of each is acknowledged. The hand clap now prevails. Fraternal feelings have grown until now those who a quarter of a century ago looked askance, embrace each other as fast friends and together remember the graves of the fallen.

"How happy we are that no longer is there any North or South, no East or West, but a united country of a hundred millions of people! How greatly we rejoice that no sectional difference longer acts as barrier! How proud we all are of the honesty of purpose, of loyalty to the right, as they saw it, of Lee, of Jackson, of Lincoln, of Grant, of McKinley! In the love of our glorious country, we turn to greet those who may have differed with us and tender the right hand of fellowship to all those from the South who may be within our borders, while devoutly imploring our God, that in the working out of His plans, we may never have again to pass through such waters of affliction.

"The day when we again pay our tribute to the ever increasing silent majority of the gallant defenders is almost here. Once more the opportunity is afforded to offer fragrant incense to the memory of those who willingly paid 'the last full measure of devotion.' Though the supporters of the Blue may predominate in our midst, we know that many of those whose fortunes were linked with the Grey, are sojourning with us.

"To certain festivals we look forward with preparation. May we not also to memorials? That succeeding generations may appreciate the value of our heritage we should still further increase the era of good will and fellowship by keeping alive the feelings of brotherly kindness now happily so prevalent. In order that banishment may be forever decreed to all that might savor of civil strife, let us revere and hallow the blessed memories of the departed. A few days more and we shall proudly salute the few remaining heroes of the past, as to the strains of martial music they march to the places where rest their fallen comrades. Let those of us who may, embrace the opportunity of contributing floral tokens towards the beautifying of the nameless beds which all too many in 'God's acre,' bear silent testimony to the fierceness of the struggle.

"The further development of the gospel of peace, will be the aim, endeavor and accomplishment of all who celebrate in the right spirit the coming Memorial Day.

INTERNATIONAL TWILIGHT ZONE

"The great twilight zone" of modern civilization is the international area. There should be such a meeting of national minds as would make lawlessness between two nations as difficult and reprehensible as crime against a State. The international area must be civilized."

This vigoruos statement of Dr. James A. MacDonald, of Toronto, Canada, a noted peace advocate and director in the World Peace Foundation, established by Edward Ginn, of Boston, was uttered during a discussion of the proposed arbitration treaty between the United States, Great Britain and France formally submitted last week by the American State Department to Ambassador Bryce and Ambassador Jusserand.

"The submission is particularly timely," Dr. MacDonald said, "since this month marks the 100th anniversary of the outbreak of the War of 1812. Two years hence the centennial of peace between the two countries will be celebrated."

"Do you think so long a period of international amity would have been possible had the 4,000 miles of Canadian frontier bristled with fortifications and the Great Lakes been patroled with battleships of two nations?

"The burden of armaments caused by the old uncivilized method of settling differences between nations has become simply intolerable," he continued. "This waste of revenue is one of the greatest obstacles in the way of large social reforms. There is necessarily a limitation in the amount of money that can be applied to internal improvements when a great nation like Great Britain spends $350,000,000 a year on her war budget."

STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Kicked by a horse, William Osmond, thirty-three years old, of Audubon, sustained a badly-injured knee Sunday and was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital, in Camden.

Miss Kate Beckman, of Mantua, was badly injured Saturday by stepping on some broken dishes. A gasoline stove caught fire and she threw a dishpan with water, dishes and all, on the flames, then stepped on the dishes.

Firman Wentzel, of Elmer, who has purchased an automobile, has given his twenty-six-year-old horse to John Kean, near that town, with the understanding that the animal will have a good home, with little to do the balance of its days.

The first heat prostration in Jersey City this season was reported Sunday, when Edward P. Foster, fifty-seven years old, was overcome while visiting New York Bay Cemetery. He was taken to his home, 25 Orient avenue, and revived.

Hiram Bouns, known in Woodbury merely as a day laborer, has been taken to the county asylum. Investigation into his affairs revealed the fact that there is a balance of $8,000 to his credit in the First National Bank. It is said that he has no heirs.

Petition for a special election, to determine whether Bayonne shall have a commission form of government, have been signed by more than 3,000 voters there, although only 1,600 were required. The petitions will be filed with the city clerk this week and the special election will occur on June 13.

The Shrimp, a forty-two-foot hunting launch, owned by Cecil Fitler, was burned to the water's edge off Riverton Sunday morning, and is a total wreck. The boat contained several hundred dollars worth of equipment in the way of clothing, rods, guns, etc., which were also destroyed. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is thought that another attempt was being made to use the boat for a joy ride.

The first accident to mar the work of constructing Atlantic City's million-dollar drainage conduit occurred Sunday at Georgia avenue and the Thoroughfare, when two workmen were swept by a derrick from the bank twenty feet to the bottom of the concrete-lined trench, and one sustained injuries that will in all probability prove fatal. The injured men are John B. Burton, sixty-two years old, of 2231 North Atlantic avenue, and Harry Scull, thirty-two years old, of 12 North Georgia avenue.

FAVOR NEW BRIDGE

Union and Somerset Freeholders Vote Modern Structure for Washington Ave.

TO COST APPROXIMATELY $9,000

City and Borough Mayors and Others Confer With Freeholders—Old Bridge to Be Placed on Albert Street.

The freeholders of Union and Somerset counties at a meeting held at the Park Club this morning decided to replace the present worn out wooden bridge on Washington avenue with one of concrete and iron to cost approximately $9,000. The structure is to be not more than sixty feet in length and to be fifty feet wide. It will be a span bridge and built according to the latest approved plans for such work. The freeholders will meet again at the Park Club, Wednesday, June 14, to adopt the plans.

In addition to the freeholders there were also present at today's meeting, Mayor G. W. V. Moy, of this city; Mayor N. B. Smalley, George T. Rogers, Samuel Townsend, all of the borough, and William Jeffery, representing the Chamber of Commerce. Mayor Smalley, Mr. Rogers and Mr. Townsend spoke in favor of the proposition, as did also Mr. Jeffery.

The Union county board was represented by its bridge committee, which voted unanimously for the new bridge, while ten of the eleven members of the Somerset county board also voted in the affirmative. Freeholder Douglass, of Bernards, alone dissenting. County Engineer Edward Bauer, of Elizabeth, and Doughty, of Somerville, were also present to give such information as was desired. The old bridge has been condemned, and it was decided to remove it to Albert street, where it will be used to span Greenbrook when the street is properly graded.

After the conference on the Washington avenue bridge matters, the Somerset freeholders journeyed to West End avenue to inspect the bridge over Stony brook. The borough has asked for a new structure at this point and it was the general opinion that one should be granted, probably of concrete. The matter is being discussed at a session this afternoon and a favorable discussion is anticipated.

CARNIVAL OF KNIGHTS TO OPEN ON MONDAY

Arrangemens are practically completed for the annual carnival to be held at West Front street and Grant avenue, commencing Monday, under the auspices of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus. The officers of the general executive committee comprise: Theodore J. Shirley, chairman; A. A. Cannon, treasurer; J. J. Varley, secretary. The other members of the executive committee are as follows: John J. Kenney, H. P. Greenwood, C. W. Fogarty, W. H. Schaeffer, Andrew E. Kenney, John Carty, John C. Traynor, Miles S. Wilson, M. D. O'Keefe, D. J. Courain, J. J. Varley, J. F. O'Keefe, David B Doyle and Charles L. Kling.

EDWARD AVIS TO GIVE A LECTURE ON BIRDS

Under the auspices of "The Little Workers for Little People," the youngest circle of The King's Daughters in the city, Edward Avis will give an entertainment entitled "An Evening in Birdland," at the Plainfield High School Auditorium, tomorrow night. Mr. Avis, it will be remembered gave his delightful entertainment at the Washington School several weeks ago, a capacity audience enjoying it. Mr. Avis correctly imitates all kinds of birds, explaining interesting characteristics about each one, and it is one of the most interesting and instructive entertainments yet given in the city.

Those who heard Mr. Avis upon his first visit here were so pleased that immediately arrangements were made to have him return. Children will be admitted to the entertainment tomorrow evening at half price. The proceeds will go toward the King's Daughters work in the city.

RECITAL BY PUPILS

Miss May Vincent Whitney's Annual Entertainment at High School Auditoruim

WM. N. SEARLES, JR., SOLOIST.

The Young Performers Delight a Large and Appreciative Audience—The Program a Well Varied One of High Order.

An unusually large audience attended the annual recital of the pupils of Miss May Vincent Whitney at the High School auditorium last night and were well repaid for their attendance. Music of an excellent character was played by Miss Whitney's pupils and William N. Searles, Jr., of New York, sang in his usually acceptable manner. Among those who distinguished themselves by clever work and sympathetic interpretation of their selections were Miss Helen George, Miss Muriel Collins, Sydney Angleman, Mildred Burnett, Miss Julia Rowley and in fact most of the performers.

Many floral pieces were sent up the aisles by the friends of the players. The ushers performing this service were Martin B. Stutsman, Howard Mason, Treadwell Slawson, Sayre Slawson and Lewis Matlack.

One of the features of the concert was the playing by Misses Elizabeth Martin, Julia Rowley, Mildred Burnett, Helen George and Lucille Ewart, of the overture to Von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant." The five pianistes received an ovation at the conclusion of the piece and were practically buried in flowers. Another pretty performance was the eight hand selection on one piano played by Ruth Small, Hope Angleman, Sydney Angleman and Franklin Rowley, who rendered the "Noel Enfantine," in a way to win long continued applause. Miss Whitney deserves great credit for the efficiency displayed by her pupils.

This was the program: Marcia from Notturno, op. 34, J. Spohr, two piano eight hands, Dorothy Steel, Mildred Burnett, Mildred Bookstaver, Helen Weseman; Rondo from Sonatina, op. 55, No. 1, Kuhlan, Sydney Angleman; Nocturne from "Midsummer Night's Dream," Mendelssohn, Mildred Burnett; "Love's Sorrow," Harry Rowe Shelly, Anna Warnock; Prayer from "Cavalleria Rusticana," Mascagni, two pianos, eight hands, Lucille Ewart, Florence Cary, B. Katherine Nelson, Margery Hart; Etude, op. 25, No. 9, Chopin; Prelude in F, May V. Whitney; Etude in C Minor, MacDowell, Murial Collins; Hindo Song, H. Bemberg; Vulcan' s Song from "Philemon & Baucis," Gounod, Mr. Searles; Arabesque, Meyer-Helmund, Aimee Conant; "On Wings of Song," Mendelssohn; Fantasie Impromptu, Chopin, Helen George; "Noel Enfantine," Missa, one piano, eight hands, Ruth Small, Sydney Angleman, Hope Angleman, Franklin Rowley.

Overture to "Poet and Peasant," Von Suppe, two pianos, ten hands, Cymbals, Tambourine and triangle, Elizabeth Martin, Julia Rowley, Mildred Burnett, Helen George, Lucille Ewart; "The Doll's Funeral," Tschaikowsky, Ruth Small; Scottish Tone Poem, MacDowell; Octave Study, Kullak; Valse Arabesque, Lack, Elizabeth Martin; Impromptu in F, May V. Whitney; Etude, op. 25, No. 3, Chopin; Magic Fire Music, Wagner-Brassin, Marguerite VanZandt; Nocturne in F, Schumann; The Brook, W. Pape, Julia Rowley; Slumber Song from "Philemon and Baucis," Gounod; "The Vagabond," J. L. Malloy, Mr. Searles; "The Awakening of the Lion," deKontski, two pianos, eight hands, Murial Collins, Helen George, Mauguerite VanZandt, Anna Warnock.

Sophs Defeat Juniors.

The sophomores won their game from the juniors yesterday afternoon at Crescent Oval thus getting a safe lead in the inter-class championship. They finished up with a score of 21 to 10 after one of the most loosley played games of the season. The sophs brought nine me nacross the rubber in the third session, and that evidently took the starch out of the juniors until the ninth inning when they rallied and scored six. C. R. Bostwick umpired the game and the batteries were Zerega and Shirley for the sophomores, and Baron and Von Minden for the juniors.

P. H. S. Freshmen Win.

Playing a strong and aggressive game against the St. Mary juniors yesterday the freshmen of the Plainfield High School won. The final score was 14 to 8. VanZandt pitched a good game and held the hits scattered so that consecutive scoring was impossible. Buckle of the freshmen found the St. Mary's pitcher for a home run.

PLAYGROUND WORK

Supervisors Engaged by Commission Which is Pleased With the Work.

PARK FIELD'S IMPROVEMENTS.

Bryant, Franklin, Irving and St. Mary School Grounds Provided for—Some New Apparatus Is Received.

Unless the weather condition change and produce enough rain to thoroughly drench Parker Field soon, it will be impossible for the preparation of the field to be carried on further. According to the commission which met yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. the rain is absolutely essential to the proper improvement of the field. Messrs. Mellick, Marshall, Best and Parker attended the meeting and are satisfied that the work on playgrounds is progressing satisfactorily.

Additional equipment has been received for the playgrounds at St. Mary's school as well as for the Irving school and it will be placed in position as soon as possible. Miss Harriet E. Moe, of Jersey City, has been re-engaged to supervise the playground at the Bryant school; Miss Mary L. Childs, of Middle Haddam, Conn., re-engaged at the Franklin school and two new supervisors, Miss Ethel Skillman, of this city, and Amy O'Grady, of New York, have been engaged to supervise the Irving and St. Mary's schools respectively. All of these supervisors come highly recommended. Miss Skillman and Miss O'Grady have been connected with the Parks and Playgrounds Association of New York and are competent in every way.

A strip adjoining the field is being prepared as a playground and work on this strip will begin at once so that the children may enjoy it during the coming vacation. A large gymnasium frame, consisting of slides, ladders, rings, horizontal bars, etc., has been ordered and will be placed in position as soon as received. It is intended to begin the building of tennis courts at once on the field and the commission has under consideraiton the placing of a wire fence on the two open sides.

The equipment for the two additional school playgrounds will be identical with that of the Bryant and Franklin schools with the exception that a baby swing frame will be installed in each of the grounds in addition to the swing for the older children. As a matter of fact every preparation has been made to care for the pupils of the public schools in a way to please them as well as their parents.

DRIVING PARK RACES FOR MEMORIAL DAY

The program of races to be held at the Plainfield Driving Park on Decoration Day under the auspices of the Plainfield Driving and Riding Club is one of the best yet offered by the organization as the entries include some of the best horses in this part of the State. The club is making every arrangement for the entertainment of its patrons and fine sport is promised all who attend.

The card comprises five races, 2:16, 2:21 and 2:40 classes mixed, a 3:00 minute class for members horses, and a running race the entries for which will be announced later. Stages will meet the trolley cars on Park avenue for the accomodation of those who have no other means of reaching the park. The entries for the first three races are as follows:

2:16 class—mixed—Aaron B., Strongheart, Powder Boy, King Patchen, Review Belle. 2:21 class—mixed—The Minister, Dr. Standel, Lady Bonanza, Lady Onward. 2:40 class—mixed—McNell, Minnie Gentry, Greenmore, J. F. L., Queen Aragon R., and Bobby.

Third Operation for Mr. Loomis.

Charles Battell Loomis, the author, who formerly resided at Scotch Plains, and who has been in poor health at his home at Torringford, Conn., will undergo a third operation today at Hartford Hospital, Hartford, Conn. BOROUGH POLICE TO ROUND UP DOG OWNERS

Chief Weiss, of the borough police force, announced today that commencing Monday, drastic measures would be instituted against all dog owners who have failed to take out license tags. Notification has previously been given that the old licenses have expired but there has been a noticeable disregard of the fact. Over 400 tags were issued last year but so far less than 200 have been paid for this month.

Chief Weiss stated today that no further notification is to be given and arrests will be made when the license has been ignored. Fred Keiderling, the city dog catcher, has been appointed in the same capacity for the borough and will pick up all canines found without the 1911 tag. The North Plainfield ordinance prescribes a fine for the license infraction.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR CHURCH BLDG. FUND

The entertainment arranged by Mrs. Royle T. Phillips will be given at the Congregational church on Friday evening for the benefit of the building fund. The program will open with a sketch, "A Japanese Umbrella," by Miss Elizabeth Martin, Miss Ruth Fuller and Miss Cora Reeves. Then will follow another sketch entitled, "The Kleptomanic," the characters of which are as follows:

Mrs. John Burton, (Peggy,) Miss Frances Newell; Mrs. Valerie Armsby, a young widow, Miss Margery Phillips; Mrs. Charles Dover, a bride, Miss Myra Emmons; Mrs. Preston Ashley, (Bertha), Miss Hannah Bingaman; Miss Evelyn Evans, a reporter, Miss Kathleen Phillips; Miss Freda Dixon, Miss Marguerite Edwards; Katie, Mrs. Burton's maid, Miss Barbara Peacock.

Miss Elizabeth Martin, Miss Edna Mundy, Miss Ruth Fuller, Miss Henrietta Schenck and Miss Helen Weseman, will present "Little Trades Ladies," to be followed with another sketch entitled "The Wrong Baby," in which the characters will be taken by the following:

Mrs. Brixon, matron of the nursery, Miss Margery Phillips, Marietta, her niece, Miss Helen Woolley, Mrs. Mulligan, Miss Barbara Peacock, Mrs. Wafer, Miss Kathleen Phillips, Mrs. Scheffner, Miss Thelma Curtis; Mrs. Tripoli, Miss Kathleen Peacock; Maggie O'Reilly, Miss Esther Stebbins; Rose Tripoli, Miss Cora Reeves.

The program will be concluded with a sketch, entitled "My Uncle's Farm," to be presented by the following: Eugene Martin, Harold Tomlinson; Holmes Clawson, Russell Tomlinson; also another sketch, "We Dine at Seven," by the following: Millicent, a very smart woman, Miss Helen Woolley; Julia, another, only smarter, Miss Ida Englehart; Peterkins and Polly, E. L. Koogle. Holmes Clawson and Miss Edith Bechtel will also take part.

Heim Pleads Guilty.

Before Judge Atwater in the Union county court at Elizabeth, this morning, Berthold Heim, proprietor of "The Maples," whose place was raided on Sunday, April 2, pleaded guilty, through his counsel, Francis J. Blatz, and sentence was reserved until next Wednesday. It is likely that Lynus Walpole, who was caught in a raid the same night will be sentenced on the same day.

Jail, Maybe, for Tony.

Bcause, it is alleged, he refuses to work, Tony Sagara, an Italian, of the East End, was arraigned this morning before Judge DeMeza in the city court charged with neglecting to send his two children, Maria and Antonio, aged respectively eight and nine years, to school. Tony was given to understand that he must reform and send his children to school or go to jail himself.

Disorderly Ones.

John Becker and Mrs. Nina Erby, both colored, were arrested last night charged with disorderly conduct and were remanded this morning until tomorrow by Judge De Meza for a hearing. Neither of the accused was represented by counsel. Becker lives on East Third street. Bonds of $300 were asked in the case of the Erby woman. Both are in cells at police headquarters.

ORANGEMEN MEET

Fifteenth Annual Convention of State Grand Lodge in Session Here Today.

7 CITIES ARE REPRESENTED.

Committees Appointed at this Morning's Session and Officers Will Be Elected This Afternoon—Local Council Entertains.

The fifteenth annual session of the State Grand Lodge, of New Jersey, Loyal Orange Institution, U. S. A., is being held today in Coward's Hall, on Park avenue, with delegates present from Camden, Paterson, Jersey City, East Orange, Union Hill, Newark and this city. The present officers are State Grand Master Thomas J. Mackeown, of East Orange; State Grand Treasurer Thomas Wills, of Camden; State Grand Secretary Robert J. Robinson, of Harrison. The State grand master is presiding at the session.

This morning the State grand master's annual report was presented showing progress and an increased membership. It was reported that one ladies' auxiliary was organized during the year, the Knox Defenders, 154, at Newark. There are now more than 700 members in the State. Gratifying reports were received concerning the Orange Home at Hatboro, Pa., which is now free from debt. There are one hundred old and young inmates at the Home.

Committees on credentials, finance and the press were appointed this morning. Those on press are Past Supreme Grand Master of the United States Henry Stewart, of New York; Past State Grand Master Robert Anderson, of Jersey City, and John A. Nelson, of New York, chairman of the committee on constitution and laws of the order. At noon the convention adjourned for dinner.

This afternoon's session will be taken up with additional reports, a consideration of ways and means to advance the interests of the order and the election of officers. The delegates are being entertained by Victoria Council, No. 202, of this city, which has a membership of about thirty-five.

DESCRIBES OLYMPIC, GREATEST STEAMSHIP

Before a large and interested audience, Emerson E. Parvin, of Watchung avenue, secretary of the International Mercantile Marine Company, of New York, gave an illustrated lecture at Hope chapel last night, on "The Largest Steamer in the World." The affair was given under the auspices of Howard McWilliams' Bible class. The steamer referred to is the "Olympic," of the White Star Line, which was launched on October 20, 1910, and which will arrive in New York June 14 on her maiden voyage.

Mr. Parvin, by way of introduction, traced the course of ship-building from the earliest times, making special reference to the progress in the development of the ocean liner from 1840 to date. Views depicting the various types of steamers were shown, and a series of slides illustrative of the largest steamer in the world, the " Olympic," exhibiting in a graphic manner her enormous dimensions, the palatial character of her interior, and the luxurious manner in which this steamer is furnished.

An idea of the size of the vessel was given in the statement that if one walked around the steamer three times, he would cover a distance of one mile. The technical details of the subject were relieved frequently with bits of personal experience and stories of travel which served to complete a very interesting and instructive lecture. The 'Olympic," has a carrying capacity of 3,360 passengers and crew. It is driven by two reciprocating and one turbine engine. It consumes 800 tons of coal a day, two hundred tons less than either the Mauretania or Lusitania. The new steamer is designed to go twenty-one knots an hour.

At Foundrymen's Convention

Dr. Richard Moldenke, of Watchung, is among the foundrymen and their friends, at least 6,000 strong, holding the sixteenth annual convention of the American Foundrymen's Association, which convened in Exposition building, Pittsburg, yesterday. The American Brass Founders Association and the Association Foundry Foremen, attached to the parent association, also opened their conventions yesterday.

EAGLES' BIG NIGHT

Freedom Castle Entertains Visiting Delegations at an Informal Banquet.

DR. BUCHANAN TOASTMASTER.

Eagles From New Haven, Trenton, Somerville, New Brunswick, Manasquan and Other Places Are Present.

Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagles, enjoyed a gala time last night, on the occasion of a fraternal visit from a large delegation of Connecticut representatives of the order. Visitors were also present from Trenton, Somerville, New Brunswick, Manasquan and other places. A banquet was a feature of the gathering and over 250 Golden Eagles were seated at the tables.

The Connecticut contingent numbered about sixteen, most of the men being residents of New Haven and its environs. They had received an invitation from Freedom Castle to come to Plainfield and work the eloborate second degree. The fame of the local castle had spread to the Nutmeg State and the delegation was only too glad in order that the members might see for themselves. Unlike Caesar, they came they saw and were conquered. Some of the visitors came over by train but the larger part made the trip in automobiles, a sightseeing car carrying fifteen alone.

The Connecticut men worked the second degree, using their own beautiful robes and regalia. The work was accomplished in a manner that elicited genuine commendation from the entire gathering as one man from South Jersey expressed it, "it was worth coming many miles to see."

The banquet followed the initatory ceremony and when coffee was served at the end speechmaking was declared in order. Past Grand Chief Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan made an excellent toastmaster and introduced the following speakers in his witty way:

John Burns, grand chief of the State of Connecticut; William Haynes, vice grand chief of New Haven; Joseph Manchester, of New Haven, Past grand chief; J. B. Good, of New Haven, past grand chief; William Ferris, of Manasquan, past grand chief; Samuel Ruff, of Manasquan, assistant chief; Rev. Dr. E. R. Kill, of New Haven.

In addition to the addresses an informal musical program was enjoyed. It was midnight before the affair came to an end. The friendship formed through the visitation welded a strong bond between the two States in Golden Eagle circles and last night's gathering will undoubtedly result in many others of a similar nature.

An Appeal.

The Charity Organization Society asks for $20 for a respectable colored man whom the Society has known for years. Three years ago the man lost both legs in an accident for which the courts later awarded him no damages. His artificial limbs were bought through private charity and now $30 is needed to repair them. The family, supported by the wife and two young helpers, will supply $10, and the society confidently appeals to the sympathetic public for the remaining $20. Telephone 103, or write to the Charity Organization Society, Babcock building.

Visited New York Missions.

The Mission Study class of the First M. E. church, visited the Mission of the Living Water and the Doyer street Mission in New York, last night, and was greatly interested in the services at both places. This class has been very active this year in studying home mission work and on several occasions have had charge of the meetings at the Plainfield Rescue Mission.

Musicale and Sale.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church will hold a musicale and sale of fancy articles and ice cream on the church lawn on Friday afternoon and evening, June 2. Automobiles will take visitors around the city and the music will be of the best.

Postmaster Bird Honored.

Postmaster E. H. Bird, of this city, has been named as a member of the Committee of Topics for the annual meeting of the New Jersey State Association of Presidential Postmasters, which will be held at Asbury Park, in August or September.

Ascension Day Service.

At the German Reformed church, corner of Duer street and Craig place, tomorrow evening, Rev. Mr. Schneegas, the pastor, will conduct a special Ascension Day service beginning at 7:45 o'clock.

BENEFIT PROGRAM

Fraternal Organizations Provide Bill for Entertainment Tomorrow Night.

FOR THE MT. ST. MARY COLLEGE

Elks, Juniors, Red Men, Eagles, Moose, K. C., A. O. H., Odd Fellows and Others will Furnish a Good Performance

The program for the benefit to be given for Mt. St. Mary College by the various fraternal organizations of the city in the Plainfield theatre tomorrow night includes some of the best talent in the city and ought to draw a large attendance. The Elks will lead off with Harry Blimm and Edwin Bennett, as burnt cork artists and those who will follow these two are none the less famous. The program follows:

B. P. O. E., Bennett and Blimm in a sketch; Plainfield Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., Harry Warren, magic; Clan Mackenzie, McIntosh Brothers, in piping and dances; Miantonomo Tribe, Redmen, acrobatic feats by B. Hansen; Fraternal Order of Eagles, No. 866, singing and dancing by J. Carroll; Gesang and Turn Verein, singing.

After the intermission Division No. 4, A. O. H., will furnish some Irish and "Dutch" comedy which will be followed by a vocal solo by Miss May Lannon, who sings under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus. Miss Lannon will be accompanied by Miss May Smith. The Loyal Order of Moose will have three representatives who will sing, and for St. Mary's T. A. B. Society will have George L. Thompson, who is a capable monologist. Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Odd Fellows, the Gesang and Turn Verein, turning section, Wetumpka Tribe of Red Men, and others will furnish the balance of the entertainment which promises to be highly interesting.

MISS PERKINS TO WED ARCHIBALD COX, JUNE 7

The wedding of Miss Fanny B. Perkins, daughter of Mrs. Edward C. Perkins, formerly of this city, but now of Jamaica Plains, Mass., and Archibald Cox, son of Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street, will take place at noon on Wednesday, June 7, at the home of the bride's mother. The affair will be a quiet one and the invitations have been limited to the relatives and a few young friends of the couple.

Bishop A. C. Hall, of Vermont, an intimate friend of the two families, will perform the ceremony, and Robert H. Cox, of this city, will be his brother's best man. There will be no other attendants. Miss Perkins is a granddaughter of the late United States Senator W. M. Evarts, of New York. Mr. Cox is a practicing lawyer in New York. The couple will reside at 345 Franklin place, after a wedding trip.

YOU'LL BE FINED IF YOUR DOG IS AT LARGE

Through an order issued by Mayor G. W. V. Moy today, it is now a "closed season" for dogs in the city. No canine will be permitted to leave the premises of its owner or custodian unless secured by a leash and accompanied by a person over twelve years of age, under a penalty of $20. The danger arising from allowing dogs to run about the city at this season of the year is apparent to all and the Mayor decided today to issue the following order:

"Mayor's Office,
"Plainfield, N. J.

"Order Concerning Dogs.

"Pursuant to Section 8 of 'An Ordinance Concerning Dogs approved May 3, 1909'—Notice is hereby given that no dog shall be allowed to leave the premises of its owner or custodion unless securely confined upon a leash and accompanied by a person over the age of twelve years under a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars fine. This order shall remain in force until October1, 1911.

"George W. V. Moy,
"Mayor.

TIME TO ACT.

Dont Wait for the Fatal Stage of Kidney Illness—Profit by Plainfield People's Experiences.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches and dizzy spells are common early symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect these ills. The attacks may pass off for a time but return with greater intensity. If there are symptoms of dropsy—puffy swellings below the eyes, bloating of limbs and ankles, or any part of the body, don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well, when your old time health and vigor will return. Cures in Plainfield prove the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

Mrs. William E. Gardner, 322 East Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I suffered intensely from pains through my back and I also had a distressing weakness of my kidneys. I was in misery and nothing gave me the least relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills which I obtained at Randolph's Drug Store. They acted on my kidneys at once and not only removed the pain from my back but corrected the kidney weakness and restored me to good health. I shall always be willing to give Doan's Kidney Pills the praise they deserve."

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks were irregular, closing firm in New York yesterday.

Lisbon took precautions against the possibility of a monarchist attack.

George E. VanTuyl formally assumed the duties of State Superintendent of Banks.

Dr. Owen abandoned his search for evidence that Bacon wrote Shakespeare's plays.

Alaskans, weary of government delay, started for the coal fields, intending to acquire claims.

The Russian Admiralty has completed plans for an elaborate welcome to the American fleet.

Fatal strike riots in Montevideo were reported to be so serious that a state of seige may be declared.

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court refused a new trial to Joseph M. Huston, architect of the state Capitol.

Health Commissioner Lederle, of New York, announced his plans for a summer campaign to lower infant mortality.

Mayor Gaynor and Commissioner Thompson, of New York, said they thought the danger of a water famine was less imminent.

The Missouri Pacific Railroad sold $20,000,000 of notes to Speyer & Co., in preparation for important improvements of the system.

William S. Reyburn, twenty-seven years old, son of the Mayor of Philadelphia, was elected Congressman in the 2d Pennsylvania District.

The French troops arrived in Fez; they met little opposition in the latter part of their march, the tribesmen fighting among themselves.

President Taft, Governor Dix Mayor Gaynor and John Bigelow were among those to take part in the dedication of the new Public Library.

Newspaper men and others refused to appear as witnesses before the Ohio Senate committee investigating alleged legislative bribery; two arrests were made.

William Jennings Bryan addressed the Legislature in Albany in joint session and frankly advised the Democrats to keep the pledges made in their party platform.

Men prominent in the racetrack world appeared before the Senate Codes Committee in Albany to advocate the passage of the two racetrack bills of Senator Giffins.

THE RIGHT BEER TO HAVE IN YOUR HOME

The Rich, Ripe Flavor of BARTHOLOMAY Rochester Beer Will Make You Smack Your Lips with Satisfaction

And oh! that hoppy taste; could anything add more zest to a wholesome meal?

There's the fullest measure of quality hops and selected barley malt in every glass of the famous Bartholomay Rochester Beer.

That tinge of bitter in the hops is an appetizer and an aid to digestion—the malt is a blood maker and nourisher.

And being fully aged, Bartholomay Beer will not upset your stomach—a good point for you to bear in mind.

Order a case of Bartholomay Beer for your home. It's as easy to get as ordinary beer, and it's a great deal better to use. Mail or phone your order. It will receive immediate attention.

CONTEST
FOR PLAINFIELD PUPILS

The Plainfield Ice & Supply Co. will give a prize of $25 in cash to the pupil of any school, public or private, in Plainfield or North Plainfield, who shall submit the best written advertisement for the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company's business, to occupy a space equal to the space taken by this announcement.

The judges will be the Editors of the Courier-News and Daily Press. The conditions will be as follows:

The advertisement as written should be sent to the office of the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., with a separate sheet of paper attached, bearing the writer's name, and name of the school he or she attends. Both sheets thus submitted will be numbered by the Company in the order received, and the sheet bearing the name of the contestant will be held by the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., and the advertisement with the corresponding number will be sent to the judges, so that the judges will have no knowledge of the name of the writer. The advertisement which is decided to be the best will be so marked, and sent to the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company, who will by reference to the sheets in their possession, determine the name of the successful contestant.

The contest will end May 30, all letters received up to midnight of that day being eligible to the competition.

Stovall Wins Out.

George Stovall, the first baseman of the Cleveland Naps, who has been directing the work of the team from the Forest City since Deacon Jim McGuire resigned as manager, is making good in every sense of the word. President Somers is more than satisfied with the way Stovall has been running the club, and last night he announced that he was through looking for a manager. It it likely that in a few days the owner of the Naps will appoint the big first baseman manager of the club. Since Stovall took charge the team has won most of its games, and it is said that perfect harmony prevails among the players.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Dr. Charles Erdman, of Princeton, will preach at the Crescent Avenue church, Sunday morning and evening.

Children's Day exercises will be held Sunday morning, June 11, at the First M. E. church, with an appropriate program. There will also be infant baptism.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will give an entertainment at the church, Friday night, consisting of tableaux, after which refreshments will be served.

Baron Tibor Podmaniczky, of Hungary, and Miss Virginia Hegeman, who will be married here on June 2, have been visiting friends in the borough for a short time.

The German Emperor sent to Washington a communication occasioned by the receipt of the suggested arbitration treaty; its nature was kept secret.

NOTICE FOR SIDEWALKS.

Office of the Street Commissioner
City of Plainfield, N. J.

To Eliza Newman, Charles E. Hazeltine, Eva E. Lockwood, unknown owner, Louise Shaw Richards, Robert G. Langdon, William Ray Delano, Alice E. Walsh, Sarah P. Cudlipp, owners of lands affected by contemplated improvement to sidewalks thereof.

You having neglected for the space of thirty days to make the improvement to the sidewalk of the property situate at Nos. 1246 to 1254, 1264 to 1272, 1318 to 1346, 1348 to 1358, 1289 to 1297, 1299 to 1313, 1315 to 1321, 1341 to 1347, and1349 to 1359 Denmark Road, Plainfield, New Jersey, and respectively known and designated on the "Block Assessment Maps of the City of Plainfield, Union County, New Jersey, Second Ward, 1909," on file in the office of the Collector of Taxes, as

No. 1246 to 1254 Denmark Road, Block 285 G, Eliza Newman;
No. 1264 to 1272 Denmark Road, Block 285 G, Chas. E. Hazeltine;
No. 1318 to 1346 Denmark Road, Block 285 G, Eva E. Lockwood;
No. 1348 to 1358 Denmark Road, Block 285 G, Unknown Owner;
No. 1289 to 1297 Denmark Road, Block 285 H, Louisa Shaw Richards;
No. 1299 to 1313 Denmark Road, Block 285 H, Robert G. Langdon;
No. 1315 to 1321 Denmark Road, Block 285 H, William Ray Delano;
No. 1341 to 1347 Denmark Road, Block 285 H, Alice E. Walsh;
No. 1349 to 1359 Denmark Road, Block 285 H, Sarah P. Cudlipp;

are directed and required by the Ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled, "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction and Repair of Sidewalks and Curbs," approved July 15, 1910, the Common Council of said City has directed such improvement to be made under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner, and further directed notice of such contemplated improvement to be given to the owner or owners of any lands thereby affected, and further directed that if such improvement shall not be completed within the time and in the manner directed in this notice, the Street Commissioner shall thereupon forthwith proceed to cause such improvement to be made by the City under his direction, as authorized by said Ordinance and the Act of the Legislature hereinafter referred to. The foregoing is a description of your property affected, sufficiently definite in terms to identify the same; and the following is a description of the required improvement, viz., the construction on said Denmark Road adjoining said property of a sidewalk to be laid as directed in said Ordinance (to which Ordinance and the record thereof in the City Clerk's Office reference is hereby made for greater certainty), at the expense of the abutting land owners, composed either (1) of bluestone flagging, smooth and even on the surface, and properly laid under the direction of the Street Commissioner, said blue-stone flags to be not less than four feet long transversely to the length of the street, not less than two feet wide lengthwise of said street, and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part; or (2) of concrete to be laid in conformity with the specifications for cement sidewalks as set forth in Standard Specifications for Portland Cement Sidewalks and Curbs, filed in the office of the City Clerk, April 11th, 1910. The Street Commissioner shall give the correct lines and grades in all cases.

Notice is further given that unless said improvement shall be completed within thirty days after the service of this notice, it is the intention of said City to make said improvement or cause the same to be made, pursuant to the authority of the Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled, "An Act to authorize cities to construct and repair sidewalks and curbs, and to provide for the payment of the cost thereof," approved April 13, 1908, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Proof under oath of the publication or service of this notice will be filed within two days thereafter in the Office of the City Collector, being the officer charged with the duty of making official searches for liens.

Said Act of the Legislature provides that in case of non-payment of the charges authorized thereby, the land and real estate subject to the liens of such charges may be sold in the manner provided for the sale of lands for the non-payment of assessments.

No, gentle reader, Gilbert Collins is not the corporation counsel of Plainfield though it is but natural that you have arrived at that conclusion.

Owners of dogs will be interested in the customary annual order issued by the mayor today, which provides for a $20 fine to be paid by the man who allows his canine to run at large.

Not only the traffic conditions but the best interests of the business section demand that the work of widening Park avenue be continued. A step in the right direction was taken when the city widened that most important thoroughfare between Second street and the railroad bridge Now let the improvement be carried further by widening it from Second to Front street. The proper thing to do is for some of the abutting property owners to start a petition for the purpose. It is to their advantage to do so.

It seems rather unfortunate that the proposed $50,000 public library building should be erected on such a restricted tract as that at Ninth street and College place. Cramped as it would be in such a space, the real beauty of the building will not be shown to advantage. Worse still, there will be no room to permit of enlargement when the growth requires. How much better, therefore, would it be to place the structure on such a site as the city park. How much more attractive in every way it would be to build it in the very centre of that charming square. There it would have ample grounds surrounding it. A better location could not be obtained.

A HOMELIKE LIFE FOR JERSEY DEM. MEMBERS.

Representatives McCoy, Townsend, Scully and Tuttle, the new Democratic members from New Jersey, tired of hotel and club lives they have been living since the opening of the extra session of Congress, have rented a beautiful apartment in the Lonsdale, in the highland section of Washington, and on Monday settled down to a more home-like life. Their housekeeper is a colored woman formerly employed in the White House during the administration of President Roosevelt.

Mrs. James Martine, wife of the junior New Jersey Senator, is spending a few days at her home in this city. On her return to Washington the Senator will take up his residence in the Cecil, where he has engaged apartments for a year.

Mr. Robert Bellows, of Woodland avenue, will leave on the St. Paul, of the American line, Saturday, for England, where he will enjoy the coronation festivities.

BAPTIST MINISTERS HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC

The ministers of the East New Jersey Baptist ssociation, together with their wives, numbering in all about sixty, enjoyed their annual picnic at Scotch Plains yesterday. During the early part of the day there was a meeting at the Baptist church, when an informal program of considerable interest was presented. This included the reading of a short sketch concerning the first pastor of the Scotch Plains church, Rev. Benjamin Miller. Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the entertaining church, read extracts from the minutes of the church of 160 years ago.

This was followed by an interesting discussion regarding church discipline as applied up to fifty years ago. The company then adjourned to the chapel of the church, where the Ladies' Aid Society sevred a fine dinner. The early part of the afternoon was devoted to an automobile trip, about ten machines being used for the purpose.

The party visited Glenside Park, Westfield, and this city, as well as North Plainfield. It was planned to have a baseball game, but the auto trip was concluded so late that it left no time for the contest. The members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the entertaining church was given a vote of thanks for its part in the day's program.

Autoist Changed Plea.

Percy A. Cook, of Scotch Plains, was arrested by Marshal Keller, of the borough force, last night, for speeding his auto at a twenty-five-mile-an-hour clip on Watchung avenue. The officer alleges that Cook admitted his guilt and accordingly made a report of the matter to Chief Weiss for court action this morning. When the autoist appeared before Recorder Dolliver today he declared he was innocent of the charge as his car was running within the limit. As Keller was not present the hearing was adjourned until tomorrow.

Elks Attend Benefit.

John A. Lawrence will be given a benefit in the Grand Opera House in Philadelphia today and for the next four days. Mr. Lawrence has been ill for the past six months and is an Elk. Several members of the local lodge of Elks are in attendance this afternoon and evening and it is expected a considerable sum will be realised for Mr. Lawrence who was interested in the theatrical business in this city.

Mr. Murray's Receipt.

William D. Murray in a short talk this morning to the pupils of the Plainfield High School told them how to turn failure into success. Mr. Murray's talks have always been well received by the pupils and this morning's speech was no exception to the rule.

UTILITY BODY DECIDES PROBLEMS ON FRIDAY

Various questions besides that of school children's rates, relating to the rights of railroads and trolley companies under the new utilities law, will come before the Board of Public Utility Commissioners at the Court House in Newark Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

One of the issues to be considered by the State board next Friday is whether the giving of free transportations to policemen, firemen, letter-carriers, members of charitable organizations and sale of tickets and school children by street railway companies, is a violation of the new law.

At the same time the board will give opportunity for a hearing upon the question as to whether realroad companies engaged in interstate commerce, and which, by virtue of certain provisions of the interstate commerce act, are permitted to furnish free or reduced transportation to persons mentioned in the act, are prohibited from granting similar privileges to such persons for interstate traffic under the act of last winter.

A third question to be considered is whether persons engaged by railroad companies to perform certain services from time to time, but who do not devote their entire time to the company's service, can be lawfully allowed free transportation.

These and other questions to be considered promise to make the hearing one of unusual interest. The fact that the interstate commerce law and the act passed by the Legislature last winter are not in conformity has produced a good deal of uncertainty as to the proper construction to be placed upon the two.

Mrs. John F. Kulp.

Mrs. John F. Kulp, of Monticello, Sullivan county, N. Y., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Voehl, of Grove street, died at 2 o'clock this morning, at her home. Death was due to nervous prostration with which she had been afflicted for about one week. Mrs. Kulp was well-known here, where she lived for many years prior to going to Monticello. She is survived by her husband, a daughter, about twenty years of age, and a son about seven years old.

Conspicuous by His Absence.

Joseph Byrnes, an Elizabeth motorcyclist, who was arrested in the borough Sunday for failing to have a license number displayed and later released on his promise to appear in court Monday or Tuesday, has failed to do so. Chief Weiss sent word to him today that unless he presented himself by Friday morning he would be re-arrested on a State warrant.

BUILDING BOOM BEGINS ON A WEST END TRACT

The Plainfield Park Associates, of which Congressman Steven B. Ayers, of New York, is the president, has undertaken to develop its large tract of land in the southwestern part of the city and borough, and already the work of building houses has commenced on the end of the tract nearest to Clinton avenue. Henry L. Russell, a Westfield builder, who recently purchased thirty-five plots out of the three hundred or more in the tract, has started five high class houses costing from $5,000 to $15,000 each.

The Park Associates will conduct their first excursion from New York on Saturday afternoon, when it is expected that a large number of prospective buyers will visit the tract. John Fedderman, of Dunellen, yesterday received the contract for laying 30,000 ineal feet of concrete walk on Clinton avenue and the work of macadamizing the avenue is now being done by Mobus rBothers. A portion of the tract on each side of Green brook will be reserved for park purposes and possibly a lake may be built in the near future.

Among the stockholders of the company are Archibald Douglass, William H. Shepard and Evarts L. Prentiss, New York lawyers; Mayor N. B. Smalley and Dr. J. H. Cooley, of the borough.

Middlekauff's Administrator.

Jasper Cadmus, of North avenue, has qualified before Surrogate DeMond at Somerville as administrator of the estate of Ellsworth D. Middlekauff, of North Plainfield, who died without leaving a will. J. P. Powers, of Elizabeth, is the attorney for the estate.

The Society Novel.

"When does love begin?" murmured the heroine.

"That's easy," replied the hero. "When the author runs out of epigrams."

The regular monthtly meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will be held on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. It will be the last meeting of the season and plans will be made for the annual picnic in June. Mrs. McKelvey will preside. The executive committee of the society will meet at 2 o'clock.

The Watson, Stillman baseball club would like to hear from strong amateur teams, either home or traveling. Address G. M. Townley, care Watson, Stillman Company, Aldene, N. J.

Mrs. M. J. Elliott and daughter, of New York, are visiting Miss Rose Hook, of Watchung avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Lounsbury, Jr., of Carlton avenue, are parents of a girl, born to them on Sunday.

Guisseppi DeSonti, who was accused by Thomas Philan with stealing a watch and chain from Philan during the early part of last June, was discharged by Judge Touery, when arraigned for a hearing yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. DeSonti proved to the satisfaction of the court that he had found the watch. DeSonti gave up the property and the case was dismissed.

"School Days at Cranbury Corners," will be given by the young people of the Baptist church in the church parlors Friday night. The "Dill Pickles," "Perkins" and all the other kids have been rehearsing for several weeks under the direction of Martin A. Korf. A good time is assured all who attend.

The Ministers of the East New Jersey Baptist Association held an outing here yesterday. Automobile trips were enjoyed and the day put in in a social way. On their return supper was served by the ladies of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carrona, who have been living in the Clark cottage, on Prospect avenue, have given up housekeeping and will board for a time in Plainfield.

There will be a confirmation service tomorrow afternoon at St. Mary's church, Stony Hill. A large class of boys and girls of the parish will be confirmed.

Henry Broadwell and daughters, the Misses Broadwell, of Newark, have been visiting Mrs. Augusta Miller, of Front street.

Mrs. Thomas Farrell, who has been detained at home for some time with an attack of pneumonia is convalescent.

The weekly prayer and praise meeting of the Baptist church will be held tonight in the church parlors.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Contractor John Fedderman received word yesterday that the Park Association of New York, had awarded him the contract to install 30,000 feet of concrete walk on Clinton avenue, North Plainfield. The job is one of the largest of the kind that has ever been given out in this section. The Park Association is a land company which is developing the property on Clinton avenue from Greenbrook to Greenbrook road.

The news that the New Market dam may be rebuilt by the Middlesex Water Company has been received with much pleasure by local people who were accustomed to enjoy the boating and fishing in the lake. Chas. Rogers boat livery has been sold to Philip Smith, of South Plainfield, but there is no doubt but what it would be replaced in the event of the water being restored.

The Borough Board of Education has secured Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of the North Plainfield schools, to deliver the address at the Whittier school commencement exercises next month.

Mr. Ducell and family, of New York, have taken possession of the Henry Wrage house on Walnut street.

The night gang at the Levering & Garrigues plant which was laid off last fall was resumed Monday night.

J. C. Dilts has added a handsome new carriage horse to his livery.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The hose wagon belonging to the local department was damaged by striking the curb yesterday in returning from the fire but was quickly repaired by Wm. Hamilton.

Henry Watkins, whose home was destroyed by fire yesterday, has moved his effects to Edge Brook cottage on Lakeside avenue.

Preparations are being made for a carnival to be held on Decoration Day by the Baraca Class of the Baptist church.

Rev. J. F. Baldwin will celebrate mass at Sacred Heart church Thursday morning at 8:30.

The Baraca class met last night in the Baptist church.

Proctor's Great Comedy Show.

The big comedy show which will be offered at Proctor's theatre, tomorrow and the rest of the week, will equal the strong vaudeville bill enjoyed the first half of the week. Delphina and Delmora, the international travesty artists, will present one of the funniest burlesque musicals acts imaginable. Jim Weston & Co., will offer that amusing farce, "The Last Day at School," with a company of ten; Hilton & Bannon, will appear in the comedy, "The Battle of Too Soon;" Hughes & Logan will offer "McSweeney's Terrible Mistake," a burlesque boxing act, interspersed with the best life motion pictures.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

EXTRA! EXTRA—Owing to the increased circulation of The Daily Press I presume I will be called upon to receive cut rates for advertising soon. But that is one of my secrets. Don't mention it. You known I like to write ads so well that when you bring your property to me, I shall ask you to take off your hat and leave a check for fifteen dollars for advertising. Shall use this paper and two others, and when you go to give me a check for commission I shall tell you to deduct the fifteen dollars that did the business! Of course, if signs sell your property, I will get left. I hope I will get left. D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours. 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 19 tf

CONEY ISLAND—The first fellow who came to see the Park street, Brooklyn properties near Coney Island, that are to exchange for your property, did not care to go to Coney Island. I just told him that he could count the ties over. He went over and back and is now ready to take one. Now the thing is! Suppose you all go over without me and take one, how will I get to Coney Island? D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours, 159 North avenue, 'phone 1907.

MY TEXT—Old Colony Insurance Co., of Boston, Mass. This is the first time I ever knew myself to take off my hat to the word "Old" because it always looked like a jar to me, but in this case it sounds substantial. And the word Boston sounds like literary to me, or five o'clock teas. And five o'clock teas keep money in circulation for did you ever see one gown that would be literary to two teas That is what I want to do, keep money in circulation, only I want it to circulate my way. That is the reason I represent that word "Old." I insure anything but your life and that I want you to keep; but bring me your houses, and your literary automobiles. D. Foster Updike, 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 22 tf

STRAIGHTBACK—There is a lot of straightback advertising, but who wants a straightback on a hot day? I use to be a pay advertiser. The art of advertising is not saying what you have to say because most people do not care anything about what you say than otherwise. It is saying something that the other fellow cannot forget. For instance yesterday I sold four houses made an appointment for Mr. Conover to show a farm in Hunterdon county today and two more this week; also have Mr. McDonough, our ice men, busy looking up houses for servants, on account of my not "forget" advertising. My reason for telling you all of this is: I do not like the penny a word column; I want an amusement column of my own in a cheaper part of the paper, so you can have more amusement for fifteen dollars. The fifteen dollars is my object, I do not care anything about the commission. Speaking about straightbacks, I use to be a Presbyterian, they called them straightbacks; when I left my country abode to live in the City of Trenton, it used to be the custom for some of the men to stand during prayer. I use to think it awful nice until one time I played peep. I saw all these men standing, looking all over the church. Will some one ask me what they stood for? In other words would they have been doing the same thing bumping their foreheads? Get in my amusement column. D. Foster Updike or my time is yours, 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907 with check for $15. 5 24 4

SICK PEOPLE—I am worried about your pocketbook; for that reason I have built a house on Sumner avenue with better timber and better built than any millionaire's house you ever saw, whose pocketbook I am more worried about. This house has a sick room in it that will cure as many diseases as quack medicine. D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours. 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 19 tf

THE STRIKE is over and I am glad of it for I am geting tired of seeing uncovered bricks in my sidewalls; there would have been a brick strike soon. Got in two desks, a dozen chairs, another typewriter and a stenographer yesterday. But I forget my cuspidors, but I guess my shoes are quite good. Guess who takes charge of my insurance and rental department? Will give you a hunt. Our father and uncles are the ice man; who could the ice man be? Will tell you something about him. I forget to ask him for a bond. He belongs to the church where the people are so loyal that they go whenever the bell rings. Glad ours don't ring so often Some are good enough to think it a nuisance anyhow. Had they come around I would have wanted two bonds. The gentleman who came down from Hunterdon county yesterday to take charge of my farm department had an accident to start with. The first man he met was our brother in the same business. The poor fellow never knew he was saying anything out of the way when the conversation led to his saying he sold over forty farms last year. The other fellow seems to think that I brought him down to look at farms, not sell them. I would not dare to tell you what I did last week. D. Foster Updike. 5 23 2

COLLEGE HEAD AT 33.

John G. Bowman, President of Iowa University.

Well Known For His Work as Secretary of Carnegie Foundation. Has Been Successful Farmer and Journalist.

Iowa State university is to have one of the youngest college presidents in the world. John Gabbert Bowman, secretary of the Carnegie foundation, who is only thirty-three years old, has accepted the post offered to him when George E. MacLean sent his resignation to the Iowa state board of education.

Teacher, farmer, reporter, university instructor and secretary of a country wide educational foundation—these are the sources of an experience which, in the eyes of its trustees, qualify him to become the president of his home university.

It was in Iowa that Bowman was born, at Davenport, May 18, 1877, and received his early education. His father was a schoolteacher, but his two grandfathers chopped their way into the state with the first settlers. Each built his house on his allotment of so much lumber land, so much prairie and so much river and spent his life there.

Bowman's father, John R., died after a lifetime devoted to education in his home state. For thirty years he was pricipal of a grammar school in Davenport, which he finally left to take the post of superintendent of schools in the neighboring town of Lyons.

From high school John G. Bowman was admitted by certificate to Iowa State. At the end of his first year, finding that his family's finances could not readily stand the strain of completing his education, he decided to seek an opportunity to make himself at least partly self dependent. The desired opening he found in a district school near Walcott, fourteen miles from Davenport. There for nine months he was a country school teacher.

While experimenting in practical education he tried a little farming on the side. What money he saved he invested in hogs and corn. The result of planting this judiciously combined animal and vegetable crop was a harvest of cash almost sufficient to carry him through the rest of his college course.

With this capital and this experience he returned to the university, graduating with his original class in 1890. Crowding three years' work in this way into two, his education completed, Bowman was ready for permanent work. Early leanings toward the ministry, due largely to the influence of an uncompromising Presbyterian father, were temporarily succeeded by ideas of educational work. These were in turn displaced by a decision to go into journalism.

After two years spent on various newspapers he went to New York, where he studied at the Teachers' college of Columbia university. A little later we see him secretary of the Carnegie foundation, and it is here that he got his knowledge of the administration of higher educational institutions.

Bowman goes to a university which has more students than Princeton and ranks twenty-second among the institutions of higher learning in the country. It has 1,748 students, 165 instructors and property (including endowment) valued at $2,275,000. Apart from mere figures, what particularly makes the institution stand out among its sister institutions under state control is its tradition. The religious influence of its former minister-president, George MacLean, and the effect of college buildings, dignified and classical in style, combine to give to the university the asset known as "college atmosphere."

AN AUTO HARROW.

Another Self Propelling Agricultural Machine Added to the Already Long List.

Vienna.—The remarkable progress being made in the manufacture of agricultural implements is again demonstrated in an experiment conducted here recently with an automobile harrow.

Automobile plows and other machines used by the former in tilling the soil are nothing new. This harrow, however, is an entirely new departure, and the success of the demonstration with it will no doubt make it an implement which in a short time will be universally used.

The Austrian minister of agriculture was present at the demonstration of the auto harrow and was very favorably impressed with it, expressing the opinion that a machine of this kind would be a great labor saver to farmers throughout the world.

The Stable-Keeper Telephones

"WHAT'S the number? All right, I'll send a carriage round at ten sharp. Good-bye."

Many orders come to the livery-stable keeper over the telephone.

Not only that, but he frequently has occasion to call for assistance from out of town.

A wedding or funeral may overtax his supply of hacks.

Time is short, but the Bell Telephone Service, with its local and long distance connections, saves the situation for the stable-keeper.

THE REASON

I have the confidence of the public is because I never take a contract at a figure too low to enable me to do the work properly and give permanent satisfaction to the customer. It may cost you a little more in the beginning, but a great deal less in the end.

Coal and Gas Range

—a modern kitchen convenience that housewives will be quick to appreciate.

Embraces every good feature of the regular single oven "Newport," with the added capacity of the gas attachment.

This is one of the greatest improvements ever brought out by the

BOYNTON FURNACE CO.

It nearly doubles the cooking capacity of the range, as both coal and gas may be used at the same time if desired. Besides, this handy range gives, in compact form, both a winter necessity and a summer convenience. It solves the "cook stove" problem. Ask your dealer to show you this best of all combination ranges—the "Newport."

Bridgeport Standard Prepared Paint IS Economical

The Paint that Lasts

THIS illustration will give a fair idea of the difference there is in prepared paints. That kind whose price is low per gallon will "cover" a given area indifferently well, or "cover" only part of the work that you have to do.

On the other hand, Bridgeport Standard Prepared Paint, because of its covering quality; because of its inherent goodness; because it is made right, will "cover" the entire surface to be painted and do it to your entire satisfaction.

Its price per gallon may be a trifle more, but when you measure it against the job, and against the time it will last, as compared to inferior kinds, it is many dollars cheaper in the end.

It is merely a question of whether you want to buy paint whose only recommendation is that it is cheap, or whether you want to buy Bridgeport Standard Prepared Paint "made up to a standard, not down to a price."

AN OWL STORY.

Showing the Tyranous Effect of Habit Upon This Most Singular Bird.

An English publication tells this interesting story of an owl:

A vague figure appeared out of the clouds, traveling against the wind toward the spire and looking more like a ragged piece of newspaper whirled about the heavens than any living thing. It was a white owl, and after watching him for some time I came to the conclusion that he was trying to get to the vane of the spire. A very idle ambition it seemed, for, although he succeeded again and again in getting to within a few yards of the point aimed at, he was on each occasion struck by a fresh violent gust and driven back to a great distance, often quite out of sight in the gloom. But presently he would reappear, still struggling to reach the vane. A crazy bird!

But I could not help admiring his pluck and greatly wondered what his secret motive in aiming at that windy perch could be. And at last, after so many defeats, he succeeded and grasped the metal crossbar with his crooked talons. The wind with all its fury could not tear him from it, and after a little flapping he was able to pull himself up, and then, bending down, he deliberately wiped his beak on the bar and flew away.

This, then, had been his powerful, mysterious motive—just to wipe his beak, which he could very well have wiped on any branch or barn roof or fence and saved himself that tremendous labor. This was an extreme instance of that tyrannous effect of habit on a wild animal. Doubtless this bird had been accustomed after devouring his first mouse to fly to the vane, where he could rest for a few minutes, taking a general view of the place, and wipe his beak at the same time, and the habit had become so strong that he could not forego his visit even on so tempestuous an evening.

THE FOREST PEOPLE.

A Curious Scotch Settlement In the Heart of France.

Attention has been called in France to a little British settlement which still exists in the very heart of the country not far from Bourges, in the province of Berry. Its inhabitants have received the name Foretains, or forest people. Their history is a curious one.

In recognition of the services which John Stuart, constable of Scotland, rendered to the French nation one of its kings, Charles VII., 500 years ago granted him a park in the forest of Hautebrune and subsequently gave the Scotchmen whom he settled there the right also of feeding pigs and cutting wood in the adjacent royal forest of Allogny. They also were exempted from the payment of general taxes, salt tax or the dues levied by the neighboring town of Bourges, and finally a royal magistrate was appointed for their special benefit.

This magistrate used to sit booted and spurred, with his sword by his side, and for many years his decisions were given without appeal not only in all civil but in criminal cases as well which affected the proprietors or humbler inhabitants of the forest.

The Scotchmen cleared the forest of its old trees and planted instead orchards and then invited others of their countrymen to come and join them. Since then they have preserved something of their Scotch origin as well as their lofty, stalwart, active and vigorous form. They cultivate both beards and whiskers and both in accent and peculiarities of speech show their descent.

In dress they only differ from the inhabitants about them by wearing long leggings with spurs attached. Many of the names are Scotch or English, such as Talbot, Cromwell, Halliday and Godwin.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Going the Wrong Way.

A self conscious and egotistical young clergyman was called to a church in a small town in upper New York. After his first service the youthful minister asked one of the deacons, a big hearted but extremely plain spoken old fellow, what he thought of "this morning's effort."

The deacon was silent a few moments before replying. Finally he said:

"Well, I'll put it to ye in a kind of parable. It reminded me of Tom Dorgan's fust deer hunt, when he was green. He follered the deer's tracks all right, but he follered 'em all day in the wrong direction."

Love and a Shining Mark.

Percy—I came to ask you for the hand of your daughter.

Goldrox—Which one?

"Why, Elsie!"

"Oh, she's in school yet! She wouldn't think of such a thing."

"Well, Ethel, then."

"Oh, Ethel is too young!"

"Then give me Mary in marriage. She's old enough."

"Oh, yes; Mary is old enough to know better!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Practical View.

"So you believe in marrying for love?" asked the innocent maid.

"Yes, to a certain extent," replied the fair widow, "but marrying for love without a side issue of bread and butter is like sipping the froth from a glass of soda water."—Chicago News.

The House of the Whispering Pines

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910, by Anna Katharine Rohlfs

Sobs, cries, veiled faces, then silence in the courtroom too. It was broken but by one sound—a heart-rending sigh from the prisoner. But nobody looked at him, and nobody looked at me. Every eye was on the face of this young girl whose story bore such an impress of truth and yet was so contradictory of all former evidence. What revelations were yet to follow? It would seem that she was speaking of her sister's death.

But her sister had not died that way; her sister had been strangled. Could this dainty creature, with beauty scarred and yet powerfully triumphant, be the victim of a hallucination, or did she seek to mislead justice and to conceal truth?

At a question from Mr. Moffat she spoke again, and we heard her say:

"Yes, she died that way, with her hands in mine. There was no one else by. We were quite alone."

That settled it, and for a moment the revulsion of feeling threatened to throw the court into tumult.

"Can you fix the hour of this occurrence?" Mr. Moffat asked. "In any way can you locate the time?"

"No, for I did not move at once. I felt tied to that couch. I am very young, and I had never seen death before. When I did get up I hobbled like an old woman and almost went distracted, but came to myself as I saw the note on the floor—the note I was told to burn. Lifting it, I moved toward the fireplace, but got a fright on the way and stopped in the middle of the floor and looked back. I thought I had heard my sister speak.

"But the fancy passed as I saw how still she lay, and I went on after awhile and threw the note into the one small flame which was all that was left of the fire. I saw it caught by a draft from the door behind me and go flaming up the chimney.

"Some of my trouble seemed to go with the note, and I lifted a pillow from the window seat near by and covered her face. I must have done more. I must have covered the whole lounge with pillows and cushions, for presently my mind cleared again, and I recollected that it was something about the poison. I was to put the vial in her hand—or was I to throw it from the window? Something was to be thrown from the window—it must be the vial. But I couldn't lift the window, so, having found the vial standing on the table beside the little flask, I carried it into the closet where there was a window opening inward, and I dropped it out of that and thought I had done all. But when I came back and saw Adelaide's coat lying in a heap where she had thrown it I recalled that she had said something about this, but what I didn't know. So I lifted it and put it in the closet—why I cannot say. Then I set my mind on going home.

"But there was something to do first—something not in that room. It was to telephone the police. I seized the receiver, and when central answered I said something about the Whispering Pines and wanting help. This is all I remember about that.

"Some time afterward—I don't know when—I was stumbling down the stairs on my way out. I had gone to—to the room again for my little bag, for the keys were in it, and I dared not leave them. But I didn't stay a minute, and I cast but one glance at the lounge. What happened afterward is like a dream to me. I found the horse, the horse found the road, and some time later I reached home. As I came within sight of the house I grew suddenly strong again. The open stable door reminded me of my duty, and, driving in, I quickly unharnessed Jenny and put her away. Then I dragged the cutter into place and hung up the harness. Lastly I locked the door and carried the key with me into the house and hung it up on its usual nail in the kitchen. I had obeyed Adelaide, and now I would go to my room. That is what she would wish. But I don't know whether I did this or not. My mind was full of Adelaide till confusion came, then darkness and then a perfect blank."

She had finished; she had done as she had been asked; she had told the story of that evening as she knew it from the family dinner till her return home after midnight, and the mystery of Adelaide's death was as great as ever.

"Mr. District Attorney, the witness is yours," said Mr. Moffat.

Mr. Fox at once arose. The moment was ripe for conquest. He put his most vital question first:

"In all this interview with your sister did you remark any discoloration on her throat?"

The witness' lips opened. Surprise spoke from her every feature. "Discoloration?" she repeated. "I do not know what you mean."

"Any marks darker than the rest of her skin on her throat or neck?"

"No. Adelaide had a spotless skin. It looked like marble as she lay there. No; I saw no marks. I do not know what you allude to."

"Did you hold your sister's hands all the time she lay dying, as you thought, on the lounge?"

"Yes, yes."

"How was it when you let go of them? Where did they fall then?"

"On her breast. I laid them down softly and crossed them. I did not leave her till I had done this and closed her eyes."

"And what did you do then?"

"I went for the note to burn it."

"Miss Cumberland, in your direct examination you said that you stopped still as you crossed the floor at the time, thinking that your sister called, and that you looked back at her to see."

"Yes, sir."

"Were her hands crossed then?"

"Yes, sir; just the same."

"And afterward, when you came from the fire after waiting some little time for courage?"

"Yes, yes. There were no signs of movement. Oh, she was dead—quite dead."

"No statements, Miss Cumberland. She looked the same, and you saw no change in the position of her hands?"

"None. They were just as I left them."

"Can you say she did not clutch or grip her throat during any of this time?"

"Yes, yes. I couldn't have forgotten it if she had done that. I remember every move she made so well. She didn't do that."

"When, after telephoning, you returned to the room where your sister lay you glanced at the lounge?"

"Yes; I could not help it."

"Was it in the same condition as when you left—the pillows, I mean?"

"I—I think so. I cannot say. I only half looked. I was terrified by it."

"Can you say they had not been disturbed?"

"No. I can say nothing. But what does"—

"Only the answer, Miss Cumberland. Can you tell us how those pillows were arranged?"

"I'm afraid not. I threw them down quickly, madly just as I collected them. I only know that I put the window cushion down first. The rest fell anyhow. But they quite covered her—quite."

"Hands and face?"

"Her whole body."

"And did they cover her quite when you came back?"

"They must have— Wait—wait! I know I have no right to say that, but I cannot swear that I saw any change."

HER STRENGTH HAD GIVEN WAY.

"Can you swear that there was no change—that the pillows and the window cushion lay just as they did when you left the room?"

"No."

At the next moment she was in Dr. Carpenter's arms. Her strength had given way for the time, and the court was hastily adjourned to give her opportunity for rest and recuperation.

CHAPTER XXVI.

"WERE HER HANDS CROSSED THEN?"

WHEN I left the courtroom with the other witnesses I noticed a man standing near the district attorney. Afterward I heard that he was Sweetwater, the detective from New York who had had so much to do in unearthing the testimony against Arthur.

I left him talking to Mr. Fox and later received this account of the interview which followed between them and Dr. Perry.

"Is this girl telling the truth?" asked District Attorney Fox as soon as the three were closeted and each could speak his own mind. "Doctor, what do you think?"

"I do not question her veracity in the least."

"You believe that she burned herself intentionally?"

"I wouldn't disbelieve it—you may think me sentimental; I knew and loved her father—for any fortune you might name."

Mr. Fox turned to Sweewater. "And you?"

"Mr. Fox, have you those tongs?"

"Yes, I forgot. They were brought to my office with the other exhibits. I attached no importance to them, and you will probably find them just where I thrust them into the box marked 'Cumb.'"

They were in the district attorney's office, and Sweetwater at once rose and brought forward the tongs.

"There is my answer," he said, pointing significantly at one of the legs.

The district attorney turned pale and motioned Sweetwater to carry them back. He sat silent for a moment and then showed that he was a man.

"Miss Cumberland has my respect," said he.

Finally Mr. Fox turned to Dr. Perry and put the question:

"You are satisfied with your autopsy? Miss Cumberland's death was due to strangulation and not to the poison she took?"

"That was what I swore to and what I should have to swear to again if you placed me back on the stand. The poison, taken with her great excitement, robbed her of consciousness, but there was too little of it or it was too old and weakened to cause death. She would probably have revivied in time, possibly did revive. But the clutch of those fingers was fatal; she could not survive it. It costs more than you can ever understand to say this, but questions like yours must be answered. I should not be an honest man otherwise."

To the relief of all Carmel was physically stronger than we expected when she came to retake the stand in the afternoon. But she had lost a little of her courage.

Mr. Fox kept nobody waiting. He asked:

"Miss Cumberland, in your account of the final interview you had with your sister you alluded to a story you had once read together. Will you tell us the name of this story?"

"It was called 'A Legend of Francis I.' It was not a novel, but a little tale she found in some old magazine. It had a great effect upon us. I have never forgotten it."

"Can you relate this tale to us in a few words?"

"I will try. It was very simple. It merely told how a young girl marred her beauty to escape the attentions of the great king and what respect he always showed her after that, even calling her sister."

"While you were holding your sister's hands in what you supposed to be her final moments, did you observe whether or not she still wore on her finger the curious ring given her by Mr. Ranelagh and known as her engagement ring?"

"Yes. I not only saw it, but felt it. It was the only one she wore on her left hand."

Mr. Fox pressed his advantage.

"And when you rose from the lounge and crossed your sister's hands?"

"It was still there. I put that hand uppermost."

"And left the ring on?"

"Oh, yes; oh, yes!" Her whole attitude and face were full of protest.

"So that, to the best of your belief, it was still on your sister's finger when you left the room?"

"Certainly, sir; certainly."

There was alarm in her tone now. She was beginning to see that her testimony was not as entirely helpful to Arthur as she had been led to expect.

"Can you say whether you noticed any especial chill in the hall when you went out to telephone?"

"I don't remember. I was almost insensible."

"But you do remember having shut the door behind you?"

"Yes."

An open window in the hall—that was what he was trying to prove—open at this time. From the expression of such faces of the jury as I could see I think he had proved it. The next point he made was in the same line. Had she, in all the time she was in the building, heard any noises she could not account for?

"Yes; many times."

"Can you describe these noises?"

"No; they were of all kinds. The pines sighed continually. I knew it was the pines, but I had to listen. Once I heard a rushing sound—it was when the pines stopped swaying for an instant—but I don't know what it was. It was all very dreadful."

"Was this rushing sound such as a window might make on being opened?"

"Possibly. I didn't think of it at the time, but it might have been."

"From what direction did it come?"

"Back of me, for I turned my head about."

"Where were you at the time?"

"At the hearth. It was before Adelaide came in."

"A near sound or a far?"

"Far, but I cannot locate it—indeed, I cannot. I forgot it in a moment."

"But you remember it now?"

"Yes."

"And cannot you remember now any other noises than those you speak of? That time you stepped into the hall—when your teeth chattered, you know—did you hear nothing then but the sighing of the pines?"

She looked startled. Her hands went up, and one of them clutched at her throat; then they fell, and slowly, carefully, like one feeling his way, she answered:

"I had forgotten. I did hear something—a sound in one of the doorways. It was very faint—a sigh—a—a—I don't know what. It conveyed nothing to me then and not much now. But you asked, and I have answered."

"You have done right, Miss Cumberland. The jury ought to know these facts. Was it a human sigh?"

"It wasn't the sigh of the pines."

"And you heard it in one of the doorways? Which doorway?"

"The one opposite the room in which I left my sister."

"The doorway to the large hall?"

"Yes, sir."

Oh, the sinister memories! The moments which I myself had spent there

"ARE YOU READY TO SWEAR YOU DID NOT HEAR A STEP?"

—after this time of her passing through the hall, thank God!—but not long after. And some one had been there before me! Was it Arthur?

Carmel being innocent, who could be guilty but he? I knew of no one. The misery under which I had suffered was only lightened, not removed.

"Miss Cumberland, are you ready to swear that you did not hear a step at that time or see a face?"

"Yes, sir."

"That you only heard a sigh?"

"A sigh, or something like one."

"You went right on?"

"Immediately."

"Entering the telephone room?"

"Yes."

"The door of which you shut?"

"I do not know. I must have, but I"—

"Never mind explanations. You do not know whether you shut it or whether some one else shut it?"

"I do not."

The words fell weightily. They seemed to strike every heart.

"Miss Cumberland, you have said that you telephoned for the police."

"Yes, for help."

"You were some minutes doing this, you say?"

"I have reason to think so, but I don't know definitely. The candle seemed shorter when I went out than when I came in."

"Are you sure you telephoned for help?"

"Help was what I wanted—help for my sister. I do not remember my words."

"And then you left the building?"

"After going for my little bag."

"Did you see any one then or hear any one?"

"No, sir."

"Did you see your sister again?"

"I have said that I just glanced at the couch."

"Wouldn't you know if the pillows had been disturbed?"

"No, sir—not from the look I gave them."

"Then they might have been disturbed—might even have been rearranged—without your knowing it?"

"They might."

"Miss Cumberland, when you left the building, did you leave it alone?"

"I did."

"Was the moon shining?"

"No; it was snowing."

"Did the moon shine when you went to throw the vial out of the window?"

"Yes, very brightly."

"Bright enough for you to see the links?"

"I didn't look at the links."

"Where were you looking?"

"Behind me."

"When you threw the vial out?"

"Yes."

"What was there behind you?"

"A dead sister." Oh, the indescribable tone!

"Forgive me, Miss Cumberland; I do not want to trouble you, but was there not something or some one in the adjoining room besides your dead sister to make you look back?"

"I saw no one. But I looked back—I do not know why."

"You threw the vial out without looking?"

"I felt it slip from my hand."

"Where?"

"Over the window ledge."

Triumph for the defense. The position of the vial, caught in the vines, was accounted for in a very natural manner.

Mr. Fox shifted his inquiries.

"You have said that you wore a hat and coat of your brother's in coming to the clubhouse. Did you keep these articles on?"

"No; I left them in the lower hall."

"Where in the lower hall?"

"On the rack there."

"Was your candle lit?"

"Not then, sir."

"Yet you found the rack?"

"I felt for it. I knew where it was."

"Miss Cumberland, you left the door unlocked when you went out of the building?"

"No—no, I didn't. I had the key, and I locked it. But I didn't realize this till I went to untie my horse; then I found the keys in my hand. But I didn't go back."

"Do you mean that you didn't know you locked the door?"

"I don't remember whether I knew or not at the time. I do remember being surprised and a little frightened when I saw the keys. But I didn't go back."

"Yet you telephoned for the police?"

"Yes."

"And then locked them out?"

"I didn't care—I didn't care."

An infinite number of questions followed. Certain facts had to be brought out, among them the blowing off of her hat on that hurried drive home through the ever thickening, snowstorm—a fact easily accounted for when one considered the thick coils of hair over which it had been drawn.

"After you went into the stable to unharness your horse what path did you take in returning to the house?"

"There is only one."

"Did you walk straight through it?"

"As straight as I could. It was snowing heavily, and I was dizzy and felt strange. I may have zigzagged a little."

"You are sure that you did not wander in back of the stable?"

"As sure as I can be of anything."

"Miss Cumberland, I have but a few more questions to ask. Will you look at this portion of a broken bottle?"

She reached out her hand. It was trembling visibly, and her face expressed a deep distress, but she took the piece of broken bottle and looked at it before passing it back.

"Miss Cumberland, did you ever see that bit of broken glass before?"

"No," she said. "I may have seen a whole bottle like that at some time in the clubhouse, but I have no memory of this broken end—none at all."

"I am obliged to you, Miss Cumberland. I will trouble you no more today."

Then he threw up his head and smiled a slow sarcastic smile at Mr. Moffat.

THE PLAINFIELD TRUST COMPANY

BASEBALL.

The Pirates were not the least bit sorry to bid goodby to New York. Clarke and his band of alleged Corsairs found the "picking" there about as profitable as looking for gold on the torrid Sahara.

The Brooklyn fans are marvelling. In the last five games played the Superbas have not made an error. "We have hit our stride," says Bad Bill Dahlen.

As a matter of fact, it begins to look that way. Three out of four from the Reds is not so bad for Dahlen's team.

As a rule the Superbas play pretty good ball against the strong teams. Here's hoping there's no slipup among the Superbas. The Pirates are across the river. Looks as though the Smoketowns have trouble ahead of them.

The Pirates had a good chance to move up on the Phillies as the latter were defeated by the Cubs, who took the series of four straight. The Pirates didn't take advantage of the opportunity but the Giants did.

It is reported that President Somers of the Cleveland club is so well pleased with the work of George B. Stovall, who is acting manager of the team, that he sees no reason for making a change. The team has won a majority of its games since McGuire resigned and Stovall took up his duties.

They used to talk about Babe Adams, the Pirate, as a star pitcher. The Giants hope all future champions they are scheduled to meet are as easy as was Babe Monday.

And what about one Arthur Raymond? If Arthur continues the rest of the season the way he so far has performed the fans will be ready to be-flower and to be-medal him. He has the interests of the Giants at heart.

George Bell, the Superbas' big twirler, is suffering from a score arm. He injured it in the game with the Reds. It is probable that Dahlen will not be able to use him during the Pirate series.

Manager Dooin has a new pitcher. He is Sleepy Head Bill Burns, formerly with the Cincinnati Reds. Clarke Griffith recently asked waivers on the boxman. If Burns wishes to stick in "big company," he'll have to work under Dooin. The latter does not tolerate a drone.

Chance recently asked waivers on big Ed Ruelbach, the Cub pitcher. It doesn't look as though Reulbach had run out his usefulness to a big league team. Ed downed the hard hitting Phillies by a 6 to 2 score. He held the Quakers to four hits. In only one inning was Reulbach ineffective.

Truly the Rustlers are to be pitied. They lost again to the Cardinals. The Bostons are going deeper and deeper into the rut.

The Blues will miss Jackson, the heavy hitting outfielder, who split a finger in the game with the Athletics. Jackson will be out of the game until the injured member heals. Catcher Lapp of the Athletics was also hurt. He ran into the grand stand trying to catch a foul fly.

Charley Herzog made another home run for the Hub team. Too bad the whole tetam can't make homers.

Since the Rajahs have been in the East they have lost only three of twelve games played. Two of the three were to the Giants.

Barry is back in the game for the world's champions. He got two doubles Monday.

The Nationals didn't do a thing to Lafitte's curves. The Detroit pitcher was slammed for eighteen bingles. McBride, of the Washington team, was the star batsman of the day, getting a batting average of 1,000 per cent. He went to bat five times and made five singles. Walker held the Tigers to six hits. The score was 7 to 3.

The Rustlers haven't won a game since May 8.

Lou Criger, the former Highlander catcher, is now the property of the Milwaukee club of the American Association. He signed to play with the A. A. team Monday.

JAP TEAM COMING.

Fans of New York will have an opportunity to see a famous Japanese baseball team in action next Saturday, when the nine of Kei-O University will meet Fordham at Bronx Oval, at 163d street and Southern Boulevard. After meeting Fordham the Japs will return to San Francisco and sail for their own country on June 20.

The Kei-O ball tossers are said to be clever at the great American game and last week defeated the University of Cincinnati in an eleven-inning tussel, 4 to 2. The Japs have a crack pitcher in Sugase, who is said to be the equal of any college twirler in this country. The University of Wisconsin team found it hard to hit him in its tour of Japan.

Against the Japanese Fordham will have out its strongest team with McKeown and Lynch in the points. The game promises to be one of the treats of the season for local fans. It was originally scheduled for American League Park.

GOLF

Secretary Watson has sent out a circular of conditions for the United States Golf Association open championship to be played at the Chicago Golf Club, Wheaton, Ill., on Friday and Saturday, June 23 and 24. The entries close on Friday, June 16 at the secretary's office, 51 East Forty-fourth street, New York, and must be accompanied by the fee of $5. The prize money is $800 in the customary ten divisions, exclusive of a gold medal for the winner and the possession of the $1,000 championship trophy, on which his name is engraved until the next contest.

A special rule is that contestants whose scores at the finish of Friday's thirty-six holes exceed by fifteen strokes the tenth place shall not continue in the competition nor play in Saturday's thirty-six hole round.

Jack Jolly, the professional, is back from a two months' trip in the West. He found the game flourishing about Chicago, and he says the course of the Chicago Golf Club at Wheaton, where the national open championship will be held next month, is in fine condition. Many of the Western amateurs will compete in the open this time.

Apropos of the national open, Alec Smith, the title holder, may not compete this time. He has been in poor health for a number of weeks, or ever since returning from the South.

Another noteworthy addition to the ranks of resident golf professionals will shortly be recorded when Tom Vardon, brother of the redoubtable Harry Vardon, reaches these shores. Vardon intends to remain in this country permanently and after his summer engagement is finished at Onwentsia he will probably go South for the winter.

THE STATE TRUST COMPANY

CAPITAL $100,000.00

CHESTNUT BLIGHT CAUSES BIG DAMAGE

It is estimated by State Forester Alfred Gaskill that the chestnut bark disease, which has been so prevalent, has caused a property loss of $4,500,000 in New Jersey alone. Of this amount he figures that about $3,000,000 falls on forest owners through the loss of the chestnut trees as timber and the necessity of felling them in an immature state or at unfavorable times. The remaining loss of $1,500,000 is represented by the destruction of ornamental trees and the depreciation of suburban property, consequent upon the destruction of groves in which chestnut is the principal species.

The estimate of the State forester was made at the request of the United States Department of Agriculture, which has been devoting careful attention to the ravages of the disease. Mr. Gaskill arrived at his conclusions after a thorough and painstaking investigation, and believes that his conclusions are not far from correct. In making his estimate he had clearly in mind the fact that not nearly all the chestnut trees are yet dead, but unless the ravages of the disease shall be suddenly checked, which is scarcely possible, the total measurable loss is likely to be greater, rather than less, than the figures given.

The enormous loss attributable to the chestnut bark disease has prompted the State forester to repeat warnings already given regarding the importance of protecting the forests and shade trees from the pests that attack them. Fortunately New York, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, as well as some of the New England States, are organizing a campaign against its further spread. Mr. Gaskill said that New Jersey must be content to use its experience to prevent a similar disaster.

Will Attend Divine Service.

The members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., the Sons of Veterans, the Women's Relief Corps and Camp Bagley, Spanish-American War Veterans, will attend divine service at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Sunday night, when Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire will preach.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire lectured to a crowded house in the Church of the Puritans in New York last night. He was asked to come again.

ELKS' CONVENTION

Program for Annual Reunion of the Order at Atlantic City in July.

WILSON TO EXTEND GREETING.

William Jennings Bryan, Judge Ben Lindsey, Governor Tener and Other Antlered Ones to Participate.

The complete program for the twenty-fifth annual reunion of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks in Atlantic City during the week of July 10 has just been announced.

Tens of thousands of Elks will practically own the resort during the course of their stay. At the famous steel pier, where the Grand Lodge wil hold its sessions, the Elks' button will admit every wearer to every amusement feature. The same rule will apply at many other attractions of the boardwalk.

The presence of Governor Wilson to extend New Jersey's welcome to the clans from every State and territory is now regarded as a certainty. Governor Tener, of Pennsylvania, a former Grand Exalted Ruler; William Jennings Bryan, and Judge Ben Lindsay, of Denver, both of whom are staunch Elks; United States Senators and Congressmen will be among the notable visitors.

The program for the convention as anounced yesterday is as follows:

Sunday, July 9—Reception of visitors at Elks' Home. All trains will be met by the reception committee to escort visitors to hotels. Registration bureau on steel pier, general headquarters of the reunion.

Monday, July 10—8 p. m., formal opening of the Grand Lodge in Marine Hall, ocean end of steel pier, to which members, their families and the public are invited. Harry Bachrach, exalted ruler of Atlantic City Lodge, will preside. The invocation will be by the grand chaplain, the Rev. John Dysart, of Jamesburg, N. Y. Miss Evelyn Phillips will sing. The balance of the program follows: Address, Theodore W. Schimpf, of Atlantic City; solo, vocalist to be selected; address of welcome, Harry Bachrach, exalted ruler of Atlantic City Lodge; vocal number, Elks' Chorus; address of welcome on behalf of Atlantic City, Mayor Franklin F. Stoy; instrumental number; address of welcome on behalf of the lodges of New Jersey, Governor Woodrow Wilson; response on behalf of Grand Lodge, August Gerrmann, of Cincinnati, grand exalted ruler of the B. P. O. E.; finale, "Auld Lang Syne," Columbus Elks' Chorus.

Tuesday, July 11—10 a. m., Grand Lodge session in Marine Hall, steel pier. Morning bathing from 10 to 12 o'clock; 2:30 p. m., Grand Lodge session. Rolling chair rides, sailing.

Wednesday, July 12—10 a. m., competitive drill Inlet Ball Park, admission free; 10 a. m., Grand Lodge session; 2:30 p. m., Grand Lodge session; 2:30 p. m., band contest on grand reviewing stand, adjoining City Hall.

Thursday, July 13—10 a. m., business session of the Grand Lodge; 2 p. m., grand parade of the lodges, forming on the south side of Atlantic avenue.

Friday, July 14—Bathing, sailing trip to the Atlantic City County Club at Northfield. 8 p. m., grand ball and reception on Young's pier.

As the convention of the Christian Endeavors of the United States, consisting of thirty thousand members, will extend into Elks' week, the proprietors of hotels are finding it hard to make reservations to accommodate the demand.

Fairyland at Watchung.

The Public Service Corporation has a corps of electricians at work stringing wires and locating lights on the grounds at Watchung to be used as the scene for the Indian legend which is to be enacted next month. The grounds will be a veritable fairyland as the incandescent globes are being strung on the limbs of pine, spruce and maple and other trees. The effect will be well worth going miles to see. The rehearsals for the affair are now well underway.

Truancy Excuse.

Mrs. Laura Backer, of Plainfield avenue, against whom the school authorities made complaint of failure to send her two daughters and one son to school, declared this morning that they were all ill and in no condition to attend the sessions in their respective classes. City Physician C. B. Lufburrow will examine the children today and report to Judge DeMeza.

Open Hotel Saturday.

Manager Peter Floersch said today that he would positively open the Queen City Hotel on Saturday morning. Mrs. Floersch, who has completely recovered from the recent injury, is ably assisting her husband in his preparations to receive guests.

PASTOR TO RETIRE

First Baptists Accept Resignation of Rev. Dr. Chambliss Effective September 1.

PLANS FOR BIG RECEPTION.

His Fiftieth Anniversary as a Minister to Be Suitably Commemorated—To Take Two Months Vacation.

The resignation of Rev. Dr. John A. Chambliss as pastor of the First Baptist church was accepted at a business meeting of the church last night to take effect on September 1, as suggested by the minister in his communication to the members earlier in the month. In this connection it was voted to grant him a vacation during July and August and a committee was appointed on pulpit supplies and it will act in an advisory capacity in obtaining another pastor.

Plans were also discussed for giving Dr. and Mrs. Chambliss a farewell reception about the middle of June, at which time the clergyman will have completed fifty years in the ministry. It is proposed to make it an auspicious occasion and one befitting the pastor's retirement.

Charles W. McCutchen presided at the meeting and Oliver B. Leonard acted in his capacity as church clerk. The joint committee of the Board of Trustees and Deacons to whom the resignation was referred reported back and moved that it be accepted, that it take effect September 1 and that a committee of six be appointed on supplies; also for the purpose of acting in an advisory capacity in securing a new pastor. The committee appointed comprised L. V. F. Randolph, John G. MacLaughlin, E. L. Bonny, Arthur M. Harris, Charles W. McCutchen, George A. Chapman and O. B. Leonard will also act with the committee.

Then followed a discussion of plans relative to a farewell reception and the following committee of women was appointed to take charge of the details: Mrs. George H. Robins, Mrs. W. A. Conner, Mrs. Morris A. Zook, Mrs. Louis Matlack, Mrs. Arthur M. Harris, Mrs. George F. White, Mrs. A. L. Kennelly, Mrs. Harold Serrell, Miss Ida Yerkes, Miss May Shreve, Miss Caroline Demler and Miss Ruth Day.

Mr. Leonard read the church letter to be sent to the East New Jersey Association meeting. It showed the present membership of the church to be 819, and that during the year there was raised for benevolence about $8,000. There were sixteen deaths during the year. This letter will be presented at the association meeting by Mr. Leonard.

STATE'S ORANGEMEN ELECT THEIR OFFICERS

The fifteenth annual convention of the State Grand Lodge, of New Jersey, Loyal Orange Institution, U. S. A., was concluded yesterday afternoon with the election of officers and installation. During the afternoon a delegation of members from Philadelphia attended the session and joined in the general discussion of topics under consideration. These officers were chosen for the year:

State grand master, Thomas J. McClung, of Jersey City; first deputy, M. D. McGuire, of Newark; second deputy, John Edgar, of Camden; secretary, James Hagen, of Union Hill; assistant secretary, Joseph Kilpatrick, of Union Hill; treasurer, Thos. Willis, of Camden; deputy of ceremony, George Spence, of Jersey City; chaplain, Joseph Bramble, of Plainfield; inside tyler, David Logue, of Camden; outside tyler, George Perkins, of East Orange; first lecturer, Alexander McCloy, of Union Hill; second lecturer, J. F. Reynolds, of Jersey City; trustee, W. J. Trotter, of Paterson. Past Grand Master, John McClintock, of Philadelphia, installed the officers.

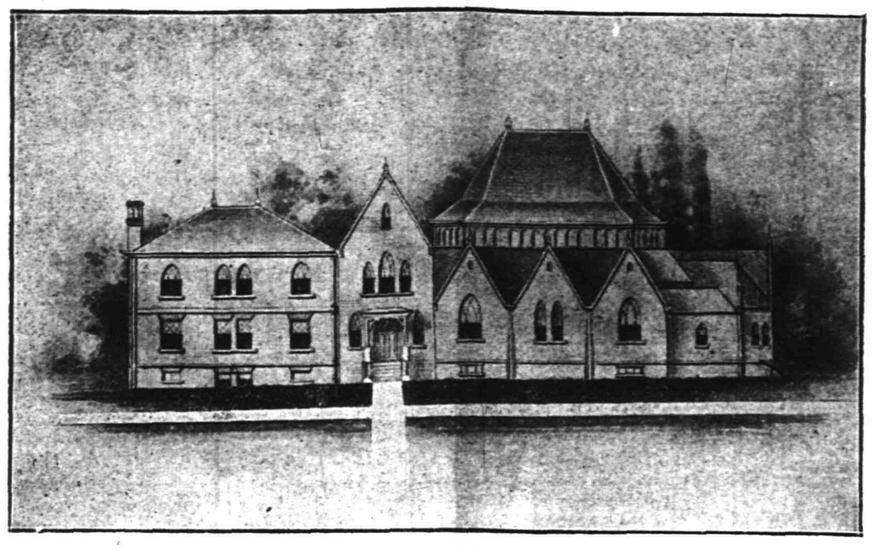
To Address Endeavorers

Martin A. Korff, who is expected to lead the Christian Endeavor meeting at the Temple Baptist church on Sunday evening, will give a talk on the work being done in rescue missions in New York. Mr. Korff has been working at the Bowery Mission for the past few months and has been successful among the men of the city and his remarks ought to prove interesting to the Endeavorers.

Their Hearing Postponed.

Mrs. Nina Irby and Charles Becker, colored, who were charged with disorderly conduct were arraigned again this morning before Judge DeMezo in the city court. Judge W. R. Codington, who represented Mrs. Irby, asked and was granted an adjournment of two weeks. Bail was furnished. Becker was sent back to a cell.

ADDITION TO CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH EDIFICE WILL COST $18,500



The Congregational Church as it Will Appear After Enlargement.

The growth of the Congregational church has compelled the members to build an addition to meet the requirements of the church's activities. The cut shown here gives a good idea of the proposed changes in the building, plans for which were drawn by Lancaster & Steele, of New York.

This church was organized September 30, 1879, with about fifty members who worshipped at first in what is now known as Reform Hall, afterwards changing to the old Seventh-Day Baptist church, now the Whittier School.

The present church edifice was erected in 1883 and Rev. William Manchee was the pastor. Rev. Chas. L. Goodrich, who was graduated from Yale Divinity School in 1884 succeeded Rev. Mr. Manchee and has been the pastor ever since and is much beloved by his congregation of 310 members.

For many years the church has felt the necessity of increased facilities and the addition which it is proposed to build will take care of the deficiencies. In the new addition a gallery will be built and divided off into class rooms, a women's parlor, pastor's study, library and other convenient rooms. There will be a large kitchen equipped with all modern appliances and rooms for storage purposes. It is intended to fit up the basement with appliances for a gymnasium for the young people of the church.

The cost of the new addition is expected to reach $18,500, of which nearly $11,000 has already been subscribed. The committee having the new building in charge is composed of M. C. VanArsdale, chairman; Dr. Frank T. Clawson, J. A. Powlison, Miss F. F. Clark, Miss Lulu Fuller, Miss Nellie Winckler and Frank A. Weeks, who is treasurer.

HORSE SHOW BOXES AND THEIR HOLDERS

The demand for boxes for the eighth annual horse show to be held next week exceeds that of any year in the history of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Association. Already a large number have been sold for the three days' exhibition. According to L. G. Timpson, chairman, 1045 Hillside avenue, these have taken boxes:

Charles W. McCutchen, William J. Buttfield, Edward Low, R. A. Fairbairn, J. M. Charles, Henry C. Irons, Jabez C. Gilbert, Howard W. Beebe, Charles W. Holland, Rufus C. Finch, Edward Clark, E. L. Ladd, Albert Tilney, Charles J. Fisk, Charles A. Reed, George P. Mellick, Frederick Eull, Percy H. Stewart, H. G. Runkle, Tonzo Sauvage, Mrs. Chapman Fisk, Henry L. McGee, George G. Rihlig and Edwin S. Hooley.

GOVERNOR'S SALARY GOES TO ACKERMAN

Following precedent when, in 1900, Governor Foster M. Voorhees went to Europe on private business, just as Governor Wilson is away from the State now on private business, State Comptroller Edwards has drawn a warrant for Acting Governor Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, for the time he has been acting governor, and cut off just that amount of money from the check of Governor Wilson for the month of May. Thus Governor Wilson has had his salary cut some $800, and is exactly in line with the precedent set in the case of Governor Voorhees.

A BIG ANIMAL SHOW FEATURE OF CARNIVAL

The coming carnival, conducted under the auspices of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus promises to be one of the great attractions of the season. The general committee of the local lodge went to Lakewood last night to look the show over and they found it to be entirely desirable and one to which no exception can be taken.

The show is composed of the King Edward and Carnival shows under the direction of B. H. Patrick, whose wife takes a prominent part. John J. Kenney, a member of the committee, said this morning that the animal exhibition, in which various dumb beasts perform, is one of the finest things of its kind he has ever seen.

The carnival opens on Monday at the grounds, corner of West Front street and Grant avenue.

A Chimney Blaze.

Fire headquarters received a telephone call at 7:45 last night for a chimney blaze at the home of Herman Fister, 225 Plainfield avenue. It was put out by Hose Company No. 3.

FORM BALL LEAGUE

Central New Jersey Baseball League Starts With Four Members.

A. M. BEEKMAN PRESIDENT.

Schedule to Be Arranged Tomorrow Night—Plainfield, Scotch Plains, Bound Brook and Somerville are Represented.

The Central New Jersey Baseball League with representative teams in this city, Scotch Plains, Bound Prook and Somerville, was organized last night at the Queen City Hotel. Neither Westfield nor High Bridge was represented, the latter club claiming that the league would be too fast for its nine. Westfield may possibly join later.

A. M. Beekman, of Somerville, was elected president of the league; Ernest Dorflinger, of this city secretary, and Edward Newhouse, of Bound Brook, treasurer. The managers present at the meeting were Ernest Dorflinger, of the Plainfield Baseball Club; Joseph Albert, of Scotch Plains; Edward Newhouse, of Pound Brook, and C. A. Cawley, of Somerville. The directors chosen are Messrs. Cawley, Beekman, Albert, Eller, Dorflinger, Steele, Newhouse and Hoagland. The by-law committee will comprise one member from each club and a schedule committee was chosen. The schedule will be announced within a few days.

Each club will contribute $25 to make up a fund for league expenses and forfeits. It was agreed that there should be a meeting of the officers of the league every Wednesday evening, to be held alternately in the towns represented. The schedule committee will hold a meeting tomorrow night at Bound Brook, and the league will meet Wednesday night, May 31, at the Queen City Hotel. It is the general belief that the league will be a success and that the fans will now see some fine contests among players that are known, instead of with teams of unknown ability. As the towns are within easy access it is expected that the fans will follow the teams back and forth, thereby tending to increase interest and rivalry.

Juniors to Give a Dinner.

The members of the junior class of the North Plainfield High School will give a dinner to the members of the senior class on June 2, the committee in charge being Edmund J. Kenney, chairman; William P. Taylor, Lawrence H. French, Henry V. Kinney, Miss Margaret Darby, Miss Florence Daley and Miss Madeline Uhrhahan.

Fined for Drunkenness.

Anthony Cordet, a Slav, found helplessly drunk on East Second street yesterday afternoon was fined $3 this morning by Judge DeMeza in the city court. Cordet must pay or go to jail for ten days.

RACES AT WESTFIELD ON SATURDAY, JUNE 10

The Westfield Riding and Driving Club will open its season Saturday, June 10, with the first matinee at the Fair Acres track. The track has been repaired at considerable expense and a large grandstand, capable of seating 1,000 spectators, is now being erected.

Additional ground has been obtained for parking space for automobiles. The sheds at the rear of the First Presbyterian church have been purchased by the club and will be moved to the grounds and made into stalls in addition to the twenty-two already there. There are twenty horses at the track at the present time in training, including a bay stallion owned by Hunt Bros., of Newark, a brown colt owned by Mr. Apgar, of Elizabeth, and a bay mare owned by Edward Grau, of Cranford.

CHOIR OF HOLY CROSS GIVES RECITAL TONIGHT

In the parish house of Holy Cross church the choir under the direction of William S. O'Brien, organist, will give the sixth annual concert tonight. Among the soloists will be Chester Chamberjain, soprano; Miss Gertrude Lohrke, soprano; Frederick Scanlan, violin; Frederick J. Pope, basso and Will Thiers, tenor. Mr. O'Brien will accompany the soloists on the piano. There is a program of thirteen selections.

The proceeds of the entertainment will be used to defray a part of the expense of some of the boys who will enjoy life at Camp Comfort, Hedges Lake, N. Y., this summer. The camp is conducted under the personal supervision of Rev. George H. Warner, rector of Holy Cross, and in past years has proved to be a boon to the youngsters.

Not Yet But Soon.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders took no definite action yesterday in the matter of a new arch concrete bridge for West End avenue over Stony brook. Mayor N. B. Smalley was assured that the matter would be taken up later and that within a year perhaps the present structure would be removed to make way for a more modern and pretentious one.

Speeder Convicts Himself.

Percy A. Cook, of Scotch Plains, who was arrested for speeding his auto on Watchung avenue was fined $5 by Recorder Dolliver this morning. He appeared in court with a witness to prove that his machine was running between ten and fifteen miles an hour. This was conviction in itself as the limit inside the borough is twelve miles an hour.

ELKS' CLUB HOUSE

Plans for Structure Approved and Work on Foundation to be Begun Now.

A THREE STORY BUILDING.

It Will Be 46 by 144 Feet and Will Have an Auditorium and Roof Garden—To Be Completed by Next Winter.

Plans for the new building which is to be erected on the west side of Watchung avenue between Front and East Second streets were approved at the regular meeting of the Elks' lodge last night. Work on the foundations for the new edifice will be begun at once. A. L. C. Marsh is the architect who drew the plans and, it is said, they show a distinct improvement over any building of its kind in the State.

The building will be a combined club house and home, forty-six feet wide and 144 feet long, three stories in height, with a basement and a roof garden. The latter will be of castellated design and calculated to afford roof garden concerts for the members and their friends.

In the basement will be found bowling alleys, billiard and pool tables, shower baths and lockers for members, lavatories and every other convenience and appointment of a first class club house. On the ground floor in front the members' parlor will occupy the front room while in the center will be located the grill and service room and a stage in the rear for entertainment with a hall capable of seating 350 people.

On the second floor will be located the women's parlor, dressing and cloak rooms; the committee rooms and lodge room. The lodge room will be 40 feet wide by 70 feet long and will also have a seating capacity of 350. It will have a dome after the style of all modern buildings not alone for light, but for ventilating purposes.

The third floor will contain eight dormitories with separate baths as well as a general bath room and the janitor's apartments. The roof garden will be strictly up-to-date with a stage and enough chairs to accommodate 250 people. The roof decorations will be of the latest approved kind such as may be seen on the roofs of some of New York's famous hostelries. It is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy before winter.

The building committee consists of Frank H. Smith, chairman; Armstrong Mulford, secretary-treasurer; James F. Buckle, S. P. T. Wilbur, W. A. Coddington, William C. Smith, Lewis A. Bellis, Walter Apgar, Lemuel B. Woolston, H. C. VanEmburgh, H. B. MacDonald, Joseph O'Keefe, A. L. C. Marsh, John H. Cose and Joseph Noonan.

BRYANT ASSOCIATION HEARS MRS. SIMONS

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Bryant School at its last meeting of the season, yesterday afternoon, voted to affiliate with the State Congress of Mothers. There was a large attendance of members and the meetting was of great interest. Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, who attended the International Mothers' Congress at Washington, gave an excellent resume of the proceedings, telling of the scope of the work and of the great results being accomplished.

Mrs. Simons also told of a pathetic petition received from the mothers of China in which it was urged that steps be taken to stop the shipment of opium to that country. This petition was signed by delegates to the Mothers' Congress and at the request of the mothers of China, the members of the local association also signed the paper.

The meeting yesterday was attended by unusual interest because of the exhibition of the pupils' work at the Bryant School, now in progress. Some of this work is really remarkable, including a great many garments made by the children. One complete dress was made by a colored girl under twelve years of age, which attracted much attention.

The officers of the Parent-Teacher Association, elected last week, are as follows: President, Mrs. J. Hervey Doane; first vice-president, Miss Flora I. Griffin, principal of the school; second vice-president, Mrs. C. J. Lawson; secretary, Mrs. Joseph Smith; treasurer, Mrs. Henry G. Henwood.

Personal Note.

Mrs. Charles Holloway, of Spooner avenue, against whom the neighbors have made complaint for disorderly conduct, has left town in order to evade arrest, it is alleged.

SELECTS HETFIELD

City Fathers Learn of Mayor's Appointment for Corporation Council.

AT AN ADJOURNED "MEETING."

The Only Public Business Was a Motion to Adjourn—Certiorari Proceedings are Discussed With the Mayor.

That the certiorari proceedings instituted against the city by property owners of Kensington avenue, who object to the proposed action of extending that avenue, have evidently left the members of the Common Council "at sea" was apparent to those who attended what was supposed to be an adjourned meeting of that body last night. The members began to gather at 8 o'clock and from that hour until 10:15 the time was spent in executive sessions, held in various parts of the City Building.

Walter L. Hetfield, Sr.

The first meeting was held in the city clerk's office, and later the members adjourned to the office of the Mayor where, after a lengthy conference, marked by lively discussion, another adjournment was taken, this time to the committee room, adjoining the Council Chamber. The councilmen were still in secret session at 11 o'clock, and nothing was given out for publication.

It was exactly 10:15 o'clock when the councilmen entered the chamber. President Tolles called the meeting to order, and after the roll call and a motion to suspend the regular order of business was adopted, Mr. Mygatt immediately moved that the meeting adjourn.

Before the motion prevailed, Councilman Holt jumped to his feet, and inquired concerning a communication from Mayor Moy, which he said he thought must have been overlooked. "We have overlooked nothing," replied Mr. Mygatt, and pressing his motion, it was adopted. There was no further public action.

It was understood that Mr. Moy had named a person for corporation counsel, and later this was confirmed. This fact was made known at the conference between the Mayor and Council, when the former was asked concerning his appointment.

"Would you mind telling us who you have named for the position," asked one of the members. "Certainly," replied the Mayor. "I have named Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., one who I believe is thoroughly competent and in every way qualified for the place. I have named him not for the reason that he is a particular friend of mine, neither have I given any weight to the fact that he happens to be a Democrat, but because he is thoroughly conversant with city affairs and municipal law and because I believe him to be fully competent to fill the position."

This statement did not bring forth any comment on the part of the councilmen, but at the conclusion of his statement, one of the members asked the Mayor if he would appoint Gilbert Collins, of Jersey City, as special counsel for the city in the Kensington avenue matter, to which the Mayor replied that he would not make that appointment.

"You have desired that I appoint a corporation counsel," continued the Mayor, "to meet the legal conditions confronting the city. I have named a person who I believe to be competent and now you ask me to do something which you have been doing for sometime without my advice, namely getting legal advice from Judge Collins. I most respectfully decline to make such an appointment.

"I would suggest that Mr. Hetfield be engaged as counsel in the Kensington avenue matter if you do not care to confirm him as corporation counsel at this time. I have no doubt but that he will fully represent the city. You refused to confirm Arthur Lovell on the ground that he was not familiar with municipal law, and now I have selected a man who was a former member of your body, a

Feet Tired—So Tired?

TIZ Makes Sick Feet Well, No Matter What Ails Them.

TIZ acts at once and makes tired, aching, swollen feet remarkably fresh and sore proof.

It's the sure remedy, you know, for everything that gets the matter with your feet. It's for sore feet and for sweaty, bad-smelling feet, and for corns, callouses and bunions, too.

"For years I have been troubled with sore and tender feet; suffered intense pains. Have had the assistance of physicians without relief. I bought a box of TIZ, which worked a perfect cure, as it has with a great many of my friends. I would not be without it. All it requires is to be known to be universally used." A. F. Dreutzer, Chicago.

TIZ is not a powder. Powders and other fot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain, and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25 cents per box, or it will be sent you direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

NEW JERSEY GAINS IN AUTO LICENSES

That New Jersey has not suffered a loss in automobile license fee by its failure to adopt reciprocity measures at the last legislative session is shown by the records in the office of J. B. R. Smith, commissioner of motor vehicles. Since January 1 of this year there has been an increase of 368 in the tourists' licenses compared with the same period last year. From Jaunary, 1910, to June of the same year there were 5,300 tourists' permits issued. While this year there are already 5,686 licenses taken, with the probability that the number will be greatly increased before June 1.

There has also been a great increase this year from annual licenses and other revenues from autoists. About $12,000 more have been collected from these sources than formerly.

Secretary MacVeagh, in a speech before the Missouri and Kansas bankers' convention, at Kansas City, indorsed the Aldrich plan of monetary reform.

Secretary Fisher, of the Interior Department, said at the meeting of the National Fire Protection Association that he considered fire losses in this country a national disgrace.

The willingness of Japan to consider an arbitration treaty was made known in Washington; the State Department may discuss the matter verbally with the Japanese Ambassador.

The body of a burglar who was accidentally hanged while trying to lower himself through a skylight was found dangling in a Harlem house which had been closed for the summer.

Congress.—Senate: Mr. La Follette urged another investigation of Senator Lorimer's election, declaring that not half the facts had been told; the resolution for direct election of Senators was discussed. The House was not in session.

Suits were begun by stockholders of the Rutland Railroad against former directors of the Rutland for alleged illegal profits, and against the New York Central for restraint of trade in holding control of the Rutland.

A proposition to strike the name of United States Senator Duncan U. Fletcher from the list of vice-presidents of the Unitarian Association, because of his attitude on the Lorimer case last winter, failed at the annual meeting of the association at Boston.

Senator Griffin introduced at Albany a resolution appropriating $50,000 for the expenses of a committee consisting of three Senators and five Assemblymen to investigate the causes of delay in awarding contracts for the building of the new subways in New York city.

DR. STEARNS NAMED.

Tuberculosis Committee Appointed Him Inspector.

At the meeting of the Tuberculosis Commission at Trenton Tuesday, Dr. H. E. Stearns, of Arlington, was appointed inspector for Essex county. The salary is $1,500 per year.

The hearing to be given Dr. Vander Roost, of Newark, did not take place Tuesday. Another hearing for the date will be fixed later.

Dr. Vander Roost, against whom charges were brought, has previously accused Dr. Stears, who is a much younger man, of seeking the inspectorship.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

WESTFIELD.

So much complaint has been made in years past over the work of the town Board of Assessors that this year they are going to endeavor to do their work thoroughly. They started on the work of assessing the town Tuesday, going in the automobile of Assessor Appley. They have a camera with them and every new house that they assess, they take a photograph of it, showing just how far the work has advanced. When they assess a house that there is some question as to the valuation, a photograph of the house is taken just as it is on the date it is assessed then if there is any trouble the photograph can be used before the Board of Taxation.

The Hall Signal Company, of Garwood, closed Tuesday night for the customary week vacation for stock taking. Uusually two weeks is given, but owing to work on hand only one week is taken this year.

SOMERVILLE.

The Monday Evening Club was entertained this week by Mrs. A. McWilliam and Miss Blanche Bascom, at the home of the latter, on West High street. The essay was read by James L. Griggs, on "Outdoor Recreation."

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Baptist church met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Asa R. Dilts, in Raritan. This was the final meeting of the year.

John Valco has returned to his home in Raritan after spending some time with relatives in Connecticut.

Hubbell Birdsall, of Philadelphia, is spending several days with his grandmother, Mrs. Samuel Birdsall.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Whiteneck, of West High street, have returned from Lakewood.

Mrs. Charles Fiske and son, of Baltimore, are guests of Miss Sarah Cammon.

Mrs. Harry A. Smith, of Altmont place, is spending a week at Atlantic City.

James Burke is ill with pneumonia at his home on Doughty street.

Mrs. Albert Case is visiting friends in Metuchen.

STOLEN METAL CARTED AWAY NIGHTLY IN CAB.

Six arrests, including a junk dealer and a cab driver, have been made and more are likely to follow as the result of the investigations made by the police in New Brunswick of thefts of metal from the Consolidated Fruit Jar Works.

For several weeks a cab has been making nightly trips from the neighborhood of this plant and upon the company reporting the disappearance of metal the police watched the cab. It was traced to the junk shop of Morris Pellas. It was found several young men were disposing of the stolen goods in this way. It is alleged that Pellas bought the plunder, paying nightly from $2.40 to $7.20 for the metal. Pellas was arrested and also Frank Gorman, the hackman. Four young men have also been captured and admit the charge. They are William Henry, nineteen; John McKune, eighteen; John McAnders, eighteen; Thomas Hickey seventeen. Henry was employed at the works and the others in neighboring factories. The plan was to carry out the metal during the day time, hide it and cart it away at night. The metal stolen was worth from twenty-two to thirty-three cents a pound.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

made three hits, including a half-circuit smash and stole three bases on Catcher Henry, of the Senators. In the field he accepted three out of four chances.

The Tri-State League of Baseball Clubs recovered a verdict for $2,000 in a suit against the Wilmington Exhibition Co., and its bondsmen, the American Bonding Company, of Baltimore, Tuesday, in the county court at Hollidaysburg, Pa. The Wilmington club quit in the midle of the season of 1908 and failed to pay assessments it owed to the league treasury. The league sued to recover the loss accruing to the clubs in the circuit by reason of this default.

Bristol Lord, the left fielder of the Athletics, increased his batting average Tuesday at the expense of the hurlers who are on the pay roll of the Cleveland club. Four hits out of five times up, including a double, was his record with the willow for the day.

Titus, the right fielder of the Phillies, will be out of baseball for some time to come. While sliding to the home plate in the fifth inning of the game Tuesday against the St. Louis Cardinals, the Quaker broke his ankle. The services of the outfielder will be missed, as he was clouting the ball at a great clip.

Shotgun for Thieves.

The residents of the Brookside place section of Cranford are ready to fight for their own rights and have procured shotguns and other firearms to protect their homes and gardens from midnight thieves. Upon several occasions of late a horse and wagon containing a man and woman has visited the neighborhood. The garden on the S. M. Scott place has been robbed of plants and the wire mosquito netting in the kitchen window, at the home of Gideon E. Ludlow, cut out in an effort to secure entrance to the building. In each instance the intruders have been scared away.

News and Notes

BASEBALL.

The reinstatement of Mike Donlin by the National Commission, which action is expected to occur within the next few days, following a recent request from the former heavy hitter to be restored to good standing in organized baseball, is looked forward to with much interest by New York baseball fans, as it will undoubtedly have an important bearing on the pitching staff of Manager McGraw's pennant chasers. McGraw evidently realizes that he needs one more good pitcher to be properly fortified for the hard battle sure to result for this year's bunting, and he sees his chance to get the necessary boxman in a trade involving Donlin. With that end in view he has already begun negotiations with other clubs which he thinks might use Donlin to advantage. McGraw evidently does not intend to use his former reliable hitter. Both Brooklyn and Chicago are the clubs to whom Donlin has been offered, and the Infants could use Donlin, if he is in anything like his old-time form. McGraw would like to get Pitcher Bell, in exchange for Donlin, but Ebbetts would rather buy than trade. At any rate, it is expected that as soon as the former heavy hitter is again placed in good standing that he will be traded by the Giants for some good twirler.

Manager John McGraw is a happy man nowadays, for Fred Snodgrass has regained his batting eye and is hitting the ball hard and often. Besides poling out three hits in as many times up, the lad from California scored two runs, stole a base and had three putouts to his credit in the game Tuesday against the Cincinnati Reds.

Cy Young, a veteran member of the Cleveland Americans' pitching staff, rejoined the team Tuesday after an absence which began four weeks ago, when he was taken ill in Detroit with pneumonia. He has been recuperating on his farm at Peoli, Ohio, and says he expects to be able to play ball again within two weeks.

DeMott, who twirled for Lafayette College last year before he signed with the Cleveland Naps, started the game Tuesday against the Athletics. During his stay on the mound, which was three and two-thirds innings, he was touched up for ten heavy bingles.

The two spitball artists of Ban Johnson's organization crossed curves Tuesday at Chicago. Russell Ford, who did the flinging for the Yankees, held the White Sox to seven hits in a twelve-inning game, and won by a score of 4 to 3. Big Ed Walsh, who opposed him, allowed eleven hits. Ford had six strike-outs and gave but two free passes, while Walsh fanned seven and signed as many passes.

Ty Cobb, of the Detroit Tigers, was a busy individual in the game against Washington Tuesday. He was at the bat four times, scored two runs

CONTEST

FOR PLAINFIELD PUPILS

The Plainfield Ice & Supply Co. will give a prize of $25 in cash to the pupil of any school, public or private, in Plainfield or North Plainfield, who shall submit the best written advertisement for the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company's business, to occupy a space equal to the space taken by this announcement.

The judges will be the Editors of the Courier-News and Daily Press. The conditions will be as follows:

The advertisement as written should be sent to the office of the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., with a separate sheet of paper attached, bearing the writer's name, and name of the school he or she attends. Both sheets thus submitted will be numbered by the Company in the order received, and the sheet bearing the name of the contestant will be held by the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., and the advertisement with the corresponding number will be sent to the judges, so that the judges will have no knowledge of the name of the writer. The advertisement which is decided to be the best will be so marked, and sent to the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company, who will by reference to the sheets in their possession, determine the name of the successful contestant.

The contest will end May 30, all letters received up to midnight of that day being eligible to the competition.

man of the same vintage as the late Craig A. Marsh and leave it with you for further consideration."

The water question was then mentioned and a councilman asked the Mayor whether he would advise engaging Mr. Hetfield as counsel in that matter. Mr. Moy said he thought Mr. Hetfield could handle the matter, yet if the council desired it could employ associate counsel. That, he said, had frequently been done by the late Mr. Marsh.

At this point one of the members, who appeared rather disconcerted over the Mayor's words, suggested to his colleagues that they retire. It was then that another adjournment was taken to the committee room on the top floor and subsequently a five-minute session of the Council was held, after which the secret session was resumed. It is the belief that the Council will engage Judge Collins as special counsel in the Kensington avenue suit.

DECISION RESERVED IN THE LITTELL SUIT

Unusual interest was manifested in the case of Daniel W. Littell against the Plainfield Firemen's Relief Association, which was tried in the District court today, before Judge William Newcorn, in which the plaintiff sought to recover $11.30 for hotel expenses and car fare while attending the convention of the State Firemen's Relief Association at Atlantic City, in September, 1909. There was no dispute as to Mr. Littell being the accredited delegate, the question in dispute being one of law.

The plaintiff claimed that as an exempt delegate he was entitled to his expenses from the local relief association th same as the relief delegates. V. W. Nash, Jr., represented Mr. Littell and W. A. Cotter, of Newark, was counsel for the defendants. Judge Newcorn reserved his decision. The action was brought under the provisions of a bill introduced by State Senator Ackerman in 1908, which became a law. It is a test case brought in the interest of the State Exempt Firemen's Association of which Mr. Littell was a former president.

ONE DAY CONVENTION OF STATE ENDEAVORERS

Because of the international convention at Atlantic City in July the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union will not have a convention in October of this year. Instead there will be a one-session convention on Saturday, July 8, at Atlantic City. At this meeting Miss Ida B. Stephens, the secretary, and A. R. Baxter, the treasurer, will present their reports, the several increase and missionary banners will be awarded and officers will be chosen. The nominating committee consisting of the Rev. J. Francis Morgan, Ph. D., of Jersey City; Miss Nellie K. Foote, Elizabeth; John Moncrief, Bridgeton; A. E. Jewell, Long Branch; the Rev. W. W. Casselberry, Collingswood, is at work upon its recommendations, and the officers chosen will have the distinction of being elected at a time which it is expected will be pivoted in the history of Christian Endeavor in New Jersey. The momentum gained during the Increase Campaign of the past two years will reach high tide at Atlantic City and it is believed that the inspiration of the international gathering will prevent any receding wave such as sometimes follows special effort.

The enrollment of many new societies the access of members in old societies and the unceasing and self-sacrificing work of the State president, John T. Sproull, which has linked the Endeavorers of the State even closer to him than before, will combine to make the State convention a remarkable gathering despite its brevity.

The hotel headquarters of the State officers will be the Lexington, the hotel which the Union county delegation will be registered.

A large attendance is expected at the State meeting, as there will be many Endeavorers present from all parts of the State.

The various county conventions are being held this month, and reports from those held show large attendance and deep interest. Bergen county met May 9. Somerset county held its convention on May 11, the next evening Union county held its convention in Elizabeth. On Thursday of this week Hudson county held its convention and on the same day the Cape May county C. E. Union, recently formed, held its first convention. Atlantic county will meet in convention on June 2. Hunterdon has just had its convention, electing as president W. Egbert Thomas, one of the State vice-presidents. A very impressive installation service was held both the old and new officers being included in the ceremony.

Fire Chief T. O. Doane is still confined to his home by a severe cold. Mrs. Doane, who has been similarly afflicted, is slightly improved.

The Organist's Journal, containing a series of pieces for the organ selected and arranged from the works of the classical and modern masters, published by William E. Ashmell & Co., of Arlington, includes a composition entitled "Canzonetta," by Mr. Ashmall, which is dedicated to his esteemed friend, Arthur L. Titsworth, organist at Trinity Reformed church. Those who have heard the selection declare it to be most attractive. Mr. Ashmall is one of the best known organists and composers in this part of the country. At present he is the organist at the Clinton Avenue Reformed church, Newark, of which Rev. Albertus T. Broek, brother of Rev. J. Y. Broek, is the pastor.

Lecture on St. Patrick.

Rev. Dr. David A. MacMurray, of Brooklyn, will lecture on "St. Patrick" at the Park Avenue Baptist church tonight. Judge William N. Runyon, Elmer Cutting, Mrs. Robert Humpston and John D. Townsend will sing Irish patriotic and folk songs.

—After a thorough examination it has been determined that it will cost $1,500 to put the $5,000 American auto, owned by the late Ellsworth D. Middlekauff, in complete order. It is now at Martin's auto garage on Park avenue.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church will hold its closing meeting this afternoon, when Mrs. B. J. Shreve, of the First Baptist church, will address the gathering.

A report from Asbury Park, where the General Synod of the Reformed Churhch of America will hold its sessions beginning on June 8th, says that a very likely candidate for the presidency of the Synod to succeed Dr. James I. Vance, formerly of Newark, but now of the South, is Dr. P. Theodore Pockman, pastor of the First Reformed church, of New Brunswick. Dr. Pockman is eminently fitted for the position and would make a fine head for that body.

Funeral of Mrs. Anna L. Hurst.

The funeral services of Mrs. Anna L. Hurst, wife of Charles W. Hurst, was held at the late home on Leland avenue yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Royal A. Stout, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, officiated. The burial was in Hillside cemetery and relatives acted as bearers.

School Pupils' Picnic.

The boys of the North Plainfield High School will enjoy the hospitality of the girls' basketball team on June 10, when their regular annual picnic will be held at Washington Rock.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian church will hold a "lemon squeeze" social in the chapel tomorrow night. The committee arranging the affair promises it will have many unique features. A delegation will go to Plainfield tonight to attend the anniversary service of the Warren Chapel Christian Endeavor Society.

The anniversary of Lakeside Council, Daughters of Liberty, Tuesday night proved a very enjoyable affair. It was largely attended and everyone was pleased with the program provided.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Holloway, of Philadelphia, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. William P. Deering. Mr. Holloway is soon to open a jewelry store in the borough.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Gladden, of the borough, have gone to Lenox, Mass., to spend a short time. Mr. Gladden is recuperating from his recent severe illness.

The G. E. Club will be entertained tomorrow night by Miss Iva Dayton.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Siriski have been entertaining relatives from Elizabeth.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Miss Nellie Pickering substituted for Miss Blanche Lewis, who took Miss Hays class during her abence.

Mrs. P. F. Kaine is entertaining her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hugh McCaffrey, of Elizabeth.

William Johns is grading a ball diamond back of Front street for the Baraca class.

Mrs. Samuel Shields has returned from a visit with friends in Elizabeth.

SAYS MACHINE IS AGAINST WILSON

The Washington correspondent of the Portland (Ore.) Journal sends his paper the following:

"The old Democratic machine, which Woodrow Wilson as Governor smashed into smithereens during the meeting of the New Jersey Legislature, plans to prevent if possible, the election of a delegation to the national convention next year that will support Wilson for the Presidency. The machine is headed by James R. Nugent, State chairman, working in sympathy with former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., who was defeated when he essayed to obtain the Senatorship last winter from James E. Martine, the primary choice.

"This news has reached Washington from reliable sources, and creates deep interest. The political figures, however, reason this way:

"To defeat Woodrow Wilson's friends in their desire to send a national delegation for him for President would spell political death for those who engineered such a scheme. Besides pride in his remarkable achievements as Governor, in getting good laws adopted and in beating the old machine on the Senatorial issue, is the element of State pride, always potent in aid of him who seeks his home delegation as a bona-fide candidate for high office.

"The lesser politicians of New Jersey will know this. They will figure that if they obey the behest of the old machine and seek to prevent a Wilson delegation, they will go out of the political business then and there. That they do not want to do; hence, the leaders of the old machine will find their erstwhile followers among the smaller politicians shying away from such a program. It does not look like a fortunately laid plan to prevent that Wilson delegation from New Jersey in 1912. It will not be successful.

"It is also brought to Washington as known fact that Chairman Nugent sought to induce former Senator Smith not to attempt to prevent the election of Martine and get the Senatorship for himself, arguing that it would be bad politics; bu t that Smith persisted in running for the Senatorship regardless of the political consequences.

"Washington politicans profess incredulity that it would be possible to take New Jersey's delegation away from the friends of Woodrow Wilson in 1912. They reason that Wilson would sweep the State, and that any one who got in front of the broom would be swept away into political oblivion."

Mrs. Henry E. Bergen, of Arlington avenue, who was critically ill with pleurisy last week is convalescing now.

ELECTION OFFICERS TO BE QUESTIONED

The State Civil Service Commission has prepared the test questions for the examination of candidates for the position of election officers under the new Geran law. The applicants will have first to answer all the questions made obligatory in the law with reference to residence and their other qualifications of legal status.

They will be given a physical test that will include one for color blindness, physical defects or deformity. Then they will be tested as to the ability to add and subtract columns of figures, and finally they will be given ten written questions to ascertain what knowledge of the election law they shall have absorbed.

The following is a sample list of questions that will be put. Obviously they are not the actual questions, but have been prepared tentatively to indicate to the candidates the character of the real queries:

One—How many men on the board of registry and election?

Two—If a blind man came in to vote what would you do?

Three—If you saw a man electioneering outside of polling place what would you do? Why?

Four—Can official ballots be distributed outside of polling place?

Five—How are voters to know in advance who the candidates are?

Six—If thirteen candidates for Assembly are to be voted for and fourteen are unscratched, how would you count for Assemblymen?

Seven—How are names not voted indicated on primary ballot.

Eight—In counting ballots, how should officers having this in charge proceed?

Nine—Would you reject a primary ballot because no choice had been made of two candidates for county registrar, but choice had been made of others?

Ten—Can a man vote at the primary who did not vote at the last election and has not registered before primary day?

Candidates will not be permitted to have with them copies of the election law, nor will they be permitted to have resort to any agency for assistance, except their own memory of what they have studied in the law.

EXTRA! EXTRA—Owing to the increased circulation of The Daily Press I presume I will be called upon to receive cut rates for advertising soon. But that is one of my secrets. Don't mention it. You known I like to write ads so well that when you bring your property to me, I shall ask you to take off your hat and leave a check for fifteen dollars for advertising. Shall use this paper and two others, and when you go to give me a check for commission I shall tell you to deduct the fifteen dollars that did the business! Of course, if signs sell your property, I will get left. I hope I will get left. D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours. 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 19 tf

CONEY ISLAND—The first fellow who came to see the Park street, Brooklyn properties near Coney Island, that are to exchange for your property, did not care to go to Coney Island. I just told him that he could count the ties over. He went over and back and is now ready to take one. Now the thing is! Suppose you all go over without me and take one, how will I get to Coney Island? D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours, 159 North avenue, 'phone 1907.

MY TEXT—Old Colony Insurance Co., of Boston, Mass. This is the first time I ever knew myself to take off my hat to the word "Old" because it always looked like a jar to me, but in this case it sounds substantial. And the word Boston sounds like literary to me, or five o'clock teas. And five o'clock teas keep money in circulation for did you ever see one gown that would be literary to two teas That is what I want to do, keep money in circulation, only I want it to circulate my way. That is the reason I represent that word "Old." I insure anything but your life and that I want you to keep; but bring me your houses, and your literary automobiles. D. Foster Updike, 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 22 tf

STRAIGHTBACK—There is a lot of straightback advertising, but who wants a straightback on a hot day? I use to be a pay advertiser. The art of advertising is not saying what you have to say because most people do not care anything about what you say than otherwise. It is saying something that the other fellow cannot forget. For instance yesterday I sold four houses made an appointment for Mr. Conover to show a farm in Hunterdon county today and two more this week; also have Mr. McDonough, our ice men, busy looking up houses for servants, on account of my not "forget" advertising. My reason for telling you all of this is: I do not like the penny a word column; I want an amusement column of my own in a cheaper part of the paper, so you can have more amusement for fifteen dollars. The fifteen dollars is my object, I do not care anything about the commission. Speaking about straightbacks, I use to be a Presbyterian, they called them straightbacks; when I left my country abode to live in the City of Trenton, it used to be the custom for some of the men to stand during prayer. I use to think it awful nice until one time I played peep. I saw all these men standing, looking all over the church. Will some one ask me what they stood for? In other words would they have been doing the same thing bumping their foreheads? Get in my amusement column. D. Foster Updike or my time is yours, 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907 with check for $15. 5 24 4

SICK PEOPLE—I am worried about your pocketbook; for that reason I have built a house on Sumner avenue with better timber and better built than any millionaire's house you ever saw, whose pocketbook I am more worried about. This house has a sick room in it that will cure as many diseases as quack medicine. D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours. 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 19 tf

CHAPTER XXVII.

AND I HAD SAID NOTHING!

I HAD always loved her—that I knew even in the hour of my darkest suspicion—but now I felt free to worship her. A change took place that night in my whole nature, in my aspect of life and my view of women. Fate—I was more inclined now to call it Providence—had shown me the heart of a great and true woman, and I was free to expend all my best impulses in honoring her and loving her, whether she ever looked my way again, received or even acknowledged a homage growing out of such wrong as I had done her and her unfortunate sister.

The next day being Sunday, I had ample time for the reaction bound to follow hours of such exaltation. The desire to see her, to hear from her—if only to learn how she had endured the bitter ordeal of the day before—soon became unbearable. I must know this much at any cost to her feelings or to mine.

After many a struggle with myself I called up Dr. Carpenter on the telephone. From him I learned that she was physically prostrated, but still clear in mind and satisfied of her brother's innocence.

"Doctor, I cannot approach her—I cannot even write—it would seem too presumptuous. But tell her, as you find the opportunity, how I honor her. Do not let her remain under the impression that I am not capable of truly feeling what she has borne and must still bear."

AND I DID NOT KNOW THE MAN.

"I will do what I can," was his reply, and he mercifully cut short the conversation.

This was the event of the morning.

In the afternoon I sat in my window thinking. My powers of reasoning had returned, and the insoluble problem of Adelaide's murder occupied my whole mind. With Carmel innocent, who was there left to suspect? Not Arthur. His fingers were as guiltless as my own of those marks on her throat. Of this I was convinced, difficult as it made my future.

The secret man of guilt might yet come to light, but how or through whose agency I found myself unable to conceive. I had neither the wit not the experience to untangle this confused web.

And so the afternoon passed.

With the coming on of night my mood changed. I wanted air, movement. The closeness of my rooms had become unbearable. As soon as the lamps were lit in the street I started out, and I went—toward the cemetery.

It was a cold night, and there were but few people in the streets. On the boulevard I met nobody. As I neared the cemetery I passed one man; otherwise I was to all appearance alone on this remote avenue. The effect was sinister, or my mood made it so. Yet I did not hasten my steps—the hours till midnight had to be lived through in some way, and why not in this?

The cemetery gates were shut. This I had expected, but I did not need to enter the grounds to have a view of Adelaide's grave. The Cumberland lot occupied a knoll in close proximity to the fence, and my only intention had been to pass this spot and cast one look within in memory of Adelaide. To reach the place, however, I had to turn a corner, and on doing so I saw good reason, as I thought, for not carrying out my intention at this especial time.

Some man—I could not recognize him from where I stood, had forestalled me. Though the night was a dark one, sufficient light shone from the scattered lamps on the opposite side of the way for me to discern his infen figure, crouching against the iron bars and gazing with an intentness which made him entirely oblivious of my presence at the very spot and on the very grave which had been the end of my own pilgrimage. So motionless he stood and so motionless I myself became at this unexpected and significant sight that I presently imagined I could hear his sighs in the dread quiet into which the whole scene had sunk.

Grief deeper than mine spoke in those laboring breaths. Adelaide was mourned by some one as I for all my remorse could never mourn her.

And I did not know the man.

Was not this strange enough to rouse my wonder?

I thought so and was on the point of satisfying this wonder by a quick advance upon this stranger when there happened an uncanny thing which held me in check from sheer astonishment. I was so placed in reference to one of the street lamps I have already mentioned that my shadow fell before me plainly along the snow. This had not attracted my attention until at the point of moving I cast my eyes down and saw two shadows where only one should be.

As I had heard no one behind me and had supposed myself entirely alone with the man absorbed in contemplation of Adelaide's grave I experienced a curious sensation, which, without being fear, held me still for a moment, with my eyes on this second shadow. It did not move any more than mine did. This was significant, and I turned.

A man stood at my back—not looking at me, but at the fellow in front of us. A quiet "Hush!" sounded in my ear, and again I stood still, but only for an instant.

The man at the fence, aroused by my movement perhaps, had turned and, seeing our two figures, started to fly in the opposite direction. Instinctively I darted forward in pursuit, but was soon passed by the man behind me. This caused me to slacken, for I had recognized this latter as he flew by as Sweetwater, the detective, and knew that he would do this work better than myself.

But I reckoned without my host. He went only as far as the spot where the man had been standing. When in my astonishment I advanced upon him there he wheeled about quite naturally in my direction and, accosting me by name, remarked in his genial offhand manner:

"There is no need for us to tire our legs in a chase after that man. I know him well enough."

"And who"— I began.

A quizzical smile answered me. The light was now in our faces and I had a perfect view of his. Its expression quite disarmed me, but I knew, as well as if he had spoken, that I should receive no other reply to my half formed question.

"Are you going back into town?" he asked, as I paused and looked down at the umbrella swinging in his hand. I was sure that he had not held this umbrella when he started by me on the run. "If so, will you allow me to walk beside you for a little way?"

I could not refuse him; besides, I was not sure that I wanted to. "You are quite welcome," said I, and again cast my eye at the umbrella.

"You are wondering where I got this," he remarked, looking down at it in his turn. "I found it leaning against the fence. It gives me all the clew I need to our fleet footed friend. Mr. Ranelagh, will you credit me with good intentions if I ask a question or two which you may or may not be willing to answer?"

"You may ask what you will," said I. "I have nothing to conceal since hearing Miss Cumberland's explanation of her presence at the Whispering Pines."

"The question I am going to ask," he continued presently, "is one which you may consider unpardonable. Let me first express an opinion. You have not told all that you know of that evening's doings."

This called for no reply and I made none.

"I can understand your reticence if your knowledge included the fact of Miss Cumberland's heroic act and her sister's manner of death at the clubhouse."

"But it did not," I asserted, with deliberate emphasis. "I knew nothing of either. My arrival happened later. Miss Cumberland's testimony gave me my first enlightenment on these points. But I did know that the two sisters were there together, for I had a glimpse of the younger as she was leaving the house."

"You had. And are willing to state it now?"

"Assuredly. But any testimony of that kind is for the defense, and your interests are all with the prosecution. Mr. Moffat is the man who should talk to me."

"You are interested, then, in seeing young Cumberland freed?"

"I must be; he is innocent."

The man at my side turned and shot at me one glance which I met calmly.

"Mr. Ranelagh, will you tell me why, when you found yourself in such a dire extremity as to be arrested for this crime on evidence as startling as to call for all and every possible testimony to your innocence, you preserved silence in regard to a fact which you must have then felt would have secured you a most invaluable witness?"

Then it was I regretted my thoughtless promise to be candid with this man. To answer were impossible, yet silence has its confidences, too. In my dilemma I turned toward him, and just then we stepped within the glare of an electric light pouring from some open doorway. I caught his eye and was astonished at the change which took place in him.

Hahne & Co. Broad, New & Halsey Sts., Newark, N. J.

"Don't answer," he muttered volubly. "It isn't necessary. I understand the situation now, and you shall never regret that you met Caleb Sweetwater on your walk this evening. Will you trust me, sir? A detective who loves his profession is no gabbler. Your secret is as safe with me as if you had buried it in the grave."

"DON'T ANSWER," HE MUTTERED.

And I had said nothing.

At the next moment he was halfway around a corner and in another moment was out of sight.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

THE ARROW OF DEATH.

IN my first glance around the courtroom the next morning I sought first for Carmel and then for the detective, Sweetwater. Neither was visible. But this was not true of Ella Fulton. She had come in on her father's arm, closely followed by the erect figure of her domineering mother.

The entrance of the defendant cut short my contemplation of any mere spectator. The change in him was so marked that I was conscious of it before I really saw him. Every eye had reflected it, and it was no surprise to me when I noted the relieved, almost cheerful, aspect of his countenance as he took his place and met his counsel's greeting with a smile, the first, I believe, which had been seen on his face since his sister's death.

The crier announced the opening of the court, and the defense proceeded by the calling of Ella Fulton to the witness stand.

I need not linger over her testimony. It was very short and contained but one surprise. She had stated under direct examination that she had waited and watched for Arthur's return that whole night and was positive that he had not passed through their grounds again after that first time in the early evening. This was just what I had expected from her. But the prosecution remembered the snowfall, and in her cross examination on this point she acknowledged that it was very thick, much too thick for her to see her own gate distinctly, but added that this only made her surer of the fact she had stated, for, finding that she could not see, she had dressed herself for the storm and gone out into the driveway to watch there and had so watched until the town clock struck 3.

This did not help the prosecution. Sympathy could not fail to be with this young and tremulous girl, heroic in her love, if weak in other respects, and when on her departure from the stand she cast one deprecatory glance at the man for whom she had thus sacrificed her pride and, meeting his eye fixed upon her with anything but ingratitude, flushed and faltered till she with difficulty found her way the sentiments of the onlookers became so apparent that the judge's gavel was called into requisition before order could be restored and the next witness summoned to testify.

This witness was no less a person than Arthur himself. Recalled by his counsel, he was reminded of his former statement that he had left the clubhouse in a hurry because he heard his sister Adelaide's voice and was now asked if hers was the only voice he had heard.

His answer revealed much of his mind.

"No; I heard Carmel's answering her."

This satisfying Mr. Moffat, he was passed over to Mr. Fox, and a short cross examination ensued on this point.

"You heard both your sisters speaking?"

"Yes, sir."

"Any of their words or only their voices?"

"I heard one word."

"What word?"

"The word 'Elwood.'"

"In which voice?"

"In that of my sister Adelaide."

"And you fled?"

"Immediately."

"Leaving your two sisters alone in this cold and out of the way house?"

"I did not think they were alone."

"Who did you think was with them?"

"I have already mentioned the name."

"Yet you left them?"

"Yes. I have already explained that. I was engaged in a mean act. I was ashamed to be caught at it by Adelaide. I preferred flight. I had no premonition of tragedy—any such tragedy as afterward occurred. I understood neither of my sisters, and my thoughts were only for myself."

"Had not this younger sister even enjoined secrecy upon you in asking you to harness the horse?"

"Yes, sir."

"Yet you heard the two together in this remote building without surprise?"

"No; I must have felt surprise, but I didn't stop to analyze my feelings. Afterward I turned it over in my mind and tried to make something out of the whole thing, but then I was far out on the links. They were having it out, I thought, in the presence of the man who had made all this trouble between them."

"And you left them to the task?"

"Yes, sir, but not without a struggle. I was minded several times to return. This I have testified to before."

"Did this struggle consume forty minutes?"

"It must have, and more, if I entered the hotel in Cuthbert road at the hour they state."

Mr. Fox gave up the game, and Mr. Moffat rested his case.

There was no testimony offered in rebuttal, and the court took a recess.

When it reassembled I cast another anxious glance around. Still no Carmel nor any signs of Sweetwater. I could understand her absence, but not his, and it was in a confusion of feeling which was fast getting the upper hand of me that I turned my attention to Mr. Moffat and the plea he was about to make for his youthful client.

I felt a sudden slow and creeping chill seize and shake me, as I have heard people say they experienced when uttering the common expression, "Some one is walking over my grave," when I heard these words, delivered in the slow and but slightly raised tones with which Mr. Moffat invariably began his address:

"May it please the court and gentlemen of the jury, my learned friend of the prosecution has shown great discretion in that, so far as appears from the trend of his examinations, he is planning no attempt to explain the many silences and the often forbidding attitude of my young client by any theory save the obvious one—the natural desire of a brother to hide his only remaining sister's connection with a tragedy of whose details he was ignorant and concerning which he had formed a theory derogatory to her potion as a young and well bred woman.

"Fear for a loved one, even in one whom you will probably hear described as a dissipated man, of selfish tendencies and hitherto unbrotherly qualities is a great miracle worker. No sacrifice seems impossible which serves as a guard for one so situated and so threatened."

Here Mr. Moffat recapitulated those events, but always from the standpoint of the defendant, a standpoint which necessarily brought before the jury the many excellent reasons which his client had for supposing this crime to have resulted solely from the conflicting interests represented by that furtively passed note and the visit of two girls instead of one to the Whispering Pines. It was very convincing. At the proper moment Mr. Moffat said:

LEGAL NOTICES.

An Ordinance

AN ORDINANCE TO ESTABLISH A BUILDING CODE.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

CHAPTER I.

SECTION 1.

Purpose of Code.

The Building Code.—The following provisions shall constitute the Building Code of the City of Plainfield, and shall affect and relate to the construction, alteration, demolition or removal of buildings or structures erected or to be erected in said City.

CHAPTER II.

Powers, Duties, Penalties, etc.

SECTION 2.

(1) Powers and Duties of the Inspector of Buildings.—The Inspector of Buildings shall have power, and it shall be his duty, subject to the provisions of this Code, to issue notices of violation, certificates, permits and notices of unsafe conditions and survey, to make rules and regulations and to issue notices thereunder; to approve or reject plans, applications, detail drawings and amendments thereto; to decide upon and make orders in relation to variations and modifications; to pass upon questions relative to the mode, manner of construction, or materials to be used in the erection, alteration or removal of buildings, to require that such mode, manner of construction or materials shall conform to the true intent and meaning of the several provisions of this Code; to authorize the Corporation Counsel to institute any and all actions that may seem appropriate or necessary for the enforcement of its provisions; or if in the judgment of the said Inspector of Buildings the interests of the City so require, to make report on any matter to the Common Council with request for instructions.

(2) During Building Operations.—The provisions of this Code shall not prevent the lawful, ordinary and temporary use of building materials, structures and appurtenances during building operations upon city, public or private property, except as herein otherwise provided.

(3) Order Thereon, With or Without a Hearing.—The Inspector may deny any application without a hearing, or may fix a date within a reasonable time for a hearing upon such application, but shall, as soon as a decision is rendered, enter an order thereon. Such application, decision and order shall be filed in the Office of the Inspector of Buildings. If the application be granted or denied, a certified copy of the order thereon shall be immediately issued by the Inspector of Buildings to the applicant.

(4) Inspection During Construction.—It shall be the duty of the Inspector personally or by Deputy, to diligently inspect every building while in course of erection, and to see that it is constructed in accordance with all ordinances of the City relating thereto.

(5) Duty of Counsel to Proceed.—The Inspector of Buildings shall authorize the Corporation Counsel in writing, immediately upon receipt of evidence of a violation, or upon failure of a person to comply with a notice concerning a violation within the time specified therein, to institute the proper action to enforce the provisions of this Code. The Corporation Counsel shall thereupon, if the facts of the case so warrant, institute such an action on behalf of the City or apply for such an order as may seem appropriate to restrain, correct or remove such violation or enforce said ordinances or collect the penalty thereof, or punish the offending parties. If in the opinion of the Corporation Counsel, the interests of the City so require, he may in the first instance make report to the Common Council and the Common Council may then instruct him to take such action as it may deem proper.

(6) Notices in Writing.—All written notices of violation shall be issued in duplicate by the Inspector of Buildings, shall have his name and seal affixed thereto, and one shall immediately be filed in his office.

(7) Penalty and Persons Liable.—That the owner or owners of any building or structure or part thereof, upon which any violation of this ordinance in any part or section may be placed, or shall exist and any architect or engineer, or superintendent, or other persons who shall fail to comply with any of the requirements or provisions of this ordinance in any particular, or who shall in any degree depart from the conditions of the detailed specifications and plans submitted, or of any permit issued thereunder, shall severally be deemed to have violated this ordinance, and upon conviction shall, for each and every violation, respectively, be punished by a fine not exceeding Twenty (20) dollars, and a further penalty not exceeding Fifty Dollars for each day the provisions of this ordinance are not complied with by the owner, contractor or such other persons as shall have control of the building; provided, that the penalties provided by this paragraph shall not apply to the particular offences specified in the next succeeding paragraph of this section.

(8) Additional Penalty.—That any and all of the aforementioned persons who after service of due and proper notice as herein prescribed, shall fail to comply with said notice within ten days after such service, shall on conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding One Hundred (100) dollars.

(9) Service of Notice.—Said notice of violation shall contain a description of the building, premises or property upon which said violation shall have been put, or may exist, or which may be deemed dangerous or unsafe, or to which said notice shall refer; shall specify the dangerous or unsafe condition or other violation of the ordinance complained of, and require removal of any dangerous or unsafe conditions, and strict compliance with the ordinance, and may be served personally upon the person or persons liable for violation, or by leaving said notice at the residence or place of business of such person or persons, or by leaving said notice with a member of the family of such person or persons over fourteen years of age, informing such person with whom said notice is left, of its contents.

Service by Mail.—If the person or persons or any of them to whom the said notice is addressed do not reside in said City, and cannot by diligent search be found therein, then the said notice may be served by posting a copy of the same in a conspicuous place upon the premises, and by also depositing a copy thereof in the post office of said City, enclosed in a sealed wrapper addressed to the said person or persons at his or their last known place of residence with the postage paid thereon; and said posting and mailing of a copy of said notice shall be equivalent to a personal service of said notice.

(10) Remitting Penalties.—The Common Council may in its discretion, good and sufficient cause being shown therefor, remit any fine or fines, penalty or penalties, which any person or persons may have incurred or may hereafter incur under any of the provisions of this section; but no fine or penalty shall be remitted for any such violation until the act or omission constituting such violation, shall have been satisfactorily corrected and such correction evidenced by the Inspector's certificate.

(11) Seal and Badge.—The Inspector of Buildings shall have a seal and badge, to be approved by the Mayor.

(12) Right of Entry.—The Inspector of Buildings or his duly authorized Deputy, so far as it may be necessary for the performance of his duties, shall have the right to enter upon any real estate or buildings in said City upon exhibiting his badge.

(13) Inspector's and Employees' Liability.—Neither the Inspector of Buildings nor any person appointed, hired or employed by him, when acting in good faith and without malice, shall be liable for damages by reason of anything done by him under the provisions of this Code.

(14) Accounts, Annual Estimates; Expenditures.—The Inspector of Buildings shall keep accurate and detailed accounts, in a form approved by the Mayor, of all moneys received and expended by him, the source from which they are received and the purposes for which they are expended.

(15) Record of Applications; Public Documents.—The Inspector of Buildings shall keep a record of all applications presented to him concerning, affecting or relating to the construction, alteration or removal of buildings. Such record shall include the date of the filing of each application; the name and address of the applicant; the name and address of the owner of the land upon which the building mentioned in said application is situated; the name and address of the architect, engineer and builders employed thereon; a designation of the premises by street number, or otherwise, sufficient to identify the same; a statement of the character and proposed use of such building, and a brief statement of the nature of the application, together with a memorandum of the decision of the Inspector upon such application and the date of rendition of such decision. The books containing such records and all papers required to be filed in the office of the Inspector of Buildings are hereby declared to be public records and report of the same shall be sent to the Common Council monthly.

(16) Unsafe and Dangerous Buildings, etc.—If in the opinion of the Inspector of Buildings, a building becomes unsafe or dangerous to life, limb or property, or because of any defective or illegal work, or work in violation of this Code, he or such person as he may duly authorize, may enjoin and restrain further work upon, remove all violations from, or vacate and prevent the use of the property, temporarily hire such experts, employees, mechanics, workmen and laborers, temporarily hire or purchase and furnish such materials, ways, works and means in and about the same as may be necessary to remove the danger, and may, when public safety requires, temporarily close the public highways adjacent thereto and require the assistance of the police or other Departments of the City of Plainfield.

(17) Falling Buildings, Aid to the Injured; Search for the Dead and Missing.—Should a building fall, or in the opinion of the Inspector of Buildings, persons be entrapped, he shall, with the aid and assistance of the Fire and Police Departments, or any other Department of the City called upon by him, immediately examine the building, take such steps as may be necessary to assist and aid the injured, and search for the dead and missing. He shall immediately take all necessary steps to prevent any further injury to life, limb or property, until further action, pursuant to the provisions of this Code. For such purpose he may temporarily hire the persons and temporarily hire or purchase the necessary materials, ways, works and means, called for by this Section.

CHAPTER III.

Applications, Plans and Drawings; Ordinary Repairs Without Notice; Demolishing Buildings.

SECTION 3.

Applications, Plans and Drawings.

(1) Approval Thereof.—No building or structure shall be erected, altered or removed, except in conformity with the provisions of this Code, and after written approval of the Inspector of Buildings of the applications, plans and detail drawings, or the issuance of a written permit, and the work of erection, alteration, or removal shall strictly conform to such applications, plans and detail drawings, or to such permit, provided that if in the judgment of the Inspector of Buildings the erection of any proposed building or other structure or the proposed alteration of any existing building or other structure would be prejudicial to the interests of the City, he shall in such case, report thereon to the Common Council, and take such action thereon as the Common Council shall direct, and in the meantime shall suspend his ruling upon the application for such permit.

(2) Applications; filing.—Before the erection or alterations of any building is begun, there shall be submitted to the Inspector of Buildings a verified application in duplicate on appropriate blanks to be furnished by said Inspector of Buildings, containing a detailed statement of the specifications and a full and complete copy of the plans of such proposed work, its intended cost, and such detailed structural drawings thereof as the Inspector of Buildings may require. The application shall state the full name, residence and business address (by street and number, whenever possible) of the owner of the building and of the owner of the real estate upon which the building is to be erected, altered or removed, describing the location thereof, and setting forth his authority to erect, alter or remove the same. In case adequate plans and statements are presented, the Inspector of Buildings may, at his discretion, issue an approval and permit for the construction of a part of the building before the approval of applications and plans for the complete structure.

(3) Amendments Thereto.—Applications to amend original applications, plans and detail drawings may be made in the same manner as required for original applications, and the Inspector of Buildings shall approve them, provided that application, plans and detail drawings, when so amended shall be in conformity with the provisions of this Code, and requirements of the Inspector of Buildings; and provided further, that if in the judgment of the Inspector of Buildings the allowing of the proposed amendments would be prejudicial to the interests of the City, he shall report thereon to the Common Council, and take such action thereon as the Common Council shall direct, and, in the meantime, shall suspend his ruling upon the application for such amendments.

(4) Revocation of Approval.—The Inspector of Buildings shall have power to revoke said approval in case of any intentional departure from the approved application, plans and detail drawings, or in case there shall be found in any application or any paper referred to therein any false statement or representation as to a material fact relating to the erection, alteration or removal of the building.

SECTION 4.

Ordinary Repairs Without Notice.

Ordinary repairs only may be made to a building without notice to the Inspector of Buildings, but such repairs shall not be construed to include the cutting away of any constructional support, whether wall, pier, column, girder or beams, or the removal, change or closing of any staircase or exit, or the erection, construction or placing of any furnace, heater, or heating system in any building.

SECTION 5.

Demolishing Buildings.

(1) Application.—Before the demolition or removal of any building is begun a verified application, on appropriate blanks to be furnished by the Inspector of Buildings, containing a statement of the facts in relation thereto, and as to the ownership and location thereof, shall be filed with the Inspector of Buildings, and a written permit obtained from him. Such permit shall expire by limitation two months from the date of its issue. The Inspector of Buildings shall be given not less than twenty-four hours' notice before the demolition of any building is begun.

(2) Demolishing the Building.—In demolishing any building, story after story shall be completely removed. No material shall be left upon a floor of any building in the course of demolition, but the bricks, timbers and other parts of each story shall be lowered to the ground immediately upon displacement. The material to be removed shall be properly wet to lay the dust incident to its removal.

(3) Removal to Other Site.—Permits for removal shall specify the time within which the removal shall be made. The removal of any wooden building or structure from without to within the fire limits is absolutely prohibited. No building that is not fireproof shall be removed from any point in the city limits to any point within or without the city without the permission of the Common Council first obtained, and no building shall be removed through the public streets of the city without the permission of the Common Council first obtained. Every application for permission to remove any building shall specifically state the place from and the place to which it is proposed to remove said building, and the street or streets, if any, through which it is proposed to carry the same.

(4) No frame building within the fire limits shall be removed except to lot without the fire limits.

CHAPTER IV.

Classification of Buildings and Construction.

SECTION 6.

Classification of Buildings.

(1) For the purposes of this ordinance all buildings within the city limits coming under its provisions shall be divided into three general classes, to be known as Public Buildings, Residence Buildings and Business Buildings. These general classes shall in turn be sub-divided into six classes, as designated in this section. Unless special exception is made, every provision of this ordinance applying to the erection of any building of a class shall apply to all buildings of that class, either when the general class or class designated alphabetically is referred to. In case any building is not specifically provided for or there is any doubt as to its classification, the Inspector of Buildings shall decide the class to which it belongs, the classification to be made according to the character of the building and the purposes for which it is intended. Whenever the purpose or use of a building is that it properly would come under one class and in part under another class, it shall be constructed in its various parts so as to comply with all the provisions relating to each respective class. In case there is a conflict of provisions the provision securing the greater safety shall apply.

Public Buildings.

(2) Public Buildings shall be construed to mean and include all structures to which the general public has access, or in which there may be a congregation of people for civic, political, educational, religious or amusement purposes, and shall include the following:

Class A.—Municipal Buildings, Court Houses, Armories, Police Stations, Jails, Fire Houses, Schools, Colleges, Libraries, Museums, Theatres, Hospitals, Asylums. All buildings of this class hereafter erected shall be of fireproof construction.

Class B.—Churches, Amusement Halls, Public Halls, Lodge Rooms, Exhibition Buildings. All buildings of this class hereafter erected over thirty-six feet six inches in height shall be of fireproof construction. When under thirty-six feet six inches in height the first floor shall be of fireproof construction.

Residence Buildings.

(3) Shall be construed to mean and include all structures in which sleeping accommodations are provided and shall include the following:

Class C.—Hotels, Lodging Houses, Dormitories. All buildings of this class hereafter erected over thirty-six feet six inches in height shall be of fireproof construction. When under thirty-six feet six inches in height the first floor shall be of fireproof construction.

Class D.—Tenement Houses, Apartment Houses, Dwellings. All buildings of this class hereafter erected over fifty-nine feet in height shall be of fireproof construction. When over three stories in height, if the floor beams are of wood, all plaster on ceilings and stud partitions below the first and second tiers of said beams shall be on metal lath or approved plaster board ⅜ inch thick, strongly secured.

(4) All other residences within the City limits to be constructed as required by the general conditions of this Code.

Business Buildings.

(5) Shall be construed to mean and include all structures used for, or adapted to, the transaction of business, the operation of machinery, the manufacture or storage of machinery or materials, the housing of horses or live stock, or for any other industrial purpose, and shall include the following:

Class E.—Office Buildings, Lofts, Stores, Warehouses, Restaurants, Stables, Factories, Work Shops and Printing Houses. All buildings of this class hereafter erected over fifty-nine feet in height shall be of fireproof construction.

Class F.—Light and Power Plants, Car Barns, Garages, Laboratories, Foundries. All buildings of this class hereafter erected shall be of fireproof construction.

SECTION 7.

Classification of Construction.

For the purposes of this Code the various types of construction shall be classified and defined as Frame, Mill, Non-Fireproof, Reinforced Concrete and Fireproof Construction.

(A) Frame Building.—For requirements as to Frame Buildings, see Chapters 26, 27 and 28.

(B) Non-Fireproof Construction—The term Non-Fireproof Construction shall apply to all buildings or structures of which the exterior walls shall be of stone, brick, concrete, or other approved masonry of the thickness provided in this Code for varying conditions in height and area and in which the floors and roof, interior supports and other interior construction, may be wholly or in part of wood or other combustible materials, or of iron or steel that is not protected in the manner approved by this Code for fireproof construction.

(C) Mill Construction.—The term "Mill Construction," shall apply to buildings without hollow or concealed spaces, having brick walls not less than twelve inches in thickness for the first story and increasing in thickness according to section 46 of this Code; Roofs shall be of three-inch splined planking spiked directly to roof timbers not less than six inches in the least dimensions, covered with metal or other approved standard incombustible roof covering. Floors shall be solid without openings, constructed of not less than three-inch splined planking covered with one inch top flooring laid crosswise or diagonally, properly nailed. Between the top flooring and the planking shall be placed not less than two thicknesses of waterproof material carefully laid to break joints and flashed at least three inches around all walls, posts, columns and openings, with mouldings or mopboards. Size and spacing of floor timbers shall be suitable for the load to be carried, but the timbers shall in no case be less than eight inches in the least dimension, and shall rest on top of girders or on iron or steel plates in the wall. Girders shall rest on iron or steel plates in the walls and on iron or steel caps on columns, so arranged as to be self-releasing. All columns and posts shall rest on pintles, and the size and spacing thereof shall be suitable for the load to be carried, but no column or post for the top story shall be less than six inches in the least dimension or eight inches for all other stories. Columns, girders and beams, if of wood, shall be of solid material, and if of iron or steel shall be protected as called for in regular fireproof construction. All elevators, stairs, belts, pipes, shaftings and vents piercing floors shall be enclosed in towers having brick walls not less than eight inches in thickness, or reinforced concrete walls not less than six inches in thickness, and all openings therein shall be protected by standard automatic self-closing fire doors.

Buildings of mill construction shall not exceed seventy-five feet in height.

(D) Reinforced Concrete Construction—For description of reinforced concrete construction see sections 22 and 104.

(E) Fireproof Construction.—For description of fireproof construction see chapters 23 and 24 of this Code.

CHAPTER V.

Limits of Area—Light and Ventilation.

SECTION 8.

(1) No building hereafter erected shall occupy a larger area of the building lot than the following: No buildings in Class A, B, C, D and E shall occupy more than ninety per centum of the lot area above the second tier of beams, where built on corner lots.

(2) No buildings in said classes shall occupy more than ninety-five per centum of the lot area above the second tier of beams where built on corner lots where the area of the lot does not exceed two thousand five hundred square feet.

(3) For buildings on corner lots of area exceeding two thousand five hundred square feet, the area in excess of two thousand five hundred square feet shall be governed by Clause One covering interior lots.

(4) All buildings occupying corner lots, fronting on three or more streets, where the maximum width does not exceed seventy-five feet, may occupy the entire lot area.

(5) For buildings covering an entire block not more than seventy-five feet wide no court shall be required.

SECTION 9.

Floor Areas Between Fire Walls.

(1) In all non-fireproof buildings hereafter erected, the open floor area between fire walls at least twelve inches in thickness shall not exceed the following; when fronting on one street, five thousand square feet; when fronting on two streets, ten thousand square feet. When a standard equipment of automatic sprinklers is provided the above floor areas may be increased fifty per centum.

(2) The open floor area between fire walls at least twelve inches in thickness of all fireproof buildings hereafter erected, except such buildings as are occupied for offices, hotels, armories, churches, light and power stations, exhibition buildings, theatres and such buildings as are herein otherwise provided for, shall not exceed the following: When fronting on one street, seven thousand five hundred square feet; when fronting on two streets, ten thousand square feet; when fronting on three or more streets, twelve thousand five hundred square feet; when a standard equipment of automatic sprinklers is provided, above areas may be increased fifty per centum.

(3) The open floor area between fire walls at least twelve inches in thickness of all fireproof buildings occupied as stores, when provided with a standard equipment of automatic sprinklers, shall not exceed above or below first story the general limits of area as herein provided for fireproof buildings. The area of the first story may, however, be increased, but shall not exceed thirty thousand square feet between fire walls. All interior openings in fire walls of such buildings shall not exceed eighty square feet in area and shall not be placed nearer than forty feet on centres.

SECTION 10.

CHAPTER VI.

Fire Limits.

(1) Fire Limits.—No frame building or construction except as provided in Sections 112 and 113 of this Code, shall be built hereafter, in the City of Plainfield within the following limits hereinafter referred to as the fire limits of said city.

(2) Extent of.—In the district contained within the City of Plainfield within the following boundary lines or within the additional space included within lines drawn one hundred and fifty feet beyond and parallel to the said boundary lines:

Beginning at the intersection of the centre line of Green Brook and the centre line of Elm Place, thence extending along the centre line of Elm Place to its intersection with the centre line of East Front Street, thence along the centre line of East Front Street to its intersection with the centre line of Washington Street, thence along the centre line of Washington Street to its intersection with the centre line of East Fourth Street, thence along the centre line of East Fourth Street to its intersection with the centre line of Watchung Avenue, thence along the centre line of Watchung Avenue, to its intersection with the centre line of East Fifth Street, thence along the centre lines of East Fifth Street and West Fifth Street respectively to the intersection of the centre line of the latter with the center line of Madison Avenue, thence along the centre line of Madison Avenue to its intersection with the centre line of West Fourth Street, thence along the centre line of West Fourth Street to the centre line of Central Avenue, thence along the centre line of Central Avenue to its intersection with the centre line of West Front Street, thence along the centre line of West Front Street to its intersection with the centre line of Grove Street, thence along the centre line of Grove Street to its intersection with the centre line of Green Brook, thence through the centre line of Green Brook to the place of beginning.

(3) Repairs to existing roofs.—Ordinary repairs to any existing combustible roofing within the said fire limits of said city may be made to the extent of twenty-five per centum thereof without permit therefor; but should necessary repairs or injury by fire, the elements or otherwise, require renewal of said roofing in excess of twenty-five per centum of its area, then said renewal in part or whole shall be made of metal, slate, tile, gravel, or other approved incombustible material.

CHAPTER VII.

Explosives—Combustibles—Storage of, Etc.

Within the City Limits.

SECTION 11.

(1) Chemicals, Explosives, Etc.—For the purpose of ascertaining all neglect and violations of ordinances designed for the more effectual prevention of fires, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Buildings or his deputy to enter into or upon any lands or buildings for the examination of receptacles for ashes, ovens, boilers, heaters and chemical apparatus, which may be dangerous as tending to cause or promote fires; and it shall be his duty to direct the owner or occupant of any defective apparatus or building, by notice signed by said Inspector, to alter the same in such manner and within such reasonable time as he may deem necessary. He shall also examine, at reasonable hours in the daytime, and it shall be lawful for him for that purpose, to enter into and upon, all buildings and places where any oils, chemicals, gunpowder, saltpetre, hemp, flax, tow, hay, rushes, firewood, boards, shingles, shavings, or other combustible materials may be lodged; and whenever he shall discover any neglect or violation of any such ordinances, or anything that is detrimental to public safety he shall notify in writing the owner or occupants of the building wherein such unlawful or unsafe conditions exist to immediately cause the same to be corrected, and it shall be the duty of the person so notified to comply with such notice. And in case of the delay or refusal of the owner or occupant of such building, or the possessor of such combustible materials to correct said unlawful or unsafe conditions and to alter, remove or secure the same within the time and in the manner directed in said notice, the person offending shall be served with a notice of violation and be liable for the penalties therefore as per Section Two of this Code.

(2) Storage of Rags and Waste Paper—It shall be unlawful to store rags or waste paper in any building inside of the fire limits, except that such a building is used exclusively for the storage of rags or waste paper, and before any such rags or waste paper can be stored in any building a permit in writing for such storage shall be obtained from the Inspector of Buildings. The violation of this section shall cause the building to be vacated, and subject the owner, tenant or lessee, or both, to a fine of one hundred dollars, or imprisonment for thirty days, or both.

(3) Lumber, Boxes, Etc.—When lumber, boxes, second-hand building material or other combustible material are located or piled in such a manner as in the opinion of the Inspector of Buildings is dangerous to life, limb or property, then the Inspector of Buildings has authority to regulate and remove the same.

CHAPTER VIII.

Floor Loads—Weights of Materials.

SECTION 12.

Floor Loads.

(1) The dead loads in all buildings shall consist of the actual weight of walls, framing, floors, roofs and all permanent construction except partitions not over four inches in thickness, exclusive of plaster.

(2) The live loads shall include all forms of loading, other than the weight of the material entering into the construction of the building.

(3) Every floor shall be of sufficient strength to bear safely the weight to be imposed thereon in addition to the weight of the materials of which the floor is composed. Each floor of every building of the following classes shall be of sufficient strength in all its parts to bear safely upon each and every superficial foot of its surface a minimum of not less than the live loads specified in the following table:

Class of Building.	Ground and Lower Floors, Pounds Per Square Foot.	Upper Floors, Pounds Per Square Foot.
A	100	100
B	100	100
C	90	50
D	75	50
Office Buildings	100	75
Lofts, Stores, Markets, Stables, Factories, Workshops, Libraries, Museums	125	125
Warehouses, Printing Houses	200	200
Restaurants	100	60
Foundries	200	200
Garages	125	125

(4) The roofs of all buildings having a pitch of less than twenty degrees shall be proportioned to bear safely forty pounds upon every superficial foot of their surface in addition to the weight of materials composing same. If the pitch be more than twenty degrees the live load shall be assumed at thirty pounds upon every superficial foot measured on a horizontal plane.

(5) For sidewalks over vaults between the curb and area lines live loads shall be taken at three hundred pounds upon every square foot.

(6) Every column, post or other vertical support shall be of sufficient strength to bear safely the weight of the portion of each and every floor depending upon it for support in addition to the weight required as before stated to be supported safely upon said portion of said floors.

(7) No safe shall be placed in any building on a stair-landing or in a stair-hall, nor shall its weight be carried by any beam which also carries the floor of any landing or stair-hall.

SECTION 13.

Loads on Floors to be Distributed.

The weight placed on any of the floors of any building shall be safely distributed thereon. The Inspector of Buildings may require the owner or occupants of any building, or of any portion thereof, to redistribute the load on any floor, or to lighten such load where he deems it to be necessary, and on failure to comply with such request the Inspector shall cause the floor or building to be vacated as unsafe.

SECTION 14.

Strength of Existing Floors to be Calculated.

In all buildings of Classes A, E and F, now existing or hereafter to be erected, the weight that each floor will safely sustain upon each superficial foot thereof, or upon each varying part of such floor, shall be estimated by the owner or occupant, or by a competent person employed by the owner or occupant. Such estimate shall be reduced to writing on printed forms furnished by the Inspector of Buildings, stating the material, size, distance apart, and span of beams and girders, posts or columns; support floors and the purposes they are to be used for by the person making the same, and it shall thereupon be filed in the office of the Inspector of Buildings. But if the Inspector of Buildings shall have cause to doubt the correctness of said estimate, he is empowered to revise and correct the same, and for the purpose of such revision the Inspector of Buildings may enter any building and remove so much of the floor or other portion thereof as may be required to make necessary measurements and examinations. When the correct estimate of the weight that the floors in any such building will safely sustain has been ascertained, as hereinbefore provided, the Inspector of Buildings shall approve the same and thereupon the owner or occupant of said building, or of any portion thereof, shall post a copy of such approved estimate in a conspicuous place on each story, or varying parts of each story, of the building to which it relates. No person or persons hereafter erected is occupied and used, in whole or in part, for any of the purposes aforesaid, and before any building erected prior to the passage of this Code, but not at such time occupied for any of the aforesaid purposes, is occupied or used, in whole or in part, for any of said purposes, until the weight that each floor will safely sustain upon each superficial foot thereof shall be ascertained and posted in a conspicuous place on each story, or varying parts of each story, of the building to which it relates. No person shall place, or cause or permit to be placed on any floor or any building a greater load than the safe load thereof, as correctly estimated and ascertained as herein provided. Any expense necessarily incurred in removing any floor or other portion of any building for the purpose of making any examination herein provided for shall be paid by the person or persons on whose behalf said estimate was made.

SECTION 15.

Weights of Certain Materials.

In computing the weights of materials:—

(1) A cubic foot of common brickwork shall be deemed to weigh one hundred and twenty pounds; pressed brick, one hundred and thirty-five pounds.

(2) Sandstone, white marble, granite, and other kinds of building stone shall be deemed to weigh one hundred and seventy pounds per cubic foot.

(3) A cubic foot of stone concrete shall be deemed to weigh one hundred and forty-four pounds.

(4) A cubic foot of cinder concrete mixed in the proportions specified in Section 22, when rammed, shall be deemed to weigh ninety-six pounds; when not rammed, eighty-four pounds. A cubic foot of cinder concrete fill, when not rammed, shall be deemed to weigh sixty pounds.

CHAPTER IX.

Quality of Materials.

SECTION 16.

Brick.

(1) The brick used in all buildings shall be good, hard, well burnt brick, and thoroughly dampened before being used, except in freezing weather, when they shall be laid dry. Not more than five per centum shall be bats or broken brick.

(2) When old brick are used in the construction of any wall they shall be thoroughly cleaned and dampened before being used, and they shall be whole and good, hard, well burnt brick of uniform size.

SECTION 17.

Hollow Building Blocks.

(1) Moulded or cast hollow building blocks, of concrete, cement, terra cotta, or other hard, incombustible material may be used for walls of any building not more than thirty-six feet in height, provided the materials are not stressed beyond the safe limits fixed in this section.

(2) No such blocks shall be used until complete and satisfactory tests have been made by the manufacturer under the direction of the Inspector of Buildings, in accordance with the requirements of Section 25, of this Code, and until an approval for the use of such blocks has been obtained.

(3) No blocks shall be approved that do not at the age of twenty-eight days or less develop a compressive strength of at least one thousand five hundred pounds per square inch of net section.

(4) In no cases shall the hollow spaces of a block exceed thirty-three and one-third per centum of the cross section of the block.

(5) The thickness of the walls or webs of such blocks shall be not less than one-fourth of the height of the blocks, but in no case less than one inch thick.

(6) All such walls shall be laid in Portland cement mortar.

(7) Buildings of hollow terra cotta blocks, or hollow cement blocks, laid in cement mortar, shall be classed as frame construction when floors and roofs are of wood. The blocks shall not be less than six inches thick for a one-story building; eight inches for the first story and six inches for the second story in a two-story building; eight inches for the first and second stories and six inches for the third story in a three story building. If the walls are exposed to the weather the blocks shall be of dense material, vitrified in burning, or they may be of semi-porous material covered on the exposed side with at least one inch of cement plaster. Semi-porous terra cotta blocks shall be well scored, grooved or roughened to retain this coating.

(8) Whenever girders or joists rest upon walls so that there is a concentrated load of over two tons, the blocks supporting the girders or joists shall be made solid by filling at least two contiguous blocks with cement concrete, mixed in proportion of one part cement, two parts sand and four parts broken stone or gravel. Wherever walls are decreased in thickness, the top course of the thicker wall shall be made solid in the same manner.

(9) No semi-porous hollow blocks shall be loaded in excess of one hundred pounds per square inch of net end section in compression or one hundred pounds per square inch if laid on the side, and if dense tiles are used they shall not be loaded in excess of two hundred pounds per square inch if set on end, or one hundred and fifty pounds per square inch if on the side. All piers and buttresses that support loads in excess of five tons shall be filled solid with cement concrete. Lintels spanning over four feet six inches in the clear shall rest on blocks filled solid with concrete, or an equivalent in iron support.

(10) When used for curtain walls between supporting piers not over twenty feet apart on centres not more than twelve feet in height between girders, hard burned clay standard blocks not less than eight inches in thickness, set in cement may be used, re-inforcing by concrete filling to the extent necessary and directed by the Inspector.

(11) For foundations not over ten feet in height, of frame buildings and of buildings as per those sexes of this section, hard burned clay blocks, set and if necessary, re-inforced as above, not less than twelve inches thick, may be used.

For small houses or light constructions blocks eight inches thick may be used in lengths not exceeding twenty lineal feet between masonry cross walls or buttress piers of dimensions approved by the Inspector.

SECTION 18.

Sand.

All sand shall be sharp, clean, coarse, siliceous sand, free from clay, loam or other foreign material. It shall all pass a one-quarter inch screen and be uniformly graded down in fineness. Not more than six per centum shall pass a sieve having one hundred meshes per linear inch. The percentage of voids shall not exceed thirty-eight.

SECTION 19.

Lime Mortar.

Lime mortar shall be made of one part of unslaked lime and not more than four parts of sand. All lime used for mortar shall be thoroughly burnt, of good quality and properly slaked before it is mixed with the sand. If hydrated lime is used it shall be used in such proportions as will give the same per centum of lime to sand as specified above.

SECTION 20.

Cement and Cement Mortar.

(1) Portland Cement.—The term Portland cement shall be applied to the finely pulverized product obtained from the heating or calcining up to incipient fusion of intimate mixtures properly proportioned, either natural or artificial, of argillaceous with calcareous substances, and to which no addition greater than three per centum has been made subsequent to calcination.

(2) Natural Cement.—The term shall be applied to the finely pulverized product resulting from the calcination of an argillaceous limestone at a temperature only sufficient to drive off the carbonic acid gas.

(3) Tests of cement used in building operations shall be made as required by and under the supervision of the Inspector of Buildings, in accordance with standards prescribed by the Testing Committee of the American Society of Civil Engineers. All Portland or natural cements meeting these requirements shall be approved by the Inspector of Buildings. No brand of cement, which has not been tested under the provisions of this section, which does not met the requirements thereof, shall be used in building operations.

(4) Cement Mortar.—Cement mortar shall be made of Portland or natural cement and sand in the proportion of one part of cement and not more than three parts of sand by volume and shall be used immediately after mixing. The cement and sand are to be measured and thoroughly mixed before adding water.

SECTION 21.

Cement and Lime Mortar.

Cement and lime mortar shall be made of one part of unslaked lime, one part of cement, and not more than three parts of sand to each. All materials shall be measured and shall be used immediately after being made, the cement and sand to be measured and thoroughly mixed before adding water.

SECTION 22.

Concrete.

(1) All concrete for footings of buildings in classes A, B, E and F shall be made of at least one part Portland cement and not more than three parts sand and five parts broken stone or gravel. Footings in buildings of classes C and D may be of one part natural cement, three parts sand and not more than five parts of broken slag, brick or tile of specified sizes.

(2) All other concrete shall be made of at least one part Portland cement and not more than two parts sand and five parts broken stone or gravel. Except as per section 101.

(3) The cement and sand shall be of a quality already described.

(4) The crushed stone shall be granite, trap rock or equally hard stone approved by the Inspector of Buildings and shall consist of the run of the crusher graded from the larger size down to that retained on the one-quarter inch screen. Where gravel is used it shall be thoroughly clean, free from loam and dust, and well graded from the larger permissible size down to that retained on the one-quarter inch screen.

(5) For foundations, where the concrete is to be used in mass, the stone or gravel shall be of such size as will pass a two inch ring.

(6) For reinforced concrete construction, the stone or gravel shall all pass through a three-quarter inch ring.

(7) The water shall be clean and free from acid or strong alkalies.

(8) All materials shall be measured; three and seven-tenths cubic feet shall be considered as the contents of a barrel and four bags of cement of ninety-five pounds each shall be considered one barrel.

(9) The ingredients of concrete shall be so thoroughly mixed that the cement shall be uniformly distributed through the mass and that the resulting concrete shall be homogeneous.

(10) The concrete shall be mixed as wet as possible without causing a separation of the cement mortar from the mixture, and shall be deposited in the work in such a manner as not to cause a separation of the mortar from the stone or gravel.

(11) The concrete shall be placed in the forms as soon as practical after mixing, and in no case shall concrete be used that has partially set or if more than one-half hour has elapsed since the addition of the water.

(12) It shall be deposited in horizontal layers not to exceed eight inches in thickness and thoroughly tamped.

(13) All forms and centering shall be built plumb and to true lines in a substantial manner and with joints sufficiently tight to prevent the leakage of the cement mortar. They shall be properly supported and braced in such a manner as to safely stand both the dead load and the load that may be placed upon them during construction. Before placing the concrete the forms shall be thoroughly cleaned of all chips, shavings and other debris.

(14) Before the placing of concrete is suspended, the joint to be formed shall be made in such a manner as will not injure the strength of the completed structure.

(15) That time at which centering may be safely removed from under floors or roofs shall vary with the condition of the weather, but in no case shall they be removed until the hardening of the concrete has reached a point where they may be removed with safety.

(16) During extreme hot, dry weather special precautions shall be taken to prevent premature drying by keeping the concrete moist until it has attained its initial set, or at least during the first twenty-four hours

SECTION 23.

Specifications for Timber Required in the Construction of Buildings, General Requirements.

(1) All timber shall be cut from sound stock and sawed standard size, close grained, free from rot, ring shakes, decay and unsound knots, or other defects that will impair its strength and durability, and shall be of such size and carrying capacity as to support the loads for which the building is intended.

(2) Standard Size of Sawed Timbers.—Rough timbers when sawed to standard size shall mean that they shall not be over one-quarter inch scant from actual size specified. For instance, a twelve-inch by twelve-inch shall measure not less than eleven and three-quarters inches by eleven and three-quarters inches.

(3) Definitive description of structural defects in timber stock or timber and definition of defects may be consulted, if desired, in the office of Inspector of Buildings.

SECTION 24.

Structural Material.

(1) Rivet Steel.—Shall have an ultimate strength of from fifty thousand to sixty thousand pounds per square inch, an elastic limit of not less than fifty per centum of the ultimate strength, an elongation of not less than twenty-eight per centum in eight inches, and a reduction of area of not less than fifty per centum. A rivet rod must be capable of being bent and cold-hammered down on itself without any fracture.

(2) All other structural steel shall show an ultimate strength of from sixty thousand to seventy thousand pounds per square inch, an elastic limit of not less than fifty per centum of the ultimate strength. It shall have an elongation of not less than twenty-five per centum in eight inches, and fifty per centum reduction of area.

(3) No cast iron beams or channels shall be used in any structure.

(4) No second-hand steel shapes shall be used in any structure without the written permission of the Bureau of Buildings; and not then if they have unnecessary holes in them or holes that have been plugged.

(5) Steel castings shall be made from open hearth steel, and shall be practically free from blow-holes, with a reasonably clear skin and sharpness to pattern. The steel shall not contain over eight one-hundredths of one per-centum of phosphorus. Steel castings shall be tested for strength and ductility from runners cast with pieces and annealed with the castings, if the work is ordered annealed. Such runners shall be turned down to not less than one-half square inch cross-section for a length of about six inches, and exhibit in the testing machine an ultimate strength of sixty thousand to seventy thousand pounds per square inch, an elastic limit of not less than fifty per centum of the ultimate and an elongation of twenty per centum in two inches.

ROSELLE IS SHUT OUT IN HIGH SCHOOL GAME

Two double plays marked the game yesterday afternoon between the local High School boys and the Roselle High team and the visitors were shut out. The score was 4 to 0. Terry's pitching was responsible for the result in a large measure and he also assisted in one of the double plays. Only one of the Roselle boys reached second base.

In the fourth session Hanrahan started things with a two bagger. After Denny had reached first on an error he promptly stole second. Good scored both by a single to centre. In the sixth and again in the eighth the locals managed to put a talley across the rubber. The local boys were charged with but one error while the visitors made nine.

The lineup — Plainfield High School—Grisley, 2b; Davenport, ss; Clarke, 3b; Hanrahan, lf; Denny, rf; Good, c; Runyon, cf; Terry, p; Carty, 1b. Roselle High School—Butler, 2b; Wilmore, ss; Waelace, c; Waslik, 3b; Benedick, p; Van Cleef, lf; Calkins, cf; Gustenberger, 1b; Thorn and Apgar, rf.

BORO HIGH DEFEATS SOMERVILLE'S HIGH

When the Wilson Academy boys come to North Plainfield next Saturday they will stack up against a bunch of hard hitters who took a game away from Somerville High School yesterday to the tune of 10 to 7. One bad inning for the borough lads allowed the Somervillians to score three runs otherwise the score would have been 10 to 4 . The feature of the game was the batting of Moore, the Somerville's moundsman. Out of four times at bat he clouted out four hits, making a percentage of 1,000. The borough boys played a fast all around game and gave the battery splendid support. Percy Bailey, who pitched for North Plainfield had the Indian sign on the Somerville crowd and won in a walk.

Score by innings:

N. P. H. S. ...	2	0	0	4	0	1	1	2	1	—10
Somerville ...	0	0	0	0	3	0	3	1	0	— 7

MISS KLINE BECOMES MRS. JOHN R. FRITTS.

Miss Edith May Kline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kline, of Somerset street, and John Randall Fritts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Fritts, of West Fifth street, were married yesterday afternoon by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, at the home of the bride's parents. There were no attendants. Following the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served and later the couple left for a trip. They will reside here on their return.

The bride is a graduate of the North Plainfield High School and is popular, as is also her husband. Mr. Fritts is the all-round champion of the Y. M. C. A., won this year, and is also centre-fielder on the Plainfield Baseball Club. He has taken a prominent part in local athletics for years, and made an enviable record as captain of the Y. M. C. A. basketball team last winter.

TWO ENGAGEMENTS HERE FOR THE DAY.

Rt. Rev. James McFaul, Roman Catholic bishop of the diocese, of Trenton, arrived in Plainfield today, being met at the station by R. H. McCullough, of Steiner place, who took him in his auto to the temporary home of the College of Mt. St. Mary, where the bishop conferred with Rev. Mother Gabriel, regarding commencement plans. The prelate also visited St. Mary's church, Stony Hill, where he administered confirmation to a large class of boys and girls.

Infant Son's Funeral.

The funeral of James Edward Phillips, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Phillips, of Watchung avenue, was held at the parents' home yesterday afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, who offered words of sympathy to the bereaved father and mother in the loss of their little one. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. W. G. Gray Improving.

Mrs. W. G. Gray, formerly of this city, but now of Westfield, is slowly recovering from serious injuries the result of a recent accident on Broad street, Newark, where she was visiting relatives. She was knocked down by a team of horses, sustaining internal injuries and several broken bones. She is still at the home of relatives, but expects to return to Westfield soon.

Mr. Saunders' Plans.

Former Mayor William L. Saunders, who has been stopping in New York, expects to open his home on Rockview avenue, on Saturday and will spend week-ends here during the summer, preparatory to going to Japan in the fall, which is part of the around-the-world trip he has planned.

TALK BY MAYOR AT NURSES' GRADUATION

The sixteenth annual graduation exercises of the Muhlenberg Hospital Training School for Nurses will be held in the Hartridge auditorium tonight. The principal address will be delivered by Mayor George W. V. Moy. His subject will be "Woman." The address to the graduates of whom there are four, will be made by Dr. F. E. Dubois. Fomer Mayor Charles J. Fisk is to present the diplomas and William R. Cock, the training school pins. The exercises are to be followed by a dance.

The graduating class is composed of the following: Miss Florence Brown Stacy, of Easton, Pa.; Miss Elizabeth Griffiths Williams, of Lansford, Pa.; Miss Autum H. Delaney and Miss Elizabeth Chadwick Randall, of this city.

MISS SAUNDERS GIVES CARD PARTY FOR FIFTY.

Miss Jean Saunders, of Rockview avenue, gave a delightful bridge and heart party at her home, yesterday afternoon. There were about fifty young girl friends present to enjoy the games. Prizes were awarded at each table, comprising a large number of awards.

At the conclusion of the play refreshments were served. The table was decorated in green and white, the arrangement being very effective. Mrs. Laurens H. Van Buren and Mrs. J. Evarts Tracy poured. The social features were greatly enjoyed and all agreed that Miss Saunders made a charming hostess.

Mrs. Caroline Elizabeth Beach.

Mrs. Caroline Elizabeth Beach, widow of the late Bloomfield J. Beach, and an aunt to Mrs. A. E. Faber, Jr., of Mercer avenue, died on Monday at the residence of her son, John B. Beach, at West Palm Beach, Fla., in the 68th year of her age. She had been in failing health for some time and her death was not wholly unexpected. Mrs. Beach formerly lived at Rome, N. Y., where her husband was prominent as a lawyer. The funeral service was held at Zion church, Rome, N. Y., at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

THE WEATHER.

Fair tonight and Friday; moderate temperature.

Maximum, 67; minimum, 55.

SERVICE evidenced by GROWTH

An institution's ability to render satisfactory service to its patrons, is shown in no better way than by its steady and constant growth.

The increasing popularity of this Company is amply evidenced by an increase in deposits from $129,000 to $268,000 since September.

Our facilities are at the disposal of any one who wishes careful individual attention given to his banking affairs.

CHAPTER XII.

Strength of Columns, and Temporary Supports.

SECTION 31.

Working Stresses.

The working stress per square inch for all cast iron, steel or wood columns having flat ends shall not exceed those given in the following tables:

	Working Stresses per Square Inch of Section.
	L 9,000-40-R Cast Iron.	L 15,200-58-R Steel.
When the Length Divided by Least Radius of Gyration Equals—
120	.....	8,240
110	.....	8,820
100	.....	9,400
90	.....	9,980
80	.....	10,560
70	6,200	11,140
60	6,600	11,720
50	7,000	12,300
40	7,400	12,880
30	7,800	13,460
20	8,200	14,040
10	8,600	14,620

L equals length in inches. R equals least radius of gyration.

	Working Stresses per Square Inch of Section.
	Longleaf Yellow Pine.	Norway Pine. White Pine. Spruce Chestnut.	Oak.
	L 1,000-18-D	L 800-15-D	L 900-17-D
When the Length Divided by the Least Side or Diameter Equals—
30	460	350	390
25	550	425	475
20	640	500	560
15	730	557	645
12	784	620	696
10	820	650	730

L equals length in inches. D equals least side in inches.

Three-fourths the value given for white pine shall also apply to hemlock posts.

For locust posts use one and one-half the value given for white pine.

For short leaf yellow pine use three-fourths the values given for longleaf yellow pine.

Columns and compression members shall not be used having an unsupported length of greater ratios than given in the tables.

SECTION 32.

Columns Eccentrically Loaded.

(1) Any column eccentrically loaded shall have the stresses caused by such eccentricity computed, and the combined stresses resulting from such eccentricity at any part of the column added to all other stresses at that part shall in no case exceed the working stresses stated in this Code.

(2) The eccentric load of a column shall be considered to be distributed equally over the entire area of that column at the next point below at which the column is securely braced laterally in the direction of the eccentricity.

(3) Tie plates and lattice bars shall not be used on columns eccentrically loaded, unless approved by the Inspector of Buildings, otherwise plates extending the full length of the column only shall be used.

SECTION 33.

Strengths of Temporary Supports

Every temporary support placed under any structure, wall, girder or beam, during the erection, alteration, demolition, or repairing of any building or structure, or any part thereof, shall be of sufficient strength to safely carry the load to be placed thereon.

CHAPTER XIII.

Excavations, Footings and Foundations.

SECTION 34.

Excavations.

(1) The person causing any excavation for a building to be made shall have the same properly guarded and protected. Wherever necessary he shall properly sheath pile and, if for his independent use, or unless otherwise agreed with adjoining owner shall at his own cost erect sufficient retaining wall to permanently support the adjoining earth. Such retaining wall shall be carried to the level of the adjoining earth and shall be properly coped.

(2) Whenever an excavation is not intended to be or shall not be carried to a depth of more than eight feet below the curb level, the owner of every adjoining or contiguous wall or structure shall protect the same so that it shall be and remain as safe as before such excavation was begun. Such owner shall be permitted to enter upon the premises where the excavating is being made when necessary for this purpose.

(3) Whenever an excavation is intended to be or shall be carried to a depth of more than eight feet below the curb level, the person causing such excavation shall at all times from the beginning until the completion of the excavations, foundations, retaining walls or other structures to be built in such excavation, protect at his own expense every adjoining or contiguous wall or structure, and support the same by proper means. For this purpose he shall be afforded the necessary access to the adjoining premises. If access be denied by any owner of adjoining property it shall be the duty of the person causing such excavation to notify the Inspector of Buildings in writing to this effect. Thereafter it shall be the duty of the owner who has refused access to his premises, to make safe such adjoining wall or structure upon his premises and to protect and support it by proper means so that the excavation may be made; and for this purpose he shall, when necessary, be permitted to enter upon the premises where the excavation is being made.

SECTION 35.

Adjoining Party Walls.

(1) In case an adjoining party wall is intended to be used by the person causing the excavation to be made, and the footings and foundations, of such party wall are in good condition and sufficient for the uses of both the existing building and the new one adjoining, then and in such case the person causing the excavation to be made shall, at his own expense, preserve such party wall from injury and support the same by proper means, so that said party wall shall be and remain as safe as before the excavation was begun.

(2) In case the footings and foundations of any such party wall are not in good condition or not sufficient for the uses of both the existing building and the new one adjoining, then it shall be the duty of the person causing such excavation to be made to extend such defective or insufficient footing or foundation, or to replace same with a new footing or foundation. Such extended or new footing shall extend on each side of the party line such a distance as to bring the centre of the footing under the centre of the wall, so that the total load upon the wall may be uniformly distributed over the area of the footing. In order that this may be done, the person causing the excavation to be made shall be allowed access to the adjoining premises.

(3) In case any excavation, or the removal of any existing building, shows any adjoining wall or walls or structure to be unsafe at the time the excavation was begun, then it shall be the duty of the person causing the excavation to be made, or the building to be removed, to forthwith report the fact, in writing, to the Inspector of Buildings. The Inspector of Buildings shall, upon the receipt of such notice from any person causing any excavation to be made, or any building to be removed, forthwith cause an inspection of such adjoining premises to be made, and if such inspection prove the aforesaid wall or walls or structure to be unsafe, then it shall be the duty of the Inspector of Buildings, acting under the provisions of Section 2 of this Code, to declare such wall or walls, or structure or structures, to be unsafe and cause the same to be repaired as therein provided.

(4) If the person whose duty it shall be to preserve or protect from injury any wall or walls, structure or structures, shall neglect or fail so to do within twenty-four hours after the receipt of a notice so to do from the Inspector of Buildings, then the Inspector of Buildings shall enter upon the premises and employ such labor and furnish such materials and take such steps as, in his judgment, may be necessary to make the premises safe and secure, or to prevent the same from becoming unsafe or dangerous, at the cost and expense of the person whose duty it is to keep the same safe and secure. Payment of such expenses shall be collected in the manner set forth in Section 2 of this Code.

SECTION 36.

Bearing Capacity of Soil.

(1) Applications filed in the Office of Inspector of Buildings shall contain a statement of the character of the soil at the level of the footings. The Inspector of Buildings shall be notified before any test is made of the sustaining power of the soil, so that he may be present or represented thereat. When doubt arises as to the safe sustaining power of the soil upon which a building is to be erected, the Inspector of Buildings may order borings to be made, or he may order tests to be made of the sustaining power of the soil by and at the expense of the owner of the proposed building.

(2) In tests of the sustaining power of the soil the ultimate test load shall be one and one-half times the load which the soil is to actually bear when the building is complete. Measurements of the settlement shall begin as soon as one-tenth of the ultimate test load has been applied and shall be continued until a period of twenty-four hours shall have elapsed without increase of settlement under the ultimate load. On no soil shall the total allowable settlement after the application of one-tenth of the ultimate test load exceed one inch.

(3) In the absence of a test the area of the bearing footing shall be so proportioned that the load per square foot upon the respective character of soil shall not exceed those set forth in the following table:

Soil Under Footings.	Load in Tons.
Soft clay	1
Clay, sand or clay and sand together or in layers, wet and springy	2
Loam, clay or fine sand, firm and dry	3
Coarse sand, gravel, or sand and gravel	4

Classification of Soils.

(A) Mud, Peat, Bog, Silt—Any soil containing more than a trace of vegetable matter, or which on drying shrinks more than five per cent. of its volume shall be classed as mud, peat, bog, or silt and shall be deemed unsuitable material on which the foundations of a building shall be directly supported.

(B) Filled in Material—Any material which has been removed or deposited by any agency of man, as by filling, dumping, dredging or otherwise, shall be classed as "filled in" material and shall be deemed unsuitable material on which the foundations of a building shall be directly supported.

(C) Clay—Any natural soil containing such ingredients as to render it capable of being worked when wet into a plastic state shall be called a clay.

(D) Sand—Any soil or natural material composed of quartz or other rock particles shall be classed as fine sand when fifty per cent. or over by weight passes a fifty mesh sieve, and as coarse sand when fifty per cent. or over is retained on a fifty mesh sieve.

(E) Gravel—Any soil or natural material composed of rock particles where fifty per cent. or over of the particles forming the mass shall be one-quarter of an inch in diameter or over, shall be classed as gravel.

(F) No footing of a building shall be directly supported upon filled in material, mud, peat, bog, silt or similar material.

SECTION 37.

Footings.

(1) All Foundations to Have Footing Courses—Except on rock bottom all foundations shall have footing courses, and all footing or base courses under foundation walls shall be laid not less than three feet below the original surface of the ground, on a good solid bottom.

(2) When Grade is Lowered.—Should any grade be lowered the foundational supports shall also be carried down to the depth above prescribed.

(3) What Built Of.—All footing or base courses shall be of stone, concrete, or concrete steel construction.

(4) Loads on Footings.—All footings shall be so designed that the stresses in the materials employed conform in all respects to the requirements of this Code, and the loads they sustain per unit or area shall be as nearly uniform as possible, and also so that a line drawn from the outer edge of the wall or pier, at the bottom, to the outer edge of the footing, at the bottom, shall make an angle of not more than sixty degrees with a horizontal plane and shall lie within the masonry throughout its length, except when tensile stresses are properly taken care of.

(5) The dead loads carried by the footings shall include the actual weight of the superstructure and foundations down to the bottom of the footing. All tanks or other receptacles for liquids shall be figured as being full. All vaults or similar built-in structures shall be considered as forming a part of the building.

(6) In warehouses, stores and buildings, used for light manufacturing, in which the live load on the floors is not over one hundred and fifty pounds per square foot, and in churches, school houses and places of public amusement or assembly, the live load carried by the foundation shall not be less than seventy-five per centum of the total live load upon the floors contributing thereto.

(7) In office buildings, hotels, dwellings, apartment houses, lodging houses, tenement houses and stables, the live load carried by the foundation shall not be less than sixty per centum of the total live load on the floors contributing thereto.

(8) The live load carried by the foundations of all other buildings shall not be less than that required to be carried by the lowest tier of columns or by the foundation walls.

(9) Stone Footings.—Under walls their thickness shall not be less than one-third of their width, and in no case shall it be less than five inches; under piers, columns or posts the thickness of footing stones shall not be less than eight inches. The footing shall project a minimum distance of three inches beyond each side of any foundation wall, and six inches beyond each side of any pier. Footing stones shall be laid on their natural bed, crosswise, edge to edge and well bedded, and filled up, solid and level.

(7) Concrete Footings.—Concrete footings shall not be less than six inches thick and shall project not less than four inches beyond each side of any foundation wall and eight inches beyond each side of any pier.

For actual required thicknesses see clause one of this section. For materials and proportions thereof see section 22.

(8) Grillages.—Where necessary suitable grillage beams of steel, resting upon a good and sufficient bed of concrete, may be used. Such beams shall be fastened by bolts and separators and the grillage filled solid with concrete. All metal which forms part of any footing or foundation shall be thoroughly protected from rust by concrete or by the use of other approved coating.

SECTION 38.

Foundations.

(1) Every building, (except sheds), shall have good and sufficient foundations of brick, stone, concrete, reinforced concrete, or hollow blocks. When the building is erected upon solid ground the foundations shall extend not less than three feet below the surface of the earth, footings inclusive. When neither solid earth nor rock is found, piles, of wood or concrete, shall be used, as per requirements of the Inspector and the latest rules of engineering practice relating thereto.

(2) If built of rubble stone they shall be, for a depth of twelve feet below the curb level, at least eight inches thicker than the wall which rests upon them. If built of brick or concrete they shall be for a depth of twelve feet below the curb level at least four inches thicker than the wall which rests upon them.

(3) Headers.—All stone walls to have at least one header extending through the wall in every three feet each way, of good flat stones.

(4) All stone to be laid on its natural bed, every stone to extend into the wall at least six inches, to be built flush and true, firmly bedded in mortar with all spaces and joints thoroughly filled.

(5) Only cement mortar shall be used in the construction of the footings and foundations of any fire-proof building. No lime whatever shall be used under any conditions.

CHAPTER XIV.

Masonry.

SECTION 39.

Walls.

(1) The walls of all buildings, other than frame buildings, shall be constructed of stone, brick, iron, steel, cement concrete in bulk, blocks or reinforced concrete), or other approved hard, solid and incombustible material.

(2) All buildings shall be enclosed on all vertical sides with independent or party walls.

(3) The walls and piers of all buildings of brick or stone shall be properly and solidly bonded, with close joints filled with mortar. They shall be built to a line and carried up plumb and straight.

(4) No brick, stone, concrete or masonry work of any description shall be built when the temperature is below twenty-eight degrees Fahrenheit at the point where the work is in progress. No frozen materials shall be built upon.

(5) No wall or walls of any building shall be carried up more than two stories higher in advance of any portion of the walls of said building, except that in the case of wall bearing buildings the exterior walls may be carried up so that the iron or steel work shall not be, at any time, more than five stories in advance of the walls, but this provision shall not apply to buildings in which the walls are carried independently by girders at each floor. The front, rear, side and party walls shall be properly bonded together.

(6) When not carried up at the same time the perpendicular joint between the walls shall be made with four-inch offsets at every heading course, and have also iron or steel anchors at least every three feet in height. These anchors shall not be less than two-inch by one-quarter-inch metal, and shall be either bent up at the ends or have a cross-pin to form the anchorage.

Anchors inserted for the purpose of connecting front and rear walls with side or party walls shall extend not less than eight inches into the side party wall and not less than twelve inches into the front and rear walls, when these walls are not built and bonded together, in themselves.

(7) The walls and beams of every building during the erection or alteration thereof shall be strongly braced from the beams of each adjacent story, and when required shall also be braced from the outside until the building is enclosed.

(8) In all brick walls every sixth course shall be a heading course, except where walls are faced with brick in flemish or running bond, in which latter case every sixth course shall be bonded into the backing by cutting the course of the face brick and putting in diagonal headers behind the same, or by splitting the face brick in half and backing the same with a continuous row of headers. Where face brick is used of a different thickness from the brick used for backing, the course of the exterior and interior brickwork shall be brought to a level bed at intervals of not more than ten courses in height of the face brick, and the face brick shall be properly tied to the backing by a heading course of the face brick.

(9) All bearing walls faced with brick laid in running bond shall be four inches thicker than the walls are required to be under any other section of this Code. In running bond approved metal wall ties may be used in place of the diagonal headers if placed not over four courses apart vertically and twenty inches horizontally.

(10) Face brick shall be laid at the same time as the backing, and shall in no case be laid after the backing is in place.

SECTION 40.

Piers.

(1) Piers shall be built of dimension stone, stone concrete, hollow blocks or good, hard, well-burned brick. Stone block or brick piers shall be laid in cement mortar. Every exterior pier shall be securely anchored to the beams or girders at the level of each tier. The height of any isolated pier shall not be greater than ten times the least horizontal dimension of the pier.

(2) Every pier of less than nine square feet in cross-section which supports any beam, girder, arch or column upon which a wall rests, or a lintel spanning an opening over ten feet wide on which a wall rests, shall have built into it, at vertical intervals of not less than thirty inches, steel plates five-sixteenths inch thick, or stone bonders not less than four inches thick.

Every steel plate shall have the same horizontal dimensions as the piers into which it is built.

(3) Every pier which supports a column or girder shall have immediately below the column or girder a suitable cast iron or steel plate to distribute the load over a sufficient area to comply with the requirements for the material supporting it as determined in sections 28 and 29 of this Code.

SECTION 41.

Stone Walls Above Grade.

(1) All stone walls to be built and bonded as already prescribed in section 39, except that above grade they may be laid in lime mortar, or lime and cement mortar as per sections 19 and 21 of this Code.

Where walls are built of stones with dressed level beds and vertical joints, the Inspector of Buildings may permit such walls to be of the same thickness as specified for brick walls. In no case shall stone walls be of less thickness than specified for brick walls, and in no case shall the pressure per unit of area exceed that provided for in the sections of this Code governing the strength of materials.

SECTION 42.

Ashlar.

(1) Stone used for the facing of any building, and known as ashlar, shall be not less than four inches thick.

(2) Stone ashlar shall be anchored to the backing, and the backing shall be of such thickness as to make the walls, independent of the ashlar, conform as to thickness with the requirements of the sections of this Code, unless every alternate course be at least eight inches thick and bonded into the backing, and then four inches of it may be counted as part of the thickness of the wall. However, no wall faced with ashlar shall be less than twelve inches thick in any case.

(3) Where terra cotta or other approved artificial material is used instead of stone ashlar, it shall not be less than four inches thick. It shall be properly and securely anchored to the backing, and not counted as part of the thickness of the wall.

SECTION 43.

Brick Wall Thicknesses.

(1) The minimum thickness of all bearing walls shall be in accordance with the schedule below. In determining the thickness by means of these schedules, the height of the walls shall be measured to the point of complete support whether this be a foundation, a beam or a girder.

For Buildings of Classes A, B, E and F.

Height of Building	Top Section. Thickness.	Height.	Middle Section. Thickness.	Height.	Bottom Section. Thickness.	Height.
75 ft. to 100 ft.	16 in.	25 ft.	20 in.	35 ft.	24 in.	40 ft.
60 ft. to 75 ft.	12 in.	25 ft.	16 in.	35 ft.	20 in.	40 ft.
40 ft. to 60 ft.	12 in. throughout.		12 in.	40 ft.	16 in.	25 ft.
40 ft. or less.

For Buildings of Classes C and D.

Height of Building	Top Section. Thickness.	Height.	Middle Section. Thickness.	Height.	Bottom Section. Thickness.	Height.
75 ft. to 100 ft.	12 in.	25 ft.	16 in.	35 ft.	20 in.	40 ft.
60 ft. to 75 ft.	12 in.	50 ft.	16 in.	25 ft.	16 in.	20 ft.
40 ft. to 60 ft.	8 in.	15 ft.	12 in.	25 ft.
25 ft. or less.	8 in. throughout.

Increased Thickness of Walls.

(2) When the height of any wall exceeds one hundred feet, it shall be increased in thickness in general accordance with the above schedule as shall be approved by the Inspector of Buildings.

(3) When the clear span is greater than twenty-five feet, the thickness of bearing walls shall be increased four inches over that set forth in the above schedules for every twelve and one-half feet or fraction thereof that the said span exceeds twenty-five feet; or shall have in lieu of this increase of thickness such piers or buttresses as the Inspector of Buildings may direct. In all walls the same amount of materials herein required for walls, may be in part used in piers or buttresses, provided the walls or bays between shall be of a thickness approved by the Inspector.

(4) Every bearing wall faced with brick laid in running bond shall be four inches thicker than specified in the foregoing schedules.

(5) If any horizontal section through any part of any bearing wall shows more than thirty per centum area of flues and openings, such wall shall be increased in thickness by four inches for every fifteen per centum, or fraction thereof, by which the total area of flues and openings exceeds thirty per centum.

(6) In all buildings, walls over one hundred and five feet in length shall be four inches thicker throughout than is required by this Code, unless they are properly braced by cross walls, piers, buttresses or similar means.

Reduced Thickness of Non-Bearing Walls and Interior Walls.

(7) The thickness of non-bearing walls may be four inches less than that of bearing walls, provided that no non-bearing wall is less than twelve inches thick, nor extends for more than fifty feet in height without an increase of thickness.

(8) When bearing walls are less than twenty-five feet apart, or are intersected by cross walls, or strengthened by piers of sufficient size, the Inspector may permit the reduction of thickness of interior walls in just proportion to such added strength, except on walls less than forty feet in height.

SECTION 44.

Enclosure Walls for Skeleton Structures.

In skeleton structures not over seventy-five feet in height, walls between columns or posts and supported by girders, shall be of brick, stone, concrete or hard hollow clay blocks thoroughly anchored to enclosing columns, posts and girders, and be of a thickness for brick and stone required for non-bearing walls, for concrete not less than six inches, and for clay blocks set in cement mortar not less than eight inches in thickness, provided that the supporting columns or posts are not over twenty feet apart on centres, nor the vertical distance between supporting girders greater than twelve feet.

SECTION 45.

Existing Walls.

(1) Existing Party Walls.—Walls heretofore built for or used as party walls, the thickness of which was at the time of their erection in accordance with the requirements of the existing laws, which are in good condition but are not in accordance with the requirements of this Code, may be used at the discretion of the Inspector of Buildings for the ordinary uses of party walls provided the height of the same be not increased. No existing wall shall be used for party wall or other different purposes without his written permit.

(2) Lining Existing Walls.—Should it be desired to increase the height of existing party or independent walls, which are less in thickness than required under this Code, this shall be done by lining with brickwork to form a combined thickness with the old wall of not less than four inches more than the thickness required for a new wall corresponding with the total height of the wall when so increased in height. The said lining shall be supported on proper foundations and carried up to such height as the Inspector of Buildings may require. No lining shall be less than eight inches in thickness, and all linings shall be laid up in cement mortar and thoroughly anchored to the old brick walls with suitable wrought iron anchors, placed two feet apart and properly fastened or driven into the old walls in rows alternating vertically and horizontally with each other, the old walls being first cleaned of plaster or other coatings where any lining is to be built against the same. No rubble wall shall be lined until it has been approved by the Inspector of Buildings.

SECTION 46.

Arches and Lintels.

(1) Openings for doors and windows in all masonry buildings, shall have good and sufficient arches of stone, brick or terra cotta, well built and keyed with good and sufficient abutments, or lintels of stone, iron or steel of sufficient strength, which shall have a bearing at each end of not less than four inches on the wall. On the inside of all openings in non-fireproof buildings in which lintels shall be less than the thickness of the wall to be supported, there may be timber lintels, which shall rest at each end not more than three inches on any wall, which shall be chamfered at each end and be cut to true arch shapes on top. A suitable rowlock, or keyed arch shall be turned over the timber lintel. Or the inside lintel may be of cast iron or steel, and in such case stone blocks or cast-iron plates shall not be required at the ends where the lintel rests on the walls, provided the opening is not more than six feet in width.

(2) All masonry arches shall be capable of sustaining the weight or thrust which they are designed to carry, and the stress at any point shall not exceed the working stress for the material used, as given in section 29 of this Code. Tie rods shall be used where necessary to secure stability.

SECTION 47.

Parapet Walls.

All exterior and division or party walls over fifteen feet high, excepting where the front walls are to be finished with cornices, gutters or crown mouldings, shall have parapet walls not less than eight inches in thickness and carried two feet above the roof, but for warehouses, factories, stores and other buildings used for commercial and manufacturing purposes the parapet walls shall be not less than twelve inches in thickness and carried two feet above the roof, and all such walls shall be coped with stone, terra cotta or cast iron.

SECTION 48.

Hollow Walls.

(1) In all walls that are built hollow the same net horizontal section of stone, brick or concrete shall be used in their construction as if they were built solid, as in this Code provided, and no hollow wall shall be built unless the parts of same are connected by proper ties, either of brick, stone, iron or other suitable metal placed not over twenty-four inches apart, horizontally, and vertically. No such hollow space shall exceed four inches in width.

SECTION 49.

Furred Walls and Studded-Off Spaces.

(1) The inside four inches of all walls may be built of hard burned hollow brick, the dimensions of ordinary brick, properly tied and bonded into the walls. Where hollow tile or porous terra-cotta blocks are used as lining or furring to the walls, they shall not be included in the measurement of the thickness of such walls. In fire-proof skeleton buildings, however, hard burned hollow brick of standard size may be used to form the entire backing, provided that in no case shall the load imposed thereon exceed ten tons per square foot.

(2) In all walls furred with wood, the masonry between the ends of wood beams shall project the thickness of the furring beyond the inner face of the wall for the full depth of the beams. In cases where the beams are parallel to a wall furred with wood, there shall be a space of not less than two and one-half inches between such wall and the nearest beam. This space shall be filled in solidly with brickwork or concrete for the full depth of the floor beams.

Studded-Off Spaces.

(3) Where walls are studded off, unless fire-stops are provided as called for in this section, the space between the inside face of the wall and the studding at the floor level shall be fire-stopped with approved fire-proof material. The beams directly over the studded-off space shall be deafened with not less than four inches of such material, which shall be laid on boards cut in between the beams. The under side of such beams shall be protected by a covering of metal lath, or other approved fire-proof materials, and plaster. Dry cinders or sand shall not be permitted for fire stopping.

SECTION 50.

Recesses and Chases in Walls.

Recesses for stairways or elevators may be left in the foundation or cellar walls of all buildings, but in no case shall the walls be less in thickness than the walls of the top story, unless reinforced by additional piers with steel girders, or iron or steel columns and steel girders, securely anchored to walls on each side. Recesses for alcoves and similar purposes shall have not less than eight inches of brickwork at the back of such recesses, and such recesses shall not be more than eight feet in width, and shall be arched over or spanned with iron or steel lintels, and not carried up higher than eighteen inches below the bottom of the beams of the floor next above. No chase for water or other pipes shall be made in any wall more than one-third of its thickness. No horizontal recess or chase which exceeds four feet in length shall be allowed in any wall. The aggregate area of recesses and chases in any wall shall not exceed one-fourth of the whole area of the face of the wall in any story, nor shall any such recess be made within a distance of six feet from any other recess in the same wall. There shall be no chase in any pier.

SECTION 51.

Walls of Brick Buildings Raised, Lowered or Altered.

(1) Within the fire limits no brick dwelling house with eight inch walls, already erected, that has a peaked roof, shall be raised for the purpose of making a flat roof thereon, unless the same be raised with the same kind of material as the building, and unless such new roof be covered with fire-proof material. The building, when so raised, shall not exceed thirty-six feet six inches in height.

(2) No brick building within the fire limits shall be enlarged or built upon unless the exterior walls of the addition be of approved incombustible materials. Such building shall be raised, lowered or altered in the manner provided for in this section.

CHAPTER XV.

Chimneys, Flues and Fireplaces; Heating Pipes and Apparatus.

SECTION 52.

Chimneys, Flues and Fireplaces.

(1) Every chimney hereafter erected shall be of brick, dimension stone concrete or other approved incombustible material. Every chimney shall extend at least four feet above the highest point of contact with the roof. Every chimney shall be properly capped with terra cotta, stone, cast-iron or other approved incombustible weather-proof material.

(2) The side walls of brick or concrete chimneys may be not less than four inches thick outside the flue linings, for a height not greater than twenty-five feet, and any partition walls between adjacent flues in the same chimney shall be not less than four inches thick. In non-fireproof buildings there shall be at least eight inches of masonry between the smoke flue and any woodwork. The firebacks of all fireplaces shall be of solid masonry not less than eight inches thick. There shall be an air space of not less than two inches between any metal fireback and the masonry behind it. All flues shall be properly cleaned upon the completion of a building.

(3) No chimney shall rest or in any way depend upon woodwork for support.

(4) In no case shall a chimney be corbeled more than eight inches from a wall. In brick chimneys the corbeling shall consist of at least five courses of brick, but no corbeling more than four inches shall be allowed in eight-inch brick walls. Piers which support chimneys shall start from the foundation on the same line with the chimney breast and shall be not less than twelve inches on the face, properly bonded into the walls. All chimneys which shall be dangerous shall be made safe or taken down.

(5) Each smoke flue (except as per clause 6) shall be lined with burnt clay or terra cotta pipe, made smooth on the inside from the bottom of the flue, or from the throat of the fireplace if the flue starts from the latter, and carried up continuously the entire height of the flue. The ends of the sections of all such lining pipes shall fit closely together and the pipes shall be built in as the flues are carried up.

(6) The smoke flue of every steam power boiler shall be lined on all sides with not less than four inches of fire brick, laid in fire mortar, for a distance of twenty-five feet from its entrance into stack. The smoke flue of every smelting furnace, every steam boiler and of every other device which heats the flues to a high temperature, shall be built with double walls of suitable thickness for the temperature. There shall be an air space between the walls, and the inside wall shall be of fire brick not less than four inches thick, and the enclosing walls at no point less than eight inches thick.

(7) All smoke flues from boilers or furnaces shall have metal clean-out frame and door built in at bottom.

(8) All fireplaces and chimney breasts where mantels are placed, whether intended for ordinary fireplace uses or not, shall have trimmer arches to support hearths. The arches shall be at least twenty inches in width, measured from the face of the chimney breasts, and they shall be of brick, stone, concrete or burnt clay. The length of a trimmer arch shall be not less than the width of the chimney breast. Wood centres under trimmer arches shall be removed before plastering the ceiling underneath. If a heater is placed in a fireplace the hearth shall be the full width of the heater. All fireplaces in which heaters are placed shall have approved incombustible mantels. No wood mantel or other woodwork shall be exposed back of a summer piece, the iron work of the summer piece shall be placed against the masonry back of the fireplace. No fireplace shall be closed with a wood fireboard. When a grate is set in a fireplace, a lining of firebrick, at least two inches in thickness shall be added to the fire back, unless soap stone, tile or cast iron is used, and filled solidly behind with fire proof material.

(9) Cupola chimneys of foundries, or similar works, shall extend at least ten feet above the highest point of any roof within a radius of fifty feet of such cupola, and be covered on the top with a heavy wire netting. No woodwork shall be placed within two feet of the cupola.

(10) If, when or before the scaffolds are at the proper height, the building owner is requested so to do by the owner of the building or structure adjoining, the one erecting or altering a building to be raised more than ten feet above the adjoining and contiguous building shall, at his own expense, raise the adjacent chimney or chimneys of such adjoining building to the same level as the chimneys of his building, or shall supply sufficient flues connecting such chimneys with his own chimneys, which shall be of ample capacity to accommodate both buildings.

(11) All ash holes, ash houses or ash depositories or receptacles of any kind shall be built wholly of incombustible material.

SECTION 53.

Heating Flues, Pipes and Vent Ducts.

(1) All stone, concrete or brick hot air flues and shafts shall be lined with tin, galvanized iron or burnt clay pipes. No wood casings, furring or lath shall be placed against or cover any smoke flue. No stovepipe shall be placed nearer than nine inches to any lath and plaster or board partition, ceiling or any woodwork. Smoke pipes of laundry stoves, cooking ranges and of furnaces shall not be less than twelve inches from any woodwork, unless they are properly guarded by metal shields; if so guarded, stovepipes shall be not less than six inches and smoke pipes of laundry stoves, cooking ranges and of furnaces shall be not less than nine inches distant from any woodwork. Where smoke pipes pass through a lath and plaster partition or wood floor or roof they shall be guarded by galvanized ventilated thimbles at least twelve inches larger in diameter than the pipes, or by galvanized iron thimbles built in at least eight inches of brick. Metal pipes in masonry walls, used or intended to be used to convey heated air, shall have backing in brick or stone work of not less than eight inches, in concrete of four inches, and may be covered in with metal lath and plaster.

(2) Where hot air pipes are placed in wood partitions, the sides of the studs, beams and all contiguous woodwork is to be lined with tin the flues to have soldered joints to be strongly secured in place with sufficient air space left between the wood and the lining, and between the lining and the pipes; or, in lieu of the above protection two inches of brick or porous terra cotta set in cement, or three inches of concrete may be placed between the hot air pipe and the woodwork. No vertical hot air pipe shall be placed in a stud partition or in a wood enclosure, unless it be at least four feet distant in a horizontal direction from the furnace. If placed in brickwork it may not be less than two feet distant. Hot air pipes in closets, where exposed, shall be double, with a space of one inch between them. All outer faces of all hot air flues in woodwork to be covered with metal lathing.

(3) Horizontal Hot Air Pipes.—Horizontal hot air pipes in cellar or basement shall be placed six inches below the floor beams or ceiling; if the floor beams or ceiling are plastered or protected by a metal shield, then the distance shall be not less than three inches. All shut-off dampers in hot air pipes shall be at least twelve inches below the floor beams or ceiling.

(4) Vent Flues and Ducts.—Vent flues or ducts for the removal of vitiated or foul air, in which the temperature of the air cannot exceed that of the rooms, may be constructed of sheet iron, or similar incombustible material, and shall not be placed nearer than one inch to any woodwork. No such flue or duct shall be used for any other purpose. Cold air ducts of hot air furnaces shall be of metal or other approved fireproof material.

(5) Protection of Woodwork Against Steam and Hot Water Pipes.—Steam heating pipes shall not be placed within two inches of any woodwork unless the woodwork is protected by a metal shield, where the air space shall be not less than one inch. Every steam or hot water heating pipe passing through floors and ceilings or lath and plaster partitions shall be protected by a metal tube one inch larger in diameter than the pipe, with a metal plate at the floor. Where they run in a horizontal direction between the floor and ceiling, a metal shield shall be placed on the under side of the floor over them and on the sides of wood beams running parallel with the pipe. All wood boxes or casings inclosing any steam or hot water heating pipe, or wood covers to recesses in walls in which any steam or hot water heating pipe is placed, shall be lined with lock-jointed metal.

(4) Cold water or other exposed plumbing pipes shall have the surrounding air space closed off at the ceiling and floor lines of any wood floor through which any such pipe shall be carried, except that hot water supply pipes may run through metal sleeves. All steam pipes shall have coverings of fireproof material from ceiling to floor line over.

SECTION 54.

Ducts for Pipes.

In all buildings the ducts for pipes, wires, cables and for similar purposes shall in all cases be separately inclosed on all sides with fireproof material or lined with metal strongly secured.

No pipes, wires, cables or similar material of any kind shall be encased within or embedded in the fireproof protection of columns or other structural members; all such chases shall be fire-stopped at each floor.

SECTION 55.

Registers.

A register placed on wood work or other combustible material in connection with a metal pipe or duct, shall have the end of the pipe or duct flanged over ordinance.

SECTION 58.

Drying Rooms.

All walls, floors, ceilings and partitions inclosing drying rooms and smoke houses when not of fireproof materials, shall be metal lathed and plastered, or covered with other approved incombustible material.

CHAPTER XVI.

Vaults, Areas and Cellars.

SECTION 59.

Cellars to Be Protected From Water.

Before the walls of buildings are carried up above the foundation walls, provision shall be made to prevent water accumulating in the cellars to the injury of the foundations.

SECTION 60.

Vaults Under Sidewalks and Retaining Walls.

(1) In buildings where the space under the sidewalk is utilized, a sufficient stone, concrete or brick wall, or brick arches between steel beams, shall be built to retain the roadway of the street, and the side, end and party walls of such building shall extend under the sidewalk, of sufficient thickness, to such wall. The roofs of all vaults shall be of incombustible material.

(2) Openings in the roofs of vaults for the admission of coal or light, or for manholes, or for any other purposes, if placed outside the area line, shall be covered with glass set in iron frames, each glass to measure not more than sixteen square inches, or with iron covers having a rough surface, and rebated flush with the sidewalk. When any such cover is placed in any sidewalk, it shall be placed as near as practicable to the outside line of the curb.

SECTION 61.

Areas.

(1) All areas shall be properly protected with suitable railings, or covered over.

(2) When areas are covered over, iron or iron and glass combined, stone or other incombustible material shall be used, and supported on brick, concrete or stone walls, or on steel beams.

SECTION 62.

Cellar Partitions in Buildings of Classes "C" and "D."

(1) In all buildings of Classes "C" and "D," except dwellings, hereafter erected having a clear span of over twenty feet between bearing walls, and supporting stud partitions above, there shall be constructed in the cellar or lowest story at right angles to the floor beams, at least one partition of brick or concrete, not less than eight inches thick, or piers of brick or concrete, with openings arched below the underside of the first tier of beams.

(2) If height of basement or cellar exceeds ten feet in the clear, partition walls shall be not less than twelve inches thick. Girders of steel, with iron or steel columns, or piers of masonry, may be used in place of partitions. If steel floor beams, spanning the distance between bearing walls, of adequate strength to support the stud partitions above in addition to the floor load to be sustained by the said steel beams, are used, then the fore-and-aft brick or concrete partition, or its equivalent, may be omitted.

SECTION 63.

Cellar Ceilings.

The ceiling of every cellar or lowest story in all buildings hereafter erected of Classes "C" and "D," except dwellings, less than thirty-six feet six inches in height, occupied by more than one family, when the beams are of wood, shall be lathed with metal lath and plastered thereon with two or more coats of mortar, not less than three-quarters of an inch in thickness.

CHAPTER XVII.

Entrances; Stairs; Fire Stairs and Escapes, Fire Shutters, Stand Pipes and Sprinklers.

SECTION 64.

Entrances.

(1) Every building hereafter erected or altered shall have at least one entrance direct to a street, yard or court communicating directly with the street.

(2) In all buildings of Classes "A," "B" and "C" hereafter erected, all doors in the first story giving admission to or egress from the building, including the doors of vestibules, shall be so hung as to swing outwards when opening. This requirement shall not be construed to prohibit the use upon doors of double swing hinges which permit the door to swing both outwards and inwards, nor of sliding doors in stables, garages and the shipping rooms and receiving rooms of manufacturing and mercantile buildings.

(3) Every revolving door at the entrance or exit of any building shall be an approved revolving door having a mechanical device by which it can be readily transformed into an open exit.

(4) Where buildings are interiorly connected every opening between them shall be provided with an approved self-closing standard fire door.

Entrance to Cellar or Basement.

(5) Every tenement building hereafter erected that is arranged to be occupied by more than two families above the first story shall be provided with an entrance to the cellar or basement thereof from the outside of the building. If not over three stories in height and if not arranged to be occupied by more than two families, the stairs leading to the cellar or basement may be located inside the building, provided they are enclosed with approved fireproof partitions.

SECTION 65.

Interior Stairs.

(1) Number Regulated by Area of Building.—In all buildings hereafter erected the number of stairs in each story shall be regulated by the area of each story measured on the outside of walls, except as hereinafter mentioned. All stairways shall be practically continuous from the top floor to the curb level, and the main stairway shall extend to the roof. Exits from all stairs shall be provided as the Inspector of Buildings may direct. Where more than one stairway is required the stairs shall be remote from each other. When any story exceeds that of the floors above, the number of stairs required for this story shall be determined by the area of the story next above.

(2) In all Municipal Buildings, Court Houses, Schools, Colleges, Hospitals, Asylums, Churches, Amusement Halls, Lodge Rooms, Exhibition Buildings, Hotels, Lodging Houses, Club Houses, Studios, Dormitories, Dwellings, Tenements, Lofts, Stores, Restaurants, Factories, Workshops and Printing Houses there shall be the following number of stairs for stories not exceeding the given areas:

Not exceeding 2,500 square feet in area, one stairway.

Not exceeding 5,000 square feet in area, two stairways.

Not exceeding 10,000 square feet in area, three stairways.

Not exceeding 20,000 square feet in area, four stairways.

(3) In Fire Houses, Libraries, Museums, Office Buildings, Warehouses, Stables, there shall be the following number of stairs for stories not exceeding the given area:

Not exceeding 3,750 square feet in area, one stairway.

Not exceeding 7,500 square feet in area, two stairways.

Not exceeding 15,000 square feet in area, three stairways.

Not exceeding 30,000 square feet in area, four stairways.

(4) In all Armories, Markets, Light and Power Plants, Car Barns, Garages, and Foundries, there shall be the following number of stairs for stories not exceeding the given area:

Not exceeding 5,000 square feet in area, one stairway.

Not exceeding 10,000 square feet in area, two stairways.

Not exceeding 20,000 square feet in area, three stairways.

Not exceeding 40,000 square feet in area, four stairways.

(5) Where the area of any story exceeds the above requirements for four continuous lines of stairs, such extra number of stairs, outside fire stairs or fire escapes shall be provided as the Inspector of Buildings shall direct.

(6) At the discretion of the Inspector of Buildings the allowable area for any given number of stairs as mentioned above may be increased as he shall direct between the given areas.

(7) In all Theatres or Opera Houses hereafter erected stairs of such number and of such width shall be provided as called for in Section 116 of this Code.

(8) The width of the stairs required by this section shall in no case be less than three feet and two inches from wall to centre of hand rail, or from centre to centre of parallel hand rails, and shall be greater if required by the Inspector of Buildings.

(9) All stairs shall have treads and risers of uniform width and height throughout in each flight and the rise shall be not more than eight inches, and the treads, exclusive of nosing, not less than nine inches.

(10) All stairs shall be provided with proper banisters or railings and hand rails.

(11) Each flight of stairs in every story which exceeds a height of twelve feet in the clear shall have a proper intermediate landing. When stairs have a straight run the landing shall be placed at the central portion thereof.

(12) If there are two or more flights of stairs, one outside fire stairs erected in accordance with Section 66 of this Code shall be considered the equivalent of one inside flight of stairs as herein provided, but no outside fire escape shall be accepted in lieu of such stairs.

(13) The Inspector of Buildings may order, in addition to fire escapes, such increase or alteration of existing inadequate stairways and exits in combustible structures, as will best conserve the safety of employees therein or the public users thereof.

(14) Slate and Stone Treads to be Supported.—In all buildings hereafter erected where the treads and landings of metal stairs are of slate, marble or other stone, there shall be placed directly underneath each tread and each landing for their entire length and width a metal plate made solid, or having openings not exceeding four square inches in same, of adequate strength, but not less than one-quarter of an inch in thickness, and securely fastened to the strings with bolts or rivets, or to both the strings and risers if the treads be more than three and one-half feet long. If stairs are of other fireproof material than metal, and the slate, marble or other stone treads and landings are each solidly supported for their entire length and width by the materials composing such stairs, metal supports shall not be required.

SECTION 66.

Outside Fire Stairs.

(1) Any building hereafter erected or altered, which exceeds thirty-six feet and six inches in height, and is required to have two or more staircases, as specified in section 65 of this Code, may have, when approved by the Inspector of Buildings, in place of one inside stairs an outside fire staircase, which shall be accessible to all occupants.

(2) Such outside fire stairs shall be entirely of suitable iron, reinforced concrete or steel. They shall extend from the curb, court or yard level to the roof, and shall in no case be in front of openings in the wall. At each story there will be access to the stairway. Access shall be only by doorways connecting with steel or iron balconies on the outside walls of the building. Doors shall be self-closing, at least three feet wide, metal covered, with metal-covered jambs and casings, and shall swing outwards to open, and be provided with locks or latches, with visible fastenings that require no keys.

(3) Direct outlets shall be provided at roof and curb level. Where staircases end in a court or yard there shall be a fireproof passageway not less than three feet wide and six feet six inches high, leading direct to the street. There shall be no steps within this passageway.

(4) Each staircase shall be at least three feet wide in the clear and have treads not less than nine inches wide, exclusive of nosings, and risers of not more than eight inches. Landings the full width of the stairs shall be provided at vertical intervals of not more than twelve feet. All treads shall be of uniform width. Winders shall be prohibited. The connecting balconies, which shall be provided in addition to any stair landing and at the same level therewith, shall be at least three feet six inches wide in the clear, and not more than two inches below the door sill. The top surface of treads, landings and balconies shall have an approved roughened surface to prevent slipping. Stairs shall have substantial railings and handrails. All parts of stairways and balconies shall receive not less than three coats of paint, one before and two after erection, and shall be kept painted and in good repair. Stairways, balconies and all passageways connecting thereto shall at all times be kept free from incumbrance, as required in section 67 for fire escapes.

SECTION 67.

Fire Escapes.

(1) The Inspector of Buildings shall have full and exclusive power and authority to direct fire escapes and other means of egress to be provided upon and within any of the said buildings, except as herein otherwise provided. The owner of any building upon which a fire escape is erected shall keep the same in good repair and properly painted.

(2) Tenements, Boarding Houses, which have more than fifteen sleeping rooms above the basement floor; every hotel, lodging house, factory, mill, workshop, store and school more than two stories in height, and every office and business building which is more than three stories in height, all buildings used or occupied as a place of public entertainment or instruction, and all such special buildings as may be designated by the Inspector of Buildings, unless otherwise provided with outside fire stairs as per Section 66 of this code, shall have one or more fire escapes as follows:

(3) Fire escapes on the outside of buildings shall consist of open iron balconies and stairways.

(4) The stairways shall be placed at an angle of not more than sixty degrees with the horizontal; and with steps not less than six inches in width and twenty inches in length, and with a rise of not more than nine inches.

(5) Balconies.—The balcony on the top floor, except in case of a front fire escape, shall be provided with a gooseneck ladder leading from said balcony to and above the roof.

(6) The balconies shall be not less than three feet in width, and placed where directed by the Inspector of Buildings, at each story above the ground floor.

(7) They shall be below and not more than one foot below the window sills and extend in front of and not less than nine inches beyond each window.

(8) There shall be a landing not less than twenty-four inches square at the head and foot of each stairway.

(9) The stairway opening on each platform shall be of a size sufficient to provide clear headway.

(10) Floors of Balconies.—The floors of balconies shall be of steel slats not less than one and one-half inches by three-eighths of an inch, placed not more than one and one-quarter inches apart, and well secured and riveted to steel bars. One and one-half inches by three-eighths of an inch, not over three feet apart and riveted at the intersection. The openings for stairways in all balconies shall be not less than twenty-one inches wide and thirty-six inches long, and such openings shall not have covers of any kind.

(11) The platforms or balconies shall be constructed and erected to safely sustain in all their parts a safe load, at a ratio of four to one, of not less than eighty pounds per square foot of surface.

(12) Railings.—The outside top rail shall extend around the entire length of the platform, and in all cases shall go through the wall at each end, and be properly secured by nuts and four-inch square washers at least three-eighths of an inch thick, and no top rail shall be connected at right angles by cast-iron. The top rail of balconies shall be one and three-quarter inches by one-half inch of steel, or one and one-half inches by one and one-half inch angle, one-quarter of an inch thick. The bottom rails shall be one and one-half inches by three eighths of an inch steel, or one and one-half inch by one and one-half inch angle, one-quarter inch thick, well leaded into the wall. The standards or filling-in bars shall be not less than one-half inch round or square steel, well riveted to the top and bottom rails and platform frame. Such standards or filling-in bars shall be securely braced by outside brackets at suitable intervals, and shall be placed not more than six inches from centres; the height of railings shall in no case be less than two feet nine inches.

(13) Stairways.—The stairways shall be constructed and erected to fully sustain in all their parts a safe load at a ratio of four to one of not less than one hundred pounds per square foot of surface. The treads shall be flat, open treads. The strings shall be not less than three-inch channels of steel, or other shape equally strong, and shall rest upon and be fastened to a bracket which shall be fastened through the wall, as hereinafter provided. The strings shall be securely fastened to the balcony at the top, and the steps in all cases shall be double-riveted or bolted to the strings. The stairs shall have three-quarter inch handrails of steel well braced.

(14) Brackets.—The brackets shall be not less than one-half inch by one and three-quarters inch steel, placed edgewise, or one and three-quarters inch angle, one-quarter inch thick, well braced. They shall be not more than four feet apart, and shall be braced by means of not less than three-quarters of an inch square steel, and shall extend two-thirds of the width of the respective balconies or brackets. The brackets shall go through the wall and be turned down three inches, or be properly secured by nuts and four inch square washers at least three-eighths of an inch thick.

(15) When brackets are put on buildings already erected, the part going through the wall shall be not less than one inch in diameter, with screw nuts and washers not less than five inches square and one-half an inch thick.

(16) Drop Ladders.—A proper balanced drop-ladder shall be required from the lower balcony when the floor of such balcony is more than fourteen feet above the sidewalk or ground.

(17) Painting.—All the parts of such fire escapes shall receive not less than two coats of paint, one in the shop and one after erection.

Incumbrances on Fire Escapes.

(1) No person shall at any time place an incumbrance of any kind whatsoever before or upon any fire-escape, balcony or ladder used as a fire escape. It shall be the duty of every Policeman who shall discover any fire-escape, balcony or ladder of any fire-escape incumbered in any way to forthwith report the same to his commanding officer, and such officer shall forthwith cause the occupant of the premises or apartment to which said fire-escape, balcony or ladder is attached, or for whose use the same is provided, to be notified, either verbally or in writing, to remove such encumbrance and keep the same clear. If said notice shall not be complied with by the removal forthwith of such incumbrance, and keeping said fire-escape, balcony or ladder free from encumbrance, then it shall be the duty of said commanding officer to apply to a Police Magistrate for a warrant for the arrest of the occupant or occupants of the said premises or apartments of which the fire-escape forms a part, and the said parties shall be brought before the said Magistrate as for disorderly conduct and on conviction the occupant or occupants of said premises or apartments shall be fined not more than ten dollars for each offense, or may be imprisoned not to exceed ten days, or both, in the discretion of the court.

(2) In constructing all balcony fire-escapes the manufacturer thereof shall securely fasten thereto, in a conspicuous place, a metal plate having suitable raised letters on the same, to read as follows: "Notice: Any Person Placing Any Incumbrance on This Balcony is Liable to a Penalty of Ten Dollars and Imprisonment for Ten Days."

(3) Scuttle Ladders.—All buildings requiring fire escapes, unless provided with stairs to the roof, shall have stationary iron ladders leading to the scuttle, opening in the roof thereof, and all scuttles and ladders shall be kept so as to be ready for use at all times.

(4) If a bulkhead is used in place of a scuttle it shall have stairs with sufficient guard or hand-rail leading to the roof. In case the building shall be a tenement, the door at the bulkhead or scuttle shall at no time be locked, but may be fastened on the inside by movable bolts or hooks.

SECTION 68.

Engineers' Stationary Ladders.

Every building in which boilers or machinery are placed in the cellar or lowest story shall have stationary iron ladders or stairs from such story leading direct to a manhole through the sidewalk or other outside exit.

SECTION 69.

Fire Shutters.

(1) Whenever the Inspector shall so direct buildings shall have standard fire doors, blinds or shutters or their equivalent, as required in this section, on every exterior window and opening above the first floor, except on openings fronting on streets, which are more than thirty feet in width, or where no other building is within thirty feet of such opening.

(2) If an approved metal window frame and approved metal sash with approved wire glass, are built in a window opening, fire shutters may be omitted.

SECTION 70.

Standpipes.

(1) In every building, exceeding fifty-nine and not over one hundred feet in height, unless already provided with a three-inch or larger standpipe, and in all buildings hereafter erected exceeding fifty-nine feet and not exceeding one hundred feet in height, there shall be provided a vertical standpipe of not less than four inches in diameter.

(2) These standpipes shall be of wrought iron or steel galvanized, and together with fittings and connections, shall be of such strength as to safely withstand at least three hundred pounds water pressure to the square inch when installed and ready for service; and to stand such a test without leaking at joints, valves or fittings.

(3) Standpipes shall be located within fireproof stairway inclosures where the latter are of such construction, and shall pass through the landings or the halls where they are not so enclosed.

(4) In buildings exceeding one hundred feet deep fronting on two or more streets there shall be a standpipe at each end of building, and in buildings of an area exceeding eight thousand square feet there shall be one standpipe at each stairway, or within each stairway enclosure.

(5) Where more than one standpipe is required in a building they shall be connected at their bases by pipes of sizes equal to that of the largest standpipes, so that water from any source will supply all the standpipes.

(6) Standpipes shall extend from the cellar to and through the roof, with a hose connection located from four to six feet above each floor level, fitted with approved straightway composition gate valve in each story, including cellar, and a hose connection provided above the roof with valve controlling latter located in the standpipe under the roof and arranged to be operated both from above and below the roof, by suitable three-quarter inch drain pipe and valve shall be provided under the roof for each roof connection.

(7) Hose sufficient to reach to all parts of the floor shall be attached to each outlet in the building, and hose for roof hydrant may be placed on rack in top floor near the scuttle or bulkhead leading to the roof. Hose shall be two and one-half inches in diameter, in fifty-foot lengths, and provided with standard couplings at each end; all couplings shall be of standard thread as that used by the Plainfield Fire Department.

(8) Hose shall be of standard make approved by the Inspector of Buildings.

(9) Each line of hose shall be provided with washers and be fitted with play pipe of standard pattern, with discharge outlet not less than three-quarter inch in diameter. Two spanners shall be located at each hose connection throughout the building.

(10) All standpipes shall be provided with a female siamese steamer connection with clapper valve, located on the outside of the building, about one foot above the curb level, and where a building fronts on two or more streets, a connection shall be provided on each street front. Inlet pipe from steamer connection to standpipe shall be not less than the diameter of the largest standpipe. The thread on the siamese connection shall be uniform with that used by the Fire Department. Siamese steamer connections shall be provided with check valves in the "Y," and substantial caps provided to protect thread on the connection. The steamer connection fitting shall be horizontal. A suitable iron plate with raised letters shall be secured to the wall near steamer connection, reading, "Standpipe leading to cellar, sub-cellar or up through building," as the case may be.

(11) In each connecting pipe just inside of the building, in a horizontal section, shall be placed a straightway check valve, but not a gate valve. A drip pipe with valve to same, shall be placed between said check valve and steamer connection to properly drain this section to prevent freezing.

(12) In addition to the provision made for steamer connections to standpipes, the water supply may be had from city water, automatic fire-pump of five hundred gallons or more capacity per minute, elevated tank or steel pressure tank of not less than five thousand gallons capacity.

(13) In all buildings coming under these regulations as to height the standpipe system shall have at least one of the approved automatic supplies before described.

(14) Where a standpipe is connected to a tank there shall be straightway check valve in a horizontal section of pipe between the first hose outlet in connecting pipe and tank, and said tank shall be filled by a separate pipe, and not through the standpipe.

(15) Where pumps furnishing a supply to standpipe are located in the lowest story of a building, they shall be placed not less than two feet above the floor level, and boilers upon which pumps depend for steam shall be arranged so that flooding of fires under same will be impossible.

SECTION 71.

Automatic Sprinklers.

(1) Where the maximum floor area is desired as per section 9, and in all building of Classes E and F, the height of which exceeds fifty-nine feet, except office buildings, restaurants, light and power plants, and any portion of loft buildings used for office or dwelling purposes, there shall be provided in addition to standpipes a standard equipment of automatic sprinklers, placed at ceiling of each story extending the full depth and breadth of the building. Said sprinkler pipes shall be connected with a pipe not less than four inches in diameter leading to the outside of building, and there provided with an approved siamese steamer connection, the latter to be installed under the requirements set forth in section 70 of this Code, and to be under the control of and for the use of the Fire Department. A suitable iron plate with raised letters shall be attached to the wall near said steamer connection, reading "Automatic Sprinklers."

CHAPTER XVIII.

Enclosures for Elevators, Stairways, Dumbwaiters and Shafts.

SECTION 72.

Elevator Enclosures.

(1) All elevators hereafter placed in any theatre, hospital, asylum, or in any building of classes B and E, excepting office buildings, shall be enclosed by partitions of brick, terra cotta block, reinforced concrete or other approved fire proof material, built in accordance with section 103 of this Code and carried by suitable foundations of masonry, concrete or steel. In all other buildings passenger elevators may be erected within staircase enclosures of brick or other approved masonry. In such cases the elevator shaft may be surrounded by open iron grill work, backed throughout with approved wire glass, and staircase throughout built of incombustible materials.

(2) If not used as bearing walls the partitions enclosing elevators, when of brick, shall be not less than eight inches in thickness for the uppermost fifty feet and shall increase four inches in thickness for each lower fifty feet or part thereof; or when wholly supported by suitable steel framing at vertical intervals not over forty feet, they may be eight inches in thickness throughout their height. If not used as bearing walls walls when of terra cotta block, wholly supported by steel framing at vertical intervals of not over twenty-four feet, and suitably spaced upright members shall be not less than six inches in thickness. If not used as baring walls such walls, when of reinforced concrete, shall be not less than four inches in thickness when suitably supported at vertical intervals of not over twenty-four feet, throughout their height. Such walls or partitions when of other approved fireproof material shall be constructed and supported as may be directed by the Inspector of Buildings. The inside surfaces of all elevator shafts shall be left smooth and free from projecting sills, lintels or breaks. Said walls shall extend through and at least three feet above the roof in all cases. Where the elevator shaft extends into the cellar or lowest story it shall be enclosed in that story with brick walls not less than eight inches thick, or reinforced concrete not less than four inches thick.

(3) Every door opening in any said inclosure shall be provided with a standard fire door; all window frames and sash to be metal covered and all glass to be wired glass.

(4) The roofs over all enclosed elevators shall be made of fireproof materials with a metal skylight at least three-fourths the area of the shaft, the glass to be not more than one-eighth of an inch thick and covered below with strong wire netting set in iron frame, but wired glass shall not be used in skylight over elevator inclosures.

(5) When the shaft does not extend to the bottom of the cellar or lowest story, the lowest end shall be enclosed in fireproof material. The bottom of every elevator shaft shall be fireproof.

(6) When the inclosure of an elevator has an opening to accommodate machinery for operating same, such as shafts, pulleys, drums, cables, etc., said machinery shall be inclosed in a similar manner to the shaft. Doors to be fire doors.

The door at the sidewalk level of the said elevator or lift shall be of sheet metal.

SECTION 73.

Stairway Enclosures.

(1) In all fireproof buildings exceeding thirty-six feet six inches in height and all buildings of Class E the stair halls shall be inclosed on each story with fireproof material the same as required for elevators, to form an inclosure, the floor area of which shall be not more than three times the total area of the floor openings for the elevators and stairs in each enclosure in each story.

All stairwells, elevator wells, halls and corridors shall be inclosed and separated from the rest of the floor space by fireproof enclosures, with floor surfaces of stone, cement, tiling, rock asphalt or other approved incombustible material, and approved metal or metal covered doors, trim and sash, having wire glass, where glass is used.

(2) The stairs and staircase landings shall be of brick, terra cotta, stone, Portland cement, concrete, iron or steel.

SECTION 74.

Dumbwaiter Inclosures.

(1) Dumbwaiter shafts in dwelling houses, to a height of two stories above basement or cellar floor, may be built throughout of wood studs filled in solidly with bricks, blocks, or approved incombustible material, above lowest story to be covered on all interior surfaces, and on lowest story to be covered on all interior and exterior surfaces with metal with plastered metal lath, or plastered approved plaster board strongly secured. If over the above three stories in height, and in all buildings other than dwellings, to be constructed as for fire-proof partitions, Section 103, of this code.

Note.—For reasons of fire safety, construction as per Section 103 is commended in all cases.

If extended to top story said partitions or walls shall also extend at least three feet above the roof and be roofed over with fireproof materials and with a skylight at least three-fourths the area of the shaft, made with metal frames and glazed with glass not more than one-eighth of an inch thick and covered below with strong wire netting, set in iron frames, but wired glass shall not be used in skylights over dumbwaiter enclosures.

(2) All openings in the inclosure walls or construction shall be provided with self-closing standard fire-doors, and fireproof jambs and trim.

(3) When the shaft does not extend to the floor level of the cellar or lowest story, the bottom of the shaft shall be constructed of fireproof material.

(4) When the shaft does not extend through the top story the top of the shaft also shall be constructed of fireproof material.

SECTION 75.

Light and Vent Shafts.

(1) In every building hereafter erected or altered, except frame dwellings, all the walls or partitions forming interior light or vent shafts, shall be built in accordance with sections 72 and 74 of this Code. The walls of all light or vent shafts whether exterior or interior hereafter erected, shall be carried up not less than three feet above the level of the roof and the walls shall be coped as other parapet walls. When the shaft is covered by a ventilating skylight of metal and glass the walls need not be carried more than two feet above the roof. When metal louvres are used for ventilating purposes, the louvres or slats shall be riveted to the metal frame.

(2) Vent shafts not more than twenty square feet in horizontal area in private dwellings may be built of wood studs filled and covered as for dumbwaiter inclosures, provided they do not extend through more than two stories and are carried above the roof, and covered with a ventilating skylight of metal and glass. If of greater area, and more than two stories in height, then to be constructed as per Section 103 of this code.

CHAPTER XIX.

Mansard Roofs, Roofings, Cornices, Gutters, Metal Fronts, Tanks, Pent Houses, Bulkheads and Scuttles, Skylights and Floor Lights.

SECTION 76.

Mansard Roofs.

If mansard or other roofs of like character, having a pitch of over sixty degrees be placed on masonry buildings within the fire zone over thirty-six feet six inches high, they shall be constructed of iron or steel frames, and metal lathed on the inside and plastered with two coats of mortar of good material, and if of wood on frame building, shall be filled with fireproof material not less than three inches thick. The outside of all such roofs shall be covered with metal, slate or tile.

Roofings Within the Fire Limits.

The planking and sheathing of the roofs of buildings shall not in any case be extended across the side or party wall thereof. Every building and the tops of every gable and dormer window thereon shall be covered and roofed with brick, tile, slate, tin, copper, iron or plastic slate, asphalt, slag or gravel may be used, provided such roofing shall be composed of not less than five layers of roofing felt, cemented together and finished with not less than ten gallons of coal-tar, pitch or asphalt to each one hundred square feet of roof such other quality of fireproof roofing as the Inspector of Buildings may authorize, and the outside of every gable and dormer window hereafter placed upon any building shall be covered with sheet metal or some other fireproof material. For repairs to existing roofings see section 10.

SECTION 77.

Cornices, Gutters and Metal Fronts.

(1) On all buildings hereafter erected within the fire limits the exterior cornices, inclusive of those on show windows, and gutters, shall be of sheet metal or other fireproof material. All such cornices shall be well secured to the walls with metal anchors, independent of any woodwork. The tops of cornices shall not extend above the tops of the walls to which they are attached.

(2) All exterior wooden cornices or features within the fire limits which by the operations of fire, or the elements, require renewal to the extent of one-half, shall be taken down, and if replaced, shall be constructed of sheet metal or other fireproof material. If not damaged to the extent of one-half, the same may be repaired with the same kind of material of which they were originally constructed.

(3) One story store fronts with show window may be built of wood, if sheathed and ceiled and covered with metal strongly secured, provided suitable fire stops are placed between both adjoining buildings. Metal fronts over one story high shall be framed and constructed of steel forms, all interstices filled with incombustible material, and may be sheathed and bracketed with wood, provided that all wood work is thoroughly covered with sheet metal strongly secured, and effective stops against adjoining buildings are provided.

SECTION 78.

Roof Leaders.

All buildings shall be provided with proper metallic leaders for conducting water from the roofs in such manner as shall protect the walls and foundations of said building from injury. In no case shall the water from the said leaders be allowed to flow upon the street or sidewalks but the same shall be conducted by proper pipe below the surface of the sidewalk to the street gutter, or to dry wells made of broken stone or brick.

SECTION 79.

Tanks.

Tanks containing more than five hundred gallons of water or other fluid hereafter placed on any story, or on the roof of any building now or hereafter erected, shall be supported by steel beams of sufficient strength to safely carry the same; and the beams shall rest at both their ends on masonry walls or on steel girders or iron or steel columns or piers of masonry. Underneath any said tank or on the side near the bottom of the same, there shall be a short pipe or outlet, not less than four inches in diameter, fitted with a suitable valve having a lever or wheel handle to same, so that firemen or others can readily discharge the weight of the fluid contents from the tank, in case of necessity. Such tanks shall be placed where practicable at one corner of a building, and shall not be placed over nor near a line of stairs. Covers on top of water tanks placed on roofs, if of wood, shall be covered with sheet metal. Tanks made of wood shall be coopered with metal hoops round in section. All roof tanks shall be cleaned and inspected semi-annually and kept in proper repair, and the cover on same shall be securely locked.

SECTION 80.

Pent Houses, Bulkheads and Scuttles on Roofs.

(1) Upon the roof of every building more than fifteen feet high there shall be a scuttle or bulkhead, with stairs or substantial iron ladder leading thereto, which shall be easily accessible to all occupants. All non-fireproof scuttles shall be covered on the top and edges with sheet metal or other approved fireproof materials, and shall be at least two feet by three feet.

(2) All bulkheads, including those used as inclosures for tanks, elevators or elevator machinery, and the pent houses and bulkheads of all buildings, more than fifty-nine feet in height, hereafter erected or altered, excepting frame buildings, shall be constructed fireproof in accordance with section 103 of this Code, and covered on all outside surfaces with approved incombustible weatherproof material, including all surfaces and edges of doors and jambs. Where door jambs are blocked out from the fireproofing the space between the jamb and the fireproofing shall be filled in solid with incombustible material, or in lieu of same the back of jamb shall be metal covered.

Where built of studding the studs to be filled with brick or clay blocks set in cement, all exterior surfaces and both sides of doors and jambs to be metal covered.

SECTION 81.

Skylights.

(1) All skylights placed on or in any masonry buildings shall have the frames and sash thereof constructed of metal and glazed. All skylight frames and parts thereof shall be riveted or otherwise securely fastened, in addition to any necessary soldering.

(2) All openings in roofs for the admission of light other than elsewhere provided in this Code over elevator, stair, dumbwaiter shafts and theatre stage roofs, shall have metal frames and sash, glazed with wire glass not less than one-quarter inch thick, or with glass protected above and below with wire screens, of not less than number eight galvanized wire, and not more than one and one-half inch mesh, set in seven-eighth inch channel iron frames, sections to be securely butted together and set in a one and one-quarter inch angle iron outside frame.

(3) All skylights hereafter erected within the fire limits, shall be of metal as above, but without said limits may be of wood.

Skylight and Roof Protection.

(4) If the walls of any building are carried up higher than the roofs of adjoining buildings, it shall be the duty of the owner of the building to be erected or altered, to cause the protection by proper means, of the skylights and roofs of such adjoining buildings until the work of construction has been completed.

(5) Should any owner of any adjoining premises refuse permission to have such roofs and skylights protected, such refusal by said owner shall forthwith be reported in writing to the Inspector of Buildings. Such notice shall relieve the owner of the building in course of construction or alteration from any responsibility for damage done to persons or property on or within the premises affected.

SECTION 82.

Floor Lights.

Floor lights, used for transmission of light to floors below, shall be constructed of metal frames and bars or plates, or reinforced concrete or other approved fire-proof material. Glass shall in no case be less than three-quarters of an inch in thickness, and if any glass in same measures more than sixteen square inches, the glass shall be provided with a mesh of wire, either in the glass or under the same, and the floor lights shall be of the same proportional strength as the floors in which they are placed.

No opening in any floor or roof shall be without a solid covering or an inclosure as provided in this Code, to prevent the communication of fire from story to story, excepting as otherwise provided in this Code, for certain staircase openings which are not required to be inclosed.

CHAPTER XX.

SECTION 83

Light and Ventilation.

In any building hereafter erected every sleeping room shall be provided with a window or windows opening directly upon a street, yard or open court. The total window area shall be not less than twelve square feet between stop beads and shall be so arranged that it can be opened to the extent of about one-half its area. Such sleeping room shall be for three-fourths of its area not less than eight feet high from the finished floor to the finished ceiling, and shall be not less than seven feet in width and not less than seventy superficial feet in area, except in hotels, which shall be not less than eighty superficial feet in area.

No sleeping room shall hereafter be placed in a cellar, the ceiling of which is less than two feet above the curb.

In all buildings hereafter erected, provision shall be made for providing natural light to all rooms to be used or occupied by one or more persons.

CHAPTER XXI.

Sheds Over Sidewalks, Outside Scaffolds.

SECTION 84.

Shed Coverings for the Protection of Pedestrians.

Whenever buildings on the street building line shall be erected or increased to over thirty-six feet six inches in height, upon or along any such the owner or owners of any such buildings shall cause to be erected and maintained during such construction or alteration, a shed over the sidewalk in front of said premises. The shed shall extend from area line to curb for the full frontage of the building, and the roof thereof shall be strong and tight, so as to protect persons using such streets. The street side of such covered way shall be left open for a height not less than six feet above the curb. Said sheds and enclosures shall be subject to the inspection of the Inspector of Buildings.

SECTION 85.

Outside Scaffolds.

Whenever outside mason scaffolds are used on buildings on the street building line of thirty-six feet six inches in height, whether the same be constructed of poles, thrust-outs or suspended scaffolds, there shall be erected on their outer edges and ends an enclosure of substantial wire netting of not over two-inch mesh, or of boards not less than seven-eighths of an inch thick, placed not over one and one-half inches apart, well secured to uprights not less than two inches by four inches fastened at bottom to planks or timbers on the outer edges and ends of the scaffolding and braced by diagonal stays fastened to platform and top of uprights. The said enclosure shall extend three feet above the working platform of the scaffold.

Timber thrust-outs shall be not less than three inches square and as much larger as may be required for the load to be carried. They shall be thoroughly braced and secured.

The flooring of all scaffolds shall be tightly constructed with plank. Where poles, put-logs or thrust-out scaffolds are used, the floor and enclosure shall not be removed like floor and enclosure are prepared and in position on the story above.

CHAPTER XXII.

Structural Steel and Iron.

SECTION 86.

Steel Columns.

(1) No part of a rolled steel column shall be less than five-sixteenths of an inch thick.

No rolled steel column shall have an unsupported length of more than forty times its least lateral dimensions or diameter except as modified by section 31 of this Code.

(2) The ends of all columns shall be faced to a plane surface at right angles to the axis of the columns, and the connections between them shall be made with splice plates.

When the section of the columns to be spliced are such that splice plates cannot be used, a connection formed of plates and angles may be used, designed to properly distribute the stress.

(3) No material (whether in the body of the column or used as lattice-bar or stay-plate) shall be used in any steel column of less thickness than one-thirty-second of its unsupported width measured between centres of rivets transversely, or one-sixteenth the distance between centres of rivets in the direction of the stress.

(4) Stay-plates are to have not less than four rivets, and are to be spaced so that the ratio of length to the least radius of gyration of the parts connected shall not exceed forty; the distance between nearest rivets of two stay-plates shall in this case be considered as length.

(5) Steel columns shall be made in one, two or three-story lengths, and the materials shall be rolled in one length wherever practicable to avoid intermediate splices.

(6) Where any part of the section of a column projects beyond that of the column above, the differences shall be made up by filling plates secured to column by the proper number of rivets.

(7) Shoes of iron or steel, as described for cast iron columns or built shoes of plates and shapes may be used.

SECTION 87.

Cast Iron Columns.

(1) All cast-iron columns shall be of good workmanship and material. The thickness of metal shall not be less than one-twelfth of the greatest lateral dimensions of cross section, nor less than three-quarters of an inch.

(2) Cast-iron columns shall not have a smaller outside diameter or side than five inches, nor shall they have unsupported length of more than twenty times their least lateral dimension or diameter, except as modified by section 31 of this Code.

(3) Seats and lugs shall be cast with the column and shall be of ample strength, reinforced by fillets and brackets; they shall be not less than one inch in thickness when finished.

(4) All columns shall be machine faced at the ends to a true surface perpendicular to the axis.

(5) Where square or rectangular cast-iron columns are placed one on top of another, the top flange shall project not less than three inches from the outer surfaces of the column on all sides, and the shape and dimensions of bottom flange of the column immediately above shall be the same as those of the top flange of the column below. If the column is round or many sided, the top flange shall project not less than three inches at its least projection from the outer surface of the column, and be square or rectangular in shape, and the bottom flange of the column immediately above the same shall be of the same shape and dimensions as the top flange of the column below. Each flange shall be reinforced with brackets cast centrally on the column, and with fillets on both the bracket and flange. In case the column is placed on the lot line, the flanges on that side only may be omitted, if approved by the Inspector of Buildings.

(6) Between the joints of cast-iron columns placed vertically over each other there shall be a solid steel plate not less than one-half inch in thickness, of the same dimensions as the flanges of the columns, and true on both sides. The columns shall be bolted together with bolts not less than three-quarters of an inch in diameter, passing through the two flanges and the intermediate plate, the bolts being of sufficient length to allow the nuts to be screwed up tightly, and as each column is placed in position the bolts shall also be placed in position and the nuts shall be tightly screwed up. One bolt shall be placed at each corner of the plate and flanges, and the number of bolts shall be never less than four. The holes for these bolts shall be drilled to a template.

(7) Where cast-iron columns are placed vertically one on top of the other, the diameters of sides shall not be decreased more than one inch for each story.

(8) If the core of a column below a joint is larger than the core of steel, iron, blue stone or granite template so designed as to properly distribute the load over the masonry, excepting that for beams not exceeding six inches in depth, placed, not more than thirty inches on centres, no templates shall be required.

SECTION 92.

Framing and Connecting Structural Work.

(1) Steel girders, columns, beams, trusses and other steel work of floors and roofs shall be well and firmly connected together, and to the walls.

(2) All beams framed into and supported by other beams or girders shall be connected thereto either by angles or knees of a proper size and thickness, and have sufficient bolts or rivets in both legs of each connecting angle to transmit the entire weight or load coming on the beam to the supporting beam or girder; or a seat sufficiently strong to carry the full load with a side angle or knee to hold the beam in place may be used.

(3) In no case shall the shearing value of the bolts or rivets or the bearing value of the connection angles, provided for in section 27 of this code, be exceeded.

SECTION 93.

Riveting of Structural Steel.

(1) The distance from centre of a rivet hole to the edge of the material shall be not less than ¾ of an inch for ½ inch rivets.

1 inch for ⅝ inch rivets.
1¼ inches for ¾ inch rivets.
1½ inches for ⅞ inch rivets.
1¾ inches for 1 inch rivets.

Wherever possible the distance shall be equal to two diameters.

(2) All rivets, wherever practicable, shall be machine driven. Rivets shall be proportioned and placed to suit the stresses. The pitch of rivets shall never be less than three diameters of the rivet, nor more than six inches. In the direction of the stress it shall not exceed sixteen times the least thickness of the outside member. At right angles to the stress it shall not exceed thirty-two times the least thickness of the outside member.

(3) All holes shall be punched accurately, so that, upon assembling, a cold rivet will enter the hole without straining the material by drifting. Occasional slight errors shall be corrected by reaming.

(4) The rivets shall fill the holes completely; the heads shall be hemispherical and concentric with the axis of the rivet.

(5) Wherever required gussets shall be provided of sufficient thickness and size to accommodate the number of rivets necessary to make a connection.

SECTION 94.

Bolting of Structural Steel.

(1) Where riveting is not practicable, connections may be made by bolts, which shall be of wrought iron or mild steel, with United States standard threads. The threads shall be full and clean, the nut shall be truly concentric with the bolt, and the thread shall be of sufficient length to allow the nut to be screwed up tightly.

(2) When bolts go through bevel flanges, bevel washers to match shall be used so that head and nut of bolt are parallel.

(3) When bolts are used for suspenders, the working stresses shall be reduced for steel to twelve thousand pounds per square inch of net area, and the load shall be transmitted into the head or nut by washers, distributing the pressure evenly over the entire surface of the same.

SECTION 95.

Trusses.

(1) Trusses shall be so designed that the stresses in each member can be calculated.

(2) All trusses shall be held rigidly in position by efficient systems of lateral and sway bracing, struts being spaced so that the maximum limit of length to least radius of gyration, established in Section 31 of this code, is not exceeded.

(3) Any member of a truss subjected to transverse stress, in addition to direct tension or compression, shall have such stresses added to the direct stresses coming on the member, and the sum of these stresses shall not exceed the working stresses stated in this code.

SECTION 96.

Riveted Steel Trusses.

(1) For tension members the actual net area only, after deducting rivet holes, one-eighth inch larger than the rivets, shall be considered as resisting the stress.

(2) The number of rivets shall be determined as prescribed in Sections 27 and 93 of this code.

(3) If the axes of two adjoining members do not intersect within the line of chords, sufficient area shall be added to the chords to take up the bending stresses, or the web members shall be connected by plates so arranged that the axes of the web members prolonged will intersect on the centre of gravity of the chord.

(4) No bolts shall be used in the connection of riveted trusses, excepting when riveting is impracticable, and then the holes shall be drilled or reamed.

SECTION 97.

Steel Pin-Connected Trusses.

(1) All compression members in pin-connected trusses shall be proportioned, using seventy-five per centum of the permissible working stress for columns. The heads of all eye-bars shall be made by upsetting or forging. No weld will be allowed in the body of the bar. Steel eye-bars shall be annealed. Bars shall be straight before boring.

(2) All pin-holes shall be bored true and at right angles to the axis of the members, and must fit the pin within one-thirty-second of an inch. The distance of pin-holes from centre to centre for corresponding members shall be alike, so that when piled upon one another pins will pass through both ends without forcing. Eyes and screw-ends shall be so proportioned that upon test to destruction fracture will take place in the body of the member. All pins shall be accurately turned.

(3) Pin-plates shall be provided wherever necessary to reduce the stresses prescribed in this code. These pin-plates shall be connected to the members by rivets of sufficient size and number to transmit the stresses without exceeding the allowable working stresses.

(4) All rivets in members of pin-connected trusses shall be machine-driven. All rivets in pin-plates which are necessary to transmit stress shall be also machine driven.

(5) The main connection of members shall be made by pins. Other connections may be made by rivets. If there is a combination of riveted and pin-connected members in one truss these members shall comply with the requirements for pin-connected trusses; but the riveting shall comply with the requirements of Section 96 of this code.

SECTION 98.

Painting of Metal Structural Work.

(1) Where surfaces in riveted work come in contact, with each other, they shall be painted before assembling.

(2) Structural metal work shall not be painted when it is to be thoroughly imbedded in concrete or cement grout, but when surfaces in riveted work come in contact with each other, they shall be oiled with boiled linseed oil.

(3) All metal structural work that is not to be thoroughly imbedded in concrete or cement grout shall be cleaned of all scales, dust, dirt and rust, and thoroughly coated with at least one coat of suitable paint; after erection all such work shall be painted at least one additional coat, of a different shade.

(4) Cast-iron columns shall not be painted or covered until after inspection by the Bureau of Buildings.

(5) All iron or steel used under water shall be imbedded in concrete.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Fireproofing and Fireproof Buildings, Floors, Fire Proofing Columns, Girders, Etc., and Fire Proof Partitions.

SECTION 99.

Skeleton Construction.

(1) Columns built in walls and protection of Wall Columns and Girders.—Where metal columns are used to support steel girders carrying enclosure walls, or where columns are built in walls and used to support floors only for skeleton structures, the said columns shall be of cast-iron or rolled steel, computed as per section 27 of this code, and shall be protected on their exposed outer and inner surfaces against fire by having a casing of masonry not less than eight inches in thickness on the outer surfaces, and not less than four inches in thickness on the inner surfaces, and all bonded into brickwork of the enclosure walls.

(2) Metal ties between columns used to support floors, at each story, shall not be imbedded in the masonry but shall be set clear of it on the interior.

(3) The exposed sides of the steel girders shall be similarly covered in with masonry not less than four inches in thickness on the outer surfaces and tied and bonded, but the extreme outer edge of the flanges of beams, or plates or angles connected to the beams, may project to within two inches of the outside surface of the brick casing.

(4) The inside surfaces of girders shall be similarly covered with brickwork, or if projecting inside of the wall, they shall be protected by metal lathing as specified in section 103, terra-cotta, concrete of other standard fire-proof material.

(5) Girders for the support of the inclosure walls of skeleton structure shall be placed at the floor line of each story.

(6) Buildings constructed of reinforced concrete posts and girders, with exterior walls of clay blocks or brick, as therein set forth throughout as per clause one of section 100, shall be deemed of skeleton fireproof construction.

SECTION 100.

Fireproof Buildings.

(1) Every fireproof building hereafter erected or altered shall be constructed with walls of brick, stone, hard clay blocks or Portland cement concrete, in which wood beams or lintels shall not be placed, and in which the floor and roofs shall be constructed of incombustible materials as provided for in sections 17, 99, 104 and 105 of this code.

(2) The stairs and staircase landings shall be constructed of brick, stone, Portland cement concrete, iron or steel, or a combination of these materials.

(3) No woodwork or other combustible material shall be used in any of the roofs, partitions furring or ceilings in any such fireproof buildings except rough frames for interior doors and windows and ground bucks for fastening trim in place, nailing blocks and wood sleepers for nailing wood flooring where it is used. When the height of the building does not exceed one hundred feet, the doors and windows and their frames and trims, casings, the interior finish when filled solidly at the back with fireproof material, and the floor boards and sleepers directly thereunder may be of wood, but the entire space between the top of the fireproof floor, arch or slab, and any combustible floor finish shall be solidly filled with cement concrete mixed in the proportions of one of cement to ten of steam boiler anthracite cinders or other incombustible aggregates.

(4) In all fireproof buildings hereafter erected, when the height exceeds one hundred feet, the floor surfaces shall be finished with stone, cement, lining, tiles, asphalt or similar incombustible materials in which a wood nailing strip not exceeding three inches in width and one inch thick may be imbedded. All outside window frames and sash shall be of metal or of wood covered with metal. Inside window frames, sash and doors, trim and other interior finish shall be of metal, or of wood covered with metal, or of concrete or other approved incombustible material. All window frames made of wood covered with metal before being installed shall be standard and approved.

SECTION 101.

Floors.

(1) The fireproof floor and roof construction between the steel beams may be in the form of flat arches or slabs. All floors shall be designed to safely carry the loads to be imposed. All arches to have a rise of not less than one inch for each foot of span between the beams.

(2) Arches of Portland cement concrete shall be not less than three and one-half inches in thickness at the crown for spans of five feet or less, and four inches for spans over five feet. The concrete shall consist of one part Portland cement, two and one-half parts of sand, and five parts of crushed stone, gravel, clean steam boiler cinders, slag, brick or tile passing through a one-inch ring. These arches shall in all cases be reinforced with steel rods or bars, reticulated or meshed steel or similar steel metal weighing not less than one-third pound per square foot of floor area. Such reinforcing metal shall in no case be less than three-quarters of an inch from the lower side of the concrete arch. If the reinforced metal is in the form of rods or bars, they shall be spaced not over three times the minimum thickness of the arch, centre to centre, and if in the form of mesh it shall have no openings smaller than twenty-four square inches.

(3) Brick arches shall have a thickness of not less than four inches for spans of five feet or less, and eight inches for spans over five feet and up to eight feet. Such brick arches shall be composed of good, hard, common or hollow brick or porous terra cotta without cellular spaces, the brick to be laid to a line on the centres and properly and solidly bonded. Each longitudinal line of brick shall break joints with the adjoining lines for eight inches in arches. The arches shall spring from suitably designed solid skewbacks made of the same material as the arches, and be properly keyed. The brick shall be well wetted before laying, and the joints filled in solid with Portland cement mortar consisting of one part cement and three parts of sand.

(4) Hollow tile arches of hard burnt clay, semi-porous or porous terra cotta, which shall be of uniform density and hardness of burn, shall have sufficient depth between the top and bottom surfaces to carry the load to be imposed thereon without stressing the material beyond its safe working load, but such depth shall in no case be less than six inches for spans of five feet or less, and eight inches for greater spans and all blocks shall have at least two cellular spaces in said minimum depth.

The webs of all arch blocks shall be not less than three-quarters of an inch thick, with rounded fillets at all interior intersections. Skewbacks of side construction shall be used with all forms of hollow tile arches. They shall be of such form and section as to accurately fit the beams and properly receive the thrust of the arches, and shall have shells and webs not less than three-quarters of an inch thick. Such arches shall be laid in Portland cement mortar and shall be properly keyed. The shells and webs of all end construction arch blocks shall abut one against the other.

(5) Flat slabs of reinforced Portland cement concrete shall consist of the same materials, be mixed and constructed in the same manner as specified in paragraph two of this section, as to metal. If made with crushed stone or gravel no slab shall be less than three and one-half inches in thickness. If made with cinders, broken slag or brick no slab shall be less than four inches in thickness.

General conditions of making and using to be as per Section 22 of this Code.

SECTION 102.

Fireproofing Columns, Girders, Etc.

(1) All metal structural members supporting loads or resisting strains, and which are not covered by brick or stone masonry to a thickness of four inches shall be fireproofed as follows: The columns and girders shall be protected by concrete as defined for floors filled solidly around them two inches thick, or of brick set solidly in Portland cement mortar. The extreme outer edges of lugs, brackets and similar supporting metal may project to within one inch of the outer surface of the protection. Columns may also be protected by hollow tile blocks, not less than one inch in thickness, with the space between the blocks and the column filled solidly with Portland cement concrete. The concrete and the blocks shall be not less than two inches in thickness and anchored with interior steel anchors.

(2) Columns may also be protected by a layer of metal lath and concrete and plaster as follows: The columns shall be wrapped with metal lath weighing not less than five ounces per square foot, corrugated or with metal furring so as to offset the metal lath at least two inches from the surface to be protected. Portland cement concrete same as for floors shall then be applied, filling the space solidly between the metal lath and column. The brown coat and the finishing coat may be of similar material as is used in the finishing of other portions of the building. All protective column coverings to extend from floor to ceiling.

(3) Where the fireproofing of columns is exposed to damage from the trucking or handling of merchandise, such fireproofing shall be jacketed on the outside for a height of not less than four feet from the floor with a suitable metal covering.

(4) The members of all metal trusses and the webs of all floor beams projecting above or below the arches shall be protected by not less than two inches of the arch material. The soffits of all floor beams shall be protected by not less than two inches of the arch material. Said soffit protection, if of concrete, shall be secured in place by interior steel anchors, as defined below, or by meshed metal or metal in other forms weighing not less than one-half pound per square foot; the said metal shall be anchored by extending the ends at least two inches in the fireproof protection of the webs above. If of tile the protection shall consist of lugs forming part of the skewbacks, and extending around the lower flange of the beam and meeting at the centre; or of tile slabs held in position by dovetailed lugs projecting from the skewbacks; or the soffits of floor beams may be protected with metal lath and plaster to a thickness of one inch as follows: The metal lath shall weigh not less than five ounces per square foot, and shall be wrapped around the soffits of the beams so as to be offset three-quarters of an inch from the surface to be protected, with the ends of the lath secured by extending them at least two inches in the concrete protection of the webs above. Plaster gauged with twenty-five per cent. of Portland cement shall then be applied to a thickness of one inch in a single coat, filling the space solidly between the metal lath and the soffit of the beam. No exposed metal clips or clamps of any character shall be used to support the soffit protection. Lintels and other lesser structural members supporting loads or resisting strains shall be protected in the same manner as the soffits of floor beams.

(5) The fireproof protection of all the above structural members shall be securely held in position by suitably designed interior steel anchors hooked around the flanges or angles of the structural members and spaced not over sixteen inches apart, horizontally and vertically. These anchors to be made with hooked ends from steel stock weighing not less than one-half of a pound per linear foot and extending to within one inch of the outside surface of the concrete or brick protection.

SECTION 103.

Fireproof Partitions.

(1) All hall and permanent partitions between rooms in fireproof buildings shall be built of fireproof material. The heights in feet to which partitions of different materials may be built, and their corresponding minimum thickness, shall be as follows:

	Feet.
Brick, 8 inches thick	30
Brick, 3½ inches thick	18
Reinforced concrete, 6 inches thick	30
Reinforced concrete, 4 inches thick	24
Reinforced concrete, 2 inches thick	20
Metal lath and plaster, 4 inches thick	20
Metal lath and plaster, 2 inches thick	12
Hollow blocks of hard burned clay or porous terra cotta, concrete or other incombustible compositions, 6 inches thick	20
Hollow block or hard burned clay or porous terra cotta, concrete, or other incombustible compositions, 4 inches thick	16

(2) Hollow blocks for partitions shall not be less than four inches in thickness, unreinforced. If reinforced by metal studs and ties, they shall not be less than two inches in thickness, to be approved by the Inspector.

(3) The reinforcing metal or studs of all concrete or other partitions shall be rigidly secured or anchored at the top and bottom to incombustible material. Metal studding for all metal lath and reinforced concrete partitions shall average not less than one-half pound in weight for each square foot of partition surface, and shall not be spaced over two feet apart. Metal lath for partitions shall weigh not less than five ounces per square yard.

(4) Fireproof partitions shall in all cases have sufficient bearing on the fireproof floors, supporting steel, or other incombustible material, to carry the weight of said partitions. Their weight shall in no case be supported by wood sleepers or floor boards. In buildings where flat metal lath and plaster ceilings are employed the partitions shall be built only to the under side of the metal lath ceilings.

(5) All brick and block partitions shall be built with Portland cement mortar.

(6) The sides and top of interior door and window openings may be of wood frames sufficient for securing the wood jambs and trim thereto, but the wall material over such openings must be wholly supported by arch or metal of such capacity and bearings as may be approved by the Inspector of Buildings.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Reinforced Concrete Construction, and Tests of Fire Proofing.

SECTION 104.

Reinforced Concrete.

(1) The term reinforced concrete shall mean an approved concrete mixture reinforced by steel of any suitable shape. The concrete is to be considered only for compression and shearing stresses, and is not to be figured for tension.

The steel is to be considered for tension and also to assist the concrete in shear and compression where necessary.

(2) Concrete to be reinforced shall consist of one part of Portland cement, two parts of sand, and five parts of broken stone or gravel, materials to be measured, and shall be what is usually known as a "wet" mixture.

(3) All sand used shall be as per section 18, and all cement used shall be Portland cement as per section 20, the manner of working and handling, the construction of forms and centering and the removal of same as per section 22, all steel as per section 27, and all floors as per section 101 of this code.

(4) Buildings of reinforced concrete, when designed and built in accordance with the requirements of this section shall be deemed to be fire proof construction.

SECTION 105.

Working Stresses and Requirements.

(1) Reinforced concrete shall be so designed that the stresses in the concrete and the steel shall not exceed the following limits:

	Pounds
Extreme fibre stress on concrete in compression, per square inch	700
Shearing stress in concrete, per square inch	75
Concrete in direct compression, per square inch	500
Tensile strength in steel, per square inch	16,000
Shearing stress in steel, per square inch, mild steel	10,000
Hard steel	12,000

(2) The ration of the moduli of elasticity of concrete and steel shall be taken as one to fifteen.

(3) The following assumptions shall guide in the determination of the bending moments due to the external forces. Beams and girders can be figured as continuous to the extent of WL-10 in the middle, if the negative moment be taken care of by steel. This applies only to cases where the rods can be continued into the adjacent beams or girders far enough beyond the point of maximum negative moment to properly distribute the stresses to the concrete. Floor slabs, when constructed continuous and when provided with reinforcement at top of plate over the supports, may be treated as continuous beams, the bending moment for uniformly distributed loads being taken at not less than WL-10 the bending moment may be taken at WL-24 in the case of rectangular floor slabs which are reinforced in both directions and supported on all sides, where the sides are not over sixteen feet average and do not differ more than fifty per cent. in length, this moment can be considered as existing in the middle third. Proper reduction can be made elsewhere.

(4) The moment of resistance of any reinforced concrete construction under transverse loads shall be determined by formulae based on the following assumptions:

(a) The bond between the concrete and steel is sufficient to make the two materials act together as a homogeneous solid.

(b) The stress in any fibre is directly proportionate to the distance of that fibre from the neutral axis.

(c) The modulus of elasticity of the concrete remains constant within the limits of the working stresses fixed in this section.

(5) No allowance shall be made for the tensile strength of concrete.

(6) When the shearing stresses developed in any part of a reinforced concrete construction exceed the safe working strength of concrete, as fixed in this section, a sufficient amount of steel shall be introduced in such a position that the deficiency in the resistance to sheer is overcome. In any case shearing bars must be provided with a maximum spacing equal to the working depth of the beam or girder.

(7) When the safe limit of adhesion between the concrete and steel is exceeded, provision must be made for transmitting the stresses from the one material to the other.

(8) All reinforcement in beams, girders and columns shall be so secured that it can be no displacement of the same in the concrete.

(9) Where girders or beams are connected with columns, the reinforcement of the girder shall penetrate the column and be secured to it.

(10) All reinforcement shall be completely encased in concrete. The thickness of concrete outside of the reinforcement shall not be less than three-quarters of an inch in floor slabs, partitions or walls, not less than one and one-half inches for all beams, girders and columns, and not less than three inches in footings.

(11) Reinforced concrete may be used for columns in which the ratio of length to least side or diameter does not exceed fifteen; but in no case shall the effective cross section of the column be less than sixty-four square inches.

(12) All reinforced concrete columns shall have longitudinal reinforcements of a total cross sectional area equal to at least one per cent. of the effective cross sectional area of the concrete; provided, however, that the total sectional area of the reinforcing steel shall not be less than one square inch, and that no rod or bar be of less diameter or smaller dimensions than one-half inch. Flat steel may be used if of equivalent area and spacing. All longitudinal reinforcement rods shall be tied together by wire at least one-quarter of an inch in diameter at intervals not exceeding the diameter of columns. All vertical reinforcing rods or bars shall extend upward or downward into the column above or below, lapping the reinforcement of the column above or below to the extent of at least thirty diameters of the rod or bar of the larger section. Rods for compression only to have suitable sleeves at joints.

(13) Reinforced concrete columns may be stressed to five hundred pounds per square inch of the effective area.

(14) Vertically reinforced columns must not exceed an average stress of 800 pounds per square inch on the cross section.

(15) Spandrel walls supported entirely by reinforced concrete or steel girders shall have a minimum thickness of six inches, and shall be reinforced with not less than one half pound of steel per square foot of wall.

SECTION 106.

Tests of Fire Proofing.

(1) Whenever required by the Inspector of Buildings, the contractor, at his own expense, shall make load or other tests to determine the efficiency of the fireproof construction. The floors shall, in all cases, develop a strength in thirty days equal to five times the live load for which the supporting steel work is designed. The loads shall consist of such materials and be so placed as to form a uniformly distributed load over the entire area to be tested and without arching and transmitting the loads to the supports, and in case sand or similar material is to be used for loading, it shall be in bulk and loose and not in sacks or packages of any kind. The section to be tested shall be not less than a square, one side of which is equal to the distance between the beams; the test section shall be cut apart from the rest of the flooring before the load is applied. Fireproof floors failing to develop the strength herein required shall be condemned by the Inspector of Buildings and shall be replaced by the contractor by floors of the required strength.

(2) On all reinforced construction the contractor shall be prepared whenever required by the Inspector of Buildings, to make load tests, at his own expense, on any portion of a reinforced concrete construction within thirty days after completion of that portion. The test shall show that the construction will sustain a load twice the live load for which it was designed without a deflection of more than one-fifth of an inch per foot of span. Tested portions failing to develop the strength herein required shall be replaced by members of the required strength.

(3) In case it is desired to use other or new materials, or employ same in a different manner than herein provided for fireproof construction, the manufacturer or representative thereof shall, at his own expense, make a comparative fire and water test under the direction of the Inspector of Buildings, side by side with one of the approved methods herein described, or obtain dispensation as per section 25 of this code.

CHAPTER XXV.

Timber Construction and Woodwork.

SECTION 107.

Wood Beams.

(1) Every wood beam and timber in any wall of every building built of stone, brick or concrete, shall be separated from any other beam or timber in the wall by at least four inches of solid masonry. Such separation may be obtained by corbeling or by staggering the beams.

(2) Minimum Thickness for Wood Beams.—No wood floor beams or wood roof beams used in any building, hereafter erected, shall be of a less thickness than two inches.

(3) Trimmer and Header Beams.—All wood trimmer and header beams shall be proportioned to carry with safety the loads they are intended to sustain and must be properly framed; if over four feet in length they must be hung in suitable metal stirrups.

(4) Bearings for Wood Beams.—Every wood beam, except header and tail beams, shall rest at each end four inches in a wall, or on a girder, corbel, beam or column.

(5) Bevel Ends for Wood Beams.—The ends of all wood floor and roof beams, where they rest on brick walls, shall be cut to a bevel of three inches in their depth.

(6) Ends of Beams Not to Rest on Stud Partitions.—In no case shall either end of a floor or roof beam be supported on non-continuous stud partitions, except in frame buildings.

(7) Cross Bridging for Beams.—All wood floor and wood roof beams shall be properly bridged with cross bridging, and the distance between bridging or between bridging and wall shall not exceed eight feet.

(8) Beams Near Flues.—All wood beams shall be trimmed away from all flues and chimneys whether the same be a smoke, air or any other flue or chimney. The trimmer beam shall be not less than eight inches from the inside face of a flue and four inches from the outside of a chimney breast, and the header beam not less than two inches from the outside face of the brick or stone work of the same.

Except that for the smoke flues of boilers and furnaces where the brick work is required to be more than eight inches in thickness, the trimmer beam shall be not less than four inches from the outside of the brick work and the header beam shall be not less than four inches from the outside of the brickwork.

(9) The header beam, carrying the tail beams of a floor and supporting the trimmer arch in front of a fireplace shall be not less than twenty inches from face of the chimney breast.

(10) The safe carrying capacity of timber beams shall be determined by their resistance to bending and shear in accordance with the unit stresses fixed by section 30 of this code.

(11) If outside sheathing is omitted on any wood frame construction, provision must be made for safe proportional increase of timber sizes and bracing to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Buildings.

SECTION 108.

Anchors and Straps For Wood Beams and Girders.

(1) Each tier of beams shall be anchored to the side, front, rear or party walls at intervals of not more than six feet apart, with good strong steel or wrought iron anchors of not less than one and one-half inches by one-quarter of an inch in size, well fastened to the side of the beams by three or more nails made of wrought iron at least one-quarter of an inch in diameter. Said anchors shall extend into brick work eight inches.

(2) Girder Straps and Anchors.—Where the beams are supported by girders, the girders shall be anchored to the walls and fastened to each other by suitable iron or steel straps.

(3) Beam Straps.—The ends of wood beams resting upon girders shall be abutted together end to end and strapped by steel or wrought iron straps of the same size as the wall anchors, and shall be fastened in the same manner as said wall anchors. Or they may lap each other at least twelve inches and be well spiked together or bolted together where lapped.

(4) Pier Anchors.—Every pier and wall front or rear, shall be well anchored to the beams of each story, with the same size anchors as are required for side walls, which anchor shall hook over the third beam.

SECTION 109.

Wood Columns and Posts and Timbers for Trusses.

(1) All timber columns and posts shall be squared at the ends perpendicular to their axes.

(2) To prevent the unit stresses from exceeding those fixed in this code, timber or iron cap plates or pintles and base plates shall be provided.

(3) Where the cap plate of a wood column or post supports a wood girder, and directly on top of the girder is an iron or steel base plate of the wood post above, the said cap and base plates shall be connected by pintles of metal passing through the girder; these pintles may be of round bars of steel of proper size and not less than four in number, or a hollow cast-iron pintle of proper thickness may be used, in all cases adequate to transmit the load.

(4) Additional iron or steel cheek plates shall be placed between the cap and base plates, and bolted to the girders when required to transmit the loads with safety.

(5) Timber Trusses.—When compression or tension members of trusses are of timber they shall be stressed in the direction of the fibre only.

The working stress in timber struts of pin-connected trusses shall not exceed seventy-five per centum of the working stresses established in section 32 of this Code.

(6) Bolts and Washers for Timber Work.—All bolts used in connection with timber and wood beam work shall be provided with washers of such proportions as will reduce the compression on the wood at the face of the washer to that allowed in section 30 of this Code, supposing the bolt to be strained to its limit.

SECTION 110.

Stud Partitions.

(1) In all buildings where stud partitions are set at right angles to wood floor beams and rest directly over each other, they shall run down between the floor beams and rest on the top plate of the partition below, and shall have the studding filled in solid between the uprights, to the depth of the floor beams, with approved incombustible materials.

(2) All pipe and wire lines to be so laid out as to require a minimum cutting of supporting members and beams of wood. Special framing and reinforcement to be done wherever directed by the Inspector of Buildings.

SECTION 111.

Wainscoting.

When wainscoting is used in buildings hereafter erected or altered, the surface of the walls or partitions behind said wainscoting shall be plastered flush with the grounds and down to the floor line.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Frame Structures; Builders' Huts, Stagings, Sheds, Outhouses, Fences, Signs, Piazzas, Balconies, Bay Windows, Spires and Towers.

SECTION 112.

Frame Structures Within the City Limits Only Under Permit From the Inspector.

(1) Temporary Structures—Builders' Huts. — Temporary one-story frame buildings within the City limits may be erected for the use of builders within the limits of lots whereon or adjacent to where buildings are in course of erection, said structure to be used only for the purpose specified.

(2) Stagings—Temporary stagings, platforms or floorings for seating or standing purposes may be constructed of wood, upon approval as to location by the Mayor and filing of plans and permit from Inspector.

(3) All temporary structures of wood are to be demolished or removed by their owners upon the completion of time and purpose specified.

(4) Permanent Structures—Sheds.—Frame sheds open on at least one side, not more than fifteen (15) feet in height nor more than two thousand five hundred (2,500) square feet in area, no fence being used as any side, entirely covered with incombustible material, may be built within the fire limits.

(5) Foundations for sheds only, of brick or concrete piers, or chestnut posts, with footing course three (3) feet below grade, computed according to this Code, may be approved by the Inspector, provided that structure is enclosed to grade.

(6) Outhouses.—To be used only for privies, wood or coal houses, not exceeding ten (10) feet in height, nor fifty (50) square feet in area, may be built within the fire limits.

(7) Fences of wood shall not be over ten (10) feet in total height.

(8) Signs of wood shall not be erected over two (2) feet high on any building.

(9) Piazzas or balconies of wood, not to extend in height more than three (3) feet above the second story floor beams, may be erected upon any dwelling house.

(10) One wooden bay or oriel window may be built of wood upon any face or front of any building, if but one (1) story in height and not more than one-third of the width of said face or front.

If but two stories in height and of said proportionate width, it may be constructed of wood but shall be faced with metal or other approved incombustible material.

If of any greater height or dimensions, or more than one is desired on any one side or face, it or they shall be wholly built of fire proof material.

(11) For all roofings of above structures in entire fire zone see section 10.

(12) Wood spires or towers less than sixty (60) feet in height shall be roofed with approved incombustible material, and if over sixty (60) feet in height shall be of fire proof material throughout.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Frame Buildings Within the Fire Limits

SECTION 113.

Frame Buildings Raised, Lowered or Altered.

(1) Within the fire limits it shall not be permitted to raise any frame building to a height in excess of thirty-six feet six inches, and when so raised it shall comply with all the requirements and provisions of this code relating to frame buildings and the stresses in the material thereof shall be kept within the safe limit of stresses prescribed in Section 30.

(2) Within the fire limits, buildings must exceed twenty-five feet in height to the peak of the main roof before raising. This shall not prohibit, however, increasing one-story and basement frame dwelling houses one additional story in height. In increasing the height of any such building the entire area which the building covers may be raised to a uniform height. An extension of less width than the main building may be increased to the full width of the main building, which may also be extended on the front or rear, or both, all new outside walls to be of masonry, said extensions not to be higher than the roof or peak of original frame structure.

(3) A frame building more than two stories in height now or formerly used as a residence building, hereafter raised or altered shall be used only as a residence or for stores on the first floor. If any such building shall have been built before the street upon which it is located is graded, or if the grade is altered, such building may be raised or lowered to meet the requirements of the grade.

(4) Frame Buildings Damaged Within the Fire Limits.—Every wood or frame building with a brick or other front, which may hereafter be damaged to an amount to exceed more than one-half of the immediately previous value thereof, exclusive of the value of the foundation, at the time of such damage, may be repaired or restored, provided that the original height and area of same is not increased. But if such damage shall amount to more than one-half of such value, exclusive of the value of the foundation, then such building shall not be repaired or restored, but shall be demolished.

(5) The immediately previous value of such building and the proportion of such damage, the extent of re-use of any wall or walls, parts thereof, repair, and the amount of repairs or restoration may be determined by the Inspector, subject to appeal as hereinafter provided. Upon the written demand of the owner or owners of such premises, to be sent to the Common Council, they shall appoint one appraiser and one appraiser shall be selected by said owner or owners. They shall at once examine the said premises, and if they agree their decision is to be stated separately in writing and sworn to, and shall be final and conclusive. Should these two appraisers not agree, they shall select a third appraiser or umpire to take part in such impartial and disinterested examination and verdict. The joint decision of any two of them is to be stated separately in writing and sworn to and shall be final and conclusive. Each appraiser shall receive ten ($10) dollars for such services, to be paid by the owner or owners of said building before said report is filed, and no repairs or alterations except to the extent necessary to make safe as directed by the Inspector of Buildings, shall be made or begun until said report be filed and permit obtained.

(6) Fire Inquests.—Said report is also to include a separate detailed statement in writing as to the causes or probable causes of damage, and of the general or special conditions making favorable thereto in each case, and may also include the suggestions of the appraisers as to effective future remedy and prevention. These reports are to be kept carefully filed by the Inspector of Buildings in a special docket to be known as the Fire Inquest docket.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Frame Buildings Outside of Fire Limits.

SECTION 114.

(1) The provisions of this section shall apply to frame or other buildings hereafter erected outside the fire limits, as the same are now or hereafter be established in portions of the City of Plainfield, where streets are now or where they may hereafter be legally established.

(2) Frame buildings may be altered, extended, raised or repaired, provided the new portions fully comply with all the provisions of this Code, and all new buildings are to comply with requirements of construction hereinbefore given, also all plumbing, electric and other Municipal ordinances and regulations.

(3) Whenever frame construction is of wood, even if partially or wholly covered with veneer of brick or stone it shall be deemed a frame building.

(4) No frame building shall be built or occupied as a stable, workshop or manufactory if over thirty (30) feet in height above foundation.

(5) Frame buildings hereafter erected or altered shall not exceed forty-five feet in height nor more than three stories and roof.

(6) Frame dwellings shall not exceed four thousand square feet in area. Frame stables shall not exceed two thousand square feet in area.

(7) No other frame building shall exceed 5,000 square feet in area.

(8) The combined area of frame buildings, sheds and outhouses located on any lot shall not exceed eighty per cent. of the lot area. In no case shall a frame building be erected within three feet of the side or rear line of a lot, unless the nearest wall be built of brick or other fireproof materials.

(9) When stud partitions separate frame buildings the division studding shall be built with all sills, posts, girts, and filled solidly with brickwork or other approved fireproof materials, extending from the sill to the under side of the roof boards. All openings between outside and party walls and shall be filled tightly with not less than seven-eighths inch (⅞") material. Also see Section 110.

(10) The ends of floor and roof beams shall be so separated that four inches of brick or concrete shall be between the beams where they rest on the wall. Also see Section 107.

(11) Posts of locust or other hard wood and wood girders may be used instead of brick fore and aft partitions, in cellars of frame buildings.

(12) All frame or wood buildings, exceeding a height of fifteen (15) feet shall be not less than four inches thick gates and rafters of suitable size and properly framed and braced with suitable studs, or planks set at a proper distance apart. Floor beams and rafters shall not be less than two inches in thickness.

(13) For all buildings included in this Section all stress in materials shall be computed as per Section 27 of this Code.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Places of Public Amusement and Assemblage.

SECTION 115.

Requirements for Public Safety.

(1) In all buildings or parts of buildings of Classes A, B, E and F, and also hotels and clubhouses, occupied for purposes of assembly, amusement or instruction, other than theatres and opera houses, which are provided for in section 116, where large numbers of people may congregate, the halls, doors, stairways, seats, passageways and aisles, and all lighting and heating appliances and apparatus shall be arranged as the Inspector of Buildings shall direct to facilitate egress in case of fire or accident, and to afford adequate security.

(2) Buildings or parts of buildings of Classes C and D, except hotels and clubhouses, shall be not occupied as places of public amusement or assemblage, and the Inspector of Buildings shall have the power to vacate such buildings for violating this provision.

(3) All aisles and passageways in buildings or parts of buildings used for public and private amusement or assemblage shall be kept free from campstools, chairs, sofas and all other obstructions, and no person shall be allowed to stand in or occupy any of said aisles or passageways during any performance or service, exhibition, lecture, hall, concert or any public assemblage. The Inspector of Buildings may at any time serve a written or printed notice upon the owner or lessee or manager of any of said buildings, directing any act or thing to be done or provided in or about the said buildings, and the several accessories and appliances therewith connected, such as halls, doors, stairs, windows, seats, aisles, fire walls and fire apparatus, and fire escapes, as he may deem necessary.

SECTION 116.

Theatres and Places of Public Amusement.

(1) Every theatre or opera house or other building intended to be used for theatrical or operatic purposes or for public entertainment of any kind, hereafter erected for the accommodation of more than three hundred persons, shall be built to comply with the requirements of this section. No building which, at the time of the passage of this Code, is not in actual use for theatrical or operatic purposes, and no building hereafter erected not in conformity with the requirements of this section, shall be used for theatrical or operatic purposes, or for public entertainments of any kind, until the same shall have been made to conform to the requirements of this section. And no building hereinafter described shall be opened to the public for theatrical or operatic purposes, or for public entertainments of any kind, until the Inspector of Buildings shall have approved the same in writing as conforming to the requirements of this section.

(2) Every such building shall have at least one front on the street, and in such front there shall be a foyer or vestibule not less than twenty-five feet in width.

(3) In addition to the aforesaid entrances and exits on the street, there shall be reserved for service in case of emergency an open court on the side not bordering on the street, where said building is located on a corner lot; and on both sides of said building, where there is but one frontage on the street as hereinafter provided. The width of such open court or courts shall not be less than eight feet where the seating capacity is more than three hundred and not more than eight hundred people, and ten feet in width where the seating capacity is more than eight hundred people.

Said open court or courts shall begin on a line with the proscenium wall and shall extend the length of the auditorium proper.

Where said emergency courts do not open directly on a street a separate and distinct corridor shall continue to the street, from each open court, through such structure as may be built on the street with continuous walls of brick, or masonry fireproof materials on each side the entire length of said corridor or corridors, and the ceiling and doors shall be fireproof. Said corridor or corridors shall not be reduced in width to more than three feet less than the width of the open court or courts, and there shall be no projections in the same; the outer openings shall be provided with doors or gates opening outwards. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the continuing of the said courts to the street of the reduced width of the corridors. Where any exit or entrance, emergency or otherwise, does not open directly on a street, and where such egress or ingress to a theatre, opera house, etc., is through a non-fireproof building, in order to reach shall extend at least four feet above the stage roof, or the auditorium roof, if the latter be the higher, and shall be coped. Above the proscenium opening, there shall be an iron girder of sufficient strength to safely support the load above, and the same shall be covered with approved fireproof materials to protect it from the heat. Should there be constructed an orchestra platform over the stage, above the proscenium opening, the said platform shall be placed on the auditorium side of the proscenium firewall, and shall be entered only from the auditorium side of said wall.

(17) The molded frame around the proscenium opening shall be formed entirely of approved fireproof materials. The proscenium opening shall be provided with a fireproof metal curtain, or a curtain of asbestos, or other fireproof material approved by the Inspector of Buildings, sliding at each end within iron grooves, securely fastened to the brick wall and extending into such grooves to a depth of not less than six inches on each side of the opening. Said fireproof curtain shall be raised at the commencement of each performance and lowered at the close of said performance, and be operated by approved machinery for that purpose. The proscenium curtain shall be placed at least three feet distant from the foot-lights at the nearest point. No doorway or opening through the proscenium wall, from the auditorium, shall be allowed above the level of the first floor, and such first floor openings shall have approved fireproof doors on each side of the wall, and the doors shall be hung so as to be opened from either side at all times.

(18) There shall be provided over the stage metal skylights of an area or combined area of at least one-eighth the area of said stage with sliding sash and double sheet glass, and each pane thereof measuring not less than three hundred square inches, the whole of which skylight shall be so constructed as to open instantly on the cutting or burning of a hempen cord, which shall be arranged to hold said skylight closed, or some other equally simple approved device for opening them may be provided. Immediately underneath the glass of said skylights there shall be wire netting, but wire glass shall not be used in lieu of this requirement.

(19) All that portion of the stage not comprised in the working of scenery, traps and other mechanical apparatus for the presentation of a scene, usually equal to the width of the proscenium opening, shall be built of concrete or of iron or steel beams filled in between with approved fireproof material, and all girders for the support of said beams shall be of wrought iron or rolled steel. The fly-galleries entire, including pin-rails, shall be constructed of concrete or of iron or steel, and the floors of said galleries shall be composed of concrete or of iron or steel beams, filled with approved fireproof materials, and no wood boards or sleepers shall be used as covering over beams, but the said floors shall be entirely fireproof. The rigging loft shall be fireproof.

(20) All stage scenery, curtains and decorations made of combustible material, and all woodwork on or about the stage shall be painted or saturated with some approved non-combustible material or otherwise rendered safe against fire, and the finishing coats of paint applied to all woodwork throughout the entire building shall be of such kind as will resist fire to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Buidlings.

(21) The roof over the auditorium and the entire main floor of the auditorium and vestibule, also the entire floor of the second story of the front superstructure over the entrance, lobby and corridors, and all galleries and supports for the same in the auditorium shall be constructed of concrete or of iron or steel and approved fireproof materials, not excluding the use of wood floorboards and necessary sleepers to fasten the same, but such sleepers shall not mean timbers of support, and the space between the sleepers, excepting a portion under the stepping in the galleries, which shall be properly fire-stopped, shall be solidly filled with approved incombustible material up to the under side of the floorboards.

(22) The fronts of each gallery shall be formed of approved fireproof material, except the capping, which may be made of wood. The ceiling under each gallery shall be entirely formed of approved fireproof materials. The ceiling of the auditorium shall be formed of approved fireproof materials.

(23) All lathing, whenever used, shall be of wire or other metal.

(24) The partitions in that portion of the building which contains the auditorium, the entrance and vestibule and every room and passage devoted to the use of the audience shall be constructed of approved fireproof materials, including the furring of outside or other walls.

(25) None of the walls or ceilings shall be covered with wood sheathing, canvas or any combustible material. But this shall not exclude the use of wood wainscoting to a height not to exceed six feet which shall be filled in solid between the wainscoting and the wall with approved fireproof materials. The walls separating the actors' dressing rooms from the stage and the partitions dividing the dressing rooms, together with the partitions of every passageway from the same to the stage, and all other partitions on or about the stage, shall be constructed of fireproof material approved by the Inspector of Buildings. All doors in any of said partitions shall be fireproof.

(26) All shelving and cupboards in each and every dressing room, property room or other storage rooms shall be constructed of metal, slate or some approved fireproof material. Dressing rooms may be placed in the fly galleries provided that proper exits are secured therefrom to the fire escapes in the open courts, and that the partitions and other matters pertaining to dressing rooms shall conform to the requirements herein contained, and the stairs leading to the same shall be fireproof. All dressing rooms shall have an independent exit leading directly into a court or street, and shall be ventilated by windows in the external walls; and no dressing room shall be below the street level.

(27) All accessible windows shall be arranged to open, and none of the windows in outside walls shall have fixed sashes, iron grills or bars.

(28) All seats in the auditorium, excepting those contained in boxes, shall be not less than thirty-two inches from back to back, measured in a horizontal direction, and firmly secured to the floor. No more than twelve seats shall be placed in any box. Boxes shall be divided by partition or rail, and shall lead to an aisle which connects with an exit or corridor. No seat in the auditorium shall have more than six seats intervening between it and an aisle on either side. No stool or seat shall be placed in any aisle.

(29) All platforms in galleries formed to receive the seats shall be not more than twenty-six inches in height of risers, nor less than thirty-two inches in width of platform. All aisles on the respective floors in the auditorium shall be not less than three feet wide where they begin, and shall be increased in width toward the exits in a ratio of one and one-half inches to five running feet.

(30) The foyers, lobbies, corridors, passages and rooms for the use of the audience, not including aisles spaced between seats, shall on the first or main floor where the seating capacity exceeds five hundred or more, be at least sixteen feet clear, back of the last row of seats, and on each balcony or gallery at least twelve feet clear of the last row of seats.

(31) Gradients or inclined planes shall be employed instead of steps where possible to overcome slight difference of level in or between aisles and passages.

(32) Every theatre accommodating three hundred persons shall have at least two exits; when accommodating five hundred persons, at least three exits shall be provided; these exits not referring to or including the exits to the open court at the side of the theatre. Doorways of exit or entrance for the use of the public shall be not less than five feet in width, and for every additional one hundred persons or portions thereof to be accommodated, in excess of five hundred, an aggregate of twenty inches additional exit width must be allowed. All doors of exit or entrance shall open outwardly and be hung to swing in such manner as not to become an obstruction in a passage or corridor, and no such door shall be closed and locked during any representation, or when the building is open to the public. Distinct and separate places of exit and entrance shall be provided for each gallery above the first. A common place of exit and entrance may serve for the main floor of the auditorium and the first gallery, provided its capacity be equal to the aggregate capacity of the outlets from the main floor and the said gallery.

(33) No passage leading to any stairway communicating with any entrance or exit shall be less than four feet in width in any part thereof.

(34) All stairs within the building shall be constructed of approved fireproof material throughout. All stairs to have treads of uniform width and risers of uniform height throughout each flight. Stairways serving for the exit of fifty people shall be at least four feet wide between railings or between walls, and for every additional fifty people to be accommodated six inches must be added to their width. The width of all stairs shall be measured in the clear between hand-rails. In no case shall the risers of any stairs exceed seven and one-half inches in height, nor shall the treads, exclusive of nosings, be less than ten and one-half inches wide in straight stairs. No circular or winding stairs for the use of the public shall be permitted.

(35) Where the seating capacity is for more than one thousand people, there shall be provided at least two independent staircases, with direct exterior outlets for each gallery in the auditorium, where there are not more than two galleries, and the same shall be located on opposite sides of said galleries.

(36) Where there are more than two galleries one or more additional staircases shall be provided, the outlets from which shall communicate directly with the principal exit or other exterior outlets. All said staircases shall be of width proportionate to the seating capacity as elsewhere herein provided. Where the seating capacity is for one thousand people or less, two direct lines of staircases only shall be required, located on opposite sides of the galleries, and in both cases shall extend from the sidewalk level to the upper gallery, with outlets from each gallery to each of said staircases.

(37) At least two independent staircases, with direct exterior outlets, shall be provided for the service of the stage and shall be located on opposite sides of the same. All landings and stairways leading to the upper galleries of the auditorium shall be inclosed on both sides with walls of approved fireproof materials. Stairs leading to the first or lower gallery may be left open on one side, in case they shall be constructed as herein provided for similar stairs leading from the entrance hall to the main floor of the auditorium. In no case shall stairs leading to any gallery be left open on both sides.

(38) When straight stairs return directly on themselves, a landing of the full width of both flights, without any steps, shall be provided. The outer line of landings shall be curved to a radius of not less than two feet, to avoid square angles. Stairs turning at an angle shall have a proper landing without winders introduced at said turn. In stairs, when two side flights connect with one main flight, no winders shall be introduced, and the width of the main flight shall be at least equal to the aggregate width of the side flights.

(39) All stairs shall have proper landings introduced at convenient distances. All inclosed staircases shall have, on both sides, strong hand-rails firmly secured to the wall about three inches distant therefrom and about three feet above the stairs, but said hand-rails shall not run on level platforms and landings where the same are more in length than the width of the stairs.

(40) All staircases eight feet and more in width shall be provided with a centre hand-rail of metal, not less than two inches in diameter, placed at a height of about three feet above the centre of the treads, and supported on wrought metal or brass standards of sufficient strength, placed not nearer than four feet nor more than six feet apart, and securely bolted to the treads or risers of stairs, or both, and at the head of each flight of stairs on each landing the post or standard shall be at least six feet in height, to which the rail shall be secured.

(41) Every steam boiler which may be required for heating or other purposes shall be located outside the building, and the space allotted to the same shall be inclosed by walls of masonry on all sides, and the ceiling of such space shall be constructed of approved fireproof materials.

(42) All doorways in said walls shall have fireproof doors. No floor register for heating shall be permitted. No coil or radiator shall be placed in any aisle or passageway used as an exit, but all said coils and radiators shall be placed in recesses formed in the wall or partition to receive the same. All supply, return or exhaust pipes shall be properly incased and protected where passing through floors or near woodwork.

(43) Standpipes four inches in diameter shall be provided with hose attachments on every floor and gallery as follows: One on each side of the auditorium in each tier, also on each side of the stage in each tier, and at least one in the property room and one in the carpenter's shop, if the same be contiguous to the building. All such standpipes shall be kept clear from obstruction. Said standpipes shall be separate and distinct, receiving their supply of water direct from the power pump or pumps, and shall be fitted with the regulation couplings of the Fire Department, and shall be kept constantly filled with water by means of an automatic power pump or pumps, of sufficient capacity to supply all the lines of hose when operated simultaneously, and said pump or pumps shall be supplied from the street main and be ready for immediate use at all times during the performance in said building. In addition to the requirements contained in this section, the standpipes shall also conform to the requirements contained in section 70 of this Code.

(44) A separate and distinct system of automatic sprinklers, with fusible plugs, approved by the Inspector of Buildings, supplied with water from a tank located on the roof over the stage and not connected in any manner with the standpipes, shall be placed on each side of the proscenium opening and on the ceiling or roof over the stage at such intervals as will protect every square foot of stage surface when said sprinklers are in operation. Automatic sprinklers shall also be placed, wherever practicable, in the dressing rooms, under the stage and in the carpenter shop, paint rooms, store rooms and property rooms.

(45) A proper and sufficient quantity of two and one-half inch hose, not less than one hundred feet in length, fitted with the regulation couplings of the Fire Department and with nozzles attached thereto, and with hose spanners at each outlet, shall always be kept attached to each hose attachment as the Fire Chief may direct. There shall also be kept in readiness for immediate use on the stage, at least four casks full of water, and two buckets to each cask. Said casks and buckets shall be painted red.

(46) There shall also be provided hand pumps or other portable fire extinguishing apparatus and at least four axes and two twenty-five-foot hooks, two fifteen-foot hooks, and two ten-foot hooks on each tier or floor of the stage.

(47) Every portion of the building devoted to the uses or accommodation of the public, also all outlets leading to the streets and including the open courts or corridors, shall be well and properly lighted during every performance, and the same shall remain lighted until the entire audience has left the premises. All gas or electric lights in the halls, corridors, lobby or any other part of said buildings used by the audience, except the auditorium, must be controlled by a separate shut-off, located in the lobby and controlled only in that particular place.

(48) Gas mains supplying the building shall have independent connections for the auditorium and the stage, and provision shall be made for shutting off the gas from the outside of the building. When interior gas lights are not lighted by electricity other suitable appliances, to be approved by the Inspector of Buildings, shall be provided.

(49) All suspended or bracket lights surrounded by glass in the auditorium, or in any part of the building devoted to the public, shall be provided with proper wire netting underneath. No gas or electric light shall be inserted in the walls, woodwork, ceilings, or in any part of the building, unless protected by approved fireproof materials. All lights in passages and corridors in said buildings, and wherever deemed necessary by the Inspector of Buildings, shall be protected with proper wire network. The footlights, in addition to the wire network, shall be protected by a strong wire guard and chain, placed not less than two feet distant from said footlight, and the trough containing said footlights shall be formed of and surrounded by approved fireproof materials.

(50) All border lights shall be constructed to the approval of the Inspector of Buildings, and shall be suspended for ten feet by wire rope. All ducts or shafts used for conducting heated air from the main chandelier, or from any other light or lights, shall be constructed of metal and made double, with an air space between.

(51) All stage lights shall have strong metal wire guards or screens not less than ten inches in diameter, so constructed that any material in contact therewith shall be out of reach of the flame of said stage lights, and must be soldered to the fixtures in all cases.

(52) The standpipes, gas pipes, electric wires, hose, footlights, and all apparatus for the extinguishing of fire or guarding against the same, as in this section specified, after being installed, shall be in charge and under control of the Fire Department, and the Chief of said Department is hereby directed to see that the arrangements in respect thereto are carried out and enforced. A diagram or plan of each tier, gallery or floor, showing distinctly the exits therefrom, each occupying a space not less than fifteen square inches, shall be printed in black lines in a legible manner on the programme of the performance. Every exit shall have over the same on the inside the word "Exit" painted in legible letters not less than eight inches high.

(53) The provisions of the foregoing shall not be construed to mean or made to apply to any theatre, opera house, or building intended to be used for theatrical or operatic purposes, now erected or for which plans have heretofore been approved by the Inspector of Buildings.

CHAPTER XXX.
Elevators and Hoistways.

SECTION 117.

(1) No elevator or hoist shall hereafter be erected in any building before the owner or his agent, architect or contractor shall file a plan and description of the proposed construction, equipment and mode of operation of the hoistway, and obtain the approval of the Inspector of Buildings therefor, nor shall it be operated until such approval is obtained.

(2) Certificates of inspection shall be issued and be good for one year unless an unsafe condition or function is discovered, when such elevator or hoistway shall remain unused until thorough repair and re-inspection and test shall permit its renewed operation.

(3) All elevators throughout to be of an approved make and equipped with cages, doors and locks, counter weights and machinery, full safety, limit and break devices, and overhead gratings, to secure fullest immunity from danger or accident to passengers thereon.

(4) All hand power elevators shall be provided with an approved brake made to operate on the outside rim of the rope wheel, and the weight by which the brake band is balanced shall be secured by an auxiliary chain or rope.

(5) Machinery of hand sidewalk lifts shall be equipped with a substantial brake, easily applied, and protected by dog operating on the gear wheel.

(6) All elevators shall be provided with approved means for locking the operating control levers or wheels when released by the operator.

(7) Where basement or sidewalk lifts are installed, an approved guard shall be provided at the first floor or street level. If at the street level, the hatch doors when open shall be protected by chains or bars, and when inside the building, the unprotected sides of the hatch shall be protected by a solid or slat inclosure at least seven feet high, with lifting gates at the loading sides; these gates shall be operated by the action of the car.

(8) Every power-driven sidewalk elevator shall have at the street level a removable railing. The car shall also be provided with a substantial guard or bow to open the sidewalk doors far enough in advance of the car to prevent catching anyone between the elevator car and the sidewalk doors.

(9) At the top and bottom of all elevator shafts there shall be placed over and under the strongest parts of the elevator car approved buffer springs and rubber buffers.

(10) Every elevator car and all counterweights shall be suspended by metallic cables. There shall be not less than two cables independently connected to the car and to each set of counterweights.

Shaftways, Hatchways, Inclosures, Grilles, Etc.

(11) Every shaft hereafter constructed for all power operated elevators having a higher rise than two stories, up to a speed of three hundred feet per minute, shall provide for a car travel of at least four feet above and below the upper and lower terminal landings. A clear space not less than four feet in depth and the full-size of the shaft, shall be provided between the bottom of the shaft and the lowest point of the underside of the car when the car is at the limit of its descent. The distance between the underside of the platform or grating at the top of the elevator shaft, and the top of the crosshead of the car when at the limit of its ascent, shall not be less than four feet.

(12) Every existing freight elevator shall have the hatches on every floor protected by vertical gates and inclosures. The fixed inclosures shall be not less than six feet in height, and the gates as nearly six feet in height as the conditions at the building shall warrant. Wooden gates and inclosures shall be made of vertical strips with space not wider than two inches. Should the stories be so low that the gates cannot be at least five feet in height, with a space under the same of eighteen inches, vertical collapsing gates shall be installed.

(13) Wherever carriage or automobile hoists are installed, hatchways on all floors except the lower one shall be inclosed on the unprotected sides by slat work or solid inclosures of wood at least six feet high, and at the loading ends the approaches shall be protected by a balanced drop bar.

Overhead Construction.

(14) All overhead beams, sheaves and supports shall be of steel or iron, and all overhead beams shall be supported at both ends on brick walls or on steel construction, or steel construction resting on masonry.

(15) All overhead machinery shall be supported on a substantial wrought-iron or steel frame or beams, and where it is necessary to hang bearings underneath the supporting beams, these bearings shall be supported by wrought-iron or steel straps bolted to and through the supporting frame or beam.

(16) At the top of the shaft, and under the suspension sheaves and beams of all elevators, there shall be built a substantial working platform or grating or open construction of iron or steel having not more than one and one-half inches space between any two members of said grating and made so as to sustain a load of one hundred and fifty pounds to the square foot; said platform or grating shall be securely supported, independent of the overhead construction carrying the sheaves and other overhead appliances.

CHAPTER XXXI.
SECTION 118.

Existing Actions and Liabilities.

Nothing in this Code contained shall be construed to affect any action or proceeding now pending in any court, nor any right accrued, nor liability incurred, nor any cause or causes of action accrued or existing under any acts or ordinances repealed hereby. Nor shall any right or remedy of any character existing or accrued be lost, impaired or affected by this Code.

CHAPTER XXXII.
Definitions.

SECTION 119.

Building Terms.

(1) Wherever the word "lot" is used in this Code, it shall be construed to mean the entire area devoted to one building including all yards, courts, lights and vent shafts.

(2) Wherever the word "curb" applying to the heights of buildings, or to the definition of a basement or a cellar or to an excavation is used, it shall be construed to mean the curb level at the centre of the front of the building, in the case of a building fronting on one street only; in the case of a building fronting on two or more streets the curb level at the centre of the front facing on the highest curb shall be taken.

(3) The height of a building is the perpendicular distance measured in a straight line from the top of the highest point of the roof beams in the case of flat roofs and from the average height of the gable in the case of roofs having a pitch of more than twenty degrees with a horizontal plane downward to the curb level. When a building does not adjoin the street, the measurements for height shall be taken to the average level of the ground adjoining such buildings.

(4) In measuring the height of a wall the height of the parapet wall down to the top of the roof beams shall not be included.

(5) The length of any building shall be its greatest horizontal dimension.

(6) The width of any building shall be its next greatest horizontal dimension.

(7) Wherever referred to, the width of the street shall be taken as being the distance between the street building lines on opposite sides of the street, measured at right angles to the centre line of the street at the middle of the lot.

(8) A story is that part of any building comprised between any floor and the floor or roof next above. In case any floor or the combined area of floors at any one level extends over less than twenty per cent. of the horizontal area included within the outside walls at that level the same shall not be considered as a floor for the purpose of determining story heights.

(9) A cellar is a story more than one-half below the level of the curb, but it shall not be considered as a story in determining the height of buildings.

(10) A basement is a story, partly, but not more than one-half below the level of the curb, but it shall not be considered as a story in determining the height of buildings unless more than one-half above the curb.

(11) A yard is an open and unoccupied space on the same lot with a building, between the extreme rear line of the building and the rear line of the lot.

(12) A court is an open and unoccupied space other than a yard on the same lot with a building. A court not extending to the street or yard, is an inner court; a court extending to the street or yard, is an outer court, if it extends to the street, it is a street court, if it extends to the yard it is a yard court.

(13) A public hall is a hall, corridor or passageway for the use of the general public.

(14) A stair hall shall include the stairs, stair landings and those portions of the public halls through which it is necessary to pass in going between the entrance floor and the roof of any building.

(15) A shaft includes exterior and interior shafts whether for air, light, elevator, dumbwaiter or any other purpose.

(16) Bulkhead—A bulkhead is a structure erected on the roof of a building only for the purpose of enclosing staircases to roofs, elevator machinery, water tank, ventilating apparatus and exhaust chambers or any other necessary machinery required to be at that level. Bulkheads when used only for the above mentioned purposes and when they are only of sufficient height and area to properly enclose any of the above apparatus, equipment or stairs, may be erected on the roof of any building and need not be considered in determining the height of the building.

(17) Pent Houses—A pent house is a structure, other than a bulkhead, erected on the roof of a building and not exceeding ten feet in height nor more than twenty-five per centum of the area of the roof at the level at which it is built, said twenty-five per centum not to exceed in any case two thousand five hundred square feet. A pent house shall not be used for sleeping accommodations.

A pent house as defined above may be erected on the roof of any building and need not be considered in determining the height of a building. Any structure erected on the roof of a building not complying with the above or with the definition of bulkheads shall be included in the height of the building.

(18) Skylights.—The term skylight shall be taken to mean and include flat, hipped, lantern, monitor, turret, dome, vertical or pitched, saw-toothed construction and all other covers placed over openings on roofs for the admission of light.

Walls and Partitions.

(19) A Bearing Wall shall be taken to mean one on which a beam, girder, truss, column, or other interior load of a building rests.

(20) A Non-Bearing Wall shall be taken to mean one which supports no other load than its own weight.

(21) A Retaining Wall shall be taken to mean one constructed to resist the thrust of earth, water or other substances.

(22) A Foundation Wall shall be taken to mean any wall or pier built below the curb level, or nearest tier of beams to the curb, or average ground level, to serve as a support for walls, beams, girders, trusses, columns, floors, or other vertical load of a building.

(23) A Party Wall shall be taken to mean a wall used, or built to be used, in common by two or more buildings.

(24) An Enclosing Wall shall be taken to mean every outside wall, or vertical enclosure of a building, other than a party wall.

(25) Exterior Wall (see enclosing wall).

(26) Enclosure walls shall be taken to mean non-bearing walls built between steel columns and supported wholly or in part by steel girders.

(27) A Division Wall shall be taken to mean any wall, other than an exterior wall or a party wall, which extends the full height of a building and to the roof.

(28) A Partition Wall shall be taken to mean any interior wall other than a divison wall.

(29) A Curtain Wall shall be taken to mean any non-bearing wall between columns or piers.

(30) A Fire Wall shall be taken to mean any wall built for the purpose of resisting fire.

(31) A Parapet Wall shall be taken to mean that portion of any wall which extends above the roof line.

Buildings.

(32) Frame Building—A frame building is a building or structure of which the exterior walls or a portion thereof shall be constructed of wood. Such buildings partially or entirely covered with not more than four inches of brickwork, concrete or stucco, shall be deemed to be frame structures. Wood frames covered with metal shall be deemed to be frame buildings or structures.

(33) Theatres and Opera Houses, etc. See section 116.

(34) Churches.—A church is any building or portion thereof designed or intended for or used solely as a place of assemblage of a number of people for the holding of meetings or gatherings of a religious character.

(35) Amusement Hall.—Any building or portion thereof that is designed for, intended for or used as a place of recreation or amusement, or as a concert hall, ball room, or as a place of public assemblage other than theatres, opera houses, shall for the purposes of this Code be defined as and referred to as an amusement hall.

(36) Exhibition Buildings—An exhibition building is any building or part thereof, that is intended or designed to be used for fairs and exhibition purposes, or as a tower for observation purposes, or for any similar use or occupancy, whether temporary or permanent in character.

(37) Hotel.—A hotel is any building, or portion thereof, intended, designed or used for supplying food and shelter to residents or guests, and having a general public dining room and containing also more than ten sleeping rooms above the first story.

(38) Lodging Houses.—A lodging house is any house or building, or portion thereof, in which persons are harbored or received or lodged, for hire for a single night, or for less than a week at one time, or any part of which is let for any person to sleep in, for any term less than a week.

(39) Tenement House, Definition of.—A tenement house is any building or house occupied by three or more families living separately from each other, but having a common right in the halls and stairways.

(40) Apartment House.—An Apart-House shall be construed as a tenement house and shall be subject to the same laws.

(41) Boarding House.—For the purposes of this Code, a boarding house shall be classed as a "Dwelling," provided that not more than ten sleeping rooms in any one building shall be used for the accommodation of boarders. If more than ten sleeping rooms in any one building shall be used for the accommodation of boarders, it shall be classed as a "Hotel."

(42) Dwelling.—A dwelling is a residence building intended or designed for, or used as, the home or residence or not more than two separate and distinct families.

(43) Stable.—A stable is any building, or portion thereof, that is intended or designed for or used for the sheltering or harboring of horses or live stock, or for the storage of vehicles not driven by their own power.

(44) Garage.—A garage is any building, or part thereof, in which any power driven vehicle is kept, whether for use, repair, rental, storage or demonstration purposes.

(45) Temporary structures may be taken to mean and include platforms, stands, tiers of seats election and other booths temporary buildings and circus tents.

(46) Shed.—A shed is a roofed structure open on one or more sides that is used for storage or for the shelter of workmen or materials.

(47) Outhouses.—Outhouses shall be construed to mean and include all structures built of wood not more than ten feet in height nor more than fifty square feet in area.

CHAPTER XXXIII.
Remedial Code—When This Code Takes Effect.

SECTION 120.

Substitutionary Construction.

That with respect to any of the requirements or provisions of this ordinance, it shall be lawful for the Common Council by resolution upon report submitted by the Inspector of Buildings to specify a substitutionary method or plan of construction, or a substitute in material in the place and stead of that specified in said ordinance, Provided that the risk from fire will not thereby be increased, and in every such case the owner or builder may adopt such method, plan or material specified in such resolution; Provided further that no such resolution shall be adopted without there being first presented to the Common Council a petition specifying in detail the changes desired, the reason therefor, and the location and character of the building in question.

CHAPTER XXXIV.
Repealer.

SECTION 121.

The following ordinances, that is to say: "An Ordinance relating to the construction of Buildings," approved January 3rd, 1896, and ordinances amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

"An Ordinance relating to the erection and removal of buildings within certain Limits," approved November 29, 1881, and ordinances amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, and all other ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith are to the extent of such inconsistency hereby repealed.

HEMMED IN BY LIONS.

A Bad Case of Stage Fright and a Record Stunt in Singing.

Stage fright of the sort that afflicted Whit Cunliffe, at one time a prominent singer in English music halls, is not avoidable. Fortunately also it is not common. At a place where he was engaged in Birmingham one of the attractions was a lion show, some of the beasts being really wild and untamed. Nearly the whole stage was taken up with the "setting"—the animal show.

"Just as I was going on," said Cunliffe in telling the incident, "I heard a hurried rush and confused shouting, and some one slammed an iron gate. I heard a voice say, 'Just in time; he was nearly out.' My music was starting, so I had no time to inquire. I went on the stage.

"In a moment I heard ominous growls and savage snarls mixed with much whip cracking and strenuous breathing. I am never fond of a wild animal show, and I felt distinctly nervous that night. The cloth behind me sagged and swayed, and then, to my horror, suddenly in the wings I saw the huge head and front of a lion.

"I was singing a song called 'I Would,' which had a lot of short verses. As I sang them, my blood running cold, I watched the lion. It seemed slowly to advance, and its baneful eyes glittered in a truly horrible way. I could not go off that side without passing it, so I prepared to 'exit' with haste.

"Turning, I was doubly horrified to see another lion on the other side.

"I was caught like a mouse in a trap. I dared not go off the stage; I dared not show my discomfiture to the audience. There was only one thing for me to do—sing. So I sang in desperation, hoping that some one would come and take those lions away. They told me afterward that I sang ninety-eight verses. But I think that was unkind.

"I wondered how long it would take those two brutes to make up their minds to come into the full glare of the footlights, and I had just prepared to leap into the stalls, regardless of the consequences, when I heard the hoarse voice of one of the stage hands say: 'Ere, Bill, these two chaps are too far forward. Give a 'and with them, will yer?' And, coming up between the two lions, they lifted them bodily. They were papier mache!"

LIFE IN SANTIAGO.

Curious Customs That Prevail In the Capital of Chile.

They have women conductors on the electric cars of Santiago, the capital of Chile. This was made necessary by a war, which took so many men to the front and imposed upon women the work usually done by men. The custom has been kept up, the women having proved equally as efficient as the men had been.

One of the most peculiar customs seen here is the evening promenade in the plaza or park, which is attended by young ladies and young men and quite small boys and girls. They do not mix, but keep quite separate paths.

Yet even the little girls at seven or eight years are finished coquettes. Their eyes languidly observe every man and boy in the plaza, and they take care that each shall receive a due share of their smiles.

Another curious custom which prevails in Santiago and which is joined by those fortunate enough to have fine horses and carriages is the promenade at the Parque Causino, a beautiful park near the center of the city.

A company of mounted police stands in single file in the center of the drive, and the carriages, with uniformed coachmen and footmen and beautifully gowned women and fashionably dressed men occupying the carriages, ride around and around these mounted police.

Sometimes there are two or as many as six rows of carriages, some going in the opposite direction and alternating, the ladies smiling and the gentlemen tipping their hats in a polite manner. This promenading lasts from 5 o'clock in the afternoon until 8 o'clock in the evening.—Logical Point.

The Moslem's Exalted Month.

Ramadan is the month exalted by Moslems above all others. In that month the Koran—according to Moslem tradition—was brought down by Gabriel from heaven and delivered to man in small sections. In that month Mohammed was accustomed to retire from Mecca to the cave of Hira for prayer and meditation. In that month Abraham, Moses and other prophets received their divine revelations. In that month the "doors of heaven are always open, the passages to hell are shut, and the devils are chained." So run the traditions.—Christian Herald.

The Missing Word.

A "new missing" word contest has just appeared. It is as follows: A good church deacon sat down on the pointed end of a tack. He at once sprang up and said only two words. The last was "it." Any one guessing the first word and sending a dollar in cash will be entitled to this periodical for one year.—Lippincott's.

Her Little Joke.

"How did she do it?"

"She didn't buy a thing abroad."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Her Handwriting.

"Is your wife economizing?"

"I think so. She now writes 6 words on a page of letter paper instead of only six."—Washington Herald.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning May 28, 1911.

Topic.—A missionary journey around the world.—V. Missions in Japan and Korea.—Acts xvii, 1-14. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D

In our missionary journey around the world we now leave the United States and its island possessions and go on to the great mission fields of Asia, beginning with the island empire of Japan and Korea, which is now controlled politically by Japan. It is appropriate to study these two mission fields together, for their future history is destined to be closely associated, and even in the field of missions each will have some influence upon the other. What the result will be only the future can determine, but we can earnestly hope and pray that in the providence of God it will mean the advancement of Christianity in both lands.

1. Missions in Japan. The first missionaries to carry the gospel to Japan were Roman Catholics. Under Francis Xavier they reached Japan in 1549. Though great difficulties were faced, yet some success was at first achieved. But Jesuitical political intrigues soon aroused the opposition of the natives. Civil war resulted. Christians were put to death and over their graves the inscription was placed, "So long as the sun shall warm the earth, let no Christian be so bold as to come to Japan." All foreigners were excluded, and the Japanese were prohibited from leaving their country. But Christianity was not to be barred forever. In 1854, through the efforts of Commodore Perry, a treaty of friendship was negotiated between Japan and the United States and the period of seclusion was over. The edicts against Christianity were not removed until 1873. Meanwhile, however, missionary work had begun without serious opposition.

The Christian church was deeply interested in the opening of Japan to the civilized world. Mission work was soon planned, the first Protestant missionaries arriving in Japan in 1859. They were sent out by the Episcopal, Dutch Reformed and Presbyterian churches. The year 1909 was the fiftieth anniversary of the beginning of Christian work in Japan. The jubilee year was celebrated by the whole missionary body in conjunction with the Japanese churches. The gospel has produced a tremendous effect in Japan. Japan's position among the nations of the world today is largely due to the direct and indirect influences of Christian missionaries and their work.

2. Missions in Korea. The history of Korean missions reads like a romance. Catholic missionaries began work in the peninsula in the eighteenth century. Great success attended their efforts, with the result that terrible persecutions followed. The work was finally abandoned, but the seed brought forth some fruit. The first Protestant missionary entered Korea in 1884. Tracts containing translations of portions of the gospel of Luke had already been distributed near the eastern Manchurian border. The first convert was baptized in 1886, and the first church was organized in 1887. In 1909, including adherents and catechumens waiting for admission into the church, there were nearly 200,000 men and women in Korea who confessed Christ. People of all classes have been reached. The Korean Christians themselves have been zealous in spreading the gospel. They go throughout the land, telling of the blessings they have received and winning others for Christ. No missionary field in the world today is so full of promise as that of Korea. God is frequently sending times of refreshing. The church should realize the responsibility of the great opportunity presented and put forth every effort to complete the Christianization of the land.

Everybody Has Power.

"I have sometimes thought that young people did not begin to realize the importance of their mission to other young people or how fleeting is their peculiar opportunity," says Rev. F. E. Clark, president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor.

"There is help which a Christian boy of sixteen can render to another Christian boy of sixteen which he cannot possibly render when he is eighteen, still less when he is twenty-five, and which will be out of the question for him when he is forty.

"There are other things which he can do when he is eighteen, twenty-five or forty, but he cannot do the work of a sixteen-year-old boy except when he is sixteen years old. This may sound like a Bromidian truism, but there is really a very profound truth in it and a very important one.

"It is equally true of the young man of twenty-five. He can influence other young men of twenty-five as he could not possib

NURSES GRADUATE

Diplomas for Four of Muhlenberg Hospital Training School Pupils.

WM. R. COCK'S WITTY SPEACH.

Mayor G. W. V. Moy Made Address—Dr. F. E. DuBois Spoke to the Class—E. H. Ladd as the Presiding Officer.

Four young women who have completed the prescribed three years' course at Muhlenberg hospital training school for nurses were graduated from the institution at appropriate exercises in Hartridge auditorium last night. A large gathering of relatives and friends enjoyed the program, offered congratulations to the class during a reception at the close of the addresses and presentations. A dance was held at the conclusion.

The graduating nurses were Miss Florence Brown Stacy, of Easton, Pa., Miss Elizabeth Griffiths Williams, of Lansford, Pa., Miss Autumn H. Delaney and Miss Elizabeth Chadwick Randall, of Plainfield. The class is one of the smallest in numbers for the past few years but among the highest for general excellence in practical and written examinations. All will take up private nursing locally with the exception of Miss Williams, who will probably begin institutional work near her home town. The class occupied seats in the front row of the auditorium chairs garbed in the familiar uniform of the school. The stage was neatly decorated with hospital and class pennants and American and Canadian flags. The latter were in honor of Miss Delaney, who has been a resident of Plainfield for many years but who is a native of Orillia, Ontario. Each one of the young women received a wreath of floral bouquets from well-wishing friends.

The exercises were presided over by E. H. Ladd, of the hospital Board of Governors. They were opened by a selection from Hummer's orchestra after which Mr. Ladd welcomed the class in behalf of the board and extended congratulations at the successful completion of the preliminary work to their chosen profession. He then introduced Mayor George W. V. Moy as the speaker of the evening.

At the beginning of his address, Mr. Moy stated that he had selected "Woman" as the fitting subject for the occasion. With the idea in mind that the young women before him were entering upon a career of usefulness in life and in time might become famed in the calling, he cited instances in history where members of the gentler sex had risen to the top in music, painting, science, art, literature and various other fields. He referred to Jenny Lind, who delighted and thrilled thousands with her voice; Rosa Bonheur, whoe animal paintings and pastorial scenes will live forever; Joan of Arc, the French heroine; Aggrippina, whose mother love was so strong that she expressed a willingness to suffer assassination if her son, Nero, might reign as the ruler of Rome, and above all, Florence Nightengale, disciple of modern nursing who labored in the Crimea with such heroism and devotion that all the world in general and England in particular has since revived her name. These are ouly a few instances, the mayor said, where women had asserted herself for the benefit of all mankind.

Mr. Moy delved back into history as far back as the beginning of time and recalled the first woman of all, Mother Eve. Appropriately enough she figured in a surgical operation as the Lord caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam and while in this state removed one of his ribs from which woman was created. Thus did the gentler sex take prominence when the world was young and she has held her own in every sphere since. In conclusion the executive propounded some helpful advice to the graduates, emphasizing the fact that opportunities now are just as plentiful as they ever were and by proper effort and concentration it is possible for any young woman to rise to the top.

The address to the class was made by Dr. F. E. DuBois in the course of which he praised the graduates for the excellence of their examination papers stating that they were worthy of professionals in medicine. He also congratulated the school on the possession of Miss Josephine Hughes as superintendent, declaring that her work has had much to do with the high standard of Muhlenberg's nurses. In conclusion he bade the graduates to continue the energetic and devoted spirit that had characterized their work while in Muhlenberg and success is sure to be theirs.

The diplomas were presented by Mr. Ladd and training school pins by William R. Cock. The latter has acted in this capacity for many years and he gave an informal reminiscent

ST. PATRICK THEME

Brooklyn Minister Says Erin's Patron Saint Was Not a Roman Catholic.

HE CONVERTED THOUSANDS.

Rev. Dr. D. A. MacMurray Declares Irelahd's Saint was Born in England—Musical Program Precedes the Address.

Saint Patrick, the apostle of Ireland, according to Rev. Dr. David A. MacMurray, of the Lenox Avenue Baptist church, of Brooklyn, in a lecture at the Park Avenue Baptist church last night, was born and died before the first Pope was installed in Rome and therefore could not have been a Roman Catholic. "The only two authentic writings of Patrick himself were written in the fourth and fifth centuries and showed that the man was purely a missionary and was the one to establish the Christian religion in Ireland.

Preceding Dr. MacMurray's lecture a program of Irish folk and patriotic songs was rendered by Mrs. Robert Humpston, Judge William M. Runyon, John D. Townsend and Whitney Frazee, the latter playing a cornet. His rendition of the "Last Rose of Summer" was splendid. Judge Runyon was introduced by Geo. E. Hall as "the most versatile and best known man in Plainfield."

The lecture itself held the attention of the big audience from start to finish. According to Dr. MacMurray, Saint Patrick was born in England and was the son of a deacon of the church and the grandson of a presbtyer. There are two traditions as to his captivity. One, that he was taken prisoner when seventeen years old and taken to Antrim and the other that he was carried away to Connaught, where tradition has it that he saw visions and was finally converted and became at once a most aggressive missionary.

"Through Patrick's efforts many thousands of converts were made in Scotland and Ireland. He managed to convert the two daughters of Logarie, who was king of Munster in the fourth century. Patrick," he said, "organized the religion of Great Britain, but he was not the pioneer. Christ had been talked of and preached 200 years before Patrick was born. His parents were Irish, but he was born beside the Severn River and his ancestors came from Mesopatamia."

A large sum was realized for the church furnishings for which the lecture was given.

MISS MAY RODMAN INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Miss May Rodman, of East Seventh street, was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, early this afternoon suffering from injuries received in an accident at the Plainfield Country Club. She, with some other young women, were engaged in gathering leaves and branches for decoration at the club house, and was riding in a carriage. The horse became frightened in some way and started on a run.

Miss Rodman jumped from the carriage and struck her head, causing a slight concussion. She was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken to the hospital, where it was said that her injuries were not serious. Miss Rodman with others were preparing for a reception and tea which Miss Wickersham had planned to give at the clubhouse this afternoon.

Warren C. E. Anniversary.

In celebration of the twenty-third anniversary of its organization, the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel conducted a special service in the chapel last night. Beside the members and their friends, delegations were in attendance from many local church associations and the C. E. Society of the Dunellen Presbyterian church.

Commencement at Upsala.

The commencement exercises will be held at Upsala College, Kenilworth, Tuesday morning, May 30, at 10 o'clock, when Rev. L. H. Beck, of Kane, Pa., will make the address and confer degrees. Dinner and refreshments will be served at the college.

Library's on a Holiday.

The circulating department of the Plainfield Public Library will be closed on Decoration Day, Tuesday, May 30. The reading room will be open from 2-6 o'clock with an assistant in charge, and the art gallery from 2-5 o'clock.

SALE FOR CHARITY

King's Daughters Circle Holds Holds Successful Affair at Mrs. F. W. Yates'.

A GOODLY SUM IS REALIZED.

Mrs. Hovey and Mrs. Squires Assist in Receiving—Mrs. Van Vliet in Charge of Tea Room—Membership Large.

The Charity Circle of The King's Daughters held a sale of fancy candles, art baskets, ice cream and cake at the home of Mrs. Frederick W. Yates, of Kensington avenue yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. Tea was also served. The affair was largely patronized and everything was disposed of at good prices, netting a neat sum for the circle to assist in the King's Daughter's work in the city.

Mrs. Otis E. Hovey and Mrs. G. Harry Squires together with Mrs. Frederick W. Yates received the guests. Mrs. Deuse M. VanVliet had charge of the tea room, Mrs. William M. Stillman the lemonade, Mrs. Orton G. Dale the ice cream and Mrs. Frederick W. Yates and Mrs. Daniel F. Ginna the sale of baskets. The social features were greatly enjoyed.

The honorary members of the circle are Mrs. Frederick G. Mead and Miss Tracy. The associate members are Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, Mrs. H. V. Borden, Miss Cochran, Mrs. Frank B. Clark, Mrs. Charles B. Eddy, Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, Mrs. J. A. Lane, Mrs. John Doul Miller, Mrs. Edward J. Patterson, Mrs. Harry M. Stockton, Mrs. Alfred F. H. Streuli. The active members are Miss Anthony, Mrs. D. G. Atwood, Mrs. Howard W. Beebe, Mrs. Morris F. Benton, Mrs. James R. Blake, Mrs. George A. Chapman, Mrs. William A. Conner, Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Orton G. Dale, Mrs. Julius E. Erickson, Mrs. Edward L. SCRAPPERS FINED IN CITY COURT

A five-cornered fight which occurred near the corner of Watchung avenue and Fifth street on Maay 11, was aired in the city court this morning with Judge DeMeza on the bench. John and Simon Fertig and Morris and Solomon Isaacson together with Alexander Nemsoll were mixed up in the scrap which it was alleged was due to failure on the part of the Fertig brothers to pay Isaacson "something on account" of a contract for plumbing.

It took Samuel S. Swackhamer and Francis J. Blatz about two hours to get the testimony of their clients before the court and it developed that besides spitting in each others' faces, biting was indulged in by the younger Isaacson and one of the Fertig boys. Bricks were handled according to the testimony and bloodshed followed the fight in which it appeared that Solomon Isaacson got a black eye. John Fertig was bitten on the back and Morris Isaacson found that two of his digits had been cut by Fertig's teeth.

Judge DeMeza ended the trial by fining Solomon Isaacson $8, his son, Morris, $3 and John Fertig $3. Nemsoll got away with a suspended sentence. All were warned to keep the peace in the future.

RESISTED ARREST WAS FINED $3

Because he resisted arrest and attempted to assault Constable John Manley, Oliver Marcellus, a colored expressman was fined $3 by Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning.

According to the story told by both Manley and Marcellus, the latter refused to accompany the constable to police headquarters yesterday afternoon. Mr. Manley had a distress warrant for Marcellus for rent due Mrs. Lena Getman, of Fillmore avenue. The constable seized the expressman's horse and wagon taking them to a stable on East Second street. When Marcellus found out about the seizure he went to the stable and attempted to re-harness the horse and take it away from Mr. Manley. In the scuffle which followed the constable's hat was smashed and Mr. Manley found it necessary to call Patrolman Kelley to his assistance.

Judge DeMeza lectured the colored man and defined the law for him so that in the future he will know that it is best to obey an officer of the law.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. L. T. CLAWSON

The funeral services of Mrs. Amanda Langworthy Clawson, wife of Lewis T. Clawson, formerly of Westerly, R. I., was held yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of her niece, Mrs. Asa F. Randolph, on Park avenue. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. Samuel H. Davis, of Westerly, R. I., a former pastor of Mrs. Clawson when she resided at Westerly and was so active in the Seventh-Day Baptist church there, officiated. He spoke impressively of the beautiful life and character of Mrs. Clawson.

During the services, a quartet comprising Mrs. J. B. Cottrell, Mrs. William C. Hubbard, Dr. O. B. Whitford and David E. Titsworth sang 'Nearer My God to Thee," and Mrs. Cottrell sang "The Holy City," in an effective manner. There were a great many beautiful floral tributes. The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the bearers were Drs. Marcus L. and Frank T. Clawson, O. S. Rogers, Asa F. Randolph, of this city and Lewis Burton, of Brooklyn, all relatives of Mrs. Clawson.

HOLY CROSS CHOIR IN SONG RECITAL

The concert given by the members of the choir of Holy Cross church last night drew a crowded house. Every seat in the parish was occupied and standing room only was to be had after the first number of the program. Frederick Scanlan, violinist; Miss Gertrude Lohrke, of East Orange, soprano, and in fact every participant in the splendid program received enthusiastic encores for their splendid performances.

The choir, under the direction of William S. O'Brien did remarkably fine work, singing their several numbers with fine expression and clearness. The sum netted for the boys' summer camp will approximate $85.

The program follows:

Part One—The Victor's Return, Mendelssohn, the choir; The Swallows, Cowen, Chester Chamberlain; (a) My Dream of Love, Logan, (b) From the Legend of the Sky Blue Water, Cadman, Miss Gretrude Lohrke; Perpetuo Mobile, Carl Bohm, Frederick Smith; (a) The Gypsy Trail, Galloway, (b) Uncle Rome, Homer, Frederick J. Pope; Nita Gitana, DeKovan, Will Thiers; Sleep, Darling, Sleep, Martin, the choir.

Part Two—You Stole My Love, MacFarren, the choir; The Four Leaf Clover, Brownell, Will Theirs; After Sunset, Pryor, Frederick Scanlan; A Rondel, MacFarlane; (a) Bonnie Sweet Bessie, the Maid of Dundee, Gilbert, (b) Believe me of all those Endearing Young Charms, Page, Frederick J. Pope; Song of the Vikings, Faning, the choir.

Must Send Them to School.

Mrs. Lena Backer, of Plainfield avenue, whose children were examined for their ability to attend school yesterday promised Judge DeMeza this morning that she would see to it that her two daughters attended regularly. The nine-year-old son is suffering from eczema and City Physician Lufburrow believes it will take some time to cure him of the disease.

IN AID OF COLLEGE

Benefit Performance Given by Local Lodges for Mt. St. Mary College.

A VAUDEVILLE ENTERTAINMENT

Well Varied Program at the Plainfield Theatre—Some of the Acts Were of a High Order—Fred Becker Chairman.

Professional and amateur talent presented a fine entertainment at the Plainfield theatre last night, for the benefit of the building fund for Mt. St. Mary College, but the patronage was not as large as hoped for by the committee in charge. The entertainment, chiefly of a vaudeville character, was furnished by a dozen secret lodges of the city, and included some of the best acts seen here in a long time, and the audience, although small, was appreciative.

The program opened with bag pipe selections by Michael McIntosh and the dancing of the Highland fling and sword dance by Agnes Crawford, of Kearney, and these were greatly enjoyed. Clan Mackenzie, Order Scottish Clans, provided this number, and then Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., presented Edward Bennett and Harry Blimm in a blackface sketch, which received hearty applause. The artists also sang several good songs.

The whole program was uniformly excellent and it would be difficult to select any number that was better than the others, and all were well received by the audience. The lodges furnishing the entertainment and the other numbers follow:

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, I. O. F., "The Girl from Home," Miss May Fulton; Miantonomo Tribe, I. O. R. M., arcobatic feats, Bert Hansen; Fraternal Order of Eagles, George Carroll of the "Ah Boys' Minstrels," assisted by the Minnion Brothers, in songs and dances and playing of bones; Gesang and Turn Verein, song by singing section.

Wetumpka Tribe, I. O. R. M., boxing bout by Hird brothers, Master Freddie Walsh, aged seven years, champion pin weight of England, and Master eGorge Walsh, aged six years, Knock out Brown. This was one of the best acts on the bill and provoked great applause. Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, soprano solos, Miss Mary Lannon, accompanied by Miss Mary Smith at the piano; St. Mary's T. A. B., George L. Thompson monologist; Loyal Order Moose, No. 310, instrumental number, Mauro Richinto and Pandolea Fereeca, and a song by Master Charles Pagulica, who made one of the hits of the evening.

Plainfield Council, No. 294, Jr. O. U. A. M., H. Warren Rankin in magic; Gesang and Turn Verein, turning section, girls' class, ariel posing ring class, under the direction of Fred Becker; also gymnastic feats by members of the men's turning section.

Fred Becker was chairman of the general committee in charge of the affair and James McCarty was the secretary and treasurer.

Enlarging Adelberg's Store.

Alterations are now in progress in one of the busy stores. Mr. Adelberg has decided to carry his entire business on one floor, instead of the two floors as at present. He therefore built an extension of eighty-five feet to his present store and when the alterations are completed, he will have a store 135 feet deep. It will be the lightest and largest store in Plainfield. When asked this morning the reason for such an expensive alteration, Mr. Adelberg explained that the trade required it, as he wished to give all his customers and they number in the thousands, his personal attention. He therefore, he said, must have his entire business on one floor, as he carries a very large selection of men's and women's outfitting and it requires a lot of floor space to accomodate the goods. He claims it is impossible to give personal attention when there are two floors to attend to. Mr. Adelberg expects to have the alterations all completed no later than June 15.

May Be Swindler.

A smooth faced individual, about forty years old entered the grocery of James A. Smith & Bros., this morning and ordered a lot of groceries sent to an address in North Plainfield. In payment he offered a check for $40, demanding the change. The check was refused and the man disappeared. He was described as being 5 feet, 10 inches tall, smooth faced, dressed in dark clothing and wearing a derby hat. His most distinguishing feature was a fancy striped vest.

—Among the specialties at Neuman Bros. tomorrow will be a full line of the finest green vegetables which will help to make your Sunday dinner enjoyable.

FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Orders Issued by Winfield Scott Post for the Annual Observance.

DETAILS FOR THE SCHOOLS.

Captain Hand Marshal—To Decorate Graves of Departed Veterans—Public Services at Reform Hall in Afternoon.

The fiftieth anniversary of the outbreak of the Civil War, which is being observed this year, will make the Memorial Day exercises of more than the usual interest to the veterans and all others who are for the preservation of the Union, for which the soldiers fought. Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., under the direction of William C. Smith, commander, and H. Craig Smith, adjutant, is planning to carry out an attractive program, the official orders for which were issued today by the post officers, in accordance with the orders from national and department headquarters, specifying the duties.

Sunday being Memorial Sabbath, the veterans will assemble at their headquarters in Reform Hall at 7 o'clock in the evening, in uniform or dark clothes with uniform hats, white gloves and canes and at 7:30 will march in a body to the Park Avenue Baptist church, to attend divine service. Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire will preach the sermon.

Monday morning the veterans will again assemble at headquarters at 8 o'clock for the purpose of attending Memorial Day exercises in the various public schools in the following details:

High School, Dr. J. F. Berg, 8:30; Bryant School, W. I. Chittenden, 9 o'clock; Franklin School, William Hand, 2 o'clock; Stillman School, T. O. Doane, 8:45; Whittier School, S. R. Struthers, 12:15; Irving School, J. N. Bogart, 10:30; Jefferson School, I. E. Houston, 11:00; Parochial School, J. I. Finley; Somerset School, W. W. Coriell, 11:45; Somerset primary school, J. N. Bogart, 1:30; Watchung avenue School, J. W. Coddington, 2.00 Westfield School, S. W. Reese; Scotch Plains School, William Hand; Dunellen School, T. J. Todd, 2:00. Comrades will assist the details in decorating the soldiers' graves as follows:

Hillside cemetery, I. L. McVoy and Dr. J. F. Berg; Evergreen cemetery, N. C. Pennington and H. E. Green; Catholic cemetery, P. B. Goodfellow and John I. Finley; Friends cemetery, E. A. Vanderweg; North Plainfield cemetery, William C. Smith and A. B. King; Spencer cemetery, Springdale cemetery and Mount Bethel cemetery, J. Worth Coddington; Coontown cemetery and Mt. Horeb cemetery, W. N. Pangborn; Scotch Plains Baptist cemetery, William Hand and William Perrine; Westfield cemetery, S. W. Reese, C. W. Harden and C. F. Millet; New Market cemetery, John W. Wagner; Samptown cemetery, R. B. Manning and William Faulks.

Memorial Day, Captain William Hand, post commander, will be marshal for the day. The comrades will meet that morning at 7:30 o'clock and proceed with band by trolley cars, leaving Plainfield at 8 o'clock to Baptist cemetery, Scotch Plains, where services will be held and graves decorated under command of Senior Vice-Commander C. B. Stevens. All comrades will report back to headquarters at 9:30 o'clock prepared for parade. The line of march will be as follows:

The line will form on Central avenue, right resting on West Second street and at 10 o'clock will move as follows: Second street to Park avenue, to Front street, to Watchung avenue, to Chatham street to Presbyterian cemetery, where services will be held and graves decorated, after which the line will re-form and proceed through Chatham street to Somerset street, to Front street, to Plainfield avenue to Evergreen cemetery, where servics will be held and graves decorated. On re-assembling in line the parade will continue through West Fifth street to Central avenue, thence to Post headquarters and dismiss. Flowers and markers will be furnished at Post headquarters to all details. Co. K, as usual, under command of Captain Kitchell, will march with the veterans and there will be a band of music.

The Post will re-assemble at headquarters at 1:30 o'clock. Line will be formed at 2:30 o'clock and march to the hall, where public memorial services will be held at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, will be the orator on this occasion, and there will be the usual interesting exercises by the veterans, together with a program of music. The public is invited to attend.

MARTINE IN CLASH

Jersey Senator Resents His Democracy Being Questioned by Bailey, of Texas.

AN EXCITING VERBAL DUEL.

"I Want to Be With My Party But Better Than That I Want to Be Right," Declared the Farmer-Orator.

The bitterest and most acrimonious exchange of views between Democratic Senators since the opening of the extra session of Congress at Washington, D. C., occurred yesterday in a conference of the minority members when Senator Martine, of New Jersey and Bailey, of Texas, indulged in verbal passages bordering close to personalities, as each other inferentially reflected on the Democracy of the other while declaring their attitude on the question of an investigation into the right of Senator Lorimer to hold a seat in the Senate.

As the result of the row, Senator Martine made it plain to his Democratic colleagues that he proposed to stand by Senator LaFollette in the latter's demand that the Lorimer investigation be conducted by a special select committee, the members of which are named in the resolution now under consideration and none of whom had any part in considering the case when it was before the Senate last winter. The New Jersey Senator also made it clear that he does not propose to be bound by any action of a caucus of Democratic colleagues, although he is perfectly willing to participate in conference on subjects of a legislative nature when is seems advisable to have an exchange of views among the Senators of his party.

The clash between Senators Martine and Bailey came yesterday afternoon when the Democrats had been together since 10 a. m., considering the question of how the Lorimer investigation is to be conducted. Three resolutions are pending on the subject—the one introduced by Mr. Dillingham, chairman of the Committee on Elections and Privileges, which provides for an investigation by the committee composed largely of members who last winter whitewashed Lorimer; the second by Mr. LaFollette, and the third by Mr. Martin, Democratic leader, which proposes about the same thing as the Dillingham resolution in that it authorizes the investigation to be made by the regular standing committee. The Martin resolution is designed to afford Democratic Senators an opportunity to nominally vote for a Democratic proposition while in reality turning the case over to the "regular" Republicans.

The Democratic Senators had been threshing out the Lorimer case for over two hours in their meeting yesterday when Mr. Bailey took the floor and made a passionate defense of the Committee on Elections and Privileges, of which he is a member. Mr. Bailey declared that the members of the Committee on Elections were honorable men and could be depended upon to consider the Lorimer case in the present circumstances in a fair and just manner.

The Texas Senator was especially wrought up over the possibility of precedent and custom in the Senate being upset by a regular standing committee being ignored. The suggestion that Democratic Senators might not be guided by precedents and customs of the Senate, and particularly the idea of a Democratic Senator voting for LaFollette's resolution in opposition to the one offered by Minority Leader Martin seemd to intensely arouse Mr. Bailey.

"If there is any Democratic Senator who will vote for a resolution offered by a Republican in preference to one submitted by our chairman, (Mr. Martin) then I say I don't want to be classed with that kind of a Democrat," declared Mr. Bailey, as he added; "He is a poor sort of a Democrat."

Although he had not formally declared himself on the subject, Senator Martine was understood to be inclined strongly to support the LaFollette resolution and he decided then that it was time for him to advise the conference of his purposes. The intimation of Mr. Bailey that any member of the conference who would vote to support LaFollette for an investigation of Lorimer by a new committee was not a good Democrat, the New Jersey Senator interpreted as a thrust at his standing as a Democrat.

"When I came to this meeting," said Mr. Martine as he jumped to his feet at the conclusion of Mr. Bailey's remarks, "it was not my intention to say anything. I cannot sit here, however, and allow to pass unnoticed the aspersions upon the Democracy of those who have it in mind to support the LaFollette resolution. I felt all along that it will

WESTFIELD.

Representatives from the school boards of Union county will meet at the auditorium of the Westfield High School next week to discuss the new school law and to have it explained to them. The changes in the laws governing the schools have been so radical this year that the boards do not understand their application.

Westfield is to keep the lid on during the Fourth of July celebration so far as fireworks and firecrackers are concerned. The ordinance forbidding local dealers to sell fireworks is not to be suspended or repealed. The merchants' association asked that it be suspended for this Fourth, but the Council has declined.

Invitations have been issued by the Westfield Fire Department to their opening dinner at the new fire department house which is to be held next Monday evening. Guests from the fire departments of the neighboring towns are expected.

HERE AND THERE.

One of the newest sights in this neighborhood is a team of oxen being used on the roads of Fanwood by H. Willoughby, who is grading the roads. This team, composed of two full blooded Holsteins, weighing 3,800 pounds, appear to look at road work as a joke. Wednesday when it was found necessary to remove a stump of an old tree which three teams of horses had been unable to budge, the oxen pulled it out with just one plain grunt. That Mr. Willoughby cares for this valuable team is evident from their sleek and shiny coats. It is unnecessary to use a goad and they answer to the call of their driver. According to Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, who looked the animals over yesterday, they are the slickest pair of draught animals that New Jersey has seen in many a day. They are brothers and are perfectly marked. One is five and the other six years old. They consume twenty-four quarts of ground oats a day and appear to be gentle as young kittens. They are valued by Mr. Willoughby at $1,000.

BANS EIGHT-DAY AUTO PERMITS

Beginning next Thursday, New Jersey will cease to issue special eight-day tourist licenses to automobilists of the States of Pennsylvania and Delaware. This action has been decided upon by Commissioner J. B. R. Smith, of the department of motor vehicles, because of the refusal of the two States in question to reciprocal privileges to residents of New Jersey.

The proposed action by the department has been erroneously reported as including also the States of New York, Massachusetts and Maryland. The Maryland authorities have notified Commissioner Smith that that State will accept New Jersey autoists upon the same terms as are extended to residents of Maryland by this State. This will establish reciprocity between New Jersey and Maryland.

In the case of New York and Massachusetts, negotiations are still pending which Commissioner Smith is hopeful may result in the establisn ment of reciprocal relations. For this reason he will not refuse to continue the present eight-day privileges to those States for the time being, at least.

The difference in the cases of Pennsylvania and Delaware is that they have terminated all negotiations and declared flatly that reciprocal privileges to Jerseymen will not be granted.

When shown an Albany dispatch yesterday stating that the issuance of eight-day licenses to New Yorkers had been terminated, Mr. Smith at once took steps to correct this impression by sending the following telegram to Secretary og State Lasanky, of New York:

"Statement that department has stopped issuing eight-day licenses to New York tourists is erroneous. No such action is contemplated, nor will any action be taken until the results of your efforts in behalf of reciprocal relations are known. The order affecting Pennsylvania will be made effective June 1."

Mr. Lasanky has requested an opinion from Attorney-General Carmody, of New York, regarding his right to issue eight-day tourists' license similar to those in this State. This opinion he expects to have at an early date, and upon it will depend whether New York will be added to the list of non-reciprocal States. In speaking of the situation yesterday, Commissioner Smith said:

"The statement contained in the Albany disptaches that the motor vehicle department at Trenton had ceased to issue eight-day tourists' licenses to its deputy commissioners is erroneous. Such action has not been taken. An order will, however, be promulgated to the agents in a day or so making such action effective on June 1 with reference to residents of Pennsylvania and Delaware.

"The negotiations looking to the establishment of reciprocal relations between New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey have not been terminated, and I am very hopeful that when they have been terminated that the friendly relations existing before the attack on New Jersey began will be re-established."

"I am at a loss to know where the published reports that the issuing of these licenses had already been stopped had their origin. It has been quite well known in motoring circles that these negotiations were pending, and that unless New Jersey motorists received reciprocal treatment from other States, the department would be compelled to exercise its discretionary power and withhold the issuing of eight-day licenses; and it is probable that the information regarding the refusal of Pennsylvania and Massachusetts. It is only fair to say, however, that no action will be taken against these States unless they, like Pennsylvania, compel."

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Drawings for the amateur golf championship at Prestwick, England, for which there are 146 entries, took place Wednesday. The 3 Americans in the tournament drew byes for the first round of play. In the second round, which will be played May 30, T. W. Whittmore, an American, from the Country Club of Brookline, will be pitted against E. A. Lassen, who won the English championship in 1908; Charles Evans, of the Edgewater Golf Club of Chicago, will meet A. C. Latter, of the Royal Black Heath Club, and H. L. Gaw, of Philadelphia, who is entered from Lake Como, will play against J. B. Stableford, of the Lytham Club.

College athletes are gathering at Cambridge for the intercollegiate championship tomorrow. The Cornell track team left Ithaca Wednesday night for Winthrop Highlands Station, Mass. There were twenty-five men in the squad, and Cornelians believe they will capture the championship from Pennsylvania. The runners are expected to win four first prizes in the longer distances. Coach John F. Moakley accompanied the team. Twenty-three men, comprising the University of Pennsylvania track squad, left at 9 o'clock yesterday morning for Boston for the games. With them goes the confident hope of the entire student body.

The International committee of the Olympian games, in a meeting at Budapest Wednesday, sustained the objection entered by the American members of the inclusion of winter sports in the 1912 program, as proposed by Sweden. Cleveland has extended an invitation to the committee to hold the Olympian games in that city in 1912. Budapest and Alexandria are also competing for the honors.

The slaughter of pitchers by batters of the National and American leagues will soon be checked by the retirement of the new cork-centred ball, according to Augustus Herrmann, chairman of the National Commission and president of the Cincinnati club of the National League, who left San Francisco Wednesday for Portland, Ore. A movement already has been started for the relief of the pitchers, who have faced a terrific bombardment of safe hits since the introduction of the new ball. A circular letter, mailed to all directors and officials of the American and National leagues asking for expression of opinion regarding the continued use of the new ball, was received by Mr. Herrmann Wednesday. "I think it will be but a short time until a ball of a less lively pattern will be used," said Mr. Herrmann.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

The Winter Garden, New York's new and most novel place of amusement, has become one of the recognized institutions of the metropolis and the demand for seats taxes the supply to the limit for every performance. The entertainment is beyond all comparison the most varied ever offered under one roof and the "duel scene" is undoubtedly the most sensational innovation of the season. It is the policy of the Winter Garden to make some changes in the specialties and features every week, in order that the patrons who love to frequent the place may always be sure of finding something new to divert them. In addition to the regular evening performances and matinees on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, there are Sunday Night Concerts at the Winter Garden every week.

A dispatch from Constantinople stated that the Turkish Parliamentary Committee had decommended the construction of a railroad in Asiatic Turkey by an American syndicate.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

—Rev. S. J. Skevington, representing the State Baptist convention, will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church, Sunday morning and Dr. Chambliss will preach in the evening.

Arthur M. Harris, superintendent of the Junior department of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, entertained the officers and teachers of the Sunday-school at his home on Central avenue, last night. Miss Marguerite McCutchen, who has been a substitute, was elected a regular teacher for a class of girls. The entertainment provided by Mr. and Mrs. Harris was greatly enjoyed by all present.

SCHOOLMATES' FAREWELL TO MISS LAURA BRISTOL.

When Miss Laura Bristol a popular member of the senior class of the Plainfield High School left town this morning she was accompanied to the train by about fifty of her school friends and when the train pulled out a cheer was given which could be heard for blocks. At the same time there were a few of her friends who tried to keep the tears back.

Miss Bristol has gone to Stamford, Conn., to live and she will be missed by a large circle of friends. She was a member of the High School Glee Club and a soloist in the quartet and had always taken a prominent part in High School affairs.

Manuel Training.

The annual manual training exhibition at the High School closed yesterday after a two days' session. Many parents attended the exhibition which included only the work of pupils of the Stillman Grammar School and the High School. The exhibit included examples of wood turning, domestic science and painting and pleased the visitors to an unusual degree. Aeroplane models and wireless apparatus built by the pupils were features of the exhibit.

Bird Mimic Heard.

Edward Avis, whistler and bird mimic and violinist, delighted a large audience at the Plainfield High School last night, with his imitations of the songs of many birds, in some instances reproductions. The songs of the robin, the field sparrow, meadow lark, wood thrush and several other birds were especially accurate.

A Fine Haul of Shad.

Tunis Vail, of Duer stret, made a catch of ten fine shad in the Raritan River below Bound Brook last night. They weighed a total of sixty-eight pounds. Mr. Vail made two dips, getting six at the first and four on the second. The haul is one of the best reported from the Raritan this season.

Will Address the Cadets.

F. H. Andrews, of this city, will leave tomorrow for the United States Military Academy at West Point, where he will address the cadets. This will make the ninth year that he has visited at intervals the academy for that purpose and he always enjoys the trips very much.

Brokaw Not Guilty.

The jury in the case of Clifton Brokaw, accused of the murder of James Rafferty, at Lincoln, two years ago, returned a verdict of not guilty at the conclusion of the trial in the Middlesex County court in New Brunswick yesterday afternoon.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

S. Howard Voshell, the young Brooklyn player, scored a remarkable reversal of form by defeating Theodore Roosevelt Pell, the national indoor champion and ranking player, for the semi-final bracket of the Bronx lawn tennis championship Wednesday an the courts of the Bedford Park Club at Moshlu parkway. Voshell scored in straight sets, 9-7, 6-2.

An Amplex racing car, driven by Joe Horan, of New York, skidded and turned over while going at higt speed on the Indianapolis Speedway last Wednesday, and Horan suffered a broken leg. His mechanician, Emmett Ward, was bruised.

Harvard's varsity and freshmen crews, which are to row Cornell on Saturday next, arrived at Auburn, N. Y., Wednesday and were taken to Shelldrake Inn, twenty miles from Ithaca, there to continue in training until the day of the contest.

One change was made in the Yale varsity crew Wednesday, Coxswain Barnum being replaced by Copp, who was coxswain of the varsity four at New London last year. The change it is understood, will be a permanent one.

Alfred De Oro successfully defended his title of world's champion in the first block of his three night's match played Wednesday night at Doyle's Academy, New York. The champion finished with a score of 202 while his opponent, Weston, could only click off 91.

FRESHMEN DEFEATED SENIORS 10 TO 1.

The freshmen of the Plainfield High School won another game yesterday afternoon on Crescent Oval, defeating the seniors in a one-sided contest by the score of 10 to 4.

DRY CLEANING TALK

Number 4

The Pressers and Finishers

Those who have read our Dry Cleaning Talks are aware by this time that there is something to Dry Cleaning.

After the garments have been properly dusted and passed through their proper bath, properly dried, spotted, etc., they reach the Finishing Department.

It is the duty of this Department to prepare the work for return, also largely to inspect, proving the previous work.

Our Finishing Department is our pride and we know it is efficient. Our ever increasing trade confirms this fact. Send your next work to us.

talk filled with laughs. He went back to the early days of Muhlenberg when the house staff as it was called comprised superintendent, one nurse and a cook. The nurse resigned after two years, saying the place was too lonesome. He also recited the history of the training school pins which he is the originator and expressed his pleasure at having the honor of presenting four more to as many worthy of wearing one. He also extended hearty congratulations.

During the intermission between the exercises and the reception, refreshments were served by undergraduates of the training school. Dancing was afterward taken up and continued until midnight.

be a proper thing to vote for the LaFollette resolution not only in the matter of authorizing the investigation but also to approve of the idea of having it conducted by the special committee proposed by the resolution. Holding such a view, I resent the declaration of the Senator from Texas that I am not worthy of the company of true Democrats if I adhere to this conviction. I have been a Democrat all my life, and I venture to say as good a Democrat and as loyal a member of my party as the gentleman who has just finished his remarks. I do not propose to sit here and have him question my Democracy.

"I want to be with my party in this matter and other matters," continued Mr. Martine. "But better than that, I want to be right. I am here with positive convictions and positive opinions, and shall vote for the LaFollette resolution. Having stated this, I want to add the comment that I believe my reputation in my State where the people know me is quite as good as the reputation of the Senator from Texas among his people."

"If it is the purpose of this meeting that all the Senators shall yield to the views of the majority here in this grave matter, against their convictions, then it is evident that I have come here under a serious misapprehension and I am strangely out of place," said Mr. Martine in conclusion.

When Mr. Martine sat down the Texas Senator jumped up and declared: "We will not debate our Democracy here."

"Don't stop on my account, mine will stand debate," replied Mr. Martine in warm tones.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The confirmation services held yesterday afternoon at St. Mary's church, Stony Hill, was attended by many of the members of the parish and friends of the litle church. A large class of the younger members of the parish were confirmed, Bishop McFaul, of Trenton, officiated.

The local ball team has entered the Inter-Town Leogue, which was formed Wednesday night. The league will consist of teams from Plainfield, Bound Brook, Somerville and the 'Plains. The fans can look forward to some exciting games during the season.

"School Days at Cranbury Corner," will be given tonight by the young people of the Baptist church in the church parlors. A pleasant evening, bringing back fond recollections of the past, is promised all who attend.

Front street and Park avenue are being swept of dust, preparatory to oiling the streets. The work is being done under the direction of township committeeman, Henry C. Meyer.

The Union County Herald removes today from the Fuchs building, on Park avenue, to more commodious quarters in Broad street, Westfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfonso Sabitino, of Park avenue, have been entertaining Mrs. Sabitino's mother, Mrs. Williams, of New York.

Frederick Johnson, of Front street, has resigned his position with the Public Service Corporation, in its gas department.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., held a regular semi-monthly meeting last night in the library rooms.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Plainfield Baseball Club will play the local team at Dunellen tomorrow afternoon, Cosgrove, Harter and Driscoll, who have played on the New Brunswick team against such teams as the New York Giants and the Yankees, will be in the Plainfield lineup. Come out also and see whether or not the local management made a mistake in signing up Wendt instead of Montross for the season.

A good-sized delegation from the Presbyterian church Christian Endeavor Society attended the anniversary of the Warren chapel Endeavors last night. An interesting program was enjoyed.

The Holy Name Society of St. John's church, attended a special gathering conducted by the Holy Name Society of St Mary's church, Wednesday night.

EXTRA! EXTRA—Owing to the increased circulation of The Daily Press I presume I will be called upon to receive cut rates for advertising soon. But that is one of my secrets. Don't mention it. You known I like to write ads so well that when you bring your property to me, I shall ask you to take off your hat and leave a check for fifteen dollars for advertising. Shall use this paper and two others, and when you go to give me a check for commission I shall tell you to deduct the fifteen dollars that did the business! Of course, if signs sell your property, I will get left. I hope I will get left. D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours. 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 19 tf

CONEY ISLAND—The first fellow who came to see the Park street, Brooklyn properties near Coney Island, that are to exchange for your property, did not care to go to Coney Island. I just told him that he could count the ties over. He went over and back and is now ready to take one. Now the thing is! Suppose you all go over without me and take one, how will I get to Coney Island? D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours, 159 North avenue, 'phone 1907.

MY TEXT—Old Colony Insurance Co., of Boston, Mass. This is the first time I ever knew myself to take off my hat to the word "Old" because it always looked like a jar to me, but in this case it sounds substantial. And the word Boston sounds like literary to me, or five o'clock teas. And five o'clock teas keep money in circulation for did you ever see one gown that would be literary to two teas That is what I want to do, keep money in circulation, only I want it to circulate my way. That is the reason I represent that word "Old." I insure anything but your life and that I want you to keep; but bring me your houses, and your literary automobiles. D. Foster Updike, 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 22 tf

STRAIGHTBACK—There is a lot of straightback advertising, but who wants a straightback on a hot day? I use to be a pay advertiser. The art of advertising is not saying what you have to say because most people do not care anything about what you say than otherwise. It is saying something that the other fellow cannot forget. For instance yesterday I sold four houses made an appointment for Mr. Conover to show a farm in Hunterdon county today and two more this week; also have Mr. McDonough, our ice men, busy looking up houses for servants, on account of my not "forget" advertising. My reason for telling you all of this is: I do not like the penny a word column; I want an amusement column of my own in a cheaper part of the paper, so you can have more amusement for fifteen dollars. The fifteen dollars is my object, I do not care anything about the commission. Speaking about straightbacks, I use to be a Presbyterian, they called them straightbacks; when I left my country abode to live in the City of Trenton, it used to be the custom for some of the men to stand during prayer. I use to think it awful nice until one time I played peep. I saw all these men standing, looking all over the church. Will some one ask me what they stood for? In other words would they have been doing the same thing bumping their foreheads? Get in my amusement column. D. Foster Updike or my time is yours, 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907 with check for $15. 5 24 4

SICK PEOPLE—I am worried about your pocketbook; for that reason I have built a house on Sumner avenue with better timber and better built than any millionaire's house you ever saw, whose pocketbook I am more worried about. This house has a sick room in it that will cure as many diseases as quack medicine. D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours. 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 19 tf

LONDON'S HISTORIC TOWER.

And the Egg From Which Was Hatched the Great Charter.

Richard Davey in "The Tower of London" connects the historic edifice with the wresting of the great charter from King John.

King John, it would seem, though legally married to Isabella of Angouleme, fell desperately in love in 1214 with "Matilda" or "Maud," "the Fair," the beautiful daughter of Robert, Lord Fitzwalter. This lady, remaining deaf to his entreaties, was treacherously abducted from her father's seat at Dunmow by the king's order and shut up in the round turret of the White tower. On this Fitzwalter made a vain attempt to rouse the people to revolt, but was forced to fly to France with his wife and remaining children. Maud once safe in the tower, King John renewed his suit, but only succeeded in driving her to utter silence, which so infuriated him that he sent her a poisoned egg for her breakfast, and she died early in 1215. A year later her remains were translated to the family vault at Dunmow.

When the news of this crafty murder came to the ears of Fitzwalter he forthwith returned to England and discovered to his joy that the barons were on the point of declaring war against John. He at once placed himself at their head, hoping, it is said, to combine his personal revenge with his duty as an English peer and is indeed supposed to have forced the king to sign the great charter for the express purpose of humiliating his daughter's murderer. Thus from an egg was hatched the great charter. Whether the story be true or false, it is a certified historical fact that the barons held the tower in pledge till John consented to accept the charter and affixed his reluctant signature to the deed.

About a year later, when the war with the barons was at its height and John once more a power, the tower again fell into his hands, and, though the barons laid siege to it, they were repulsed by the king's men. To complete its strange vicissitudes during this strenuous reign the tower became on Nov. 1, 1215, the temporary court of King Louis of France, whom the rebellious barons had summoned to assist in the adjustment of their grievances. Appearing before the gates with a large body of men, he so completely awed the officials that they handed over the keys without striking a blow for their rightful monarch.

FREAKS OF A RIVER.

A Stream So Crooked That It Double Crosses Itself.

There is a stream in Massachusetts called the North river. It starts in a pond near Hanson and runs to the sea at Scituate. It is ten miles by air line from Hanson to Scituate, and the river is forty miles long.

This river is probably the most remarkable body of water, barring the Dead sea, on this footstool and has stood more abuse and bad language than the Chicago river. When the tide is coming in the river runs upstream, and not only that, but the upper part of it, which is fresh water, also runs up, and the spectacle of a fresh water river beating it uphill is alone enough to call attention to itself. But there is much more to it than that.

The North river is noted for being the scene of the last Indian raid on the coast settlements. It is notable for having given birth to the ship Columbia, whose captain discovered and named the Columbia river, and was the first American vessel to circumnavigate the world. It is notorious for having suddenly changed its mind on its course on the night of Nov. 27, 1898, when it moved its mouth three miles to the northward, presented the town of Marshfield with a deep harbor, killed three men and converted about 200,000 acres of prime meadow land into a salt marsh.

But the chief thing about this river is its crookedness. This river is so crooked that it double crosses itself. If you don't believe it go and see. There is one place in Hanover where by making three loops the river moves toward the sea for a distance of almost fifty feet and meanders about for fifteen miles in doing it.—Boston Traveler.

The Open Fire.

The open fire is a primitive, elemental thing. It cheers with more than mere heat; it is a bit of the red heart of nature laid bare; it is a dragon of the prince docile and friendly there in the corner. What pictures, what activity, how social, how it keeps up the talk! You are not permitted to forget it for a moment. How it responds when you nudge it! How it rejoices when you feed it! Why, an open fire in your room is a whole literature. It supplements your library as nothing else in the room does or can.—John Burroughs in Country Life in America.

Out or In.

"What's that noise?" asked the visitor in the apartment house.

"Probably some one in the dentist's apartments on the floor below getting a tooth out."

"But this seemed to come from the floor above."

"Ah, then it's probably the Popleys' baby getting a tooth in!"—Catholic Standard and Times.

Dolly and Doris.

Nurse—Come, Doris. It is time for you and dolly to go to bed.

Doris—What's the use? Dolly's so tired she can't sleep, and I've got a touch of insomnia.—London Punch.

The best of us lack more'n wings to be angels.—Thomas B. Aldrich.

What Woman Could Sit on a Bench in Military Park, and Seeing the Dresses Displayed in Our Windows, Could Resist the Temptation to Come in and Buy One or More, Especially These.

Rich Gowns Less than Half

Fashion makers have not evolved handsomer styles in Spring and Summer Gowns and Serge Suits than the lot we will present for your edification and profit tomorrow.

We bought these dresses advantageously—found a maker with a big lot that he was glad to dispose of if he could get his money quickly.

There are Dresses of Pongee, Foulard, Novelty Chiffon, Eolienne, Messaline, Rajah and Cloth of Gold, and there are Natty Little Suits of Serge in solid colors, stripes and checks which are particularly nice for wear at the shore.

There are dresses included suitable for wear afternoons and evenings, reception and party dresses, and dresses for almost any service that may be required of them, and they are all splendidly made in styles that are strictly up-to-the-minute in colorings most exclusive indeed, and there are sizes for all who come from young girls to matronly women.

And despite their worth and beauty we are going to offer them Saturday as follows:

Dresses worth to $19.50 at $7.95.
Dresses worth to $23.00 at $9.95.
Dresses worth to $28.00 at $11.95.
Dresses worth to $35.00 at $14.95.

Selling Begins at 9; No Mail, 'Phone or C. O. D. Orders.

1,000 Boys' Sample Wash Suits

$1.25 to $6 Kinds at 59c to $2.98.

We take over annually all the sample Washable Suits from two of the leading makers and we get them at a price that enables us to save our patrons a lot of money. As you might imagine, the suits used for samples are as particularly made, if not more so, than any that come from the factory, so that you will find these without fault.

There is a great collection of styles to choose from, including Russian and Sailor, made of Duck, Rep, Galatea, Chambray, Madras, Butcher's Linen, etc., in tan, cadet, light blue, champagne, navy blue, olive green and white; sizes for boys of 2½ to 10 years.

These are the most advanced summer styles—snappy and pretty, just such as the boys will delight to wear and the mothers in buying, especially at the wonderfully low prices that we name for this disposal.

These suits ordinarily would sell at from $1.25 to $6, but this is how we are going to sell them:

$1.25 Suits for 59c.
$1.75 Suits for 98c.
$2 and $2.50 Suits for $1.29.
$2.98 and $3.50 Suits for $1.79.
$3.98 and $4.50 Suits for $2.59.
$5 and $6 Suits for $2.98.

A BRILLIANT FOP.

The Youthful Disraeli, Elegant and Eloquent.

AN INTELLECTUAL EXQUISITE.

His Airs and Graces, His Frills and Laces and His Dazzling Oratory In His Early Political Battles—A Pen Picture of His Remarkable Face.

Benjamin Disraeli's career in practical politics began with a series of reverses that might have discouraged a less persistent fighter. Five times the youthful novelist and versatile budding statesman attempted to break into parliament before he succeeded in winning an election, going down to defeat three times at Wycombe and once at Taunton.

In William Flayvelle Monypenny's "Life of Benjamin Disraeli" the author declares that tales are still told in Wycombe of Disraeli's famous first speech from the portico of the Red Lion:

"The youthful orator was now at the height of his dandyism, and his 'curls and ruffles' played no small part in the election. Standing on the top of the porch beside the figure of the lion, with his pale face set off by masses of jet black hair and his person plenteously adorned with lace and cambric, he must have seemed to the spectators better fitted for his role of fashionable novelist than for that of strenuous politician. Great, then, was their surprise when this 'popinjay,' as a hostile newspaper called him, began to pour forth a torrent of eloquence with tremendous energy of action and in a voice that carried far along the High street. He had an instinct for the dramatic effects which hold the attention of the mob. 'When the poll is declared I shall be there,' he exclaimed, according to a Wycombe tradition, pointing to the head of the lion, 'and my opponent will be there,' pointing to the tail. By the admission even of the opposite party the speech was a complete success, and his popularity with the crowd was thenceforth assured."

As to the young orator's appearance at Taunton, Mr. Monypenny gathers these comments of an eyewitness from an almost forgotten book of that time:

"Never in my life had I been so struck by a face as I was by that of Disraeli. It was lividly pale, and from beneath two finely arched eyebrows blazed out a pair of intensely black eyes. I never have seen such orbs in mortal sockets either before or since. His physiognomy was strictly Jewish. Over a broad, high forehead were ringlets of coal black, glossy hair, which, combed away from his right temple, fell in luxuriant clusters or bunches over his left cheek and ear, which it entirely concealed from view.

"There was a sort of half smile, half sneer playing about his beautifully formed mouth, the upper lip of which was curved as we see it in the portraits of Byron. He was very showily attired in a dark bottle green frock coat, a waistcoat of the most extravagant pattern, the front of which was almost covered with glittering chains, and in fancy pattern pantaloons. He wore a plain black stock, but no collar was visible. Altogether he was the most intellectual looking exquisite I had ever seen.

"He commenced in a lisping, lackadaisical tone of voice. He minced his phrases in apparently the most affected manner and while he was speaking placed his hands in all imaginable positions, not because he felt awkward and did not know, like a booby in a drawing room, where to put them, but apparently for the purpose of exhibiting to the best advantage the glittering rings which decked his white and taper fingers. Now he would place his thumbs in the armholes of his waistcoat and spread out his fingers on its flashing surface; then one set of digits would be released and he would lean affectedly on the table, supporting himself with his right hand; anon he would push aside the curls from his forehead.

"But as he proceeded all traces of dandyism and affectation were lost. With a rapidity of utterance perfectly astonishing he referred to past events and indulged in anticipations of the future. The Whigs were, of course, the objects of his unsparing satire, and his eloquent denunciations of them were applauded to the echo. In all he said he proved himself to be the finished orator. Every period was rounded with the utmost elegance, and in his most daring flights, when one trembled lest he should fall from the giddy height to which he had attained, he so gracefully descended that every hearer was wrapped in admiring surprise. His voice, at first so finical, gradually became full, musical and sonorous and with every varying sentiment was beautifully modulated. His arms no longer appeared to be exhibited for show, but he exemplified the eloquence of the hand. The dandy was transformed into the man of mind, the Mantalini looking personage into a practiced orator and finished elocutionist."

Her Declaration.

"Have you anything to declare?" asked the customs inspector.

"Yes," replied the lady who was returning from Europe. "I unhesitatingly declare that it is an outrage the way this government permits things to be mussed up in one's trunk."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Let those who complain of having to work undertake to do nothing. If this does not convert them nothing will.

YOU ARE INVITED TO ATTEND THE FORMAL OPENING OF

Plainfield Park

This magnificent tract of land, so close to transportation facilities, the most picturesque spot in your city, is an ideal location for a restricted residential development.

We are bringing to bear on Plainfield Park a concentration of brains, capital and energy that will make it one of the finest residential settlements in Plainfield.

Laid out in large plots with winding drives and circles and parks, the property is being improved with macadam streets, cement walks, curbs, sewerage pipes, shade trees, and every modern convenience that helps to make life comfortable.

Contracts have been awarded for the construction of thirty-five handsome houses, costing from $6,000 to $15,000 each. Five of these, now under construction, will be sold Saturday afternoon AT ACTUAL COST. YOU CAN BUY ONE WITH THE MONEY YOU ARE NOW PAYING FOR RENT.

With the building up of Plainfield Park as a high grade, restricted community, the purchase of plots at the low opening prices and on liberal terms, will be THE BEST INVESTMENT YOU HAVE EVER MADE.

Call, 'phone or write for maps, prices, and forty page booklet on Plainfield, beautifully illustrated in colors.

But come out Saturday and see Plainfield Park for yourself. Take the main line trolley west, get off at Clinton Avenue, walk two short blocks toward the mountain and you will be on the property.

THIS SATURDAY, MAY 27, IS THE DAY, THREE O'CLOCK, THE TIME. COME!

Sale of $20 Summer Suits at $14.75

Blue and Gray for Memorial Day

This sale of Summer Suits ought to result in some unusual selling. It represents a goodly saving and comes just in time for Decoration Day.

These are garments that have been selling regularly at $20. The most of them are handsome gray mixed effects, but there are also some Blue Serges in the lot. Some full lined, some half lined. Every suit GUARANTEED ALL WOOL WORSTED, and the Blue Serges are guaranteed indigo dyed and sun-proof.

There is nothing more satisfactory than gray for summer wear. But whether you choose a Blue or a Gray, you will have a garment that will bear witness to M. & B. superior tailoring skill as long as you wear it. The built-in features of all M. & B. garments assure permanent shapeliness.

Men's $5 and $6 Oxfords at $3.65

This is a real treat in footwear that men are taking advantage of for Decoration Day. About 1500 pairs of the finer grade Oxfords. Regular $5 and $6 qualities, in ALL SIZES and WIDTHS. An unusual choice of Tan Russia Calf in the lot, also patent colt and gunmetal.

"The Great Secret of Success in Life," said Disraeli, "is to be ready when your opportunity comes."

Many a man has been compelled to let business opportunities go by—opportunities which might have established him in a profitable business, merely from the lack of a little ready cash at the right time.

The man who saves his money NOW is the man who will be READY when OPPORTUNITY comes.

GAVE US OUR NAME.

Little French Town to Celebrate Great Event.

At Saint-Die In 1507 Was Published the Book In Which the Name America Appeared For the First Time.

Paris.—The little town of Saint-Die, in the Vosges department, is preparing to celebrate the fact that in a book printed there the name America was first given to the western world. M. Pichon, minister of foreign affairs, is to preside at the celebration and to represent the government.

In the fifteenth century there existed at Saint-Die a college of learned canons who formed the Gymnase Vosgien, which became famous and attracted many scholars to the town. About 1507, or some thirty-five years after the death of Gutenberg, this society determined to set up a printing machine, the first or possibly the second installed in the province of Lorraine. Two learned strangers who had recently arrived in the country encouraged the canons in their undertaking, furnishing some of the money needed and supervising the work. These strangers were Martin Waldseemuller of Fribourg-en-Brisgau, a noted geographer, and Mathias Ringmann, born at Val-d'Orbey, a schoolmaster from Strassburg, aged twenty-five.

The printing shop was established in a house on the Place Pierre-Hardie, now called the Place Jules-Ferry. The Duke of Lorraine, Rene II., looked with favor on the undertaking, and, having received from Italy a description in French entitled "Quatre Navigations d'Americ Vespuce," he passed it over to Canon Jean Basin de Sandancourt, whose ancient house may still be seen in Saint-Die, for translation into Latin.

At this time Waldseemuller and Ringmann were at work on a reproduction of Ptolemy's treatise on geography, to which they were adding a preface entitled "Cosmographiae Introductio." They determined to incorporate the story of Amerigo Vespucci's voyages into this work, and Ringmann, who was acting as editor, wrote an introduction beginning:

"There is a fourth quarter of the world which Amerigo Vespucci has discovered and which for this reason we can call 'America,' or the land of Americo."

Farther on he wrote:

"We do not see why the name of the man of genius, Amerigo, who has discovered them, should not be given to these lands, as Europe and Asia have adopted the names of women."

The work appeared on April 25, 1507, under the title "Cosmographiae Introductio." It went through three editions, and copies nowadays bring high prices, over $600. Something like a dozen are known to exist, but the library of Saint-Die, though rich in rare black letters, does not possess a copy.

The town of Saint-Die has often been recognized as the godmother of America. In July, 1875, Henri Bardy, president of the Vosgian Philomathic society, was invited to the international congress of Americanists as the representative of the little town. In 1891 Frank Mason, now consul general at Paris, published a work on "The Baptismal Font of America," and in 1892 a special hall was reserved at the Chicago universal exhibition for Saint-Die, where with many views of the town a copy of the celebrated work was shown, open at page 30, where the name "America" first made its appearance.

Condemned Man Refused Liberty.

Springfield, Mo.—With the prison door open to liberty, Eugene Tucker, sentenced to hang March 26, refused three times to leave the Greene county jail, where two prisoners overpowered Deputy Sheriff H. B. Ingler. Tucker told the two prisoners who had possession of the jail he did not care to leave that way.

The two prisoners, W. R. White and Charles Farris, overpowered the deputy, took his revolver and keys and locked him in the corridor with other prisoners. Then they offered Tucker his freedom and left.

Police captured them in less than an hour after a running battle in which a score of shots were exchanged.

Paupers Inherit $1,000,000.

Leicester, England.—Two men living at Blaby, near here, and drawing an old age pension of 5 shillings weekly on account of poverty, have inherited $1,000,000 from a brother, Henry Bowns, who died at Salt Lake City, Utah, according to information said to have been contained in a letter from the testator's son.

CONTEST

FOR PLAINFIELD PUPILS

The Plainfield Ice & Supply Co. will give a prize of $25 in cash to the pupil of any school, public or private, in Plainfield or North Plainfield, who shall submit the best written advertisement for the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company's business, to occupy a space equal to the space taken by this announcement.

The judges will be the Editors of the Courier-News and Daily Press. The conditions will be as follows:

The advertisement as written should be sent to the office of the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., with a separate sheet of paper attached, bearing the writer's name, and name of the school he or she attends. Both sheets thus submitted will be numbered by the Company in the order received, and the sheet bearing the name of the contestant will be held by the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., and the advertisement with the corresponding number will be sent to the judges, so that the judges will have no knowledge of the name of the writer. The advertisement which is decided to be the best will be so marked, and sent to the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company, who will by reference to the sheets in their possession, determine the name of the successful contestant.

The contest will end May 30, all letters received up to midnight of that day being eligible to the competition.

The House of the Whispering Pines

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910, by Anna Katharine Rohlfs

"Gentlemen of the jury, you have seen the point after point of the prosecution's case demolished before your eyes by testimony which no one has had the temerity to attempt to controvert. What is left? Mr. Fox will tell you—three strong and unassailable facts: The ring found in the murdered woman's casket, the remnants of the telltale bottle discovered in the Cumberland stable and the opportunity for crime given by the acknowledged presence of the defendant on or near the scene of death.

"But are these points so vital as they seem? Let us consider them and see. My client has denied that he dropped anything into his sister's casket, much less the ring missing from that sister's finger. Dare you, then, convict on this point when, according to count, ten other persons were seen to drop flowers into this very place, any one of which might have carried this object with it?

"And the bit of broken bottle found in or near the defendant's own stable! Is he to be convicted on the similarity it offers to the one known to have come from the clubhouse wine vault, while a reasonable doubt remains of his having been the hand which carried it there? No. Where there is a reasonable doubt no high minded jury will convict, and I claim that my client has made it plain that there is such a reasonable doubt.

"My distinguished opponent would have you believe that the defendant did not fly at the moment declared, but that he waited to fulfill the foul deed, which is the only serious matter in dispute in his so nearly destroyed case. I hear as though he were now speaking the attack which he will make upon my client when he comes to review this matter with you. Let me see if I cannot make you hear those words too." And, with a daring smile at his discomfited adversary, Alonzo Moffat launched forth into the following sarcasm:

"Arthur Cumberland, coming up the kitchen stairs, hears voices where he had expected total silence, sees light where he had left total darkness. He has two bottles in his hands or in his large coat pockets. If they are in his hands he sets them down and steals forward to listen. He has recognized the voices. They are those of his two sisters, one of whom had ordered him to hitch up the cutter for her to escape, as he had every reason to believe, the other. Curiosity—or is it some nobler feeling?—causes him to draw nearer and nearer to the room in which they have taken up their stand. He can hear their words now, and what are the words he hears? Words that would thrill the most impervious heart, call for the interference of the most indifferent. But he is made of ice, welded together with steel. He sees (for no place save one from which he can watch and see—namely, the dark dancing hall—would satisfy any man of such gigantic curiosity) Adelaide fall at Carmel's feet in recognition of the great sacrifice she has made for her. But he does not move; he falls at no one's feet; he recognizes no nobility, responds to no higher appeal. Stony and unmoved, he crouches there and watches and watches, still curious or still feeding his hate on the sufferings of the elder, the forbearance of the younger.

"And on what does he look? You have already heard, but consider it. Adelaide, despairing of happiness, decides on death for herself or sister. Both loving one man, one of the two must give way to the other. Carmel has done her part; she must now do hers. She has brought poison; she has brought glasses—three glasses for three persons, but only two are on the scene, and so she fills but two. One has only cordial in it, but the other is, as she believes, deadly. Carmel is to have her choice. But who believes that Adelaide would ever have let her drink the poisoned glass?

"And this man looks on as the two faces confront each other—one white with the overthrow of every earthly hope, the other under the stress of suffering and a fascination of horror sufficient to have laid her dead without poison at the other one's feet. This is what he sees—a brother—and he makes no move, then or afterward, when, the die cast, Adelaide succumbs to her fear and falls into a seemingly dying state on the couch.

"Does he go now? Is his hate or his cupidity satisfied? No. He remains and listens to the tender interchange of final words and all the late precautions of the elder to guard the younger woman's good name. Still he is not softened, and when, the critical moment passed, Carmel rises and totters about the room in her endeavor to fulfill the tasks enjoined upon her by her sister he gloats over a death which will give him independence and gluts himself with every evil thought which could blind him to the pitiful aspects of a tragedy such as few men in this world could see unmoved. A brother!

LINCOLN'S QUESTION.

It Stilled the Storm of Applause For His Opponent, Douglas.

Professor James T. McLeary of Mankato, Minn., who for fourteen years represented a district of his state in congress, told this Lincoln story:

"A friend of mine told me that when a boy he attended with his father one of the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates in Illinois. My friend's father was a Lincoln man, but the place in which that particular debate took place was a Douglas stronghold.

"Douglas spoke first, and he was frequently interrupted by vociferous applause. The cheering and the hand-clapping at the end lasted four or five minutes. When Lincoln was introduced the crowd broke out into cheers for Douglas and kept it up for several minutes. Lincoln meanwhile waited patiently.

"When at length the enthusiasm had subsided Lincoln extended his long right arm for silence. When he had partly got this he said in an impressive tone, 'What an orator Judge Douglas is!'

"This unexpected tribute to their friend set the audience wild with enthusiasm. When this applause had run its course Lincoln, extending his hand again, this time obtained silence more easily.

"'What a fine presence Judge Douglas has!' exclaimed the speaker earnestly. Again tumultuous applause followed the tribute.

"'How well rounded his sentences are! How well chosen his language is! How apt his illustrations are!' ending up with 'What a splendid man Judge Douglas is!'

"Then when the audience had again become silent at his call Lincoln leaned forward and said:

"'And now, my countrymen, how many of you can tell me one thing Judge Douglas said?'

"My friend told me he searched his own heart for an answer and found none. Afterward he asked his father if he could remember anything Judge Douglas had said, and the latter remembered practically nothing. 'But,' my friend said to me impressively, 'even now, half a century later, I can recall practically all that Lincoln said.'"—Exchange.

THE USE OF ARSENIC.

How the Poison Acts When Taken as a Complexion Beautifier.

"You no doubt have observed the lily white complexion of some women. These women are sacrificing years of their lives for that beautiful skin by the use of arsenic," said a chemist of Manchester, England.

"It is a well known fact that thousands of women in all countries of the world use the poison in small quantities to bleach their skin. It is an effective means of whitening and clearing the complexion, but the complexion given by its use has no permanency unless the absorption of the drug be continued.

"Arsenic, as science has long told us, is an accumulative poison. When one takes it either by prescription for the upbuilding of an appetite or for the bleaching of the skin he does not feel any ill effects for several years. The effect of the drug is bracing and makes a person feel like eating. It also aids the digestion. The average user of the poison takes it in such small quantities that he does not realize how much of it will accumulate in his system in the course of four or five years.

"Being an accumulative poison, it often takes that length of time to see the results of the drug. Then the user may complain of not being able to control his fingers or toes. Subsequently he loses control of his hands and arms. Paralysis, superinduced by arsenical poisoning, is the fearful result.—Washington Post.

That Was Enough.

They were talking about the nosey women who knew everybody in the middle of the block.

"Apparently she's got it in for those people who moved away from 35 last week," said he. "What did they do to her?"

"Nothing," said she, "except to borrow her opera glasses the day before they moved and keep them till the day after, so she couldn't get a chance to train them on their back room furniture."—New York Times.

What Damp Means.

Learn to know what damp means, especially when used upon polished woodwork. Think it means wet and you will be reviling valuable information as "newspaper rubbish." Dip a cloth in hot water, wring it as hard as you can, then shake it in the air and it should have about the right amount of moisture.—Exchange.

The Silver Lining.

"Oh, John," exclaimed Mrs. Shortcash, who was reading a letter, "our son has been expelled from college. Isn't it awful?"

"Oh, I don't know," answered Mr. Shortcash. "Perhaps I can pull through without making an assignment now."—Chicago News.

Getting On.

"How is your daughter getting along with her vocal lessons?"

"Splendidly, splendidly! She's got so now that she can say 'I can't sing without my music' just beautifully."—Detroit Free Press.

Made It Lean.

Teacher—Now, Harold, can you tell me what made the tower of Pisa lean?

Harold—I guess there must have been a famine in the land.—Exchange.

QUEEN CITY OPENS

Manager Floersch Welcomes Patrons at Plainfield's Model Hotel Today.

RESTAURANT IS A FEATURE.

J. A. Staats' Public House Declared to Be the Finest in This Section of New Jersey—Discription of Interior Arrangements

Manager Peter Floersch opened the new Queen City Hotel at the corner of Park avenue and Second street at noon today.

The new hotel represents an expenditure of between $40,000 and $50,000 which includes the cost of the alterations planned by W. H. Clum, the architect and the investment made by Mr. Floersch himself in the elaborate furnishings of the new hostelry.

J. A. Staats, who has owned the property for the past seven years, is satisfied that under the management of Mr. Floersch, Plainfield will have one of the best appointed hotels in the State.

The handsome decorations of the new building are the work of C. W. Mundy, whose work was practically completeed yesterday afternoon.

The room furnishings are in the best taste, every room being finished in a different design. Running water, telephone, electric light and in fact every known convenience for guests has been installed. Fire escapes of the most approved pattern are included in the furnishings of each room. There are suites with private baths; private dining rooms on the second floor, furnished in oak with tables in which a combined writing desk and bureau is one of the features.

The main dining room is finished in oak wainscoting with a frieze of autumn leaves as a border, giving the quiet effect so much appreciated by connoisseurs. The office as well as all the ground floor is tiled and every sanitary precaution has been taken.

The carpets are all Wiltons and were laid by experts who finished their work yesterday. A visit through the new hotel convinced a reporter of The Daily Press that the new place will fill a vacancy in the hotel business which has long been noticeable in this city.

Mr. Staats, the owner of the building, has been in the hotel business all his life and among the other enterprises he has successfully conducted are the water works at Netcong and Stanhope, and the Watchung Spring Water Company of this city. He also managed the Sheridan House, the Clark House and the Hotel Berkeley, all in Elizabeth, the Clarendon at Hackettstown; the Burnett House at Stroudsburg, Pa., and the Forest House at Budds Lake, the latter being at the time one of the best known summer resorts in New Jersey. He massed a fortune in the business and is known throughout the State as a model hotel man.

Manager Floersch has been for twenty years managing some of New Jersey's best known hotels, among them the Excelsior Hotel at Tottenville, S. I., the Bay Cliff Park Hotel, and the last place, the Packer House which he successfully conducted for several years at Perth Amboy. Illness compelled Mr. Floersch to change his residence and he has promised Plainfielders one of the best hotels in th State. He has erected two huge lights, one at each corner of the building on East Second street which will be landmarks for some time to come.

Many guests have already been assigned rooms and applications are being received for the week of the horse show. A private parlor for women is included among the arrangements, with piano and other desirable features.

WILL ENTERTAIN FOR FRESH AIR FUND.

Three noted speakers will address he Christian Endeavor Society of the West End Tabernacle tonight. They are Frederick Mintel, secretary of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union; John Morrow, of Westfield, and F. O. Warner, of Elizabeth.

The object of tonight's meeting is to raise funds for the C. E. Fresh Air Camp, which is to be conducted for the benefit of poor children. Harry A. Pennoyer, chairman of the finance committee said yesterday that the societies intended to do all they can do to help to care for the poor children during the hot weather.

An entertainment has been arranged for tonight, which will include cornet and violin solos as well as vocal numbers. It will begin at 8 o'clock and a collection will be taken.

WATCHUNG RESIDENTS IN DRAMATIC OFFERING

Residents of Watchung invaded the dramatic field last night and gave an able presentation of a three-act drama, "Out of the Shadow." It was given in the Watchung School for the benefit of the school fund and was witnessed by a gathering which filled the building to its capacity.

The affair was arranged and conducted by Miss Nora Coons, principal of the school, who also acted as coach. Her efforts resulted in a very enjoyable entertainment in every respect. Every member of the cast made the most of his or her part and the audience was generous with its applause. The stage settings greatly enhanced the general effect.

The cast of characters was as follows:

Frederick Waldemar, a manufacturer, William H. Demler; Johann Ramenoff, outcast and ex-convict, Albert Perrit; Myron Arnold, Isabel's father, Francis E. Bodin; Capt. Kendrick Arnold, her brother, Douglas Demler; Lieut. Arthur Manley, Edward F. Bodin; Jane, family servant, Dorothy H. Underhill; Isabel, Waldemar's wife, Nora M. Koons; Edith, their adopted daughter, Edna C. Swain; Mamie, their child, Elsie F. Schmidt.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR STATE S.S. CONVENTION

Several important steps were taken by the executive committee of the local Sunday-school Union at its special meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. parlors last night. It was decided that a choir of 200 voices picked from the best of the Sunday-school pupils in the city should be selected to do the singing at the State Sunday-school convention which will be held next November. A handbook containing a map of Plainfield will be distributed throughout the State among the Sunday-schools and buttons will be distributed announcing the convention, so that every city and large town in the State will know of the convention.

G. C. Tullar, of New York, will train the big choir and after the business of the convention is concluded there will be a banquet tendered to the Sunday-school superintendents. On June 18 the superintendents of the various Sunday-schools of this city, will convene to form a permanent organization of Superintendents and on June 11, Rev. Dr. A. F. Schauffler, of New York, will address the congregation at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. This will be generally observed as Children's Day.

TALKS AT FACTORIES ON THE WHITE PLAGUE

The Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield is planning for a practical talk to the employes of each factory and shop in the city. They will be given by physicians, who appreciate the necessity of knowledge in the prevention of tuberculosis and are willing to give their services freely in explaining the nature of the disease and how the spread of it from one person to anothe can be stopped.

Those in charge of some of the factories, realizing the importance of this matter, have even consented to allow time from the work hours for this purpose. The work is right in line with other plans adopted by the league to educate the people in the matter of prevention of the disease. Announcement of the dates for the talk will be named later.

CHARMING LINEN SHOWER FOR MISS VAN DENBURG.

Miss Helen Van Denburg, of Franklin avenue, was tendered a surprise linen shower at the home of Mrs. Aleck Dresselt, Grandview avenue, last night. It was attended by a large number of friends and proved to be a very charming affair. Games and music, the latter including a fine phonographic program, were enjoyed until a late hour. — Refreshments were served in conclusion.

The shower was a complete surprise to Miss Van Denburg, who knew nothing about it until she arrived at Mrs. Dresselt's home in answer to an invitation. It was arranged by the latter and was in honor of Miss Van Denburg's approaching wedding in June to Francis Caldwell, of this city. She received many handsome linen pieces.

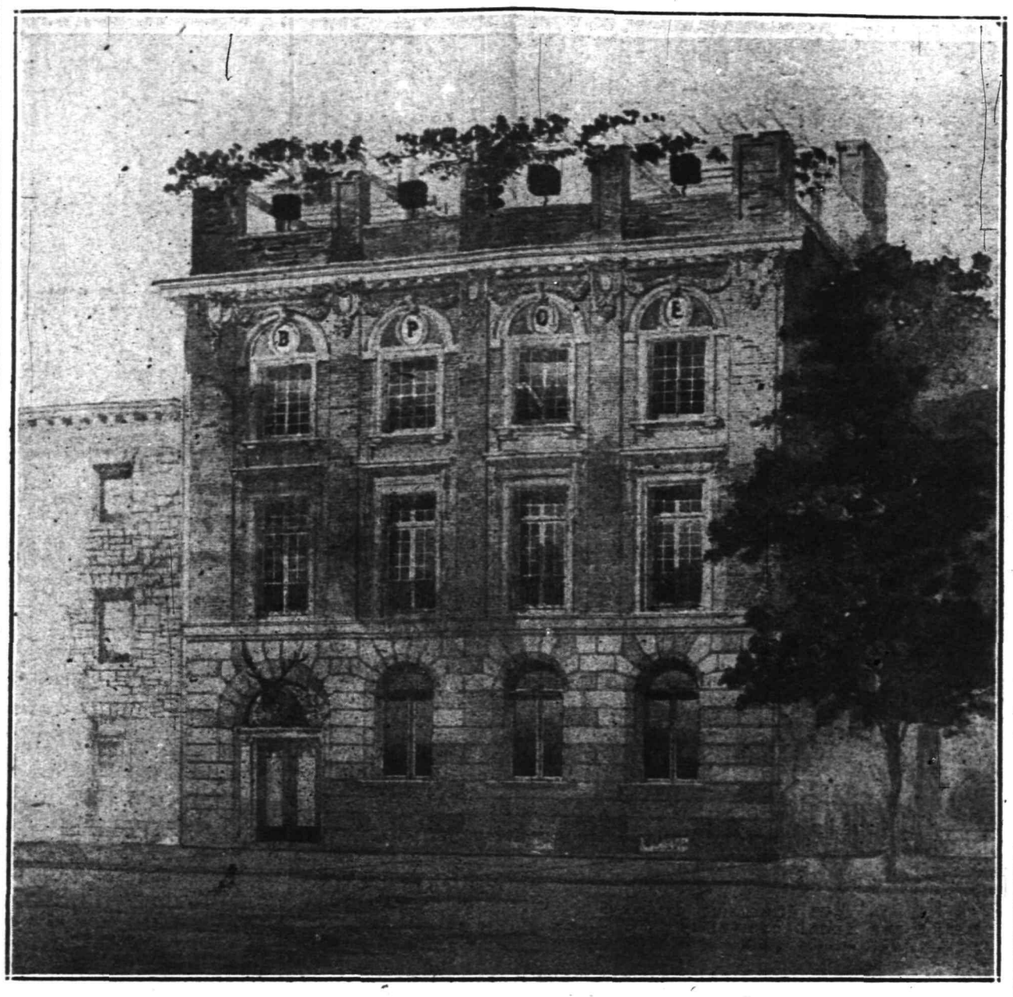
PLAINFIELD ELKS' CLUBHOUSE AN UNUSUALLY HANDSOME STRUCTURE



Before snow flies uext winter the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks will be housed in their new building at 116 Watchung avenue. The building, which will be an ornament to the city, will be provided with every requisite necessary for the comfort of members and their wives.

The plans submitted by A. L. C. Marsh, and which were fully described in Thursday's Daily Press, leave nothing to be desired.

It is believed that the building will be one of the finest in the State and will compare favorably with some of the best in the Western States.

FIRE DESTROYS A FAMILIAR LANDMARK

The old frame building on the east side of upper Somerset street, adjoining the Wilson stone quarry, was destroyed by fire at 3 o'clock this morning. It has been unoccupied for years and was owned by J. Y. Wilson. The flames were first discovered by James Cumisky, who was returning home from a dance. He gave the alarm and the Watchung Chemical Engine Company responded, but was unable to do anything. The origin of the blaze is unknown.

The structure is said to have been over 200 years old and was one of the best known landmarks in this section. It was at one time known as French's grist mill and afterward turned into a dwelling house for quarry workmen.

An alarm was turned into the borough department from box 145 at Somerset street and Hudson's lane, but the apparatus turned back when it was learned that the blaze was out of the limits.

FIRST M. E.'s JR. C. E. HOLDS ANNUAL SESSION.

The Junior Epworth League of the First M. E. church held its annual meeting in Vincent chapel yesterday afternoon when reports for the year were given and plans were made for today's picnic at "The Deserted Village," Feltville. It was announced yesterday that Howard Hile held the honors for record attendance, only missing one meeting, while Miss Dorothy Lynn and Miss Marion Lynn were next, having missed only two meetings during the year. Reports from the various committees were encouraging. The officers will be elected in the fall.

The young folks left at 9:30 o'clock this morning for Feltville to enjoy the annual picnic. They were in charge of Miss May Randolph, superintendent, and Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, her assistant. Those who are in the party today have attended at least ten meetings during the year. The boys planned athletic sports and the girls played games. At noon all sat down to a picnic lunch, prepared by Miss Randolph and Mrs. MacDonald. The party will return home about 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Belated Appearance.

Joseph Byrns, the Elizabeth motorcyclist who failed to appear for trial presented himself to Chief Weiss yesterday. He gave $10 bail to insure his appearance Tuesday.

HIS INITIAL SERMON AS PASTOR TOMORROW

Rev. E. C. Conover, the new pastor of the Temple Baptist church, arrived here today and he will be in charge of the services at the church tomorrow, preaching both morning and evening. His coming will be the source of much pleasure for the members of the church, who believe that he will be in every way a worthy successor to the former pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson.

Mr. Conover comes from Pemberton, where he has been pastor of the Baptist church for five years. Prior to that he held a pastorate for five years near Philadelphia. This will be his third pastorate since leaving Crozier Theological Seminary. Before that he was graduated from Bucknell University. Mr. Conover is married and has one young son. The family will reside on East Second street, and arrangements will be made soon to give a reception for the pastor and his wife at the church.

Continue Sale Cut Rate Tickets.

The New Jersey Public Utilities Commission, in session yesterday, decided that the Public Service Corporation shall continue selling reduced rate tickets to school children until June 4. There was also a discussion relative to permitting firemen and policemen to ride free on trolley cars, but no decision was given other than the one in force. Frank Bergen, counsel for the P. S. C., declared that the granting of the privileges to policemen, firemen and school children constitutes a criminal act.

BIRKEROD, BARITONE, HEARD AT RECITAL

An event of unusal interest here last night was the appearance of Holger Birkerod, the great Danish baritone, who sang to a large audience of invited guests at the Jonas Lie art exhibition. This was Mr. Birkerod's first appearance in public in America, although his remarkable voice and rare interpretation powers have brought him wide recognition in Europe and he is now arranging for his concert tour in this country for next season under the direction of G. Dexter Richardson.

Mr. Birkerod has sung repeatedly before the Emperor of Germany, Queen of England, King and Queen of Denmark, Empress of Russia and many other European rulers and has received splendid decorations from each. He has sung with the great orchestras of Paris, London, Berlin, St. Petersburg, Vienna, Milan, Stuttgart and other cities and has made for himself an enviable position in the musical world of Europe.

Mr. Birkerod's powers lie in his unusually musical voice which is big and full and in his extremely dramatic personality and individual interpretation. Among other ballads he sang last night were "Jung Dieterich," by Max Henshel; "Drei Wanderer," and the Polish patriotic song by Nils Gade. Mr. Birkerod received much praise for his singing and the audience was delighted and showed plainly their great enthusiasm.

After the short and select program the audience viewed Mr. Lie's paintings which were on exhibition in the same hall. This exhibition which is being held at The Seminary, 123 West Seventh stret, is attracting a great deal of interest; over a hundred people view the talented painter's works each day. The exhibition will remain open to the public every afternoon and evening until May 31, inclusive. After that the pictures have been invited by Prof. Brauner to an exhibition at Cornell University.

Scotch Plains Pleased.

"School Days at Cranbury Corners," which was given by the Young People's Society of the Baptist church, Scotch Plains, last night, attracted a large audience. Life in the district school proved to be a big laugh from beginning to end. Mrs. Herbert Henry as "Miss Antique" made an admirable teacher and her entire class was composed of stars. Dill Pickle, Hard Scrapple and all the other country kids acquitted themselves with credit.

COLUMBUS CARNIVAL OPENS ON MONDAY

The attractions announced for the carnival of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, include some of the best shows that have ever been brought to this city. Among them are the King Edward trained wild animals, a flea circus which promises to outdo tradition, a mirror dance, by a company of experts; an educated horse, diving girls in a tank of real water; a Ferris wheel, minstrel show, penny arcade, merry-go-round and several other interesting events which will keep the eyes moving and the senses on the alert.

There will be a matinee on Memorial Day at 2:30 in the afternoon at the West Front street and Grant avenue grounds where the carnival will be held, beginning Monday evening. Charles Martin, the lion tamer, who comes with the carnival troupe, enjoys a great reputation. His performance is said to exceed in thrills that of many of the professionals in the business. The Bridgeton Athletic Association, of Lakewood, has unqualifiedly endorsed the show and the Knights have investigated the whole thing and are satisfied that the performances to be given are strictly of the highest moral character.

MRS. P. B. GOODFELLOW, AGED 73 YEARS, DEAD

Mrs. Emma F. Goodfellow, aged seventy-three years, wife of Preston B. Goodfellow, died this morning at her home, 144 Netherwood avenue, following a long illness from a complication of diseases. Mrs. Goodfellow had been confined to her room for several months, but a few days ago was able to be out of doors for a little while. Since that time she failed rapidly.

Mrs. Goodfellow had been a resident of Plainfield for more than twenty years and she was highly esteemed by her friends and acquaintances. She was a member of the Temple Baptist church, where prior to her illness she was a regular attendant. Mr. Goodfellow is a well-known veteran of the Civil War and a prominent member of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73 G. A. R. Besides a husband, there survives three daughters, Mrs. George VanHorn, Mrs. Malin, of this city, and Mrs. James Stevenson, of Maine; also one son, George Goodfellow, of Brooklyn, together with a number of grandchildren. The funeral will be held at the Temple Baptist church, Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

ENGLISH NOBILITY AT A SOCIETY FUNCTION

Charming social functions of yesterday were the tea and dinner given at the Plainfield Country Club by Miss Lily Gordon Wickersham, of East Seventh street, in honor of Sir Robert and Lady Hadfield, of London, who have been visiting in this country and will leave next Wednesday for home to attend the coronation ceremonies. Miss Wickersham and Lady Hadfield are sisters.

The tea in the afternoon was attended by more than one hundred guests, comprising prominent society folk from this city and New York. The clubhouse was elaborately decorated for the occasion with pink and white, those colors predominating. Mrs. Charles E. Brooks poured tea and Sir Robert and Lady Hadfield and Miss Wickersham were assisted in receiving by Miss Laura Lee Rogers and Miss May Rodman. The social features were delightful.

A dinner followed in the evening given by Miss Laura Lee Rogers, of East Ninth street, the guests being Sir Robert and Lady Hadfield, of London; Miss Lily Gordon Wickersham, Henry D. Hibbard, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. George Magrew, G. Rust Rogers, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Stuart McNeil Watts, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. George Garr Henry, of Morristown, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taintor, of Bernardsville.

Sir Robert Hadfield is a distinguished personage in London. He is the inventor of the manganese steel and is known as the "steel king of England." Lady Hadfield and Miss Wickersham are sisters of Attorney-General George Wickersham.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

WESTFIELD.

John Stevens, a tinner, whose home is in Perth Amboy, fell from the steeple of the new Methodist church Thursday afternoon, a distance of about fifty feet. Stevens was working outside a window of the steeple on a ladder extended out through the opening. The ladder broke loose and let him fall to the ground on a heap of stone and building material. The man was terribly injured, his legs and arms being broken and his face mangled. He was attended by three Westfield physicians, who gave him immediate aid, after which he was taken to the Elizabeth General Hospital.

The delay in establishing the rural delivery route from the Westfield Postoffice has been caused by the desire of the department to take in the route a part of the town that is now covered by the local carriers. This will relieve the carriers and will not make it necessary to add to the carrier force. The matter will be arranged next week and a civil service examination for rural carrier called.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

In all the local churches tomorrow special reference will be made to the approaching Memorial Day. In the Presbyterian church in the morning Rev. Ernest R. Brown will preach an appropriate sermon and in the evening Rev. J. H. Johnston, of Minnesota, will occupy the pulpit Rev. W. A. Knox will preach a Memorial sermon.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church is conducting a bread and cake sale in one of J. P. Fenner's stores at North and Watchung avenues, this afternoon. It will be continued this evening.

The members of the Junior League of the Methodist church are enjoying a May walk to the Smith farm this afternoon.

C. H. Pittenger and family, have taken possession of the E. W. Raven house, on Mountainview terrace.

Valentine McLaughlin recently entertained Samuel Jaskson, of Vineland, a former local resident.

Miss Eleanor Dodwell has returned from a week's visit with friends at Orange and Little Falls.

Mrs. J. B. Eick, who has been seriously ill for a long time, is still in a dangerous condition.

Mrs. William Lant is visiting her sister, Mrs. George Blair, at Gloversville, N. Y.

James Ryan, of First street, has gone south on a business trip.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

On account of the uncertainty as to when the Inter-Town League would be organized, Manager Alberts did not schedule a game for the locals today. Tuesday, Decoration Day, the team plays Plainfield two games at Crescent Oval.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be the regular morning preaching service at 10:45; Bible study meeting at 4 o'clock; evening service, B. Y. P. U. meeting in the church parlors at 7 o'clock.

The Bachelor's Club holds its last dance, until fall, on Monday night, in Excelsior Hall. The committee are arranging to make the affair one of the best the club has yet held.

The Epworth League will celebrate its anniversary tomorrow evening. An interesting program has been arranged with a special speaker. Services are at 7:45 o'clock.

Horace Pangborn, who has been detained at home for the past two weeks on account of illness, is able to be around again.

Abram Wade, who has been quite ill for the several weeks past, is reported as being somewhat improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel MacCauley, of Westfield avenue, have been entertaining relatives from out of town.

James Groliotto, of Forest avenue, has returned from a visit with friends in New York.

SOMERVILLE.

Commander and Mrs. George W. Kline announce the engagement of their daughter, Angeline Sutphen, to Charles E. Southard, of Greeley, Col. The wedding will take place in June.

DISTURBED AT OUTLOOK FOR RECIPROCITY BILL.

Friends of the administration are alarmed over the outlook for the Canadian reciprocity bill. One poll of the Senate shows, it is said, that the administration at present lacks two votes of being able to defeat the amendment proposed by Senator Root, which if adopted will have the effect of preventing a free entry of wood pulp and print paper until all restrictions affecting these products have been removed by the Canadian provinces.

While President Taft does not object to the subject matter of the Root amendment, he and his advisors fear that it will be only the opening wedge for a series of changes in the bill which will be the death of Canadian reciprocity.

The fact that Mr. Taft is being opposed on this proposition by Senator Root, who has been known as a strong administration supporter, has caused considerable comment in Washington.

Dreams He Has Money.

There is nothing to the fortune of $300,000 which William L. Ralston, an ex-hobo of the Rescue Mission at Elizabeth, said was coming to him from an aunt, who died in Pittsburg. Howard Scheckler, superintendent of the mission said yesterday that it was all a myth, and that Ralston was suffering from hallucinations of a financial variety. A week ago Ralston announced his aunt had died in Pittsburg, leaving him $300,000. He immediately promised the mission $50,000 with which to erect a new building. To ten ex-tanks, reformed hobos and former panhandlers with whom he lived at the Elizabeth Mission, Ralston announced gifts of $1,000 each. Ralston went to Pittsburg, Mr. Scheckler says, and the last heard of him was in Newark. "I would gladly take him back here," said the superintendent of the mission, "for he was a faithful man, but I suppose when he wakes up he will be ashamed to return."

The Mission Band of the First Baptist church is planning to give an entertainment at the church, Saturday afternoon, June 3.

Rev. S. J. Skevington, of Newark, will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church, tomorrow morning, and will speak concerning the Baptist State convention.

Mrs. Lydia A. Emmons, 29 Stone street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I received great benefit from Doan's Kidney Pills when suffering from a dull ache through my back and consequently I do not hesitate to endorse this excellent remedy. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me relief after other medicines had failed and after I had suffered for years. I feel that my experience was a thorough test of this preparation and I must give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for being a remedy that lives up to representations."

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks were dull and strong in New York yesterday.

Springfield, Mass., celebrated the 275th aninversary of its foundation.

The Clark estate sold Mendelssohn Hall to Philip Lewisohn for $325,000.

Mr. Taft was re-elected honorary president of the National League of Unitarian laymen at Boston.

Governor Dix paid an unexpected visit to Syracuse; with Horace White he inspected the State fair grounds.

A young Spaniard who had lost his job refused help and killed himself in New York by cutting his throat.

The American fleet received a warm welcome in Copenhagen, the officers being received by the King.

A wireless message was sent from Glace Bay, C. B., to Dakar, French Western Africa, in one hour, via Paris.

Using an unusual affliction, it is said, to aid thieving operations, a man was arrested in a doctor's office in New York.

Members of the G. A. R. were disappointed at the small returns from letters asking money for use on Memorial Day.

"The Spectator" praised Sir Edward Grey's approval of the Monroe Doctrine as being the universal feeling of Englishmen.

There would be no general cut in steel prices, it was said, until after a conference to be held on Judge Gary's return next week.

A trolley freight crashed into a passenger coach of a Lehigh Valley Railroad train at Tonawanda, N. Y., and injured eight persons.

Vedrine won the Paris-to-Madrid air race for the "Petit Parisien" prize of $20,000 and was personally decorated by King Alfonso.

William Lanyon, a St. Louis capitalist, was credited with engineering one of the largest wheat deals ever attempted in that city.

Concrete and hollow tile interests presented their contentions at the New York aldermanic committee's hearing on the building code.

The funeral of M. Berteaux, victim of the Paris-Madrid race, was held in Paris; General Goiran became his successor as Minister of War.

Health Commissioner Lederle, of New York, declined to make a special examination by chemical analysis of summer drinks and confections of all kinds.

Ex-President Diaz left Mexico City secretly for Vera Cruz, where he is to sail for Europe; Senor de la Barra took the oath of office as Provisional President.

It was rumored that A. J. O'Keefe would be made Deputy Police Comsioner of New York, in place of C. J. Driscoll, who would go to the fire department.

English cotton spinners voted to ask users to boycott American cotton goods for a week to avert a trade disaster; New England cotton mills are shutting down.

A comparison of prices of Mexican securities before the revolution and at practically its close showed little effect on them by the many months of hostilities.

President Taft's administration has obtained the admission of American Jews to Russia, passports for them being issued by the Russian Embassy in Washington.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, at Atlantic City, convicted the Rev. Wiliam D. Grant of heresy and made overtures to Union Theological Seminary looking to peace.

Congress—Senate: The Lorimer case was discussed without reaching a vote on another investigation. House: After the transaction of some minor business, adjournment was taken until Tuesday.

GEN'L WOOD SCORES OVER ADJ'T-GEN'L AINSWORTH.

A flank movement in the battle royal in progress between Major-General Wood, chief of staff of he army and Adjutant-General Ainsworth developed yesterday with the advantage on the side of the chief of staff.

Under the service corps bill the staff detail of the adjutant-general would be abolished. The Military Affairs Committee of the House has decided to push the service corps bill, which consolidates the adjutant-general's, the paymaster-general's and the commissary-general's department under one department. The bill as originally drawn, would have retired Ainsworth with the rank of lieutenant-general. A substitute drawn by General Dood, which meets favor with the House committee, however, eliminates this retirement clause and would send Ainsworth into the field service at his present rank. As Ainsworth never commanded a body of troops, having been promoted from the grade of surgeon to his present rank, this is hardly satisfactory to him.

The Wood substitute also eliminates the present permanent staff detail system and provides for details of four years to staff service, at the end of which time officers will be again assigned to field service.

Compare these with any 50c garment anywhere around here, if they are not as good, bring them back. All sizes; on sale, each.....39c

FAMOUS AUTO DRIVER DESCRIBES LONG TRIP

Frank Zirbies, the famous Mitchell driver, has returned from an extensive tour in Europe during which he covered 28,000 miles. Landing in New York he decided he needed a little more of it so he drove from New York to Racine.

Zirbies says "the car would go the same route just as she is and I would like to start tomorrow."

Some very interesting facts came out in the course of the interview with Zirbies pointing out differences in cost of car maintenance abroad as compared to this country. To begin with, motors with long strokes and small bore are the vogue in Europe. This means economy not only in wear and tear but a tremendous saving in gasoline (or petrol in England, essence in France, as they call it) consumption of two passenger cars averaging from 24 miles to the gallon and five passenger 20 miles or better. This offsets the high price paid for gasoline.

The good roads abroad are responsible for very low expenditure for the maintenance, six thousand miles per tire being considered as a fair average. This latter fact is the strongest argument for a still more energetics campaign for the betterment of our road conditions in this country.

Foreign methods of driving, too have an immense influence on the up-keep and life of a car. Foreigners use the gears in their transmissions intelligently; if they come to even a slight grade they go back into an intermediate gear and preserve a normal rate of engine speed; most foreign cars have four speeds ahead and they use them because they appreciate they are not for ornament but are there for a purpose. Going into a lower gear on a hill means normal engine speed is maintained and the wearing, laborious strain on the motor is relieved. In this country the ambition of the everage driver seems to be to take everything on the high regardless of cost; the sooner we all take a stand for rational use of cars including more frequent change of gears on hard hill work the sooner the public will have a more economical cost of car maintenance.

The Mitchell Company is conducting a campaign along the lines above suggested.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Chauncey Olcott, who appears at the Plainfield theatre next Thursday night, June 1, usually has some novel idea to offer in the plays he presents from year to year. On the occasion of his last visit he introduced us to the Irish fairies, with all their quaint hob-goblin ways and tricks; now we are to have a picture of life in the Green Isle during the picturesque period of the duello, the mad-cap sports and the sway of chivalry. The title of the new play is "Barry of Ballymore," the story is laid in Galway, near the village of Ballymore, during the early part of the eighteenth century. The audience is introduced to the romance of the time when Barry, a young artist who has been brought up in that neighborhood, comes back from France to fight the battles of his protege, a young girl who has been deserted by her father, one of the gentry of the country. The chief interest of the play centers around his efforts in that direction and his success in making love to the daughter by another wife, of the same nobleman. "Barry of Ballymore" was written for Mr. Olcott by Rida Johnson Young, who in collaboration with Rita Olcott, gave him "Ragged Robin."

CIRCUS FULL OF NOVELTIES.

Wonderful Animal Acts Are Prominent Features of Forepaugh and Sells' Show.

When the Great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' Circus comes to Plainfield on Friday, June 9, people will be given an opportunity of seeing the greatest trained animal features ever introduced by any circus in America.

In one of these numbers the three rings are occupied at one time by the fifteen best trained elephants in the world. The big beasts have learned to play tunes that are not at all simple on sets of Swiss bells. At one time they form themselves into three mighty pyramids. The uppermost elephant is twenty feet from the ground. During the formation fifteen trained dogs enter the ring. Each perches itself on the uplifted trunk of an elephant. It is a novel and pretty sight.

Prof. Taylor's company of bicycle-riding and wire-walking monkeys is another extraordinary feature. These animals are trained with amazing skill and they are more adept in their various feats than any of the human performers.

Captain Webb's two troupes of trained seals and sea lions are another wonderful achievement. These remarkable animals, by some mysterious system of teaching, have mastered all the arts known to the best of human circus performers. They are better balancers, arcobats, equilibrists and jugglers than any man who ever lived. They toss balls of all sizes into the air and catch them on their noses. They juggle fire brands. They ride horses. They walk tight wires. They play on string instruments. They operate teeter boards, ride on velocipedes and skip the rope.

The climax of the performance is the thrilling ride through space made in an automoblie by a young French woman. Machine and rider turn two complete revolutions in mid air. Here is the most sensational act of the age.

ELKINS LEFT $4,025,100.

The report of the appraisers of the late Senator S. B. Elkins' will entered on file at County Clerk F. A. Rowan's office shows that the Senator's actual wealth was $4,025,100, which is divided as follows:

Money in the bank at time of death, $117,357.64.

Stock value in thirty-four corporations, $2,932,298.90.

He had a bond appraisement in nine corporations of $733,900. He had $12,370 in miscellaneous investments.

Bills receivable, $40,035.

Home property appraised at $64,000. Real estate, including timber lands, appraised at $117,147.50.

His heaviest holdings were in the coal and coke railway and the Morgantown and Kingwood Railway.

CONEY ISLAND AFIRE, LOSS FOUR MILLIONS

Coney Island was swept this morning by the largest fire in its history. Starting in Dreamland, it destroyed that well known park, the second huge enterprise of the sort to be built in the world, and then swept along Surf avenue, destroying everything, until the open beach, owned by the city, was reached. It backed up against the wind at West Tenth street, where it was stopped.

Fifteen or more acres were razed completely, the total loss, as represented by the burned buildings, being estimated at $4,000,000. As much more will result from the loss of business through the season.

Only one life is thought to have been lost, that of a trainer in Ferrari's animal show, who was last seen trying to save some of the wild animals.

When the fire started at two o'clock there were still a thousand or so visitors at the Island but they were mostly in the streets.

PLAINFIELD H. S. SHUTS OUT NEW BRUNSWICK.

Plainfield High School shut out New Brunswick High School this morning by a score of 15 to 0. There was nothing to it when Terry began to pitch. The visitors who tried to play ball on Crescent Oval could not connect with Terry's curves and it was a merry-go-round. Seven errors and six hits accounted for the defeat of the 'Brunswick lads.

The local boys began to score in the first inning and never lost a chance during the seven innings to increase the lead with which they started.

Score by innings:

In the morning there will be a four-ball, 18-holes, medal play, handicap. Teams to consist of two players, both of whom must be in the same class. Handicap conditions will be posted on day of competition. In the afternoon there will be an 18-holes, medal play, handicap, for Classes A and B.

Lumsden's Term Made Easier.

John C. Lumsden, who pleaded guilty of manslaughter in the first degree for the murder of former Councilman Harry B. Suydam, of this city, was sentenced yesterday to not less that four years or more than eight years in Sing Sing. He was originally sentenced to nineteen years in Sing Sing, but later the Court of Appeals reversed his conviction on the ground of error.

Joe Manhattan Hurt.

Falling a distance of thirty feet down the side of the mountain at the quarries of the Watchung Stone Company this morning, Joseph Manhattan, a contractor of this city receved several bruises and a broken finger. Mr. Manhattan was climbing up a part of the hill when a rolling stone sent him to the bottom of the quarry.

Party for Miss Howard.

Miss Fannie Olden and Miss Patsy Lander gave a card party last night at the home of Miss Olden, on Harmony street, in honor of Miss Howard's engagement to Samuel Dempsey, which was announced last week. There were about twenty-five guests. Refreshments were served during the evening. The table was decorated in green and white.

Entertained Bridal Party.

Miss Marion Hortense Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hall, of Belvidere avenue, who will be married today to Jacob Ludlow VanDeventer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hurd VanDeventer, of Woodland avenue, gave a dinner last evening at her home to all the members of the bridal party. Covers were laid for fifteen.

MISSION BAND GIVES SERIES OF TABLEAUX

Under the auspices of the Young Women's Mission Society of the First Baptist church, an entertainment comprising a series of tableaux, was given at the church last evening. The affair was largely patronized and was a success. The society will net about $50 for mission work. Miss Amy Conant was the general chairman, and was assisted by other members of the society in planning and arranging the tableaux. The tableaux and those who took part were as follows:

"The Indian," Miss Gladys Marsh, William Newman, Arthur Nash, Miss Margaret Nash; "The Puritan," Miss Ruth Day and Arthur Mackey; "Colonial Days," Miss Emeline Manning and Frank Evans; "Before the War," Miss Ruth Day and Robert Butler; "War Times," Leslie Hillman, Robin C. Brown, Edbert Fountain and Charles Conover; "The Girl of Fifty Years Ago and the Girl of today," Miss Minnie Serrell and Miss Florence Neal.

"Summer Girls," Miss Ruth Day, Miss Catherine Day, Miss Emeline Manning, Miss Florence Neal and Miss Gladys Marsh; "Husbanette and Suffragette," Miss Lillian Teeter and Robin C. Brown. This part o fthe program was concluded with a series of eight tableaux entitled "Fluffy-Ruffles," in which the following took part: Mrs. Harold Serrell, Miss Elizabeth Nash, Harold Robbins, Arthur Mackey, William Newman and Arthur Dunning.

Other features of the program were readings by Mrs. Robert Lowry and soprano solos by Mrs. Robert Giddes. Miss Lillian Teeter and Miss Constance Harris played the piano during the presentation of the tableaux. Afterward there was a sale of candy in charge of Miss Marguerite Lee, Miss Helen Adams and Miss Violet Cronce.

WARREN ENDEAVORERS HOLD ANNIVERSARY

The anniversary service conducted by the Warren chapel Christian Endeavor Society Thursday night, in honor of attaining its twenty-third year, was one of the most enjoyable of the kind held at the chapel. The atendance was large and the program was greatly enjoyed by all. Delegates were present from many local organizations and from the Endeavor Society of the Dunellen Presbyterian church.

The exercises were opened by an organ prelude by Bertram Harold, after which devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. O. McKelvey and Rev. C. C. Cain led in prayer. An address of welcome was given by the society's president, Theodore Martin, followed by a cornet solo by Miss Dorothy Seader, accompanied by her sister, Miss Louise Seader.

Miss Adelaide Stiglitz, secretary, gave a very fine and comprehensive report of the work for the past year. A mandolin solo was given by George Martin, accompanied on the piano by Miss Cameron, and the report of the treasurer, Miss Bertha Hoagland was read by Mrs. Charles Windham. It was a very encouraging showing for so small a society. The total amount raised was $405.49, divided as follows: General fund, $47.52; Missionary, $65.49; Flowers, $35.27; Mortgage, $257.21. Miss Etta Raybert contributed an enjoyable solo at the conclusion of which Rev. C. J. Culp, of Bound Brook, gave the address of the evening. In the course of his talk he said the Christian Endeavor Society is a shrine for worship and an opportunity for work.

At the close of the program, President Martin invited all to adjourn to a side room where refreshments were served.

EXTRA! EXTRA—Owing to the increased circulation of The Daily Press I presume I will be called upon to receive cut rates for advertising soon. But that is one of my secrets. Don't mention it. You known I like to write ads so well that when you bring your property to me, I shall ask you to take off your hat and leave a check for fifteen dollars for advertising. Shall use this paper and two others, and when you go to give me a check for commission I shall tell you to deduct the fifteen dollars that did the business! Of course, if signs sell your property, I will get left. I hope I will get left. D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours. 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 19 tf

TO YOU—You will see my amusement column on page 8. If you will amuse me I will amuse you and we will both be more than amused when you forward check for commission. D. Foster Updike, 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907.

CONEY ISLAND—The first fellow who came to see the Park street, Brooklyn properties near Coney Island, that are to exchange for your property, did not care to go to Coney Island. I just told him that he could count the ties over. He went over and back and is now ready to take one. Now the thing is! Suppose you all go over without me and take one, how will I get to Coney Island? D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours, 159 North avenue, 'phone 1907.

MY TEXT—Old Colony Insurance Co., of Boston, Mass. This is the first time I ever knew myself to take off my hat to the word "Old" because it always looked like a jar to me, but in this case it sounds substantial. And the word Boston sounds like literary to me, or five o'clock teas. And five o'clock teas keep money in circulation for did you ever see one gown that would be literary to two teas That is what I want to do, keep money in circulation, only I want it to circulate my way. That is the reason I represent that word "Old." I insure anything but your life and that I want you to keep; but bring me your houses, and your literary automobiles. D. Foster Updike, 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 22 tf

STRAIGHTBACK—There is a lot of straightback advertising, but who wants a straightback on a hot day? I use to be a pay advertiser. The art of advertising is not saying what you have to say because most people do not care anything about what you say than otherwise. It is saying something that the other fellow cannot forget. For instance yesterday I sold four houses made an appointment for Mr. Conover to show a farm in Hunterdon county today and two more this week; also have Mr. McDonough, our ice men, busy looking up houses for servants, on account of my not "forget" advertising. My reason for telling you all of this is: I do not like the penny a word column; I want an amusement column of my own in a cheaper part of the paper, so you can have more amusement for fifteen dollars. The fifteen dollars is my object, I do not care anything about the commission. Speaking about straightbacks, I use to be a Presbyterian, they called them straightbacks; when I left my country abode to live in the City of Trenton, it used to be the custom for some of the men to stand during prayer. I use to think it awful nice until one time I played peep. I saw all these men standing, looking all over the church. Will some one ask me what they stood for? In other words would they have been doing the same thing bumping their foreheads? Get in my amusement column. D. Foster Updike or my time is yours, 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907 with check for $15. 5 24 4

SICK PEOPLE—I am worried about your pocketbook; for that reason I have built a house on Sumner avenue with better timber and better built than any millionaire's house you ever saw, whose pocketbook I am more worried about. This house has a sick room in it that will cure as many diseases as quack medicine. D. Foster Updike, or my time is yours. 159 North avenue. 'Phone 1907. 5 19 tf

A History of the Great National Game

By CAPT. A. C. ANSON

Former Manager of the Chicago National League Team

Now, don't jump to the conclusion that I did nothing during those winters in Philadelphia but strenuous gymnasium stunts to fit me for the road. Even in those days the Quaker City enjoyed the reputation of being a model village, but I found it somewhat lively in spots, certainly more so than Marshalltown. When I left the Iowa town I was at the know-it-all age, when the world seemed populated with idiots—all except myself. I regarded the old gentleman as too hidebound in his ignorance to be worthy of any attention whatever. When I arrived in Philadelphia some of that foolishness had been knocked out of me, but I was still in the rough and needed mighty vigorous trimming.

My robust constitution and outdoor life had done a lot to encourage the animal in my make-up, and I was as full of nonsense as an unbroken thoroughbred colt and about as likely to kick over the traces when anybody attempted to tighten the rein on me. There were plenty ready to give me good advice, but I took mighty good care to steer clear of it. In a nutshell, baseball was my preference, but I was ready for any other old game. With this view of the problem of life, some of my experiences at that period were not of a very exalted nature, hardly creditable, in fact, to a young man who aspired to become a great ball player, but I have the consolation of knowing that they were due more to freshness and ignorance than to actual viciousness.

I had a mighty good opinion of my ability to hold my own in all contests that demanded strength and endurance, and it was a good thing that I sometimes ran up against a snag. One instance in which my pride took a tremendous tumble was in 1872, the first year I played with the Athletics. It was a throwing match pulled off at the Union grounds in Brooklyn between members of the Mutuals, Bostons and Athletics for a purse of several hundred dollars. The entries were Hatfield and Boyd of the Mutuals, George Wright and Leonard of the Bostons, and Fisler and myself of the Athletics. Before the contest began I was so confident of my ability to break all previous records that I made no secret of my expectation, but when I brought up the tail end of the procession, with a throw that didn't entitle me to get a penny of the money, I felt crushed. But it didn't take long for my self-confidence to return.

When I went to Philadelphia, and for some time afterward, I held the opinion that I was a mighty good man either with the gloves or without. I had never stood up to a man who used science, but in my bouts with the old gentleman and my other athletic friends at Marshalltown my superior strength and stature had always given me the advantage, and I knew nothing that could resist me except perhaps a professional fighter. Some of the boys, anxious to take a hand in my education, put up a job on me. I was introduced to a certain Prof. Billy McLean, with the explanation that he was a teacher of boxing and would like to have me for a pupil. He looked so insignificant that I made light of the proposition, and when it was suggested by one of the boys that I should put on the mitts and have a friendly set-to with the professor I was disposed to ridicule the idea, believing I could give him his quietus without special effort on my part.

I don't mind telling you that I found out mighty soon that I had made another great big mistake. Why, that little dried-up specimen of humanity circled around me like a cooper around a barrel. He seemed to be able to hit me whenever and about wherever he wanted to, and I found I couldn't get at him at all in spite of my long reach. The upshot of the business was that I was so taken with his cleverness that I offered to pay him handsomely if he would teach me the trick. McLean consented, and before that winter was over I got to be so scientific with my hitting that I would have tackled the champion of the world if he had given me the opportunity.

I'm not proud of it a little bit, but that was the time when I tried to be a "h—ll of a feller" for all I was worth. That I didn't succeed was due partly to my natural preference for decency, but more especially to the fact that just about that time I met the young woman who at first sight inspired me to sit down and think seriously of the possibility of winning her for my life partner.

CHAPTER VIII.

I Play Ball for John Bull.

In spite of all our extra effort and the fact that my salary had been raised to $1,500, the Athletics did not succeed in landing the championship in the season of 1874, or even in securing second place. The Bostons were again victorious and the Mutuals of New York followed them, this being the first time since the Professional league was organized that the latter club had climbed to such a height up the baseball ladder. Our disappointment was somewhat lessened by the fact that although we were obliged to remain in third place, our Philadelphia rivals fell to fourth. The Chicago White Stockings, of whom such great things were expected, could get no higher than fifth.

Well, we were getting used to disappointment, but I want to say to you right here that something happened that season that stung me to the bitter—I fell to eighth on the batting list, the lowest place I had held since I became a professional. You have it straight from A. C. Anson that it was one of the biggest troubles that I had ever had put up to me. I was so fussed over it that I didn't eat or sleep naturally for a month, and finally I went to our manager and told him I'd about made up my mind to quit the game. Gee, but it was a relief to have him call me a blasted fool and tell me that my salary for the next season would be $1,800.

Once again the Bostons' splendid team work had given them the victory. They had played 60 games that were counted as championship contests, had won 43 of them and had lost but 17. I don't see how any fan can look at that record and keep his seat. The Athletics played 52 record games that season, 31 to our credit and 21 lost.

That season of 1874 brought the biggest boom in baseball that ever struck the earth. Professional, semi-professional and amateur clubs sprung up everywhere, and the interest in the game was at white heat. Baseball certainly had become the national pastime, and the time had come when missionaries were to be sent to set forth the glories of the game on foreign soil. The first to do business in that line was the club of which I was a member, and our companion team was the champion Bostons. It was arranged that we should go over to England on a sort of campaign of education—to show the cricket fans over there that the Americans had a better game than theirs.

Of course I was tickled to death to tumble into a snap of this kind. The only regret I had was that it would take me out of sight of the young lady who had taken first place in my affections, but as she didn't seem to be prostrated over the separation I braced up and went in for the trip with a big hurrah. Our stay in Europe was to be for only 30 days anyhow, and I settled down to the conclusion that an absence of that length might serve to better my chances with the young lady—she might be brought to a realization, as the novels say, of how hard it would be to do without me.

Now I don't want to endanger my reputation for modesty, but I don't mind telling you that the teams selected for this pioneer service—the "baseball argonauts of 1874" a newspaper man christened them at the big sendoff on the night before sailing—contained some mighty solid baseball timber. No history of the game would be worth a tinker's cuss word with their names left out. Note the Bean-eaters' makeup as I take them, one by one, from my dairy: A. G. Spalding, pitcher; Jim O'Rourke, first base; Ross Barnes, second base; Harry Schafer, third base; George Wright, shortstop; A. J. Leonard, left field; Cal McVey, right field; Harry Wright, center field; Thomas H. Beals and Sam Wright, Jr., substitutes. Can you beat it?

We couldn't win often enough to take the championship, although we plugged away at it for several seasons, and in the 14 exhibition games scheduled for Great Britain we were winners only six times. Our own make-up contained but three men who were with the Athletics when I joined the club—McBride, who was still our pitcher; Fisler, who had been changed from second to first base, and McGeary, who was once more our shortstop.

We sailed from Philadelphia July 16, and a big crowd was at the wharf to see us off. The voyage turned out to be nothing more than a ten-day play spell, with no one much under the weather and everybody keen for whatever sport was available. I don't mind telling you that poker lost none of its charm at sea, and my luck kept me cheerful most of the time. For my part, I was sorry when we reached port with those 14 games of ball ahead of us and also seven games of cricket, which I forgot to mention until now.

You may take it from yours truly that there was some curiosity over on the other side to see the great American game. Big turnouts greeted us wherever we appeared, and I have nothing but praise for the manner in which we were treated. Our British friends didn't understand the game and didn't seem to be anxious to learn it, but they fell all over themselves in their effort to make us feel at home [illegible] visit. They went almost daffy over our batting and fielding, but they couldn't catch on to the little peculiarities of the game.

They went almost daffy over our batting and fielding.

When it came to cricket we certainly gave them a surprise party. In those seven games we were permitted to play 18 men against 11, which proved to be far too much of an advantage, for we defeated with ease such crack organizations as the Marylebone, Prince's and Surrey clubs in London, both the Manchester and Sheffield clubs and the All-Ireland club in Dublin. In that Irish game I did a stunt that surprised me as much as it did anybody—I made the highest score of all in our game, although I was new at cricket, and some of the others—the Wrights, for example—were expert players.

Now we certainly did make a good impression in Great Britain. When I landed I was prepared to have lots of chances to find fault with things, but I never was more mistaken in my life. These English crowds that came to see us play were the best mannered set of folks I ever struck. I don't say that I should like to play ball every day in the week before such a crowd—after all, there something mighty stimulating in a bunch of good, double-lung-powered American rooters—but it was a relief to strike such a well-behaved crowd for a change. First, I though it was all because they didn't get on to the American game and were afraid they might let themselves loose in the wrong places. I expected that when we reached the cricket end of the program they would warm up a little. They didn't; that was the English way of doing it, and they didn't know any other.

For one, I was sorry when the 30 days allotted to our visit had passed. Of course I had a good deal of curiosity to see how the lady of my dreams was bearing up without my sustaining presence, but I could have remained another month in John Bull's country without a pang of homesickness. Even now I often recall it as one of the most satisfactory junkets I ever made.

Of the return voyage I never think or speak unless by accident. It is enough to say that when we landed in Philadelphia on September 9 there was scarcely a man in the party who crossed over the gangplank with steady knees. Father Neptune had been having a lot of fun with us all the way over.

CHAPTER IX.

I Win a Capital Prize.

When the season of 1875 opened I did not even dream that it was to be my last in Philadelphia. My salary of $1,800 was satisfactory to me, and I had every reason to believe that my work was satisfactory to the management of the Athletics. More than that—a whole lot more it seemed to me—my love affair was going on swimmingly, and just then Philadelphia seemed nearer paradise than any other spot on earth.

That year baseball took a remarkable spurt. Thirteen clubs entered the championship arena. Of these the Quaker city came to the front with three, and St. Louis, just opening her eyes to the beauties of the game, put two into the field. The series that year consisted of ten games, six to be played as the legal requirement. At the end of the season only seven of of the original 13 would-be champions had fulfilled the conditions. Three of them had fallen by the wayside before the season was half over. For the fourth successive season the Bostons carried off the honors, with a record that beat anything that had ever been done in baseball—out of 79 games they won 71 and lost but eight.

The Athletics climed back to second place that year, playing 73 games in all, winning 53 and losing 20. That was satisfactory to the Athletic management, but it was not altogether so to A. C. Anson. I had a strong hankering to belong to a championship team, and had it not been for my little romance under way in Philadelphia I should have been looking about to see how I could work it. As it was, I didn't worry a great deal over anything else until I had brought the courtship to the engagement point. Then I drew a long breath and began to look around a little.

But first let me tell you about that romance. If it's true that "All the world loves a lover," you'll be glad to hear about it; anyhow, I like to talk about it once in a while, just to refresh my memory. And I'm going to start right out by saying that if marriage is a lottery, as has been said, I won the capital prize when I got the woman who has been my constant companion for the past 35 years.

Her name was Virginia M. Fiegal, and the first time I ever saw her was at a ball given by the National Guards soon after my arrival in Philadelphia. At that time she was a fair-haired, blue-eyed maiden of not more than thirteen years, and as demure and shy as a little Quakeress on First day. I have never been able to get the slightest evidence that she was conscious of my existence on that particular evening, but before it was over I discovered that she had made a decided impression on me. It seemed absurd, and I couldn't explain it, but it was done, just the same.

By this time, I guess, you must have a pretty fair idea of what I was in those days. If you haven't, I don't mind telling you that I wasn't a whole lot to look at—just a husky, long-legged chap, somewhat after the big kid order, with a hide that no amount of sun and weather could make blush-proof and hair that just escaped being brindle. Tough proposition to put up against a little woman of the only daughter order, wasn't it?

Well, there wasn't anything swift about our acquaintance. It was months after that night before I saw her again, and she had grown almost out of my recollection. In the interim she had passed into the long-dress stage, and I couldn't help thinking she had improved mightily. I also felt certain that I had parted with some of my uncouthness, although I had by no means graduated from the awkward squad. I remember that as I was presented to her for the second time I congratulated myself interiorly that I was wearing my best necktie, a gorgeous affair of saffron-colored satin liberally besprinkled with deep blue polka dots.

She saw me all right on that occasion; she couldn't help it. That necktie did the business. She told me long afterward that it was a revelation to her that she had never seen anything so rank in the way of haberdashery, and that she was seized with a burning desire to exchange a few words with the wearer of such a danger signal. I gave her every opportunity to do so, and I plucked up my courage and tried to make myself agreeable. Strange as it may seem, she did not make any perceptible effort to shake me, and actually appeared to be interested in what I said—which was strictly baseball talk and nothing else.

I didn't see her again until the following summer. Then I met her face to face in Fairmont park in company with a young lady with whom I had a slight acquaintance, afterward the wife of Johnnie McMullen, the baseball pitcher. Virginia was very gracious to me, and after we had talked a while—it seemed to be easier for me to talk to her than to any woman I had ever met—she remarked that Miss Cobb was going home with her to lunch, and added that she would like to have me accompany them.

Did I hesitate? Take it straight from me, young man in a similar condition, that I didn't wait long enough, hardly, to be civil. Long before we reached the door of Virginia's home I had surrendered completely. Either out of mischief or from a desire to promote matters, Miss Cobb recalled suddenly that she had an engagement elsewhere and Miss Fiegel and I were left to enter the latter's home without a chaperon, a calamity of which I had no appreciation at that stage of my career.

Electric Power Is Satisfactory

When the owners of a large industrial plant substitute Central Station power for a steam plant and after a fair trial write:

"We have our own power producing element complete, sufficient for all our needs. We do not operate same now, in view of the economical arrangements made with your Company. Your service as a whole, is and has been attentive and satisfactory." * * * It means something more than theorizing or guess work. It means that Central Station power IS satisfactory.

The letter from which the above was quoted, was written by a concern which uses 250 horse power, divided among motors ranging from one horse to fifty horse power each.

We have the letter and what Central Station drive has done in this plant it can do in yours.

Will you let our expert talk it over with you? A card or a 'phone call will bring him.

The House of the Whispering Pines

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910, by Anna Katharine Rohlfs

"But this is not the worst. The awful cup of human greed and hatred is but filled to the brim. It has not yet overflowed. Carmel leaves the room. She has a telephonic message to deliver. She may be gone a minute; she may be gone many. Little does he care which. He must see the dead, look down on the woman who has been like a mother to him and see if her influence is forever removed, if his wealth is his and his independence forever assured.

"Safe in the darkness of the gloomy recesses of the dancing hall, he steals slowly forward. Drawn as by a magnet, he enters the room of seeming death, draws up to the pillow laden conch, pulls off first one cushion and then another till face and hands are bare and—

"Ah, there's a movement! Death has not, then, done its work. She lives—the hated one lives! And he is no longer rich, no longer independent. With a clutch he seizes her at the feeble seat of life, and as the breath ceases and her whole body becomes again inert he stoops to pull off the ring, which can have no especial value or meaning for him, and then, repiling the cushions over her, creeps forth again, takes up the bottles and disappears from the house.

"Gentlemen of the jury, this is what my opponent would have you believe. This will be his explanation of this extraordinary murder. But when his eloquence mets your ears, when you hear this arraignment and the emphasis he will place upon the few points remaining to his broken case, then ask yourself if you see such a monster in the prisoner now confronting you from the bar. I do not believe it. I do not believe that such a monster lives.

"But you say some one entered that room—some one stilled the fluttering life still remaining in that feeble breast. Some one may have, but that some one was not my client, and it is his guilt or innocence we are considering now, and it is his life and freedom for which you are responsible. No brother did that deed. No witness of the scene which hallowed this tragedy ever lifted hand against the fainting Adelaide or choked back a life which kindly fate had spared.

"Go further for the guilty perpetrator of this most inhuman act; he stands not in the dock. Guilt shows no such relief as you see in him today. Guilt would remember that his sister's testimony, under the cross examination of the people's prosecutor, left the charge of murder still hanging over the defendant's head. But the brother has forgotten this. His restored confidence in one who now represents to him father, mother and sister has thrown his own fate into the background. Will you dim that joy—sustain this charge of murder?

"If in your sense of justice you do so you forever place this degenerate son of a noble father on the list the most unimaginative and hate driven criminals of all time. Is he such a demon? Is he such a madman? Look in his face today and decide. I am willing to leave his cause in your hands. It could be placed in no better.

"May it please your honor and gentlemen of the jury, I am done."

If any one at that moment felt the arrow of death descending into his heart it was not Arthur Cumberland.

CHAPTER XXIX.

"STEADY!"

WHY linger over the result? Arthur Cumberland's case was won before Mr. Fox arose to his feet. The usual routine was gone through.

The judge's charge was short, but studiously impartial. When the jury filed out I said to myself, "They will return in fifteen minutes." They returned in ten with a verdict of acquittal.

The demonstrations of joy which followed filled my ears and doubtless left their impression upon my other senses, but my mind took in nothing but the apparition of my own form taking his place at the bar under circumstances less favorable to acquittal than those which had exonerated him.

I saw as never before how the testimony which had reinstated Carmel in my heart and won for her, and through her the sympathies of the whole people, had overthrown every specious reason which I and those interested in me had been able to advance in contradition of the natural conclusion to be drawn from the damning fact of my having been seen with my fingers on Adelaide's throat.

The horror stifled me. I was reeling in my place on the edge of the crowd when I heard a quiet voice in my ear:

"Steady! Their eyes will soon be off Arthur, and then they will look at you."

It was Clifton, and his word came none too soon. I stiffened under its quiet force and, taking his arm, let him lead me out of a side door, where the crowd was smaller and its attention even more absorbed.

I soon saw its cause—Carmel was entering the doorway from the street She had come to greet her brother and her face, quite unveiled, was beaming with beauty and joy. In an instant I forgot myself, forgot everything but her and the effect she produced upon those about her. No noisy demonstration here. Admiration and love were shown in looks and the low breathed prayer for her welfare which escaped from more than one pair of lips. She smiled and their hearts were hers; she essayed to move forward and the people crowded back as if at a queen's message, but there was no noise.

When she reappeared it was on Arthur's arm. I had not been able to move from the place in which we were hemmed, nor had I wished to. I was hungry for a glance of her eye. Would it turn my way, and, if it did, would it leave a curse or a blessing behind it? In anxiety for the blessing, I was willing to risk the curse, and I followed her every step with hungry glances until she reached the doorway and turned to give another shake of the hand to Mr. Moffat, who had followed them. But she did not see me.

"STEADY! THEIR EYES WILL SOON BE OFF ARTHUR"

"I cannot miss it! I must catch her eye!" I whispered to Clifton. "Get me out of this. It will be several minutes before they can reach the sleigh Let me see her for one instant face to face."

Clifton disapproved and made me aware of it, but he did my bidding, nevertheless.

I had just time to see this sleigh and note the rejoicing face of Zadok leaning sideways from the box when I beheld her pause and slowly turn her head around and peer eagerly—and with what divine anxiety in her eyes—back over the heads of those thronging about her until her gaze rested fully and sweetly on mine. My heart leaped then sank down, down into unutterable depths, for in that instant her face changed, horror seized upon her beauty and shook her frantic hold on Arthur's arm.

I heard words uttered very near me but I did not catch them. I did feel, however, the hand which was laid strongly and with authority upon my shoulder, and, tearing my eyes from her face only long enough to perceive that it was Sweetwater who had thus arrested me.

She had never been told of the incriminating position in which I had been seen in the clubhouse. It had been carefully kept from her, and she had supposed that my acquittal in the public mind was as certain as Arthur's Now she saw herself undeceived, and the reaction into doubt and misery was too much for her, and I saw her sinking under my eyes.

"Let me go to her!" I shrieked, utterly unconcerned with anything in the world but this tottering, fainting girl.

But Sweetwater's hand only tightened on my shoulder, while Arthur, with an awful look at me, caught his sister in his arms just as she fell to the ground before the swaying multitude.

But he was not the only one to kneel there. With a sound of love and misery impossible to describe Zadok had leaped from the box and had groveled at those dear feet, kissing the insensible hands and praying for those shut eyes to open. Even after Arthur had lifted her into the sleigh the man remained crouching where she had fallen, with his eyes roaming back and forth in a sightless stare from her to myself, muttering and groaning and totally unheedful of Arthur's commands to mount the box and drive home. Finally some one else stepped from the crowd and mercifully took the reins. I caught one more glimpse of her face with Arthur's bent tender ly over it; then the sleigh slipped away

An officer shook Zadok by the arm and he got up and began to move aside. Then I had mind to face my own fate, and, looking up, I met Sweetwater's eye.

It was quietly apologetic.

"I only wished to congratulate you," said he, "on the conclusion of a case in which I know you are highly interested." Lifting his hat, he nodded affably and was gone before I could recover from my stupor.

It was for Clinton to show his indignation. I was past all feeling. Farce as an afterpiece never appealed to me.

Would I have considered it farce if I could have heard the words which this detective was at that moment whispering into the district attorney's ears:

"Do you want to know who throttled Adelaide Cumberland? It was not her brother; it was not her lover; it was her old and trusted coachman."

"Give me your reasons. They must be excellent ones, Sweetwater, or you would not risk making a second mistake in a case of this magnitude and publicity."

"Mr. Fox, they are excellent. But you shall judge of them. From the moment Miss Carmel Cumberland threw the very foundations of our [illegible] by her remarkable testimony I felt that my work was only half done. It [illegible] strain on credulity to believe [illegible] guilty of a crime so preposterous [illegible] alternative which Mr Moffat has [illegible] in, which you were beginning [illegible] in and perhaps are now [illegible] to believe in even [illegible] to me.

"I allude to the [illegible] upon the [illegible] and [illegible] Clarke was [illegible]

Kanelagh is the man really responsible for Miss Cumberland's death. Some instinct held me back from this conclusion as well as the incontrovertible fact that he could have had no hand in carrying that piece of broken bottle into the Cumberland stable or of dropping his engagement ring in the suggestive place where it was found. Where, then, should I look for the unknown, the unsuspected third party? Among the ten other persons who dropped something into that casket.

"Most of these were children, but I made the acquaintance of every one. I spent most of my Sunday that way; then, finding no clouded eye among them, I began a study of the Cumberland servants, naturally starting with Zadok. For two hours I sat at his stable fire, talking and turning him inside out, as only we detectives know how. I found him actually overwhelmed with grief—not the grief of a sane man, but of one in whom the very springs of life are poisoned by some dreadful remorse.

"He did not know he revealed this. He expressed himself as full of hope that his young master would be acquitted the next day. But I could see that this prospect could never still the worm working at his heart and resolved to understand why. I left him ostensibly alone, but in reality shadowed him. The consequence was that in the evening dusk he led me to the cemetery, where he took up his watch at Miss Cumberland's grave, as if it were a Mecca and he a passionate devotee. I could hear his groans as he hung to the fence and spoke softly to the dead, and, though I was too far away to catch a single word, I felt confident that I had at last struck the right track and should soon see my way more clearly than at any time since this baffling case opened "But before I allowed my fancy to run away with me I put in an evening of inquiry. If this man had an absolute alibi what was the use of wasting effort upon him? But I could not find that he had. Mr. Fox. He went with the rest of the servants to the ball, which, you know, was held in Tibbitt's hall, on Ford street, and he was seen there later, dancing and making merry in a way not usual to him. But there was a space of time dangerously tallying with that of the tragic scene at the clubhouse when he was not seen by any one there.

"That piece of broken bottle—where was the rest of it? Sought for almost immediately after the tragedy, it had not been found at the Cumberland place or on the golf links. It had been looked for carefully when the first thaw came; but, though glass was picked up, it was not the same glass. The task had become hopeless and ere long was abandoned.

"But with this idea of Zadok being the means of its transfer from the Whispering Pines to the house on the hill I felt the desire to look once more, and while court was in session this morning I started a fresh search—this time not on the golf links. Tibbitt's hall communicates more quickly with the Whispering Pines by the clubhouse road than by the market one. So I directed my attention to the ground in front and on the farther side of the driveways. And I found the neck of that bottle!

"Now, who would do this but Zadok, who saw in it, he has said, a receptacle for some varnish which he had, and Zadok—how had he carried it if not in some pocket of his greatcoat? But glass edges make quick work with pockets, and if this piece of bottle had gone from the Whispering Pines to Tibbitt's hall and from there to the hill there should be some token of its work in Zadok's overcoat pocket.

"This led me to look for those tokens, and as I had by this time insinuated my way into his confidence by a free and cheerful manner which gave him a rest from his gloomy thoughts I soon had a chance to see for myself the condition of those pockets. The result was quite satisfactory. In one of them I found a frayed lining, easily explainable on the theory I had advanced. That pocket can be seen by you.

"But, Mr. Fox, I wanted some real proof. I wasn't willing to embarrass another man or to risk my own reputation on a hazard so blind as this without something really definite. A confession was what I wanted or such a breakdown of the man as would warrant police action. How could I get this?

"This man, guilty though he might be, loved this family and was broken hearted over the trouble in which he saw it plunged. Excused today from attendance at court, he was in constant telephonic communication with some friend of his who kept him posted as to the conduct of the trial and the probabilities of a favorable verdict.

"If the case had gone against Arthur we should have heard from his coachman—that I verily believe—but when we all saw that he was likely to be acquitted I realized that some other course must be taken to shake Zadok from his new won complacency, and I chose the most obvious one.

"Just when everything looked most favorable to their restored peace and happiness I shocked Miss Carmel and through her this Zadok into the belief that the whole agony was to be gone over again in the rearrest and consequent trial of the man she still loves in spite of all that has happened to separate them.

(To be Continued).

It Depended.

"Doesn't that shouting outside annoy you?"

"I can't say," replied Mr. Sirius Barker, "until I find out whether it is being done by my own or the neighbor's children."—Washington Star.

The Plainfield Ice & Supply Co. will give a prize of $25 in cash to the pupil of any school, public or private, in Plainfield or North Plainfield, who shall submit the best written advertisement for the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company's business, to occupy a space equal to the space taken by this annoncement.

The judges will be the Editors of the Courier-News and Daily Press. The conditions will be as follows:

The advertisement as written should be sent to the office of the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., with a separate sheet of paper attached, bearing the writer's name, and name of the school he or she attends. Both sheets thus submitted will be numbered by the Company in the order received, and the sheet bearing the name of the contestant will be held by the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., and the advertisement with the corresponding number will be sent to the judges, so that the judges will have no knowledge of the name of the writer. The advertisement which is decided to be the best will be so marked, and sent to the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company, who will by reference to the sheets in their possession, determine the name of the successful contestant.

The contest will end May 30, all letters received up to midnight of that day being eligible to the competition.

THE HOSPITAL.

Where would you rather be, in front of trouble, in trouble, or back of trouble? Give me back of trouble. Some people's money gives them trouble. Here is a house that is so large and good it is making trouble. So if you will unload some of your trouble, and get this fellow out of trouble you will put yourself out of trouble, or back of trouble, or in a nice cool spot back of the Hospital.

MY DEAR SICK PEOPLE—I hope you feel worse this morning. For not one of you knew that I was not talking to hear myself when I told you I had the best built house you ever saw. I meant it. I sold two of them yesterday and now I will give anyone, who will take the trouble to go to Summer avenue near George street and see these two houses $10 if they will come back and dare tell me if they ever saw such lumber put in any house in Plainfield, especially one for sale.

TROUBLE.

Speaking of trouble, here is an 25 acre farm with square buildings on; the mortgage or trouble is $2,500; on account of this trouble, the price is $3,200. Will give you a deed for it, if it is not worth it.

CALLING ATTENTION TO PUBLIC UTILITY LAW.

The Board of Public Utility Commissioners is sending to every public utility in the State a copy of the new legislation of last winter, accompanying it with a circular calling particular attention to certain features of the law. One of the things to which attention is directed is the provision requiring the approval by the board of any grants or privileges to public utilities by municipalities, and also the approval by the board of any issues of stocks or bonds by a public utility, or of any stock by one public utility to another.

Attention is also directed to the fact that agents, experts or examiners of the board are empowered to enter upon any premises occupied by any public utility, for the purposes set forth in the act. All such agents will be supplied with proper means of identification by the board.

Association Officers Elected.

At the annual meeting of the Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of the East Association of New Jersey, held yesterday at the Central Baptist church, Elizabeth, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Gabriel Reid Maguire, Plainfield; vice-president, Mrs. D. J. Yerkes, Plainfield, Mrs. J. Madison Hare, Jersey City, Mrs. S. J. Skevington, Newark; recording secretary, Miss Florence Logart, Roselle Park; corresponding secretary and treasurer, Miss Grace M. Davis, Newark; junior secretary, Mrs. J. Schloppman, Elizabeth.

To Exhibit Stamp Collection.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, who is now acting Governor, and whose hobby is collecting stamps will exhibit canal zone stamps at the international exhibition to be held at Vienna in September. The collection includes 12,000 stamps, and is said to be the finest of its kind in the world. Mr. Ackerman has just accepted the invitation to send his stamps abroad.

Veterans to Attend Service.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church will preach to the Grand Army and Spanish-American War Veterans at his church tomorrow evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. VanWinkle, Sr., and John H. VanWinkle, Jr., of Duer street, left today for Ocean Grove, where they will stop at The Arburton until next Thursday.

CANADA TO AFRICA BY WIRELESS IN AN HOUR.

Glace Bay, C. B., May 26.—One hour by wireless from Glace Bay, C. B. to Dakar, on the coast of French Western Africa, is the astonishing feat that has just been accomplished at the Glace Bay wireless station. The message was flashed from here to the Eiffel Tower, at Paris, and from there relayed to the Dakar station, the whole operation taking but sixty minutes.

So successful was the experiment that it is now announced that the British dependencies will be linked togeher by wireless, and plans to this end are now being made. Between seventy and eighty new stations will be required to put this girdle around the world.

She Took No Chances.

"I know what's passing in your mind," suddenly said the maiden, as the habitually silent caller stared at her. "I know, too, why you are calling here night after night, appropriating my time to yourself and keeping other nice young men away. You want me to marry you, don't you?"

"I—I do!" gasped the young man.

SCHOOL EXERCISES

Pupils' Memorial Day Observance in the City and Borough.

Memorial Day exercises were held in all Public Schools today, speeches being made by veterans of the Civil War in many of them At the High School Dr. J. F. Berg gave an interesting address while the pupils of the Stillman School listened with attention to Chief T. O. Doane, at the Irving School to J. N. Bogart and at the Jefferson School to I. E. Houston, all veterans of the war.

At the Stillman School the following program was given: Song by the school, Veterans' Greeting, song by Irving Manley; Address by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire; song, "The Soldier's Dream," school; song "Fling Out the Banner," Edith Bechtel; song, "The Flag," school; address, Chief T. O. Doane; song, "The Call to Arms," school; song "America."

The program at the Jefferson school included "America," by the school; recitation, "Do You Know What it Means?" William Lindsay; recitation, "The Red, White and Blue Children," Esther Keppleson, Marion Hawkyard, Bessie Meidck; song, "The Stars and Stripes," school, flag drill, Grace McDowell, Aleta McDowell, Elsie Silva, Kathryn Clark, Helen Egel, Edith Mower, Hattie Kriney, Carolyn Dorman, Margaret Crozier, Fannie Keppleson, Anna Harman; song, "Tenting Tonight," school; recitation, "What Flowers Shall We Bring?" Vivian Dunn, Mabel Doerflinger, Margaret Cran; song, "Battle Mymn," school; recitation, "Gettysburg," Grace Keppleson; recitation, "Our Standing Army," Ralph Jacob; song, "The Red, White and Blue," school; Class exercises, salute to flag, by school; address by I. E. Houston; song, "Hail Columbia," school.

A lengthy program was given at the Bryant School, beginning with "America," sung by the entire school, a salute to the flag followed and the children sang the "Red, White and Blue," the first psalm was then repeated and the children sang "Hail Columbia." Then followed a recitation by Kenneth Guttridge; song, "Tenting Tonight," by the school; recitation, by Clarence Goss, Cletus Hunn, Vicor Chamberlain, George Vanderfoel. A sang and a recitation by Alexander Carver, Russel Lorton, James Brownlee, Carlton Campbell, Walter Johnson, Walter Morris and Donald Henwood; song, "Marching Through Georgia," school; recitation "Off With Your Hats as the Flag Goes By," Monroe O'Donnell; address, W. J. Chittenden; address, Captain William Smith; song, "The Star Spangled Banner," school.

The Whittier School program follows: Song, school; reading, "Origin of Memorial Day;" song, "Columbia," school; recitation, Carol Gramatt; song, "Old Glory," school; recitation, "Blue and the Gray," Adelaide Ricketts; chorus, selected, a number of boys; oration, "The Graves of Our Dead," Holmes Clawson; chorus, selected pupils; recitation, "Our Country," school; song, Alfred Manley; salute to the flag, school, and "America," by the school. Owing to the fact that there is no auditorium in the Lincoln School the pupils had their exercises in the class room under the supervision of individual teachers. They consisted of songs and recitations.

Stephen R. Struthers addressed the pupils of the High School this morning after Principal Lindsay Best had read the proclamation of Governor Woodrow Wilson. A delegation of veterans of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., was present under the leadership of Dr. J. F. Berg. The pupils were asked to participate in the parade tomorrow and help the veterans decorate the graves of their dead comrades. Miss Janette Neighbor read a selection and Rev. Frank Fletcher spoke briefly on the subject of the day. Roy Titsworth sang the obligato solo in a chorus of the "Star Spangled Banner."

At the primary department of the Somerset School this program was given: "America," by the school; recitation, "Memorial Day," Frances Neighbor; Remembrance, Helen Foster, Helen Bolen and Florence Stahl; song, third grade, "A Tribute;" recitation, "Our Dead Heroes," Hayward Webster; recitation, "Bring Blossoms," Herbert Stites; song, school, recitation, "An Offering," four pupils of 2b grade; piano solo, Stella MacDonald; recitation, "Heroes," William Lees; recitation, "Scatter Flowers," Marie Jennings; recitation, "Memorial Day," Alfredine Day; recitation, "For My Country," Robert Blair; recitation, "My Country's Flag," Lloyd Randall; song, "Our Nation's Flag," grade 4a. Other recitations were given by pupils of grades 1a, 3a and songs and recitations by Florence Hoagland, Paul Peck, Gladys Bye, Dorothy Seader, John Gilbert Reid, Reginald Wash-

CARNIVAL TO OPEN TONIGHT FOR WEEK

Two of the greatest attractions in the carnival being given under the auspices of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, at Grant avenue and West Front street, are the Due Sisters, in their natatorial stunts and the wonderful educated horse, "Prince Bayard," whose accomplishments are something marvelous. The horse's specialty is doing sums in arithmetic. Some of his work has astounded the school children as well as principals of schools. The horse has a wonderful fondness for children and shows it at every opportunity.

The Due sisters are known for their swimming ability and high diving and their entertainment is well worth going miles to see. There are four of these girls who hold championships in aquatic sports and their exhibition is said to be one of the best known to the theatrical world.

BIG CONGREGATION GREETS NEW PASTOR

Rev. E. C. Conover, the new pastor of the Temple Baptist church, occupied the pulpit yesterday morning and evening for the first time as pastor and was greeted by large congregations. Mr. Conover has a pleasing personality, a strong and convincing manner in the pulpit and holds the close attention of his hearers.

At the morning service, he did not preach a regular sermon, but gave an informal talk in which he expressed his pleasure in becoming pastor of the church, believing it to be a call of God. He then made a few suggestions to his congregation in the interest of the advance of the work. He urged his people to co-operate with him at all times, declaring that he could do nothing unless they were with him. He also urged them to pray fervently and continually for the upbuilding of God's Kingdom and to always be in their places at the appointed meetings of the church.

Mr. Conover said that all should feel the burden of soul-saving, and should do all that is possible with God's help to bring in the unsaved ones. He declared that there is enough latent power in the churches of Plainfield to turn the city upside down, but it is lying dormant and the best results are not obtainable. He hoped that the Temple Baptist church would coninue to be a power and influence for good and that its name would always be referred to with honor. At the close of the morning service the congregation remained to meet the new pastor.

Prefacing his remarks, Mr. Conover said that the latch-string would always be on the outside for the members of the church and congregation and he hoped that all would find time to get acquainted and thus co-operate with him in the work of the church. Again last night a large congregation heard Mr. Conover preach. He and his family expect to get in their home on East Second street this week.

Exhibition at Irving School.

There will be an exhibition of manual work that has done during the year, at the Irving school, Thursday evening and Friday afternoon of this week. This display will include work done by pupils from the kindergarten to the seventh grade, inclusive; and will consist of basketry, work in wood, leather stenciling, sewing and cooking. During the evening the pupils of the Irving and Jefferson schools will sell ice cream for the benefit of the art and library fund. All who are interested are most cordially invited to attend this exhibition and carefully examine the work.

Closed Successful Season.

Joseph Lane, Plainfield's well-known theatrical man, closed a successful thirty-six weeks season at Chicago, Saturday, as manager of the "Silver Threads" company. He will return to this city as soon as a number of business details are closed up, probably in a few days. During the season the company appeared in every State west of the Mississippi, several east of it and also covered a short circuit in Mexico.

Gives Up Baking Business.

Herman Deike, who has conducted a bakery at 216 Grove street for the past twenty years, discontinued the business Saturday. His stand is one of the best known in the borough. Mr. Deike sold groceries in connection with the bakery and he will continue this line on an enlarged scale.

MISS HALL WEDS

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hall the Bride of Jacob L. VanDeventer.

Miss Marion Hortense Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hall, of Belvidere avenue, and Jacob Ludlow VanDeventer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hurd VaanDeventer, of Woodland avenue, were married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the First Baptist church, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends from New York, Brooklyn, Newark, Philadelphia and this city. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

The matron-of-honor was Mrs. E. Maxwell Perkins, and the bridesmaids were Miss Mabel B. Hooley, Miss Helen Ray Hooley, Miss Anna Garrigues, Miss Florence Stuart, Miss Frances VanDeventer, of this city, and Miss Josephine LaTourette, of Bound Brook. They wore gowns of whie satin over light pink marquiesette and embroidery of a deeper color pink and wore flower hats of pink and white and carried pink and white blossoms.

The best man was Joseph VanDeventer, brother of the groom and the ushers were Clinton Hall, brother of the bride; DeWitt Brokaw and John P. Myers, of this city, and Morton Gibbons-Neff, Robert Clothier and Nathaniel Ewing, of Philadelphia.

Howard M. Case, organist of the church, presided at the organ, and prior to the arrival of the bridal party, rendered a program of music. As the party entered the edifice, he played the Wedding March from Lohengrin, and as it rtired the Mendelssohn Wedding March.

The bride's gown was of Olga crepe, trimmed with real lace waist, an heirloom which came to the bride from her grandmother. Apple blossoms were also used in the decorative scheme of the gown, and a bouquet of gardenias, tied with white satin ribbon was carried. Mrs. E. Maxwell Perkins, of North Plainfield, was the matron-of-honor. She wore a white satin gown over green chiffon; also a hat of white lace, and she carried a bouquet of mignonette.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Belvidere avenue. The bridal party received the three hundred guests in the reception room, while Austen's orchestra played an attractive program. Refreshments were served in a large tent on the lawn, close to the house. Among the bride's presents was a new house located on Park Lane, the gift of her parents.

During the early part of the evening the couple left for a two weeks' wedding trip and they will be "at home" on Park Lane after October 15. The bride's gifts to the bridemaids and matron-of-honor were apple blossom pendants, and the groom gave his best man and ushers gold necktie clasps bearing their monograms.

What Liquor Does.

A trio of drunks confronted Judge William G. DeMeza this morning and two of them were fined. Bartholomew Taylor, who broke a pledge taken a couple of weeks ago had o pay $5 or go to jail for thirty days, while Berthune Dunham, who denied his guilt and attempted to impugn the word of Captain Frederickson as to his condition on previous occasions, was fined $10 with the alternative of spending forty days in jail. Joseph Kiering, a Pole, was given suspended sentence because it was his first offense.

Could Not Retire Side.

The Watchung Fire Department baseball team met the Monroe Avenue A. C., of this city, on the diamond Saturday afternoon, and defeated the Plainfield agregation. Only six innings were played on account of darkness. In the sixth inning the firemen went to bat and the visitors were unable to retire the side. So many runs were made that no count was kept and the final score is not known.

Postpone Bench Show.

The Plainfield Kennel Club has decided to postpone its annual bench show until September. This action was taken because the officers of the club are so busy at this time of the year and so many other sporting events are scheduled for this city. There is no idea of giving up the show and the club, which is in good condition, will try and make the next bench show better than ever.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD HAS A NEAR-RIOT

A near-riot occurred at 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon at South Plainfield when a gang of Italian laborers attempted to take some boats from Silver Lake at the alleged behest of the Middlesex Water Company. Philip Smith, it is alleged, objected to the removal of the boats from the lake and when he saw the men at work sinking or removing his property, it is alleged that he drew a revolver and threatened the men with instant death unless they left the boats where they were.

According to the story the Italians fled and later Mr. Smith made complaint against them. They were arrested and released until this afternoon when a trial will be held before Justice of he Peace Smith, father of Phil. It is said that the presence of boats in the lake encouraged swimming and other things which the Water company declared polluted the water.

VALUABLE PIGEONS BURNED IN BARN FIRE

A frame barn on the premises at 984 Hillside avenue owned by the Theodore estate, was completely destroyed by a fire which was discovered at 8:40 last night. An alarm was turned in from box 27 but the building was beyond saving when the apparatus arrived.

The premises are occupied by Edward H. Hobbie, who used the barn principally as a cote for valuable carrier pigeons, of which he is an ardent fancier. There were about eighty in the structure when the fire broke out and fifty were burned to death. A number of chickens and a quantity of carpentering and garden tools were also destroyed. Mr. Hobbie places his loss at $800, covered by insurance. The barn was valued at $500 and was insured for that amount.

No cause has been assigned for the origin of the fire.

MRS. JANE A. VEYSEY, AGED 81 YEARS, DEAD

Mrs. Jane A. Veysey, aged eighty-one years, widow of William H. Veysey, and son of W. H. P. Veysey, of Park avenue, died on Saturday at the home of her son, folowing a long illness from complications. Mrs. Veysey was born in Brooklyn, where she lived for many years. She came to Plainfield to live with her son about eight years ago.

Mrs. Veysey was a member of Grace church, where she was a regular attendant at the services until illness prevented.

Mrs. Veysey is survived by two sons, William F. W. Veysey, of New York, and W. H. P. Veysey, of this city. Private funeral services will be held in charge of Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

ALEXANDER JOHNSTON DIES OF COMPLICATIONS

Alexander Johnston, aged 67 years died this morning at his home, 736 Grant avenue, after a two weeks illness with complications. Mr. Johnston was born near Londonderry, Ireland, and came to this country when a young man. For many years he was engaged in the real estate business in New York. About five years ago he removed to this city.

Mr. Johnston was for many years a member and elder of the Park Presbyterian church, New York city, of which Rev. Dr. Atterbury is the pastor, and he was active in church work. He was a man of sterling qualities and enjoyed a large acquaintance. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. W. W. Robinson, of this city, and two sons, William C. Johnston and Herbert M Johnston, of New York.

Funeral services will be held at the late residence on Grant avenue, Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. Atterbury, of New York, assisted by Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of Grace church. The burial will be in Woodlawn cemetery.

TO GRADUATE FOUR

Commencement Exercises of the Hartridge School on Friday Morning.

Commencement exercises of the Hartridge School will be held Friday morning at 11 o'clock. The graduates will be Miss Margaret Buttfield, Miss Helen Harrington and Miss Edith Foster, of this city; Miss Ruth Stanley-Brown, of Cold Spring Harbor. Miss Foster and Miss Buttfield will go to Smith College; Miss Harrington to Dana Hall and Miss Stanley-Brown will go to Vassar College. Miss Hartridge has issued invitations to a dance to be given to the graduating class in the evening. Among the guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Stanley-Brown, of Cold Spring Harbor, and Mrs. Abraham Garfield, of Mentor, Ohio, parents and grandmother of Miss Stanley-Brown.

The address at the graduating exercises will be delivered by Dr. Josiah Strong, president of the American Institute of Social Service. His subject will be "The Times in Which we Live." Dr Strong is well-known as the author of a number of widely read works. The American Institute of Social Service has served as a working model for British, Swedish and Italian Institutes; and the president has been invited to organize institutes in Germany, Russia, Spain, Turkey, South Africa, India, China and Japan.

16TH ANNIVERSARY AT MT. OLIVE CHURCH.

The Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, celebrated its sixteenth anniversary, yesterday with services morning, afternoon and evening, in charge of Rev. Dr. M. W. Vaughan, and the officers of the society, which included the following: President, Mrs. Lucy Warrick; vice-president, Mrs. J. D. Whitting; corresponding secretary, Miss B. Clarbron; recording secretary, Mrs. William Mayhew; treasurer, Abner Hancock. During the day $91.37 was contributed toward the church fund.

Mrs. S. M. Field presided at the morning service at 11 o'clock, when Mrs. P. H. Brown read the history of the circle, there were remarks by Mrs. John Reed, a paper by Mrs. H. Hewlett, of Cranford and recitations by Mrs. J. D. Whiting. Mrs. Frank Brown, presided at the 3 o'clock service in the afternoon. There was an address by Mrs. E. L. Eeastman, of Roselle; song by the choir, a paper by Mrs. W. T. Watkins, corresponding secretary of the State society and remarks by Mrs. Reuben Smith, of Roselle; Mrs. E. B. Maynard, of A. M. E. church; remarks by Mrs. Wenton, president of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of Union and Middlesex counties and a solo by Mrs. Lulu Dempsey.

Rev. D. W. Brown presided at the evening service, when the anniversary sermon was delivered by Rev. Dr. M. W. Vaughan, which was enjoyed by the large congregaion present. Those engaged in raising funds during the day were Mrs. Oscar Green, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. William Mayhew, Mrs. William Wyckoff, and Messrs. Abner Hancock and G. W. Wright.

TROLLEY CAR CRASHES INTO CARNIVAL WAGON.

Main line trolley car No. 1902, in charge of Motorman James McCauley ran into two of the wagons of the carnival show near the corner of Grant avenue at 9:40 o'clock last night, smashing the wheels of one and throwing Thomas Brown, the driver, into the roadway severely bruising him. The teams of both wagons ran away but were caught after running a few blocks.

Chief Kiely claims that the trolley cars are running altogether too fast in the city and is going to see to it that the practice is stopped and will instruct the patrolmen to watch the cars carefully.

Swimmers Fined.

Charles Lungstrom, Arthur Ellinger and Edward Whitney, all of East Sixth street, were arrested by Chief Weiss yesterday for bathing in Hyde's pond near Brook avenue, without proper covering. They were released for appearance this morning but only Lungstrom and Ellinger showed up. They were fined $1 each. Whitney will be called to account before tomorow.

Violated Health Law.

Charged with violating the health ordinances in keeping exposed garbage on his premises, the proprietor of Truell Hall, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza this morning and after an explanation was given a suspended sentence, but cautioned to have the nuisance removed. The complaint was made by John O'Brien, Jr. health officer.

MRS. E. B. S. WARE DIED THIS MORNING

Mrs. Ella B. Sharp-Ware, widow of R. Willard Ware, who had been a resident of this city for about twenty-five years, died this morning at her home on Third place, following an illness of several months with a complication of troubles. Mrs. Ware was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and was also greatly interested in several local charities, including The Day Nursery, Charity Circle of The King's Daughters and was also a member of the Women's Auxiliary to the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital. She was a woman of rare Christian qualities, unassuming and beloved by a large circle of friends.

Mrs. Ware was twice married, her first husband being John Ridley, of Brooklyn, where she lived for many years before removing to this city. She leavs no immediate relatives here. The notice of funeral will be announced in the New York Herald of tomorrow.

CIVIL WAR VETERANS ATTENDED A SERVICE

Before an audience which entirely filled the auditorium of the Park Avenue Baptist church last night Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, the pastor, preached a sermon especially for the men of the Grand Army of the Republic. The members of Camp Bagley, Spanish American War Veterans, were present. Rev Frank Fletcher, a retired chaplain, who was with Sherman in his march to the sea, offered the prayer and read the 140th psalm. Mr. Fletcher also spoke briefly at the conclusion of Rev. Mr. Maguire's sermon and at the finish urged the men of the Civil War veterans to use their influence to have the appointment of the veteran, Dr. J. F. Berg, confirmed by the Common Council. Dr. Berg was recently appointed as Overseer of the Poor by Mayor George W. V. Moy.

In his sermon Rev. Mr. Maguire referred with some warmth to the historians who tried to belittle the greatness of the battles of the Civil War. He referred to the war of the rebellion as a holy war in that it preserved to the world the greatest country that the world knows today, whose corner stone is liberty and whose citizens have equal chances in every stage of life. He declared that in preserving only the one negro, Paul Lawrence Dunbar, the colored poet, the cause of the war was vindicated.

Patriotic hymns and martial music marked the close of the service.

MISS JESSIS REYNOLDS LONG ILL, PASSES AWAY.

Miss Jessie Knowles Reynolds, aged twenty years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hazelton C. Reynolds, of Church street, died at 9 o'clock this morning, following an illness which began last winter, of pleuro-pneumonia. During the past few weeks she failed rapidly and last week she was unconscious nearly all the time.

Miss Reynolds had lived in this city practically all her life and had a large number of friends. She was a member of Trinity Reformed church and attended the services there regularly. Besides her parents, Miss Reynolds is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Remsen Reed, of Elizabeth, and Miss Anna Reynolds; also three brothers, Herbert H. Reynolds, Frank Reynolds and Donald Reynalds, all of whom live home. The funeral will be held at the late home Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, will officiate and the burial will be in the M. E. cemetery on Plainfield avenue.

Trolley Mixup.

A quadrangular mixup occurred las night at the corner of Richmond and Fifth streets when the trolley signals went wrong in some way. Three cars going went and one going east met at the corner and it took some time to straighten things out. This is the first time that the signals have failed to be observed and it is said to have been due entirely to the foliage of the trees.

HOLIDAY'S EVENTS

Horse Races, Bicycle Road Meet, Golf and Baseball For Tomorrow.

Decoration Day will be generally observed here tomorrow, when there will be an unusual number of events to interest all who plan to remain in town. Under the auspices of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and with the assistance of Co. K, Camp Bagley, Spanish-American War Veterans and the Women's Relief Corps, there will be the customary Memorial Day exercises. In the morning there will be a short parade including a visit to the local cemeteries to decorate graves. A brass band will furnish music for the occasion.

In the afternoon at 2 o'clock public exercises will be held at Reform Hall, when Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, will be the orator of the day and there will be exercises by the veterans and singing by a chorus of children. After the exercises refreshments will be served to the children as usual.

Anothr important event of the day will be the annual convention of the postoffice clerks of the State. They will convene at 11 o'clock in the Bacock building, and a business session will be held in the afternoon, to be followed by a banquet at Truell Hall in the evening. Congressman W. E. Tuttle, Jr., of Westfield, will be the principal speaker.

Although the regular entry list for the Plainfield Cycle Club's third anual road race tomorrow has closed more are still pouring in and indications point to the largest number of contestants yet noted. Eighty-five wheelmen have already filed their blanks and with the usual post entries that are allowed fully 100 of the best riders in this section of the country will await the pistol crack. They are coming from as far as Baltimore and Orefield, Pa., while large delegations will be sent by New York, Brooklyn, Newark, Philadelphia, Elizabeth, New Brunswick and other places beside the local aspirants. The Bayview Wheelmen, of Newark, have entered eighten men alone.

Among the well known racers who will participate in the big even are the following: Carl Erickson, John Beck, "Jack" Townsend, of the Irish-American A. C., the great indoor rider, Frank Blatz, Jersey City, amateur champion; "Joe" Orlando, the Italian champion; "Paddy" Demons, Franklin Fisher, of the Irish-American A. C.; and Joseph Schuster, of the Empire City Wheelmen. The local entries are Kenneth Mair, E. Mantz, George, Edward and William Simon, Gifford Jones, W. Drake and George Martin.

The race will be over last year's course on Mountain avenue, starting at Westervelt avenue in the borough and thence to a point at Mountainside. The distance there and back is twelve and a-half miles and is to be covered twice There are thirty-five prizes in all, the first being a $50 wheel the second a $30 wheel and the others various kinds of merchandise. The time prizes is also a $50 wheel. Jack Horner is in general charge of the arrangements and has secured a capable list of officials to preside. The course will be well protected over the entire length to insure fast riding and record time is looked for.

There will also be plenty doing at the local golf courses. At the Plainfield Country Club in the morning there will be a four-ball competition, and in the afternoon an 18-holes medal play, handicap, for Classes A and B. There will be social features at the clubhouse and a dinner-dance in the evening. At the Park Golf Club there will be play for the President's and golf club cups and the Holiday trophy, with the usual social features at the clubhouse in the afternoon.

Another strong attraction will be the matinee races at the Plainfield Driving Park beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. There will be four trotting and pacing races and one ⅞ mile running race for hacks and hunters, carrying up to 145 pounds. Many of the best running horses in this part of the State will take part, including Prince Ching, Good Riddance, Sonny, Half Blue, Adele C, Punch and Jack Cade. Stages will meet the trolley cars on Park avenue.

There will be but one delivery of mail in the morning and the postoffice will close at 10 o'clock. All the stores will be open tonight and will be closed all day tomorrow. The local drug stores will close a half-day as usual and the regular holiday hours will be observed at the public library.

The local barber shops will be closed all day, but will remain open this evening until 12 o'clock to accommodate customers.

A tour of the city in automobiles will be made by the postal clerks under the direction of the Chamber of

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Decoration Day tomorrow, will be observed in the usual manner. The school children will meet a delegation of Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., at the Park avenue trolley corner in the morning and escort the veterans to the cemetery, where the graves of the dead soldiers will be decorated. No special events are scheduled. The twenty-five mile bicycle road race which is being held under the auspices of the Plainfield wheelmen, will be run over the Mountain avenue course at about 11 o'clock.

Anthony Schwalback and Warner MacCauley, who was arrested Saturday night on complaint of Henry C. Meyers, charged with fighting on Park avenue, were discharged when arraigned before Judge Toucey later in the evening. Several witnesses testified that the two were only fooling and that no actual blows had been struck.

Pleasing exercises of the Epworth League were held last night in the Methodist church, the exercises taking the place of the usual preaching service. The church was prettily decorated and an interesting program was given, which was enjoyed by a large audience.

The Bachelor's Club hold another of the club's popular dances tonight in Excelsior Hall. This will be the last dance of the club until September.

Tomorrow the local ball team play the Plainfields two games, both being played at Crescent Oval. A large crowd will accompany the team.

Saturday afternoon the Central N. J. League contest is on, Bound Brook playing at the 'Plains and Plainfield at Somerville.

Frank Putnam, of Plainfield, was the guest over Sunday of his grandfather, Augustus L. Frentz, of Westfield avenue.

Miss Addie Johnston led an interesting weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. last night in the church parlors.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The South Plainfield All Juniors defeated the Baraca class Saturday morning by the score of 12 to 8. Ball, the pitcher for the Juniors, was a puzzle, securing 13 strike outs. The lineup was as follows: Juniors—Phillips, c; Ball, p; Hamilton, 1b; Teeple, 2b; Sherrot, ss; Hogan, 3b; Geary, lf; Shields, rf; Riely, cf. Baraca—D. Colfax, c; E. Colfax, p; Gray, 1b; D. Sofield, 2b; Colfax, ss; Pyatt, 3b; J. Sofield, lf; Soper, cf; Siddler, rf.

Three candidates were baptised at the Baptist church last evening. They were Miss Laura Teeple, Miss Laura Schrope and Miss Nettie Smith.

Miss E. Maguire, of New York, has returned home from a pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ledden, of Lakeside avenue.

The Misses Mary and Nellie Farel, of Metchun, are visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Mary McDonough, of Lehigh avenue.

Andrew McDonough, fromerly of this village, but now of Plainfield, has taken a position with D. Foster Opdyke.

Carmine Valecintie has returned from New York, where he has been since Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Mead, of New York, visited Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Schrope entertained friends from Easton, Pa., yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Thorn entertained the Rev. J. J. Allen, over Sunday.

Miss Lina Randolph, of Plainfield, has taken a position with Mrs. W. E. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. William Thornton are entertaining friends from out of town.

Mr. and Mrs. John Pickering are entertaining friends from out of town.

Charles Kelly, of Clinton avenue, visited friends in the village yesterday.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Memorial Day will not be observed in the borough or New Market in any formal way. Old Glory will be displayed by the residents and the business houses generally will be closed. The only amusement feature in Dunellen will be the ball games morning and afternoon. Many will witness the G. A. R. exercises at Plainfield and others will take advantage of the railroad excursions.

The Dunellen baseball team will meet the Westfield aggregation in two games on the local grounds tomorrow. Harvey and Lidgate will be the battery for Dunellen in the morning and Wendt and Lidgate in the afternoon. The games will be called at 10 a. m. and 3:30 p. m.

Isaac Solomon, a former Jewish rabbi, occupied the pulpit at the Methodist church yesterday morning. He told the story of his conversion to christianity in Russia in a very interesting way. Rev. W. A. Knox gave a Memorial Day sermon in the evening.

The outing of the Junior League of the Methodist church, to Smith's farm, Saturday afternoon, was well attended and a great success in every way.

Contractor H. B. Eckert has commenced the erection of a new house on Washington avenue, for Paul Reusch.

A large number of local residents journeyed to Coney Island yesterday to view the ruins of Saturday's great fire.

Freight Agent J. B. Eick, of the borough, has purchased a new Mitchell auto.

COBURN PLAYERS TO GIVE OPEN-AIR PERFORMANCE.

The Coburn Players, of New York, who will be seen here on Monday evening, June 5, at the Plainfield Country Club, when they present "Much Ado About Nothing," is an organization of actors who have had five summers of experience together and who have appeared with unvarying success in cities throughout the country.

During the past summer they played at most of the leading colleges and universities of the East, South and Middle West and faculties and student bodies alike were generous in their appreciation and praise. They also gave performances at many of the more prominent country clubs where they are booked for return engagements. The company is an admirably balanced and thoroughly adequate one throughout and its appearance here is eagerly anticipated. It will be an open-air performance.

Enjoyed Marshmallow Roast.

Miss Edith Ayers, of East Second street, and Miss Christine Heaume, of Myrtle avenue, gave a marshmallow roast to their frineds in the woods near the latter's home Friday night. A delightful time was had toasting the confections in the embers of a large bonfire while a burned finger now and then only added to the merriment. When all had eaten enough of the dainties, adjournment was taken to Miss Heaumes' home where card games, music and dancing were enjoyed until a late hour.

COME TO TEPPERS FOR YOUR HOLIDAY NEEDS

In the Men's Furnishing Department we are Showing Some Attractive Shirt Bargains.

A Cool Pongee Shirt at 59c.
The very thing for these hot days; made of good stock mercerized pongee, with or without collars; French cuff sleeves; band shirts all made coat style; colors are natural (tan), white and grey. The best shirt value in this city.

75c Negligee Shirts 59c.
An excellent assortment to choose from; neat black and white effects; pin stripes in colors; in fact, styles that are usually in the regular $1.00 shirts.
These shirts are coat style and strictly fast colors, made of the well known Garner's percales; cut full and made to fit; on sale 59c

$1.25 SOISETTE SHIRTS $1.00.
The most desirable shirt on the market today. There's a reason—it's cool, looks neat, wears well and bound to give utmost satisfaction. We have secured one of the best makes in this style of shirt and we feel satisfied that no better value at the price can be obtained elsewhere.

75c O. Y. E. Athletic Underwear 59c.
The O. Y. E. has many advantages over the average athletic garment. The shirt is cut with a full lap and the drawers are made to fit into the waist. Made of fine quality mercerized figured pongee, neatly trimmed; the regular retail price is 75c; on sale here at 59c

$1.98 WHITE REPP SKIRTS AT $1.69.
A plain tailored, 7-gored white Repp Skirt, made of splendid quality Repp, tailored to hang perfectly; sizes for misses and women; also extra sizes; 100 in the lot; on sale.....$1.69

A Summer Tailored Waist 98c.
A strictly tailored waist and cool for the summer, made of pin dot batiste, with large front pleats, French cuffs and white laundered collar; a waist you will like and enjoy wearing; perfect fitting as you know Tepper's tailored waists are at.....98c

Special $1.25 Galatea Middy 98c.
Two good styles of Galatea middies, one made with blue flannel collar, the other with beaded white collar and embroidered emblem; U. S. N. on pockets; both made to retail at $1.25; ages 8 to 20; on sale 98c

TWO GOOD LINEN SUITS AT $4.98 AND $5.98.
Here are two leaders in Linen Suits that few New York stores will duplicate; both made of good quality pure linen of just thte right weight, the suits are well tailored in the newest styles; the $4.98 suit is made with a plain notch collar; the $5.98 is made with sailor collar and large revers; both styles in misses and women's sizes.
(Alterations Free).

Children's White Dresses $1.49 to $6.98.
Children's Colored Tub Dresses 98c to $2.98.
We give the same attention and care to every detail in this department that we give to the grown up folks. We handle one of the leading makes that is sold by the best stores in the United States.
We show a splendid selection in both white and colored dresses for every day wear and dress occasions; they are certainly splendid values.

White Dresses for "Litttle Tots," 2 to 5 years, 98c to $3.98.
Such pretty little dresses for such little prices; made and trimmed just like your own dressmaker would make them for you. They couldn't fit or hang any nicer and the prices are so reasonable, that you will wonder you ever bothered with making them; we are showing a very pretty range at 98c, $1.25, $1.49, $1.98, $2.49, $2.98 $3.50 & $3.98.

SALE OF WOMEN'S TAILORED SUITS AT $10.00.
Made of good quality diagonal serge, well tailored throughout, lined with all silk, good quality messaline; two styles; one with sailor collar and one with plain coat collar. We bought these suits one-third underprice and are selling them accordingly; sizes for misses and women; alterations free; on sale.....$10.00

Our Men's Department is Well Stocked to Meet Your Summer Needs.

The Best 2 for 25c Socks on the Market.
Choice of either extra light, medium or heavy weight; the light weight come in a variety of the popular shades as well as black, and are lisle finish and fast colors. Will wear as well as the higher priced sock.
In the medium weight we have black, black with white foot or split foot and tan.
In the heavy weight for work, we carry the well known Columbia sock—none better made for work.
Come to Tepper's for real hosiery value.

Exceptional Good 50c Balbriggan Value.
We make our greatest effort at this price because more men buy a 50c balbriggan than any other kind. We get the very best obtainable; the finish, the weight, and the yarn is equal to a great many 75c garments sold elsewhere.

50c Summer Ribbed Underwear 39c.
We buy these direct from one of the leading mills through our connection with a big southern jobbing firm and for this reason are enabled to sell this garment underpriced and still make a satisfactory profit. Compare these with any 50c garment anywhere around here, if they are not as good, bring them back. All sizes; on sale, each.....39c

Our Printed Word

You don't think much of a person who says he'll do a thing and never does it—do you? No certainly not. Nor does anyone, in fact. The man who does not keep his word is not to be trusted.

Now, is the man who breaks a verbal contract any worse than the man who breaks faith with you in his PRINTED WORD? We would class both of these men in the same category, they're—well, we'll say prevaricators.

You may think we have a good deal to say upon this score, and so we have. What we say, however, is for the good of all concerned—FOR THE GOOD OF ADVERTISING IN GENERAL. We're cranks on truthful advertising—that's what we are—and we're going to keep right on talking until we have succeeded in clarifying the publicity atmosphere hereabouts.

Bear with us and read these little talks—search out the store, or stores that do HONEST ADVERTISING and confine your patronage to these stores. There are many such stores in Newark and we think their kind is increasing all the while.

CONTEST

FOR PLAINFIELD PUPILS

The Plainfield Ice & Supply Co. will give a prize of $25 in cash to the pupil of any school, public or private, in Plainfield or North Plainfield, who shall submit the best written advertisement for the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company's business, to occupy a space equal to the space taken by this announcement.
The judges will be the Editors of the Courier-News and Daily Press. The conditions will be as follows:
The advertisement as written should be sent to the office of the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., with a separate sheet of paper attached, bearing the writer's name, and name of the school he or she attends. Both sheets thus submitted will be numbered by the Company in the order received, and the sheet bearing the name of the contestant will be held by the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., and the advertisement with the corresponding number will be sent to the judges, so that the judges will have no knowledge of the name of the writer. The advertisement which is decided to be the best will be so marked, and sent to the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company, who will by reference to the sheets in their possession, determine the name of the successful contestant.
The contest will end May 30, all letters received up to midnight of that day being eligible to the competition.

TEN ACRES OF TENTS.

Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' Circus is a Town in Itself.

When the Great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' circus is under canvas it covers ten acres of ground. It is a city in itself, operating its own postoffice, electric lighting plant, hotel, library, hospital, club rooms and all the various shops found in a small city.

Over 4,000 pancakes, 200 dozen eggs, 500 pounds of pork chops, 100 gallons of coffee, 200 pounds of butter and 10 bushels of potatoes are a few of the items that figures in the serving of a single breakfast in the great canvas dining room. A corps of sixty-five cooks, chefs and waiters are employed.

The show maintains its own dynamo plant, where electricity is generated for 4,000 lights. The various exhibition tents, dressing rooms and shops are as brilliantly lighted as the finet theatre in the country. The grounds are illuminated by search-lights and electric beacons. Gas, generated on the grounds, is also used to soften the intensity of the electric chandeliers in the main pavilion. Calciums, traveling spotlights and various devices for spectacular effects are also employed. Every cage in the menagerie is studded with incandescent globes. Arc lamps hang above the pens.

This circus town has a population of 1,000 people, 600 horses and 780 animals. When the show is in transit the home of this strange family is a train one mile in length, which is cut into several sections. In a single season the show travels approximately 35,000 miles, making stops in about 200 cities. One year's tour may extend from coast to coast and from Canada to Mexico.

This circus is fifty years old. With the passing of every year it has come forth brighter, bigger and better. Now it stands pre-eminent among the tented amusement enterprises of the world. It is considered by circus organizers as the pattern of perfection. There is not a show in the country that does not attempt to imitate it. When it comes to Plainfield on Friday, June 9, after an absence of several seasons, it will not be recognized by its oldest friends, so greatly has it been enlarged and improved. With its new equipment, costing $3,200,000 it is now a superb institution, as superior to other shows as day is to night.

The new parade is a marvel of extravagance. It is more than three miles in length. The reorganized menagerie is another surprise. The student of natural history will find that it is a veritable library, with no specimen missing from the zoological chain. On the list of performers there are only names new to America. It takes 350 of the world's best artists to give the show.

To Observe Anniversary.

Under the auspices of the Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, of which Rev. Dr. M. W. Vaughan is pastor, the sixteenth anniversary was celebrated yesterday at the church. There were special services at 1, 3 and 8 o'clock, with a number of speakers at each one from this city and out of town.

SCHOOL EXERCISES

burn, Jean Reid, pupils of grade 2b, Arthur Attlee and a final chorus, "Tenting Tonight," by the school.

At the Franklin School, Miss Noel J. Bullock made an address and the following program was rendered: "Song of the Free," school; "Hail Columbia," school; "Old Glory," school; salute to the flag; song, "Flag of the Free," school; "Barbara Frietchie," school; "Tenting Tonight," school; address, Captain William Hand; song, "Angel of Peace," school; song, "America," school.

In addition to the address by J. N. Bogart at the Irving School, a program of patriotic exercises was given by the pupils which included "Hail Columbia," salute to the flag, "Off With Your Hat," by Irwin Taylor; song, "Battle Cry of Freedom," school; flag exercise, by eighteen pupils of grade 4b; Lincoln's Gettysburg address read by Richard Borden; "Memorial Day," Elsie Leighs, Elsie Vail, Helen Rice, Jessie Ross, Eleanor Blake, Margaret Caskey; song, "Marching Through Georgia," school.

All the exercises were well attended many parents helping their children to swell the choruses in the patriotic hymns.

At the North Plainfield High School Captains William C. Smith, J. N. Bogert and Ludlow, assisted by W. W. Coriell, J. W. Coddington, and John Goodman, and others helped to bring the true meaning of the day to the pupils. The exercises took place at 11:45 o'clock this morning.

DRY CLEANING TALK
Number 4
The Pressers and Finishers

Those who have read our Dry Cleaning Talks are aware by this time that there is something to Dry Cleaning.

After the garments have been properly dusted and passed through their proper bath, properly dried, spotted, etc., they reach the Finishing Department.

It is the duty of this Department to prepare the work for return, also largely to inspect, proving the previous work.

Our Finishing Department is our pride and we know it is efficient. Our ever increasing trade confirms this fact. Send your next work to us.

GEORGE A. NEAL DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

George A. Neal, son of the late Samuel J. Neal, died at 7 o'clock this morning in Muhlenberg Hospital, to which he was admitted only two days ago. He had been suffering from a complication of troubles for the past six months, principally dropsy and rheumatism, but had been able to attend to business. He suffered a severe relapse last Saturday and sank rapidly until the end.

Mr. Neal was a native of the borough and had always resided within its limits. He was associated with his father in the rag carpet weaving business and succeeded the latter after his death nine years ago. Their stand was originally in the basement, where Rowley's drug store now is and was moved by the son to Exchange alley after the father died. Mr. Neal was about forty years old and had a wide acquaintance in the city and borough. He is survived by a stepmother, who was Miss Rachael Rutan; an aunt, Mrs. Sbizer, and an uncle, George W. Neal, all residing in North Plainfield.

The funeral will be held at his late residence, 177 Duer street, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson. Burial will be in the family plot in the North Plainfield cemetery.

FABER'S LOFT WINS THE 300 MILE RACE

The three hundred mile homing pigeon race held on Saturday under the auspices of the Plainfield Homing Pigeon Fanciers Club was won by Charles E. Faber's birds, with D. C. Anderson's birds a close second. Robert S. Parsons, whose birds finished first in the 100 and 200-mile races, finished third. The flight was from Faber, Va., and was an especially hard race, owing to a strong east wind which the birds had to face nearly the entire distance. When they reached their different lofts they were a tired lot of birds, but still game.

Six members of the club entered in all about 130 birds in the race. They were liberated at Faber at 9 o'clock in the morning, and Mr. Faber's bird, the first one in, reached its loft at 6:16 o'clock in the evening. Considering the adverse weather conditions the time made was excellent. Mr. Faber's wining bird travelled an average speed of 952.46 yards per minute, while Mr. Anderson's bird, finishing second, covered 952.29 yards average speed per minute.

PERSONAL.

Thomas O. Sullivan, of Park avenue, is recovering from a recent illness.

Andrew Carney, of Lincoln place, who is seriously ill with pneumonia, is improving.

James Harper, of Manning avenue, who has been seriously ill for the past few weeks, is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pierson and son, of Jersey City, are visiting relatives in the borough and city for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Smith, of Craig place, have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Beebe Sisson, of Wareham, Mass.

William Kissam, of Little Neck, L. I., was a visitor at the home of his sister, Mrs. M. C. Barkalew, of 85 Duer street, yesterday.

Mrs. John Ackerman, of Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Harry Winckler, of New York city, are visiting the Misses Winckler, of Grove street.

Miss Esther Jones and Miss Cornelia McKee, of Brooklyn, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Leader, of Duer street. Miss McKee and Mrs. Leader are sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Baker, of Elizabeth, were the guests yesterday of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. VanEmburgh, of East Second street. Mrs. VanEmburgh and Mrs. Baker are sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Texier, of Chatham street, are the parents of an eight-pound baby boy who arrived at their home early this morning. Mrs. Texier was formerly Miss Nettie Weiss, of the borough.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Haynes, of Craig place, left Saturday for Lake Hopatcong where they will occupy their cottage "Chotola," for the summer. Clarence Teel will also be at the cottage through the heated term, commuting from Nolan's Point to New York.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES AT ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH

With reverent decorium, most edifying to the large congregation that filled St. Joseph's church yesterday morning, a class of over 100 boys and girls made their first communion at the 8:30 o'clock mass, celebrated by the pastor, Rev. Father Miller. The children dressed in white and ornamented with garlands of flowers marched in procession from the church hall and supplemented by over a hundred of the older children of the parish, who also received Holy Communion at the mass, formed a pageant of youth, loveliness and innocence inspiring to all beholders.

At the evening service at 8:00 o'clock over forty young girls were received by the pator, Rev. W. H. Miller, into the Sodality of the Immaculate Conception after which the beautiful ceremony of the crowning of the statue of the Blessed Virgin took place. After several suitable addresses to the Blessed Lady by some of the young women of the Sodality, the May Queen placed a beautiful garland of flowers on the brow of the statue of the Heavenly Queen, while all the members sang the crowning hymn. A forcible sermon appropriate to this brilliant and solemn closing of the May devotion was then delivered by the pastor.

Benediction of Blessed Sacrament followed bringing to a fitting close the inspiring ceremonies which in all probability will be handed down in the annals of the parish as the last first communion class and reception into the Sodality and the final crowning of Our Lady's statue held in the old church edifice.

RESOLUTIONS ON DEATH OF MRS. HUNTINGTON.

At the meeting of the relief committee of the Charity Organization Society the following resolutions on the death of Mrs. Samuel Huntington were passed:

The relief committee of the Charity Organization Society of Plainfield and North Plainfield has met with an irreparable loss in the death, on May 19, 1911, of Mrs. Samuel Huntington. For years Mrs. Huntington was a member of the board of managers and the executive committee of the Relief Association and latterly a member of this committee, (as well as a member of the board of trustees). At these meetings she brought a conscientious, intelligent and sympathetic interest in all matters presented for consideration. Faithful and punctual in her attendance, she was an inspiring and encouraging presence.

This committee desires to express and place on record its appreciation and sorrow as well as sympathy with Miss Huntington and Mr. Huntington.

"Her place we may not well supply though we among a thousand try with vain endeavor."

For the committee: Kathleen Ryder, chairman pro-tem.

Funeral of Mrs. Goodfellow.

The funeral services of Mrs. Preston B. Goodfellow were held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Temple Baptist church, and were largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. E. C. Conover, pastor of the church, officiated. Mrs. Goodfellow was a member of the Temple Baptist church for several years and was an exemplary Christian. Resolutions of condolence were passed at the church service yesterday morning and a copy will be sent to the family. The burial was in Hillside cemetery and nephews acted as pallbearers.

Curtain Caught Fire.

A curtain in the restaurant of Wilhams & Co., at 318 Liberty street, blew against a gas jet, last night, causing a slight fire. An alarm from box 46 at 8:14 brought a rush of apparatus from three houses and the blaze was put in less time than it takes to tell it. The loss is trifling. The alarm for the Hobbie fire on Hillside avenue was received just as the apparatus returned to their various stations.

Cross Goes to Hall.

Howard A. Cross, who has been for some time clerk in the Hotel Kensington, and who came from the Hotel Kenmore, New York city, resigned his position this morning to accept a similar post in Truell Hall. Mr. Cross has had many years' experience in the hotel business and has made many friends during his time at the Kensington.

The regular meeting of the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church, will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the lecture room of the church.

WILSON ACADEMY NO MATCH FOR BORO HIGH

The North Plainfield High School team defeated the Wilson Academy team on Saturday afternoon by a score of 14 to 1. Thirteen fielding errors marked the play of the visitors to Hyde Field and Townley pitched one of the best games he has ever put up, only three hits being recorded by the Academy boys. Their lone run was scored by Barlinger, who got around on a single, a stolen base and a single by Robertson. For the borough boys Bodin cracked out a home run in the second with two men on the bags. Dunning, Krewson and B. Taylor starred for the North Plainfield boys. Walter Hamilton umpired the game and gave general satisfaction.

Big Crowd at Meeting.

The second Y. M. C. A. open air meeting attracted a crowd of fully 500 people at Front street and Madison avenue Saturday night. The addresses by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire and Rev. C. C. Caine were attentively listened to, also the musical numbers by Edward Young and Edward Brunn. The speakers next Saturday night will be Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, and Dev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church.

Railroad Bridge Fire.

Locomotive sparks started a slight fire on the Park avenue railroad bridge at 12:20 thtis noon. A hose wagon responded to a still alarm and extinguished the flames.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Fifty thousand visited the American warships at Copenhagen.

A heavy windstorm which swept Pekin, Ill., killed two persons.

One man was killed and three were injured in a motorcycle race in Chicago.

Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria was reported to be in much better health.

A military field mass for the Spanish war dead was celebrated in Washington.

Henry M. MacCracken, chancellor emeritus of New York University, returned from a year's trip around the world.

The first day of the Portuguese election passed quietly; the government was prepared to deal with any outbreak.

Dr. Clifford, of London, preached at the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, New York, chatting afterward with John D. Rockefeller.

It is expected that the United States Supreme Court will hand down its decisions in the Tobacco Trust case today.

A "little mother," thirteen years old, in New York, asked the court to find her father, who had deserted his three children.

The Italian aviator Cirri was killed by a fall of 650 feet in the presence of a crowd of 20,000, in which was the victim's family.

Preparations were completed for the marching of several thousand Civil War veterans in the Memorial Day parade in New York tomorrow.

The annual military mass was celebrated in the Brooklyn Navy Yard in memory of the soldier and sailor dead, 30,000 people attending.

The Dreamland fire ruins attracted 350,000 people to Coney Island; not a few of the burned out shows resumed business in tents or the open air.

A president of a motorcycle club was fatally hurt between Rochester and Canandaigua when he ran into an automobile driven by a New York man.

A gang of burglars drove a family from their home in Harlem and began to plunder the place. The police arrested three men, after a revolver fight.

A five-year old girl in New York found her parents dead, a case of murder and suicide, and went to her grandmother's two blocks away, and summoned aid.

A dispatch from Washington stated that for the first time in the history of the service the Postoffice Department would show a surplus for the present year.

Three boys who had returned to Kittanning, Penn., late at night after an outing were burned to death when a stable, in which they had gone to sleep was destroyed.

A Chilian mob burned the Peruvian flag, avenging a rumored attack on a Chilian consulate; the American Consul was asked to protect Peruvian interests at Iquique, Chili.

Thomas A. Fulton, chairman of the General Committee on Water Supply, of New York, said the true solution of the water problem lay in the prevention of leakage and waste.

Charles J. Glidden and J. J. Van Valkenburg made a baloon trip from Lowell to Topsfield, Mass., where they attended church, in accordance with a promise made to friends before their ascent.

President Taft made a personal call on the owner of a power boat which was run down in the Potomac River by the Dolphin, the flagship of the Secretary of the Navy, aboard which was Miss Helen Taft.

Twelve aviators started from Paris on a race of 1,300 miles to Turin for prizes aggregating $100,000; the lesson of last week's tragedy was shown in the careful removal of spectators from the danger zone.

Will Have Class Initiation.

The Modern Woodmen of America will have a class of ten for adoption this evening and will use the new officers' robes and foresters' uniforms for the first time. Delegates from Brooklyn, Newark and Elizabeth will assist in exemplifying the work. All resident and sojourning Woodmen are invited to be in the Forest when the camp fires are lighted at 8:30 o'clock.

Churchmen's Festival.

The Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest at its regular meeting in the parish house last night decided to hold its regular summer festival on Saturday, June 17. A baseball game will start things in the afternoon and in the evening the Women's Guild will give a lawn fete at which refreshments will be served.

Hospital Wants a Bicycle.

Muhlenberg Hospital is very much in need of a man's bicycle and any person having one that they would like to donate to the institution can feel assured that it would be appreciated. The wheel is needed to run errands, it being a great time-saver.

George Mellick, of Summit avenue, who was injured three weeks ago while riding a bicycle, is improving.

This Boiler is a Coal Saver

Why? Because it is a BOYNTON and has the BOYNTON square fire pot, which increases fire surface about 25% over other boilers of like diameter. The BOYNTON "square pot" is the greatest improvement yet devised in heating systems. It is square at the corners, hence clears free of cinders and ash each time the grate is turned. That means a live fire, always, and plenty of draft. See your dealer about the

MOSQUITO SOON TO DISAPPEAR

Continued hope for ultimate success in the fight that New Jersey is making for the extermination of the mosquito was held out in a lecture by State Entomogolist John B. Smith before the members of the Bellville Board of Trade Friday night. Mr. Smith said that he was "neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet," but he did not think the time was far off when the mosquito nuisance would be practically abolished.

The professor used lantern slides in illustration of his talk. Some of the pictures showed the way ditching and draining are being done on the Kearny meadows, while others showed the Newark mosquito fighters spreading oil, particularly in sewer basins. Mr. Smith said that not until about the middle of May were the people in this section bothered to any great extent with mosquitoes. At that time, he added, the breeding place on the Kearny meadows, that had been overlooked was discovered. Much progress was being made toward stamping out this breeding place, he stated, but mosquitoes from there got such a good start that for the last few weeks they have been causing more or less annoyance. They are capable of flying, he stated, forty miles.

Some of these meadow-bred Kearny mosquitoes, the professor declares, are disturbing the comfort of people as far west as Plainfield.

In speaking of the work being done by Newark under the direction of John W. Dobbins, Mr. Smith told of a device gotten up for the perpetual oiling of sewer catch basins. It consisted of an oil can with a long wick hanging over. From this wick, oil would constantly drip. The device was fastened to the top of the sewer basin. Mr. Smith commented that the device, theoretically, was a fine one, but no reckoning had been made of the fact that in some parts of Newark sewer basins were used as depositories of old bedding and baby carriages. So the scheme was not altogether a success.

In the sewer basins, particularly in Newark, last year, the professor added, were bred millions of mosquitoes. They appeared small and half-grown toward the end of the summer, getting through screens for feasts on sleepers. No such breed, he predicted, will appear this year, as the sewer basins are being carefully attended to.

Mr. Smith said that in certain parts of the State, through the persistent work of ditching, draining and oiling, the mosquito nuisance has been practically eliminated.

W. Brand Smith, health inspector of Belleville, showed some slides of township breeding places, including a pool at Little and Main streets, holes on the property of the Hudson County Water Company and a body of water off Chestnut street. Dr. Herbert B. Vail explained the work that was being done by the township health board, under the personal direction of the inspector, toward killing off breeding.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Powlison, of Summit avenue, are entertaining relatives from New York State.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Chapman and children, of Grove street, left today for Meriden, Conn., where they will visit relatives.

Mrs. A. M. Saunders, of Westervelt avenue, who has been seriously ill with the grip since last December, is convalescing.

PROPOSING TO A GIRL.

A German calculator says that 36 per cent. of the suitors press the hand of the fair one. 24 per cent. concludt their avowal with an embrace, 4 per cent, kiss the hair, 2 per cent. kiss the hand, 2 per cent. are so nervous that they feel a lump in the throat which they find almost prevents speech.

Ten per cent. of the men are so overcome that they cannot speak at all, but open and shut their mouths without producing a sound, and 2 per cent. make their proposals standing on one foot.

As regads the women, 60 per cent. sink helpless into the lover's arms, 20 per cent. blush and hide their faces, 1 per cent, faint away, 4 per cent. are genuinely amazed, 14 per cent gaze silently into the suitor's eyes and 1 per cent. run away to tell a girl friend.

The great statistician, however, omits to tell us how he obtained his figures.

Hopping John.

Boil one cup of cow peas with a piece of bacon. When the peas are thoroughly done, but not mushy, drain the water off. At the same time boil separately a cup and a half of rice. When done mix together. Skim off grease from the top of the pot the peas were boiled in. Put over the mixture pepper and salt. Put in the oven to dry out and serve around fried sausage.

Bright side Social.

This evening at 8 o'clock Brightside Circle of the King's Daughters will hold a "Stunt" social at the residence of Mrs. J. A. Powlison, 203 Somerset street. All members of the circle and their friends are cordially invited to attend.

CHAPTER XXX.

THE SURCHARGED MOMENT.

THE moment I felt Sweetwater's hand lifted from my shoulder I sprang into the first hack I could find and bade the driver follow the Cumberland sleigh post-haste. I was determined to see Carmel and have Carmel see me. Whatever cold judgment might say against the meeting, I could not live in my present anxiety. If the thunderbolt which had struck her had spared her life and reason she must know from my own lips that I was not only a free man, but as innocent of the awful charge conveyed in Sweetwater's action as was the brother, who had just been acquitted of it by the verdict of his peers.

I must declare this, and she must believe me. Nothing else mattered—nothing else in all the world. That Arthur might stop me, that anything could stop me, did not disturb my mind for a minute. All that I dreaded was that I might find myself too late, that this second blow might have proved to be too much for her and that I should find my darling dead or passed from me into that living death which was the harder punishment of the two. But I was spared this killing grief. When our two conveyances stopped it was in the driveway of her old home, and as I bounded upon the walk it was to see her again in Arthur's arms, but this time with open eyes and horror drawn features.

"Carmel!" rushed in a cry from my lips. "Don't believe what they say! I cannot bear it—I cannot bear it!"

She roused; she looked my way and, struggling to her feet, held back Arthur with one hand while she searched my face, and possibly searched her own soul, for answer to my plea. Never was moment more surcharged. Further word I could not speak. I could only meet her eyes with the steady, demanding look of a despairing heart, while Arthur, moved in every fiber of his awakened manhood, waited, thinking, perhaps, how few minutes had passed since he hung upon the words of a fellow being for his condemnation to death or release to the freedom which he now enjoyed.

"DON'T BELIEVE WHAT THEY SAY."

A moment! But what an eternity before I saw the rigid lines of her white, set face relax—before I marked the play of human if not womanly emotion break up the misery of her look and soften her lips into some semblance of their old expression. Love might be dead, friendship, even, be a thing of the far past, but consideration was still alive, and in another instant it spoke in these trembling sentences, uttered across a threshold made sacred by a tragedy involving our three lives:

"Come in and explain yourself. No man should go unheard. I know you will not come where Adelaide's spirit yet lingers if you cannot bring hands clean from all actual violence."

I motioned my driver away, and as Carmel drew back out of sight I caught at Arthur's arm and faced him with the query:

"Are you willing that I should enter? I only wish to declare to her and to you an innocence I have no means of proving, but which you cannot disbelieve if I swear it, here and now, by your sister Carmel's sacred disfigurement. Such depravity could not exist as such a vow from the lips guilty of the crime you charge me with. Look at me, Arthur. I considered you; now consider me."

Quickly he stepped back. "Enter," said he.

It was some minutes later—I cannot say how many—that one of the servants disturbed us by asking if we knew anything about Zadok.

"He has not come home," said he, "and here is a man who wants him."

"What man?" asked Arthur.

"Oh, that detective chap. He never will leave us alone."

I arose. In an instant enlightenment had come to me. "It's nothing," said I, with my eyes on Carmel, but the gesture I furtively made Arthur said otherwise.

A few minutes later we were both in the driveway. "We are on the brink of a surprise," I whispered. "I think I understand this Sweetwater now."

Zadok could not be found. He was wanted by the district attorney, who wished to put some questions to him. Were there any objections to his searching the stable loft for indications of his whereabouts?

Arthur made none, and the detective, after sending the Cumberlands' second man before him to light up the stable, disappeared beneath the great door, whither we more slowly followed him.

"Not here!" came in a shout from above as we stepped in from the night air, and in a few minutes the detective came running down the stairs, baffled and very ill at ease. Suddenly he encountered my eye. "Oh, I know!" he cried and started for the gate.

"I am going to follow him," I confided to Arthur. "Look for me again tonight, or at least expect a message. If fortune favors us, as I now expect, we two shall sleep tonight as we have not slept for months." And, waiting for no answer, not even to see if he comprehended my meaning, I made a run for the gate and soon came up with Sweetwater.

"To the cemetery?" I asked.

"Yes; to the cemetery."

And there we found him in the same place where we had seen him before, but not in the same position. He was sunken now to the ground, but his face was pressed against the rails, and in his stiff, cold hand was clutched a letter which afterward we read.

Let it be read by you here. It will explain the mystery which came near destroying the lives of more than Adelaide:

"No more unhappy wretch than I goes to his account. I killed her who had shown me only goodness and will be the death of others if I do not confess my dreadful, my unsuspected secret. This is how it happened. I cannot give reasons. I cannot even ask for pardon.

"That night, just as I was preparing to leave the stable to join the other servants on their ride to Tibbitt's hall, the telephone rang, and I heard Miss Cumberland's voice. 'Zadok,' she said, and at first I could hardly understand her, 'I am in trouble. I want help, and you are the only one who can aid me.'

"I had been with her many years, and I loved her as well as I could love anybody, though you won't think it when I tell you my whole story. What she wanted was this: I was to go to the ball just as if nothing had happened, but I was not to stay there. As soon as I could I was to slip out, get a carriage from some nearby stable and hurry back up the road to meet her and take her where she would tell me or, if I did not meet her, to wait two houses below hers till she came along. She would not want me long and very soon I could go back and have as good a time as I pleased. But she would like me to be secret, for her errand was not one for gossip, even among her own servants. I even tried to do better and be even more secret about it than she expected. Instead of going to a stable, I took one of the rigs which I found fastened up in the big shed alongside the hall, and, being so fortunate as not to attract anybody's attention by this business, I was out on the road and half way to the Whispering Pines before Helen and Maggie could wonder why I had not asked them to dance.

"A few minutes later I was on the hill, for the horse I had chosen was a fast one, and I was just turning into our street when I was passed by Mr. Arthur's gray mare and cutter. This made me pull up for a minute, for I hadn't expected this, but on looking ahead and seeing Miss Cumberland peering from our own gateway I drove quickly on and took her up.

"I was not so much astonished as you would think to be ordered to follow fast after the mare and cutter and to stop where it stopped. That was all she wanted—to follow that cutter and to stop where it stopped. Well, it stopped at the clubhouse, and when she saw it turn in there I heard her give a little moan.

SCHOOLS CONDEMNED AS UNSANITARY

The superintendent of public schools in Passaic county recently condemned twenty-nine of the forty-seven district schoolhouses in that county, outside of the cities of Paterson and Passaic.

Some were defective because of the bad arrangement of the lights, which means that the children's eyes may be seriously affected and their usefulness in life greatly impaired by diseased eyes or defective vision.

Other buildings were badly ventilated and some were so unsanitary that they will have to be destroyed. All the ten school-houses in one township were condemned as unsuitable. In one building the scholars could hardly escape if fire broke out; in others the children are so crowded together that 200 are huddled in rooms intended for only 135.

The superintendent has done Passaic county a great service, but it is doubtful if this is appreciated. The unsanitary, unclean, badly ventilated buildings mean that consumption and typhoid and other diseases are offered to the scholars along with common school education. They mean the physical unfitting, through dust and dirt and disease germs, of scores of pupils whom the teachers are striving to intellectually fit for usefulness in coming years.

This condition of affairs has long continued in Passaic county—so long that the superintendent can tolerate it no longer. He has time and again notified the district school authorities that something must be done, and they have ignored his official notices. They probably do not want to spend the money necessary to put the buildings in proper order. The facts are now before the State superintendent, who will examine into the conditions, and, if he concurs with the county superintendent, will withhold the State school appropriations. This would practically close every one of the condemned school buildings until they are cleaned and put in proper condition.

Passaic isn't the only county whose school buildings have been both disgraceful and dangerous. There are specimens of the same kind to be found in nearly every county.

There seems to be many district school officials who think that the old schoolhouses are sacred, even though rotten and unclean. "What was good enough for grandfather and father and me is good enough for my children," is their argument. But they don't think so about their barns, their granries, their hogpens and their grainaries, their hogpens and mighty poor citizens. The country schoolhouses ought to be up to date in size and in sanitation, and, if they are not, the county superintendents are right in compelling the district authorities to make them so, even though the taxes are thus raised a point or two.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Chauncey Olcott in Augustus Pitou's sperb production of "Barry of Ballymore," is announced as the attraction at the Plainfield theatre, Thursday night, June 1. The reports of the production that have heralded its coming are extremely flattering both to the star and the play. A pretty romantic tale of Irish chivalry have been woven into it the characters of that brilliant period of nearly two centuries ago in Ireland when the land was dotted with the homes of the nobility and the times developed more strange characters than perhaps any other epoch in the country's history. As a young Irish artist, fighting for the right of a young girl, Chauncey Olcott gives an impersonation of one of the most fascinating of types. In this line of character work, he stands alone. His rare personality, wonderful musical talent and intelligent analysis of such roles make him unique as an actor and easily the best in his line in our day.

Cyril Brown Honored.

Cyril Brown, son of Mrs. Alice S. Brown, and a nephew of Mrs. E. A. Janke and Mrs. A. P. Tovell, of this city, who is a junior at Yale University, has just been accorded high honor by being elected to membership in Phi Beta Kappa, the scholarship society at Yale. Mr. Brown has attained a very high standing in his studies and his friends are pleased with recognition of the fact. Mr. Brown was a graduate of the Plainfield High School.

Services at Calvary Baptist.

Rev. W. H. Skipwith addressed the Sunday-school at the Calvary Baptist church, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and at 3:30 o'clock spoke to women only. At 7 o'clock in the evening a missionary meeting was held by the deacons and trustees. Fourteen new members were received at the church Friday night. Rev. Mr. Skipwith will close his services here June 2, at which time there will be baptism.

Lawn Fete in June.

The Young Women's Guild of the Church of the Holy Cross will hold a June fete in the parish house on Friday, June 2, at which a fine musical program will be given. Among the attractions will be a "Chinese Laundry," and a fortune teller a la gypsy. The proceeds will go to the guild fund.

THE HOSPITAL.

Where would you rather be, in front of trouble, in trouble, or back of trouble? Give me back of trouble. Some people's money gives them trouble. Here is a house that is so large and good it is making trouble. So if you will unload some of your trouble, and get this fellow out of trouble you will put yourself out of trouble, or back of trouble, or in a nice cool spot back of the Hospital.

MY DEAR SICK PEOPLE—I hope you feel worse this morning. For not one of you knew that I was not talking to hear myself when I told you I had the best built house you ever saw. I meant it. I sold two of them yesterday and now I will give anyone, who will take the trouble to go to Summer avenue near George street and see these two houses $10 if they will come back and dare tell me if they ever saw such lumber put in any house in Plainfield, especially one for sale.

TROUBLE.

Speaking of trouble, here is an 25 acre farm with square buildings on; the mortgage or trouble is $2,500; on account of this trouble, the price is $3,200. Will give you a deed for it, if it is not worth it.

WON IN THE SIXTH

Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Nine Defeats Raritan Aggregation on Crescent Oval.

The sixth inning proved to be the lucky one for the Y. M. C. A team at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon as in that session the local boys got to Raritan for a total of seven hits and five runs. Evans led off with a pretty single and went to third when Trotter banged out his only hit of the day. Marsh sent both home with a bingle to left and Hand sent a screaming two-bagger to the same garden scoring Trotter.

Dorman, the next man up, biffed the pellet for a two-bagger and Hand came in and the agony stopped.

Frederickson, who struck out sixteen men, Evans and Schoonmaker, were the stars of the game. Evans' one-handed stop of a throw by Hand, in the fourth was of big league calibre. He accepted four chances without an error.

Frederickson let down a little in Raritan's ninth, but tightened up when it began to look dangerous.

For Raritan Purcell, at the first sack, played a fine game accepting ten chances in fine style. Porter, the visitors' pitcher, gave the only two bases on balls of the game and also struck Hand in the ribs with a swift inshoot.

SATURDAY'S RESULTS ON COUNTRY CLUB LINKS

Ideal weather conditions attracted a large field to the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, to engage in the play for the 18-holes, medal play, handicap, for Classes A and B. Although the course is very dry for lack of rain, it is in excellent condition, making low scores possible. During the afternoon there was a tea at the clubhouse and in the evening the weekly dinner-dance was enjoyed by a large number of members and guests. These scores were returned in the competition:

Class A—William T. Kaufman, 85, 15-70; D. H. Rowland, 89, 15-74; W. T. Glenney, 82, 5-77; O. W. Gott, 94, 12-82; R. G. Morse, 96, 13-83.

Class B—W. F. Merrill, 97, 25-72; C. M. Church, 93, 20-73; R. B. Corey, 99, 24-75; G. F. Earl, 94, 18-76; C. C. Riggs, 95, 16-79; L. H. Gates, 102, 22-80; A. W. Kleinecke, 107, 25-82.

SOME COMPETITION AT PARK GOLF CLUB

There was an unusually large field of golfers out at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, and the weekly competition for the President's and golf club cups was spirited and full of interest. A. M. Morrel returned the lowest card for the handicap cup, a 79, and Charles B. Morse, was a close second and H. L. Moody third. For the scratch trophy, W. E. Lough was low with a 98, Dr. H. K. Carroll was second with a score of 100 and U. G. Tingley finished third with a 101. These scores were returned:

A. M. Morrel, 106, 27-79; C. B. Morse, 105, 17-88; H. L. Moody, 120, 31-89; U. G. Tingley, 101, 19-91; Alexander Gilbert, 112, 1-93; J. V. Beekman, 117, 22-95; W. E. Lough, 98, 17-81; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 100, 11-89; Samuel Townsend, 109, 20-89; A. N. Morison, 118, 26-92; R. V. Carpenter, 107, 14-93; Harold Serrell, 110, 15-95. In the women's competition, nine holes, these scores were posted: Miss Bessie TenEyck, 75, 21-54; Miss Grace A. TenEyck, 63, 3-60.

The Pastor's Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church will hold a strawberry and ice cream festival at the church, Friday afternoon and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hill, of Bridgeport, Conn., were the guests over Sunday of Mrs. Craft, of Kensington avenue. Mrs. Hill was formerly Miss Catharine Uttey, of New York.

WALLOP DUNELLEN

Plainfield's Nine Wins Contest With Ease, the Score Being 8 to 0.

The Dunellen baseball team received a severe jolt Saturday afternoon on its own grounds, when the Plainfield Baseball Club, administered a generous coat of whitewash. The final score was 8 to 0. Wendt, Dunellen's twirler, was really responsible for the tallies in the first two innings by his wildness. He issued passes to the first three men, and the same three scored through misplays. In the next inning, Cosgrove got his base by being hit, and although Driscoll failed to advance him, Harter drew a pass and Dalton sent them both home with a drive over short.

Nonemaker and Hobson helped their team to lose the contest by misplays, but later Hobson did some good infield work. Probably the most brilliant work of the game was that of Dalton at third. This popular player, who will be remembered as a former member of the Plainfield team, made several sensational stops and he was also there with the stick.

Driscoll, Dalton and Nelson divided the put outs up to the eighth inning, and the trio gave a fine exhibition of the national game. "Jimmie" Montross, who was in the box for Plainfield, was as steady as clockwork, allowing but six hits and fanning six men. Not once did he waver or show any signs of weakening.

Plainfield tallied another run in the eighth inning and two more in the ninth by good stick work, combined with fumbles on the part of Dunellen. Barnes, who formerly played first base for Plainfield, was on the initial sack for Dunellen, and he succeeded in getting one hit.

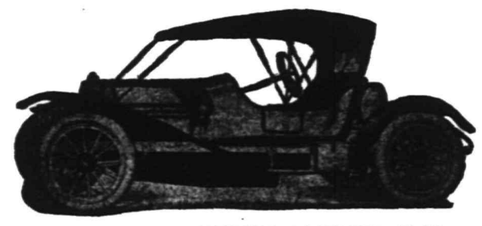
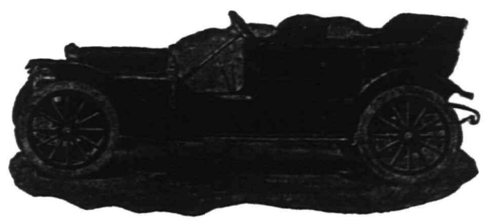
A Manufacturing Conundrum



MODEL G—2-PASSENGER ROADSTER—$1,000

Our customers often ask us how we are able to make a car as good as the DE TAMBLE at the prices we charge; using as we do the very best material, the most approved designs and employing only skilled workmen. It really is surprising even to us.



MODEL H—5-PASSENGER TOURING CAR—$1,150

Most cars of the prices we charge for the DE TAMBLE are lacking in some particular quality. They are either poorly made, lacking in style or are noisy on the road. But the DE TAMBLE is none of these.
By our system of manufacture, making all our parts, we are able to shave the profits usually paid to parts manufacturers, and at the same time have a better product and a more harmonious whole.
When we say the DE TAMBLE is the best car ever made at moderate price, we are stating the facts very mildly.
This low-priced quality combination should be especially attractive, and we would be pleased to open negotiations with those who are in need of a medium-priced car.
Write us at once for information.

JONES WINS RACE

Walrob Makes Fastest Time in Twenty-Five Mile Bicycle Road Race.

More than 2,000 spectators lined the course along Mountain avenue yesterday morning when the annual road race of the Plainfield Cycling Club was started. The course was twenty-five miles, including two turns, six and a quarter miles out and back twice. Gus Walrob, of Jersey City, one of the scratch men, made the distance in the fastest time ever recorded for the race, one hour and three minutes. He was closely pressed by Franklin Fisher, of the I. A. A., of New York, whose time was just fifteen seconds slower. Willie Simon, who had a handicap of seven minutes was timed at one hour and fifteen minutes, a creditable performance for a boy.

Gifford Jones was the first man in. He had a handicap of five minutes and his actual time was one hour and five minutes. The way the men finished and those who won prizes follow:

HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS TO GIVE A CONCERT.

The twelfth annual concert of the Plainfield High School will be given on Saturday night. "Ruth," a sacred cantata by Alfred Gaul and "Patience," one of the Gilbert and Sullivan successes are to be rendered. Miss Ruth D. Sadler and Mrs. Clarence Cooney, of New York will be among the soloists.

The soloists in the cantata will be Misses Ancona Tillotson, Eunice Eckert, Katharine Smink and Roy E. Titsworth.

"Patience" will be presented with elaborate costumes and suitable stage settings. Luther Banks, Burnett Doane, Felix Janke, Samuel Howe, Jr., Roy Titsworth, Margaret Hutchinson and Susan Bennett, are among the singers to present this opera.

NORTH PLAINFIELD TIGERS DEFEAT WAYSIDE PARK TEAM

The North Plainfield Tigers defeated the crack Wayside Park team at Dunellen, yesterday afternoon by a score of 7 to 6. The pitching of Leslie Stites and the backstop work of William Miller was the feature of the contest. The game was witnessed by a large crowd. In the fifth inning, a close decision resulted in a lively dispute and Marshal Davenport sought to settle it. Umpire A. B. Stites informed the marshal he would attend to all disputes and ordered the officer off the grounds. The Tigers would like to arrange games with all amateur nines, address 19 Somerset street.

West Ends Lose Two Games.

The West End A. C. journeyed to Raritan yesterday and played two games, both of which they lost. They were defeated in the morning by a score of 10 to 3 and in the afternoon by a score of 5 to 3. The battery for the West Ends in the morning was Conshay and Dixon and in the afternoon Fulton and Dixon.

In the Borough Court.

Joseph Byrnes, of Elizabeth, for riding his motorcycle without a license and failing to appear when notified, was fined $2. Oscar Nelson, who came over from Newark to visit friends and fell by the wayside, had sentence suspended on a charge of drunkeness.

S.P.C.A. GIVES PRIZES FOR THE HACK HORSES

Under the auspices of the local branch of the S. P. C. A. on Saturday afternoon prizes were awarded to the hackmen of the city for their rigs which included an examination of their animals. Albert Hankinson, a colored man won first prize, Harry Huff, coming in second, Edward Martin came in third and Harry Barry fourth. All these men will receive checks from Mrs. Stephen G. VanHoesen, special officer of the society, who together with Dr. F. C. Herbert and Councilman R. I. Tolles, judged the horses. There were 200 spectators in front of the North Avenue Station when the judging was in progress.

Last year the prizes were offered to the junkmen and the inspection took place in front of Police headquarters.

HARRY L. CAREY DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Harry L. Carey, aged thiry-eight years, son of Mrs. Emeline W. and the late Tunis J. Carey, died last night at the home of his mother, 21 Somerset place, following an illness of nearly nine months with valvular heart trouble. Toward the last he was a great sufferer and realizing that recovery was impossible, death was a welcome relief. After 9 o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Carey became unconscious, and never regained it before passing away.

Mr. Carey was born at Whitehouse, Hunterdon county, and came to this city when a baby. He practically resided here all his life. When his father, who was also former chief of police here, conducted an auction room on West Front street, Mr. Carey assisted in the business. After his father's death, he took a position as night baggagemaster at the North Avenue Station where he remained for about six years. He resigned that position to take one as lettercarrier at the local postoffice, which he held for three years. He was obliged to give up work last October on account of illness. He is survived by a mother and one brother, Alvah C. Carey, both of whom reside in this city.

The funeral will be held at the late home on Somerset place, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and will probably be conducted by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, of which the family are attendants.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT AT THE PARK GOLF CLUB.

In the mixed doubles tennis tourna ment started on the Park Golf club's courts, the results were as follows:

First round—Miss Nash and H. S Eddy defeated Miss Irene Dunham and C. J. Hand, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2; Miss Alice Barlow and Harry Woodland defeated Miss Bessie TenEyck and J. W. Hegeman, 6-3, 6-1; Miss Helen C. Moody and C. B. Morse defeated Miss Huggins and R. V. Carpenter, 6-4, 1-6, 6-2; Miss May Shreve and Dr. H. K. Carroll drew a bye. In the semi-final play Miss Nash and Mr. Eddy defeated Miss Barlow and Mr. Woodland, 6-1, 6-2. Miss Moody and Mr. Morse will play Miss Shreve and Dr. Carroll sometime during the coming week. Other tennis tournaments have also ben arranged for the coming season, in addition to the attractive golf events.

Barry of Ballymore.

"Barry of Ballymore," which will be given at the Plainfield theatre tomorrow night by Chauncey Olcott and his splendid supporting company, is the first Irish play to be produced for many years in which the story deols with the dashing Irish gentry of the early part of the eighteenth century. At this period, Gublin was one of the most fashionable centers of Europe and the country was filled with an aristocracy who did not deem it necessary to go to London to be in the social swim. The Irish capital was quite exclusive enough to please the most fastidious and the nobility of the country lived on their own lands.

Autos May Enter the Grounds.

The Plainfield Riding and Driving Club has made arrangements this year so that parties in automobiles may enter the horse show grounds with their machines. A new road has been built between the stables and the main entrance on Randolph road, and extending to a point back of the grandstand and machines may be taken in by that road. Heretofore, the club has not permitted autos to enter the grounds and the new arrangement will doubtless be greatly appreciated.

CARNIVAL CROWDS

Watchung Council's Open-Air Shows are Being Well Patronized.

More than 3,000 people attended the opening of the Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus carnival shows at Grant avenue and West Front street on Monday night and yesterday afternoon the crowd did not seem to diminish. One of the greatest attractions at the carnival is the animal show which is conduced by the managers of the Greater Monarch Shows Company, of which the Knights are justly proud. Chas. Martin, the lion tamer, whose work has been watched in all parts of the country, seemed to claim the attention of the largest crowd ever gathered on the grounds.

Several of the attractions did not meet with the approval of the city officials and they were tabooed, but on the whole the shows are of an interesting character and deserved the support of the people. The Doe sisters, whose diving and swimming acts thrill the spectators at every performance, seem to be the best swimmers some people have ever seen, judging by the remarks overheard on the outskirts of the crowd.

The matinee was attended by hundreds of children yesterday afternoon, and the small side shows attracted considerable attention. However, the swimming stunts of the young women seemed to attract the greatest amount of attention and deservingly so.

The dip and circle-wave got many customers while many of the attractions were well supported. The Knights are sure to realize a large sum in this carnival if the weather does not prove too stormy.

VETERANS' SERVICE AT SCOTCH PLAINS

An impressive Memorial Day service was held at Scotch Plains by Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R. The veterans proceeded to the 'Plains by trolley and were met at Park and Westfield avenues by the members of the fire department in uniform. School children were also in line and headed by a band the procession moved to the local burying ground.

A military service was conducted over the grave of John Hand, the first New Jersey soldier to be killed in the Civil War, during which an address was delivered by Rev. Franklin Mathiews. In this he referred to the number of men from Scotch Plains who had fought in the Revolution and the War of the Rebellion. There are seventeen of the former buried in the 'Plains cemetery and twenty-six of the latter. Mr. Mathiews called the roll of these heroes.

During the service Comrade Stryker, of Trenton, a member of the post, was overcome by heat. He was attended by Dr. F. W. Westcott and afterward brought to Plainfield. He recovered sufficiently to return home later in the day.

Edna Mayfair at Proctor's.

Edna Mayfair, the clever imitator and singing comedienne, will appear in new songs and imitations at Proctor's tomorrow. Donovan & Arnold, comedians, will present their rapid fire skit of nonsense, "Doing Well, Thank You." Gertrude McGill & Co., will appear in "Oh, You Steve," an amusing farce, and Rice & Ladell, the original "Bumpty-Bumps," will offer their breezy acrobatic comedy act.

Awards for Boreas Kennels.

The Boreas kenels, owned by the Anderson brothers, of Watchung, made a splendid showing at the Brighton bench show yesterday. Out of four entries the Boreas dogs were awarded two first and seven specials. The prizes included a cup and two medals. The show was conducted by the Long Island Kennell Club at Brighton Beach race track.

St. Stephen's Lawn Fete.

Announcement has been made that in case of rain the garden party for the benefit of St. Stephen's church, under the auspices of St. Margaret's Guild, which is to be held tomorrow from 2:30 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon will be held in the tea room instead of on the lawn. A cordial invitation is extended to all in the parish to be present.

Borough Firemen Win.

Teams representing the North Plainfield firemen and the North Plainfield Gun Club played a baseball game on the Delacy avenue grounds yesterday morning. The former won by a score of 10 to 9. The batteries were Harry Schuck and Albert Fritz for the firemen and Frank Shepard and Will Rutlegde for the gun club.

RECOGNITION SERVICE FOR REV. MR. CONOVER

Services of recognition in connection with the commencement of the pastorate of Rev. E. C. Conover at the Temple Baptist church, will be held at the church on Tuesday evening, June 13, and several pastors of the city will take part, including Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church; Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church and others.

It is planned to have Rev. J. W. Musson, a former pastor, attend and have a part in the program. There will also be special music and at the close of the exercises a reception will be given to Mr. and Mrs. Conover which will be in charge of the women and officers of the church.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD'S ATHLETIC CONTESTS

A large number of spectators witnessed the games given at South Plainfield yesterday for the benefit of the Baptist church in that village. A band of music enlivened the proceedings and the sports were thoroughly enjoyed. C. Smith, of Metuchen, won the 100 yard dash; Andrew McDonough, of this city, won the 40 yard dash and Benjamin Suydam, of Oak Tree, carried off the prize in the bicycle race. Russell Miller won the running broad jump, with a leap of 16 feet, 11 inches, while John Geary and Joseph Miller scampered away with the three legged race.

In the evening a moving picture show entertained a large audience and refreshments, which were sold on the lawn, showed a big profit. In the morning the Baraca class of the Sunday-school defeated the First Baptist church team of Plainfield, by a score of 8 to 6.

LEAGUE'S SEASON TO BEGIN SATURDAY

The Central New Jersey Baseball League, recently organized, will hold a meeting this evening at the Queen City Hotel, to perfect plans for the season which will open on Saturday. On that day the Plainfield team will play at Somerville and Bound Brook will cross bats with Scotch Plains at the latter place. It is understood that Westfield may make application for admittance to the league tonight, and efforts are also being made to secure a sixth club, which would increase the strength of the organization.

The directors of the league have about completed the schedule of games, and it is expected that it will be approved at tonight's meeting. In consequence of forming a league all of the teams are now beginning to strengthen a little.

Manager Ernest Dorflinger is planning to make a few changes in his team. It is recognized that Montross is not quite fast enough for the team as shown by his recent performances and a new twirler will probably be seen on Saturday. Driscoll, Cosgrove, Harter and Ramsberger will continue with the team and possibly one or two other positions will be strengthened so that the contests with the other league clubs will be made interesting.

Stabbed in Fight.

A stabbing affray in which Lloyd Powers, of Bound Brook, was severely injured, occurred on Monday evening shortly after 7 o'clock. It is alleged that Jack Reidy, a well known character in the town, took offense at an action of one of the members of a bathing party and mistook Powers for another man. It was said this morning that Powers was in a serious condition at the Somerset hospital, in Somerville, and might possibly die from his wounds. Reidy, it is said, ran away after the affray and has not yet been found.

Presented Old Glory.

The borough Board of Education, at its meeting Monday night, was presented with a handsome American flag by Franklin Council, No. 41. Jr. O. U. A. M. for the Watchung school. It is of excellent workmanship and measures eight by twelve feet. The presentation address was made by Thomas E. Currin, Jr., of the board, in behalf of the council, and Dr. J. H. Cooley, as president of the school trustees made a fitting response.

HORSE SHOW NEXT

Eight Annual Exhibition of the Local Club Will Begin Tomorrow.

Everything is in readiness for the opening of the eighth annual horse show tomorrow at the horse show grounds on Randolph road and Woodland avenue, and all that is needed to make the exhibition a success is favorable weather conditions. The rain of today will be a blessing, provided the next three days are clear, and that is the hope of all interested.

The thoroughbred equines, representing some of the best stock to be found in this country, are now stabled at the show grounds and are being given the finishing touches preparatory to entering the ring in competition for the valuable prizes offered.

The program for each day is an especially good one but naturally there will be more interest in the classes on Friday and Saturday, when the military mounts are scheduled to appear. This is a new feature here, the first time that the militia have been given a place on the program. In addition to the usual classes for roadsters, saddle horses and ponies, there will be the ever attractive hunters and jumpers which will close the program each day.

The club has left nothing undone to make the show better than ever and it is expected that liberal patronage will be accorded each day. There will be a large attendance of people from New York, Philadelphia, Newark and other large cities. Arrangements have been made to have the noon express out of New York stop here, to accomodate those who want to arrive here just in time for the show.

HEIM IS FINED $200 FOR SUNDAY SELLING

Amelio Burgazio, the Italian, who was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of atrocious assault on Antonio Alexander, on May 20 last, when he shot the latter following a quarrel over a game of cards in this city, was arraigned in the Union county court this morning and entered a plea of guilty. Bail was fixed at $5,000 and June 12 was fixed as the date of trial. Efforts were made by the prisoner's counsel for a reduction of bail, but the request was denied. Burgazio has also been indicated for selling liquor without a license.

Bertholde Heim, the aged proprietor of "The Maples," who was indicted on a charge of selling liquor on Sunday and who figured in the spectacular raid made by the county authorities on Sunday, April 2, was fined $200. He was represented by Francis J. Blatz, who made a strong plea for a lesser fine. He explained that Mr. Heim had sold out his business at "The Maples," and intended removing to New York State, but the court was firm and insisted on the $200 fine. Lynus Walpole, who was indicted on a similar charge, will be sentenced on June 7.

William Green, colored, found guilty of stealing a wheel in this city, in January last, entered a plea of guilty and he will be sentenced June 7.

Y. W. C. A. Outing.

Both the senior and junior departments of the Y. W. C. A. had enjoyable outings yesterday. The former picnicked at Chimney Rock, making the trip by trolley to Finderne. The juniors, ninety in number, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Ginna at Woodbrook farm on lower Park avenue. They passed the entire day on the spacious grounds and had a most delightful time. The trip was made in stages engaged for the occasion.

Miss Tapping Resigns.

Miss Amy Tapping, who has been secretary of the local Y. W. C. A. since its organization four years ago, has tendered her resignation to take effect July 15. She will then return to her home at Utica, N. Y., for an indefinite stay. The resignation was regretfully accepted by the board of directors. Miss Tapping's successor has not been named.

A Long Canoe Trip.

Arthur Humble and Stryker Hoagland, of the borough, accompanied by friends, enjoyed a forty mile canoe trip on the Raritan canal yesterday. The distance was made in good time and afforded a novel outing.

Rain at Last.

The drought was broken shortly after 6 o'clock this morning and the rain has continued almost steadily ever since. During two hours in the morning the rainfall was thirty-five one hundredths of an inch.

THIEVES MAKE HAUL AT DENTIST'S OFFICE

Dr. Albert H. Spicer, a well-known dentist of Westerly, R. I., and a brother of J. D. Spicer, of West Fifth street, suffered a loss on Sunday night, when thieves entered his office and stole about $900 worth of platinum pin teeth. With the discovery of this theft, the police learned that attempts had been made to enter other dentist's offices throughout Westerly, but with not the success that attended the effort at the home of Dr. Spicer.

Albert H. Spicer, Jr., who is associated with his father in business discovered the heavy loss when he entered the office several hours after the visit of the thieves. An investigation showed that nearly every tooth had been taken. Thus far the police have no clue upon which to work.

BOROUGH POLICE QUELL STRIKE OF CADDY BOYS

The caddy boys employed at the Park Golf Club declared a strike Monday that lasted only a short time but was exciting while it was on. The golf players instituted "open shop" proceedings and it become necessary to secure police protection for the newcomers. The strikers made several attempts to coerce the "scabs" but were chased off the grounds and given to understand that they were not wanted under any circumstances.

The strike followed a refusal of the club officials to sanction the caddies charging twenty cents an hour instead of fifteen. They also wanted a new timer, claiming that the present one cost them a lot of loose change because of his inaccuracy. When the boys refused to work Monday, a hurry call was sent for others to take their places and a sufficient number was soon secured. The presence of a blue-coat put an end to trouble and the holiday play yesterday was not interrupted. Several of the strikers asked for reinstatement but only two were taken back with the understanding that they were "on probation."

CHEMICAL ENGINE CO SUFFERS ITS FIRST DEFEAT

The Watchung Chemical Engine Company's crack baseball team suffered its first defeat yesterday at the hands of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Association's nine. The score was 16 to 7. The game stood 8 to 7 in favor of the Improvement Society at the beginning of the eighth inning, but Demler's pitching arm suddenly lost its cunning through a sprain and he was banged for ten good hits. The fielders were unable to stop the landslide and eight runs were piled up in the last two innings. The game was witnessed by a large crowd of enthusiastic rooters.

The lineup of the teams was as follows: Improvement Society—Titus and Wheeler, c; Bodin, p; Doe, 1b; D. Demler, 2b; Anderson, 3b; Featherstone, ss; Canning, lf; Neier, cf; Wheeler and Underhill, rf. Engine Company—P. Kelm, c; Demler, p; Allen, 1b; Walker, 2b; Overbaugh, 3b; Jacot, ss; H. Kelm, lf; J. Walker, cf; Nemo, rf.

LEVGAR A. C. DEFEATS FANWOOD BY A LARGE SCORE.

The Levgar A. C., of Lincoln, defeated the Fanwood A. C., at Lincoln, yesterday afternoon by the one-sided score of 28 to 1. Frolic, pitching for Lincoln, got twenty-two strikeouts, while Parrott, the opposing twirler only fanned three. Darling, the Plainfield boy, secured five hits out of six times at bat and was hit by the pitcher once. Downs, the new second baseman for Lincoln, played a great game, getting everything that came his way. He also got two doubles. Frolic also got a three-bagger and two doubles. Frolic and Darling formed the battery for Lincoln and Parrott and Amber for Fanwood.

Plainfielder Wins Two Games.

George Miller, of this city, pitched two fine games yesterday, winning both. In the morning he pitched for the Elcids, of Rahway, against the Riversides, of that place, winning by a score of 7 to 1. He allowed but four hits. In the afternoon he pitched for Red Bank against Asbury Park, winning by a score of 4 to 1.

P. H. S. Games.

Plainfield High School won from Perth Amboy at the grounds in Perth Amboy on Monday afternoon. The final score was 16 to 11 and Keeler umpired. Yesterday the local boys went to Crotona Park and lost a game to the Morris High School team by a score of 13 to 7.

HELD CONVENTION

New Jersey's Post Office Clerks Annual Meeting and Banquet.

At one of the most largely attended conventions of the New Jersey State Association of Postoffice Clerks held yesterday in the Babcock building from 11 o'clock in the morning until 5:30 in the afternoon, 145 delegates, representing thirty-four postoffices in the State were present. Following the all-day session the delegates were shown over the city in automobiles and at the banquet in the evening at Truell Hall, the main topic seemed to be "Plainfield, the Queen City."

These officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, John J. Shaffrey, of Newark; first vice-president, William A. McDonald, of Jersey City; second vice-president, William H. Pemberton, of Perth Amboy; secretary-treasurer, Albert E. Heringer, of Paterson. The chairman of the organization committee is John J. McGowan, of Jersey City, and the delegate to the general convention, John J. Geison, of Orange, with William Miller, of Hoboken, as alternate.

During the session of the convention, working conditions among the clerks was given prominence in the discussion and special stress was laid on present conditions. Under the law only fifteen day leave of absence may be granted to a postoffice clerk, while other government employers get thirty days. Besides this there are men who work nine and ten hours a day, when the law calls for eight hours. It was decided to demand a re-adjustment of the hours.

The parcel post proposition was heartily endorsed as was also the pension system which will be proposed to the next congress. The meeting was said to have been the most harmonious in years.

Former president of the association, John J. Fitzgerald, was not among the speakers at the banquet last night, owing to illness. His place was taken by Postmaster P. H. Charlock, of Elizabeth.

The diners were entertained by T. Arthur Baker, of New York, accompanied on the piano by Miss Miriam H. Hall, of this city. Some twenty songs were sung, ending with "The Star Spangled Banner," sung standing. Postmaster Elias H. Bird, of this city, greeted the delegates, complimenting them upon the success of their organization and its objects.

Mayor George W. V. Moy extended the "glad hand" to the delegates in a speech in which he extolled the virtues of Plainfield. He said:

"To live in Plainfield and even breathe its oil-laden dust is a pleasure, but you must always observe before leaving our magnificent 'city hall.'" He paid a tribute to the letter carriers.

Postmaster Charlock followed in a brief speech in which he referred to the clerks whom he declared were the real backbone of the service. "Without the clerk," he said, "the carrier would not be in it." He asserted that no department of the United States government was so important as the Postoffice department, and alluded to the difficulties under which the department does its work.

Postoffice Inspector Holtby, of Washington, D. C., spoke briefly on the general high character of the men in the postal service and declared that there was no better set of men in the world. Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, said that Plainfield had a "bird of a postmaster" and the people were all proud of him for the efficiency of the work of the local office.

Congressman William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, said that the New Jersey postal clerks are among the most intelligent men in the country. He declared that the flippancy of the daily newspapers in treating the speeches of the members of the House of Representatives was a disgrace to the nation and a stigma on the country. He favored the thirty days' vacation period for postal empioyes and a cessation of Sunday work. Mr. Tuttle said he was in favor of the parcels post and suggested its being tried first in rural districts. In concluding his speech he said: "I want you all to know that in Congressman Tuttle you have a friend."

John M. Ulrich and Maurice E. McGrath also spoke.

The Plainfield branch of the association which entertained the visitors had this committee at work: President, James B. Conkling; treasurer, Elmer K. Squiers, and William B. Sharp, Daniel T. Clawson, Clarence V. Rittenhouse, William H. Thorn, Ernest A. Millard, Howard T. Miller, George A. Bailey and Alfred E. LaPorte.

—William Irby was the man thrown from one of the carnival wagons last Sunday night when a main line trolley car ran into two of the vehicles.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Memorial Day exercises were held yesterday morning, a delegation of G. A. R. members being met at 8:30 at the Park avenue trolley corner by the school children and members of B. & E. Co., and Excelsior H. & L. Co. The veterans were escorted to the cemetery, where the graves of the fallen were decorated by the children. Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews made the address at the cemetery. During the address one of the veterans fainted, being overcome by the heat. Dr. Westcott was summoned and gave medical attention, after which he was taken back to Plainfield in a carriage.

Fire of incendiary origin last night destroyed the horse shed in the rear of All Souls' Episcopal church, Scotch Plains. The fire when discovered at 11:30 was well underway and by the time the department arrived the structure was in ruins. The loss will amount to about $300 and is said to be covered by insurance.

About fifteen of the young people from here and Plainfield, held an enjoyable days' outing yesterday on the Layett farm, near Berkeley Heights.

The Bachelor Club's last dance until fall was held Monday night in Excelsior Hall.

How to Have a Warm House

First—install a BOYNTON "Square Pot," Patented, Furnace in the basement.

Then—in the morning before business and in the evening before retiring, step down and turn the BOYNTON clinkerless, ash-cutting grate. This clears the fire perfectly. Now put in a little coal; set the dampers for the degree of heat you wish, and leave the to do the rest. The BOYNTON is the most reliable house-heater known. It consumes less coal and gives more heat for the coal consumed, than any other heater on the market.

The BOYNTON "Square Pot" never holds dead fire. BOYNTON Boilers are now equipped with this same economical fire box and quick clearing grate. See your dealer about BOYNTON "Square Pot" furnaces and boilers.

MUST BELIEVE IT.

When Well Known Plainfield People Tell It So Plainly.

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizen of Plainfield the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every backache sufferer, every man woman or child with any kidney trouble will find profit in the reading.

A. C. Lazzi, 44 Elm place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I still endorse Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity and I confirm all I said in their praise when I publicly recommended them some years ago. You are at liberty to continue using my statement, for this excellent medicine cannot be given too much praise. For several years I was annoyed by a distressing backache, together with pains through my kidneys. My head also ached severely and the kidney secretions were in bad shape. I went to several physicians and also took so-called kidney cures, but it did not seem as though I could get relief. As time passed and I did not improve, I became discouraged. When suffering intensely I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and I got a supply at Randolph's Drug Store. As if by magic my pains and aches disappeared and my condition improved in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills deserve the entire credit for restoring me to good health."

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church, will elect officers Friday night in Vincent chapel.

Children's Day exercises will be observed at Trinity Reformed church Sunday morning, June 11. A feature will be the baptism of children.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church, will hold its annual meeting for the election of officers in Vincent chapel, Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Murray will conclude the study in Galatians at the mid-week prayer-meeting at the Crescent Avenue church, this evening.

Rev. Dr. Charles R. Erdman, of Princeton, who preached at the Crescent Avenue church, last Sunday, will again occupy the pulpit at that church next Sunday, morning and evening.

The Junoir Mission Band of the First Baptist church will hold its closing exercises Friday afternoon, when the children will give an entertainment and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss will give a talk on missions.

The Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church is planning to hold a strawberry festival on the beautiful lawn of Mrs. John Brooks, Watchung avenue and East Sixth street, about the middle of June.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church will be held in the church parlors, Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The subject will be "Cuba and Porto Rico." This will be the last meeting of the season.

Preparatory services will be held at Trinity Reformed church Friday evening, the subject being "Losing Ourselves in Christ." A meeting of the elders will follow to receive those who desire to unite with the church either on confession of their faith or by letter from other churches. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed next Sunday morning.

Miss Isabel Crawford, for many years a missionary to an Indian tribe in Oklohoma, and who addressed the Sunday-schools of the Baptist churches of this city Sunday, was entertained at the home of Reuben Knox, of Rockview avenue. She was accompanied by her niece, Miss Firstbrook, of Toronto, Canada, who addressed the young people at their devotional service in the First Baptist church Sunday evening.

Miss Margaret Meaney and her niece, Miss Mary Eileen Schafer, of East Sixth street, have returned home after a week's visit with the former's mother at High Bridge.

PERSONAL.

Miss Jennie Jones, of Jersey City, spent Decoration Day with Plainfield friends.

S. Wallis Merrihew, of South avenue, has been in Indianapolis, for several days on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Neal, formerly of this city, but now of Brooklyn, visited relatives here yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Meaney, of West Fourth street, are spending a week with relatives at High Bridge.

Charles B. Brown, formerly of this city, but now of New Bedford, Mass., has been spending a few days here.

John J. Hines, of Liberty street, is enjoying the sea breezes at Asbury Park. He is stopping at the Surf House.

Andrew Stiglitz, of Allen place, who has been detained at home for two months with rheumatism, is much improved.

Miss Hazel Rose, of Belmont avenue, who has been a patient at the Anti-Tuberculosis League Camp, is improving.

John Schwartz, of Martinsville, is visiting at the home of his sister, Miss Theresa Schwartz, of West Front street.

Mrs. Frank Nika, who has been under treatment for the past month at Glen Gardner, has returned home entirely cured.

Miss Phyllis Daley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Daley, of Watchung avenue, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, is improving.

N. P. H. S. GRADUATION PLANS ARE ARRANGED.

The entertainment committee of the borough Board of Education announced at the regular meeting Monday night, that all arrangements had been perfected for the annual commencement exercises on June 23. The Plainfield theatre has been engaged for the purpose and the address will be given by Dr. Charles Chapin, of the Montclair State Normal School. The program will be one of great interest throughout.

It was reported by Superintendent Krebs that Albert Earley, of Glen Cove, L. I., had been engaged as mathematics teacher in the High School to succeed George Baker, who has resigned in order to take a position in the West Chester, Pa., High School. Mr. Earley is a graduate of Syracuse University and comes well recommended.

The question of engaging a writing teacher and a supply room manager was discussed at some length and afterward laid over for one month. Bills amounting to $4,200 were ordered paid.

MRS. LUHR SURPRISED IN HONOR OF BIRTHDAY.

Mrs. George Luhr, of West Front street, was given a surprise by a party of friends at her home last night, in honor of her birthday. Fourteen were present in all, several of the guests coming from Elizabeth, Newark and Somerville. An informal program of music and other diversions was enjoyed during which Mrs. Luhr, Miss Jennie Luhr and Gus Meissner gave piano and vocal solos and Mr. Luhr contributed his masterpiece, "Where the River Shannon Flows." The hit of the evening was made by R. B. H. Dalley, who recited a barnyard tragedy in verse entitled "We Mourn the Loss of Fritzie."

A chicken supper was a feature of the affair and brought the surprise to a pleasing termination.

Mrs. Debschinski's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Andrew Debschinski, who died in Muhlenberg hospital, was held Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hurst, of Watchung. The services was conducted by Rev. George Bowers and burial was in the North Plainfield cemetery. Sons and sons-in-law acted as pall bearers.

NEW PERFUMES.

Houbigant, the well-known Paris perfumer who has such names on his old books as Mme. Recamier, Mme. Tallien, the Duchess de Barry and la grande Mademoiselle and has existed ever since 1175, in the same houses near the Elysee, has had to invent new perfumes all the time to satisfy his clients.

His latest is called "Parfum Inconnu" and is a very fresh scent, reminding one of spring flowers. It has not only a quaint name "unknown," but is put into a quaint, new-shaped octagonal bottle with a gold-encased crystal stopper. Besides this he has three other new scents, the "Majestic," "Premier Mai," and "La Rose de France," a delightfully dainty perfume of fresh roses.

Heard in An Office.

Insistent Canvasser—But, sir, this is something you cannot afford to be without.

Merchant—My dear man, if I could afford one-tenth of the things I "can't afford to be without" I'd be as rich as Mr. Carnegie.—Boston Transcript.

"Congratulations, old man. I see you have at last acquired an auto."

"No, I haven't. I got all dirtied up changing the ribbon on my type writer machine."—Exhcange.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Those who love the rollicking stories of Irish life such as Charles Lever might write, will find a special charm in the new play, "Barry of Ballymore," which Chauncey Olcott is presenting this season, and which will be presented at the Plainfield theatre Thursday night, June 1. This new work is a story of the same period as "Charles O'Malley" and "Harry Lorrequer," and has that same dare-devil atmosphere in which the pulse of the reader or auditor beats faster and with good, wholesome red blood. It is the period in which gallantry held sway; when for a women's sake a young blade was as willing to face his hunter at the most dangerous fence and leap in the steeplechase, or try his luck in the duello. Such a character is the "Barry of Ballymore," which will be played here by Mr. Olcott. A young artist who risks his life to win the rights of a young girl in whom he has no interest save that prompted by his native chivalry.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The W. C. T. U. will hold a business meeting in its rooms on Madison avenue at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

We are creditably informed that William R. Cock, who completes his forteith year as a member of the choir of Grace church, on Sunday next is not to retire on half pay.

SAME OLD STORY.

Spring travels on and summertide
Upon the land will soon abide,
And we, with fond elation,
Await the time when we shall go
To haunt where woodland breezes blow,
And spend two weeks vacation.

Two weeks of gladsome days and nights
In warding off mosquito bites
And fighting off starvation—
Two weeks of vain attempt to sleep
On beds that pain—and sometimes creep—
Ah! Gladsome is vacation.

And then to wander home once more
To downy beds where one can snore
Without disfiguration,
And tell the city chap the joy—
The happiness without alloy
One gleans on his vacation!

One Thing She Held Fast.

A noted Southern music teacher was giving a lesson to a talented but careless pupil, and was rapidly becoming impatient with her. Finally, at a most complicated part of a difficult piece, the pupil lifted her hands from the piano and made a wild dash for her handkerchief to stop a threatened sneeze. It was the last straw.

"Oh," exclaimed the teacher, thrusting her own handkerchief at her, "was there ever such a girl! You lose your position, you lose your fingering, you lose your handkerchief—you lose everything!"

"Oh, no," responded the pupil, with a twinkle, "not everything! I haven't lost my temper."—Youth's Companion.

Had no License.

Charles Neier, of Johnston's drive, was arraigned before Recorder Dolliver his morning for running an automobile without a license. Sentence was suspended after the defendant had given a satisfactory explanation.

High Finance.

"Just think! That lady doctor who died last year owed her dressmaker 20,000 marks."

"Well, what happened?"

"Her husband couldn't pay, so he married the dressmaker." — Fliegende Blaetter.

Announcement!
ALBERTO BUCCINI
347 Fifth Ave., New York City

Respectfully announces that he is now ready to offer to the Plainfield public his new artistic ideas and the execution of work for the interior decorations of residences. He has just completed the decorations of Mr. R. A. Meeker's residence, at Belvidere avenue, Plainfield, to the full satisfaction of the owner. Mr. Buccini had also decorated many high class residences in New York City and New Jersey and is ready to submit references and credentials on request. Any resident contemplating to make his home more beautiful will do well to communicate or call at Buccini's Studios to inspect the kind of work that he produces. He would appreciate the privilege of estimating on any work that may be desired.

Fresh Poultry and Fresh Eggs.

We still have FRESH KILLED POULTRY; the same as usual. All dry picked and nicely cleaned. Our NEW LAID EGGS cannot be surpassed, either in FRESHNESS or FLAVOR, because no eggs are over three days old when delivered, and because our HENS are kept in a sanitary manner and DO NOT RUN AT LARGE. We deliver Tuesdays and Fridays. A trial is solicited. Drop us a card to call.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The wedding of Miss Amy Sampson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Sampson, to Walter S. Craig, will take place at the home of the bride's parents, on New Market road, tomorrow night. The ceremony will be witnessed by a large gathering of relatives and friends from Plainfield, Somerville and other places as well as Dunellen and New Market. The young couple will reside in a new cottage just erected next to the Sampson home.

Mrs. Orrin P. Curl received a surprise visit Sunday from Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Schill, of San Francisco. The latter are old friends of Mrs. Curl and came East to prepare for a trip to Europe. They will leave tomorrow on a North German Lloyd boat.

The Dunellen baseball team will cross bats on the home grounds next Saturday afternoon with Central Railroad's nine. The latter aggregation is a strong one and a good game is anticipated.

Captain and Mrs. B. A. Cole, of Washington avenue, entertained friends from Jersey City, yesterday.

Mrs. Miller, of Raritan, has returned home after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. B. Siriski.

FRATERNAL EAGLES GAVE A RECEPTION AND DANCE.

Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E., gave a reception and dance in its hall on East Second Street, Monday night. It was attended by sixty couples, several delegates coming from out-of-town. Suhr's orchestra furnished the music for dancing. At intervals during the evening vocal solos were contributed by Miss Mary Caulfield and John Vardon, Professor A. G. Carpenter presiding at the piano. Refreshments were served in conclusion.

The committee in charge of the affair was composed of Rudolph Kampf, chairman; Charles Ryder, Frank McCabe, James Conway, Michael J. Higgins and Horace G. Adams.

CLOSED PORTALS.

An important amendment to the bylaws of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M. will come up for final consideration tomorrow night. A full attendance of members is desired.

Comrade I. E. Houston, of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., in connection with the Memorial Day observance, visited the soldiers' plot at Hillside cemetery on Monday where he painted the cannon and flower urn and also left a pot of geraniums at the head of each soldiers' grave. A. M. Griffin donated the paint and Mr. Houston did the work.

Carried a Gun.

Melvin Littell and John Robinson, colored, accused of carrying concealed weapons, are being held at police headquarters awaiting trial. It is alleged that Littell is the owner of a gun which he discharged to the imminent peril of visitors to the carnival being held at the Grant avenue grounds. Patrolman Saunders made the arrests.

THE WEATHER.

Showers and thunderstorms tonight or Thursday.
Maximum, 85; minimum, 59.

HERE AND THERE.

After the G. A. R. veterans and Co. K. visited the Plainfield avenue cemetery, holding appropriate services at the soldiers' graves, a detachment from Co. K marched to the home of Chief and Mrs. T. O. Doane, on West Fifth street, where Mrs. Doane is quite ill, that she might see the American flag which Co. K carried for which she had raised the fund. She was too ill, however, to be even raised to the window. Later two men from the company called on Mrs. Doane, and the visit was much appreciated. Another incident of the parade was the presence of Comrade Bennett Britton, aged 98 years, whose tread was just as steady as that of any veteran in line. His was an imposing figure, and in fact, all of the veterans received cheers and applause along the entire line of march.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Klein, of Brooklyn, are visiting J. William Klein, of Central avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sanders, of Orchard place, spent Decoration Day with relatives at Flemington.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Randolph, of Myrtle avenue, are spending a few days with Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Musson, of Meriden, Conn.

Among the twenty-five automobiles used in yesterday's sight-seeing trips of the postoffice clerks was one tendered by Wilbur C. Fisk, a brother of former Mayor Charles J. Fisk. Mr. Wilbur Fisk, who drove the car himself, is vice-president of Hudson and Manhattan Tunnel Company of New York.

Injured Riding a Wheel.

Miss Marion Baker, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Laura Baker, of 315 Plainfield avenue, is at Muhlenberg Hospital, under treatment for a sprained ankle, the result of falling off a bicycle on Monday night. The injury while not a serious one, will detain the girl at the hospital for several days.

OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY

Graves of Departed Veterans Decorated and Patriotic Exercises Mark the Day.

Memorial Day was appropriately observed by Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and other patriotic bodies, including Co. K, Camp Bagley, Spanish-American War Veterans, the Sons of Veterans and Women's Relief Corps. During the early morning hours graves were decorated in the various cemeteries and at 10 o'clock there was a short parade led by the Plainfield Brass Band. The veterans were accompanied on the march by the members of Co. K, according to the usual custom. First the North Plainfield cemetery was visited, then the Plainfield avenue cemetery, at both of which services were conducted by the officers of the post.

Other cemeteries were visited and the graves decorated prior to the parade. Returning to Reform Hall, the veterans and friends were served with dinner and at 2 o'clock all reassembled at Reform Hall for the afternoon exercises, which were in charge of Commander William C. Smith. The hall was attractively decorated with American flags, while an inspiring sight was a large chorus of children occupied seats on the stage, all dressed in the national colors and waving American flags. The children sang patriotic songs and gave recitations. Miss Edna Smith was "Miss Liberty," and she sang a solo.

The orator of the day was Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, whose address followed an interesting ten minute talk by Mayor G. W. V. Moy, who spoke appropriately to the occasion. Dr. Anderson reviewed some of the important events in the Civil War, recalling the sacrifice made by thousands that the union might be preserved. He declared that he was in favor of giving the soldiers a pension, believing it to be due them for the sacrifice made in defense of the country.

Not only recounting noble deeds, but referring to the achievements of the country, Dr. Anderson stirred the old veterans. He concluded his address with a brief reference to the Spanish-American War, touching some of its important incidents.

The officers conducted the impressive service over the grave of the "Unknown Dead," and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address was also read, as is the custom on this occasion, together with the orders from national headquarters. Interspersing these features of the program the children sang patriotic songs. Rev. Frank Fletcher, of this city, pronounced the benediction.

After the exercises all adjourned to the basement of the hall, where refreshments were served by the Women's Relief Corps. A feature of the parade in the morning was the flowers carried by the veterans. These were made by the members of the Women's Relief Corps.

3 MILITARY CLASSES HORSE SHOW FEATURE

The three military classes to be judged on Friday and Saturday, will make those days of unusual interest at the eighth annual horse show of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club. The horses entered in these classes will be ridden by officers and enlisted men of the crack calvary organizations of New York and New Jersey, in their full dress uniforms. Classes 60 and 61, calling for officers charges and militia mounts, have already a half-dozen entries each and some exhibitors are still to be heard from within the next few days.

Among the principal exhibitors in these classes are the following: William Spingler Mitchell, Troop 2; Corporal Ridgely Nicholas, Corporal Francis Jenkins Danforth, Private Alden Sanford Blodget, Troop 3; Farrier Alvan Williston Perry, Troop 4 and Private Chester Trenholm Neal, Troop 4. All these men are members of Squadron A, Calvary, N. G. N. Y., and will ride in the well-known light blue and gold, full dress Hussar uniform of that organization.

From Squadron C, Calvary, N. G. N. Y., whose headquarters are in Brooklyn, here are at present two entries, Captain M. D. Bryant, commanding Troop 6, and Charles A. Dascher, and are least two more entries are expected. They will also ride in their dress uniform which is practically the same as that worn by the regular U. S. Calvary.

In addition to the above, Captain William A. Bryant, commanding the Essex Troop, of Newark, has been invited to bring over some of his troopers and their horses. Class 62, calling for military teams, the horses to be ridden two abreast over the regular course of four jumps, is a hard class to fill owing to the difficulty of getting horses trained to jump together, but it is an attractive class and the entries are sufficient to assure success. These classes will be judged by Major Charles I. DeBevoise, commanding Squadron C, Calvary, N. G. N. Y.

ROUSED AT PRINCETON AS TO "FRAT" CHAPTER.

Sentiment in Princeton University for more than fifty years strongly against the fraternity system in undergraduate life, had been roused against the establishment of a chapter of the Delta Sigma Rho, an intercollegiate association of debaters similar to the Phi Beta Kappa for scholarship.

The Princetonian came out against it editorially, notwithstanding the fact that the faculty rcently approved the establishment of a chapter here and it is now assured.

Professor Paul vanDyke, '83, of the history department, brother of Rev. Henry van Dyke, has entered the discussion in the columns of The Princetonian, having been drawn into it not by the main issue but by a slur cast upon "Poolers" by a communication printed in The Princetonian previously.

NEW JERSEY CROPS SHORT.

Gloomy Prospect Held. Out by the Secretary of the Agriculture Board.

According to a report just issued by Franklin Dye, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, present indications are that there will be a serious shortage in New Jersey, below an average good year, of some important farm crops. This condition is due to the cold and late spring and continued lack of sufficient rain.

In the hay crop the shortage will probably be 23 per cent., which means a money loss to the farmers, a less amount for feeding stock, and a higher price. Strawberries also suffer. The prospect for wheat, peaches, and apples is said to be encouraging.

BRIGHT SAYINGS OF CHILDREN.

A bright little lad heard his parents talking about the salaries of teachers.

"I don't see why they should pay the teachers," he said, very seriously, "when we children do all the work."—Boston Journal.

At the age of three Janet was an enthusiastic student of entomology. One day she discovered a caterpillar for herself, a very tiny one. "Oh, come here!" she called. "Here's a caterpillar, the cutest little thing! I believe it's a kittenpillar!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Mother (to little girl with swollen face)—"But, Mabel, you should be brave and have your toothe taken out."

Little Brother—"Yes, I should, Mabel; it will be one less for you to clean in the morning."—Everybody's Wekly.

Little Edward had been visiting his uncle's ranch, where they wer very much bothered by rats. When he came back, he started to school, where he received the information which he gave his grandmother one day. He said:

"Grandmother, do you know how to get rid of rats?"

"No, Edward. How?"

"Why, a soft answer turneth away rats."—Women's Home Companion.

Martha, aged five, precocious and observant, had been severely spanked by her mother. She sat on the floor, her eyes filled with angry tears. Suddenly he rose with a determined look upon her face, and seized her hat.

"Where are you going?" asked her mother.

"Out to tell all the family secrets to the neighbors," said that child, firmly.—Life.

"Mamma," said little Bessie, looking wistfully into her mother's face, "may I cary the baby awhile?"

"No, indeed, my darling, you are too young and small; you might let it fall."

"Well, mamma," was her disappointed response, "then may I have it when it is worn out?"—Metropolitan Magazine.

A litle four-year-old on being taken to the circus for the first time by her big brother, spying the monkeys, cried, "Oh, Johnny, Johnny, look at the little dogs that look like us."—The Delineator.

"Johnny, do you know why I am going to whip you?"

"Why, father?"

"Because you struck a boy smaller than youself."

"I thought perhaps it was because I am smaller than you are."—N. Y. Mail.

Bertie—"I've been having a lovely game with this postoffice set you gave me, auntie. I've taken a real letter to every house in the road."

Auntie—"How nice! And where did you get all the letters?"

Bertie—"Oh, I found a big bundle tied up with pink ribbon in your desk!"—Punch.

With the Tide.

It had been raining for twenty-four hours, and the ground was more like a lake than football field, but the referee could not see his way to postpone the match.

"Surely you aren't going to make us play in this?" asked the visiting captain.

"Of course you must play," declared the man with the whistle. "Now, don't hang about. You've won the toss. Which end are you taking?"

"Oh, well," came the reply, with a sigh of resignation, "I reckon we'd better kick with the tide."—Tit Bits.

Further Inquiry.

A Cleveland man was reading some jokes about how the English weren't so slow as they are supposed to be to get a joke. He believed it, too. So he tried his theory on a British guest of his.

"Did you ever hear Mark Twain's joke about how the report of his death had been greatly exaggerated?" he asked.

"No," answered the Englishman, eagerly, "but I'll wager it was good. What was it?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Beautiful White and Colored Washable Fabrics at Extraordinary Low Prices

DRESS LINENS, VOILES, GINGHAMS, MADRAS, LAWNS, BATISTES, DIMITIES, PERCALES.

And All Manner of Materials That Enter Into This Season's Washable Dresses.

Some of the little merchants and showmen who had practically lost their all in the Dreamland fire, opened up business on the scarcely cooled ruins and took in enough money in a day in some instances to recoup them for their losses, proving that out of almost every disaster comes some good.

So in this instance.

A large sum of money was lost in the transaction that brought to us these immense lots of washable fabrics from one of Manhattan's great wholesale houses. You'll be glad to know it was not our loss, and you'll be equally glad to know that you are the one that profits, for we are going to mark these goods at prices that will make them go like a whirlwind, as you will see by perusing the items here listed.

This purchase is augmented by immense lots from Caragal-Hall Co. of New York, who are selling out without any consideration of cost or value.

Scientific Shopping

Women are supposed to be the world's greatest shoppers, but they're not.

The stores themselves are the real, scientific shoppers—they HAVE to know what's doing among their competitors. In every bargain rush you always find shoppers from other stores and there are few advertised articles which aren't bought up by competitive concerns.

This is good business policy and the store that shops liberally and keeps abreast of what others are doing, is usually the store that succeeds. It is needless to say that WE DO A GREAT DEAL OF SHOPPING—very scientific shopping it is, too,—and keep ourselves thoroughly posted as to what is going on elsewhere.

When we tell you this or that thing is the cheapest and best in Newark, we usually know whereof we speak, and when we tell you that the New York stores are more expensive than the Newark stores, this, too, is the result of PAINSTAKING COMPARISON.

We sometimes wish you could see and compare what our New York shoppers bring home, with simjlarly priced goods from our stocks. We believe, if you could do this once or twice, you would realize that it pays to shop at home.

This shopping system is a splendid institution—it teaches us a great deal.

MILITARY HAZING.

Carried to Brutal Extremes In German Army Schools.

CADETS MAIMED AND KILLED.

The Most Dangerous Punishment Meted Out to Erring Freshmen Is "the Gantlet of Fire," and the Most Repulsive Is "Bacon Swallowing."

Germany is, of all countries, the one in which the science of hazing in military schools has attained the greatest development. The army plays in the fatherland's life a part the importance of which can hardly be realized by an untraveled American. Military service is compulsory, and in time of peace 600,000 men are kept armed, uniformed and drilled. To command that huge contingent 80,000 commissioned officers are necessary.

This large officer corps has developed customs, ethics, even a morality, of its own. These customs and ethics are imitated at an early age by the boy who aspires to enjoy the veneration which German officers generally receive from the populace. Imitation in a young man usually means exaggeration, and some of the little military snobs are on their first day at school a joy to behold. Very soon, however, the precocious stiffness is taken out of them.

A harmless though repulsive form of hazing cadets whose appetite verges on gluttony is called "bacon swallowing." The plebes to be victimized are lined up on the grounds surrounded by a group of second year men. A slice of raw bacon is tied to a piece of string, and the plebe whose name is drawn first is made to swallow the unappetizing morsel. When the sickening sensation of the twine tickling his throat threatens to nauseate him the bacon is pulled out. The name of another unfortunate is drawn, and he is in turn obliged to swallow the bacon, the appearance of which has not been improved by the first man's chewing. On it goes along the line to the next man and up to the last one, and for days and days the sight of bacon, a staple article in German cuisine, will, if it does not spoil the healthy youngsters' appetites, at least remind them that undue haste in assimilating food lacks refinement.

After a few hours spent in "frog's squat" the most dignified and snobbish plebes assume the good natured and perfectly chummy attitude which means that they have been tamed. Swelled heads are quickly noted and their owners made to sit on the floor with their chins resting on their knees, and their ankles and wrists are bound together. A solid stick passed under the knee joints and forcing the forearm back prevents them from moving arms or legs, and they are left there facing one another in an unnatural, cramped and ridiculous position.

Other forms of hazing are the stomach dance, with or without obstacles; finding the keyhole, tossing in a blanket and star gazing. In the stomach dance the cadet is put flat on his stomach on a high table and four tormenters take him by the hands and feet and whirl him around on the table. In the case of serious offenses a few hard objects or "obstacles" are scattered over the table, making the "dance" rather painful.

Then comes finding the keyhole. The cadet stands in front of a locker and is blindfolded. He has to feel for the keyhole with his forefinger. Then another cadet places his head between the locker and the finger, opens his mouth and bites the finger till its owner howls.

Star-gazing consists in being made to watch the stars at night through a coat sleeve held like a telescope by two cadets. A third cadet then pours a glass of muddy water in at top of the sleeve.

When a cadet is guilty of behavior unbecoming to a gentleman, disgraces his class by some breach of etiquette or commits some petty theft he is generally sentenced by the "holy vehm," or "court of honor," to the rod. The penalty is applied ruthlessly, a gag being placed in the punished man's mouth to stifle his cries for help.

Of all the forms of hazing the most brutal perhaps is the "gantlet of fire." The freshman upon whom that punishment is to be visited is kept in a dark room astride a wooden chair, to which he is securely fastened. In the next room his tormentors are twisting newspapers into imitation torches, which at a given signal they light with matches. When the torches are burning brightly they form themselves in two lines; another signal is sounded, the door of the dark room is thrown open, and the freshman is ordered to ride between the lines, while he is mercilessly lashed with flaming brands.

However quickly he may run the gantlet, by the time he has reached the end of the blazing pathway his hair, his eyebrows and lashes have been singed to the skin, his eyelids are seared and swollen, his lips blistered, his uniform hopelessly damaged.

One of the surgeons in attendance covers up the sores with bandages and sends the singed plebe to the infirmary for a couple of days. The official report mentions the explosion of an alcohol lamp or some other accident of like nature.

Not infrequently those "boyish pranks" have a tragic ending. More than once cadets have been crippled for life, and there are two cases on record where death was the direct result of horseplay carried too far.—New York Tribune.

WOMEN LAUGH BETTER.

So much do we hear and read of the attraction of laughter that we find it almost shocking to realize how very seldom a musical laugh is heard.

Very few men have agreeable laughs. Women, as a rule, understand the art a little better. Laughter comes more naturally to them. Not because they have a great sense of humor, but because they use laughter for a greater variety of purposes than do men.

Women laugh in coquetry, and they also use a light laugh to bridge conversational gaps. Women really use laughter in all their lighter moods. All laughter to be at all attractive must first be natural. So, then, the ideal laughter of man or woman must have sincerity as its basis. An ideal laughter is always kind. Real mirth laughs with a person, never at them.

SOLILOQUIES OF A BENEDICT.

The millenium we hear so much about but never see really dropped out of sight when woman made her debut.

To come down to adamantine reality, those bargain beefsteaks and markdown biscuits do not clog a man's throat near as easily as do the 2 a. m. excuses of man clog a woman's.

Whenever we hear about so and so being too self-submerged for utterance we subconsciously wonder if he has been trying to drown his troubles.

And to think that the cafe gets its name from the French for coffee. Sort of reminds one of these peculiar cases of aphasia we hear about.

Did Not Recognize Them.

A story is told of a Rangeley Lakes guide who while working on a log drive fell into the water.

He struggled for a while, and at last dizzy and nearly exhausted, managed to grasp a big log and hold on to it.

The current was so strong and swift that it carried his body under the log, until his feet stuck out on the other side.

Just as a comrade caught him by the shoulders he caught sight of his own feet protruding on the other side of the log.

"I can hold on a bit longer!" he gasped. "Save the poor fellow that's in headfirst, if you can."—Youth's Companion.

"The professor thinks highly of your intellectual powers. He says you look at him so understandingly."

"Yes; it is easier to look at him understandingly than to think up that high-brow gab."—Washington Herald.

"Yes, they had an up-to-date wedding."

"What do you mean by that?"

"They received congratulations by wireless and took their wedding trip on an aereplane."—Judge.

When a Man Is Twenty

he feels absolutely certain of prosperity. He is sure "everything will come out all right."

The man of forty has doubts. He has learned to face life as it is. He realizes the force of surplus—the value of "ready money." He knows the necessity of SAVING—the loss through not having saved before.

Start your bank account NOW—start small if necessary—it will grow. It will mean opportunity—the means of credit and success later on.

MYSTERIOUS JIM.

He turned up kind o' sudden-like,
Came in a-walkin' on the pike.
That's all they ever knowed of where
He come from 'fore he landed there.

He took his meals with Tommy Clare,
An' gineer'ly you'd find 'im there
With lazy look an' smilin' face,
Jes' kind o' hangin' round the place.

He acted innocent an' mild,
Like he had lived all undefiled.
He didn't do no work, but jest
Loafed where it suited 'im the best.

Some took delight in guyin' 'im
An' nicknamed 'im Mysterious Jim,
But he kep' on without a frown,
Jes' kind o' hangin' round the town.

One night Hood's store was busted in,
An', lookin' where the money'd been,
They found it just as they had feared—
The cash had kind o' disappeared.

Mysterious Jim had vanished too.
They searched the country through an' through
An' found 'im ten miles south o' Hood's
Jes' kind o' hangin' round the woods.

They rounded up Mysterious Jim
An' quickly got the drop on 'im.
He showed a gun, but didn't shoot.
He seen it wouldn't hardly suit.

They searched their man an' found the goods
That he had stole back there at Hood's.
A leather bag that held the spec
Was kind o' hangin' round his neck.

Then they prepared to take 'im back.
Of horses, though, there was a lack.
Then Jim he opened up his talk
An' swore an oath he wouldn't walk.

They swore he shouldn't ride a step,
An' both them vicious vows was kep',
For there they left Mysterious Jim
Jes' kind o' hangin' to a limb.
—J. Wiley Owen in New York Times.

Wasted Politeness.

"Won't you have my seat, madam?" he asked politely as he got up.

"No, thank you," she replied. "I prefer to hang to a strap."

"But I insist."

"No; I really prefer to ride this way."

"My dear lady, I could not permit you to do so. I should not feel at all comfortable sitting here while you clung to that strap."

"Don't let it bother you for a moment, I implore you."

"Ah, you are very kind to say that, but I still insist on giving you my place. I, if you will pardon me for saying so, am not one of those who can be insensible of the courtesy that is due to the ladies. I come of southern stock. Please take my seat."

"Oh, pshaw! If you must know it, I am wearing a new corset and could not sit down if I wished to."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Literary Housekeeping.

She laid down her pencil and went into the room to rearrange her hair. Her husband glanced at the manuscript upon which she was working and by which she hoped to achieve literary fame.

"She swept the room with a quick glance," he read. Then, picking up the pencil, he added:

"Ah, if she would only sweep our rooms with an ordinary broom once in a while."

PLAGUE AND FAMINE

Have Killed 1,000,000 People In China.

Country Swept by Death Dealing Disease—Famine Follows Loss of Crops Through Floods and Officials' Ignorance of Sanitary Measures.

Peking, China.—Famine and the plague are sweeping over China. The known deaths from the plague number 30,000, and, according to the official statistics, the death rate averages 200 daily. But the officials have little knowledge of the conditions in the interior, or if they have they are not permitting the facts to be known. There are few foreigners in the interior, and conditions there for this reason are not attracting much public attention.

It is impossible even to estimate the number of deaths that have resulted from lack of food. Dr. Samuel Cochran, an American, who is engaged in the work of relief, writes: "One million people will die before the first crop is harvested. This will be scanty, because the people have not the strength to till the soil and no animals remain for plowing."

The Chinese are directing their efforts to control the plague chiefly along the railways and frontiers for political reasons. Since the recent Russian request for permission to cross the border and quarantine Chinese towns along the Amur, China has been attempting to check the plague along that frontier, but the Russian legation says that this has been done ineffectively, because there are no doctors there who are familiar with modern methods of sanitation.

Local authorities, including the police and soldiers, in former epidemics left the people to die. Now they do not care or do not know how to maintain adequate sanitary measures. Although the central government has issued explicit orders, and many of them, both supplies and funds are lacking. Japanese and Russians have both offered assistance, but only in a few places have these offers been accepted, the Chinese not liking to receive favors from foreigners, whose political motives they distrust.

Physicians engaged in combating the disease are of the opinion that warm weather will kill the germs, although this may bring only a temporary respite. Medical authorities state that such an epidemic as the present one, which is entirely pneumonic, has not visited the world since the middle ages.

Starved to Death In Streets.

The death rate from the famine is many times greater than that from the plague. The famine is the result of the destruction of the crops by a fall of sixteen inches of rain in two days last August in a district where the people ordinarily have a hand to mouth existence. It is estimated that 2,000,000 people are without food and are existing on roots, grasses or anything that affords the slightest possibility of nourishment.

Missionaries who are distributing relief describe the people as horrible skeletons, some of them with the limbs hideously swollen. From the famine the death rate is several thousand daily.

Stretched to Meet Naval Standard.

St. Paul.—The happiest boy in St. Paul is Frederick Mussel, eighteen years old, whose ambition to join the navy was almost quashed by the fact that he lacked a quarter of an inch in height. Frederick was notified by officers of the recruiting station at Minneapolis that he will be accepted.

Not discouraged because he was one-quarter of an inch shorter than the five feet two inches required, Mussel consulted friends in a local fire station. One fireman evolved a machine, with a pole and rope attachment, by which the boy was able to hang while firemen pulled on his legs. The treatment was heroic, but effective. Mussel reached the five foot two inch mark.

Giant Is Missing.

New York.—It might seem hard for a man who measures seven feet four inches in height to drop from sight, and yet, according to reports of friends to the police, George Lanz, thirty-five years old, who is credited with that gigantic stature, has been missing since Feb. 27. Lanz arrived in New York Feb. 17 from Genoa. On Feb. 27 he went to work in a restaurant, and none of his acquaintances has seen him since.

D. FOSTER UPDIKE'S AMUSEMENTS

THE HOSPITAL.

Where would you rather be, in front of trouble, in trouble, or back of trouble? Give me back of trouble. Some people's money gives them trouble. Here is a house that is so large and good it is making trouble. So if you will unload some of your trouble, and get this fellow out of trouble you will put yourself out of trouble, or back of trouble, or in a nice cool spot back of the Hospital.

TROUBLE.

Speaking of trouble, here is an 25 acre farm with square buildings on; the mortgage or trouble is $2,500; on account of this trouble, the price is $3,200. Will give you a deed for it, if it is not worth it.

A MULE.

Were you ever kicked by a mule? I know of a minister who said he was not afraid to die. He accidently got kicked by a mule, he thought he was going, made a howl, but excuse him. Who would like to be kicked out of this world by an——?

SMOKY CONEY ISLAND.

Dreamland is gone and the Park Street, Brooklyn, houses will all soon be gone. But if you have any Plainfield property to exchange for these houses, you will not know Dreamland is gone.

FARMS.

Good Farms! Real Farms! and some Sour Grass Farms. The latter are the kind you generally buy when you take a fellows advise who knows as much about my business as I do his! No sarcasm, of course.

EACH WON A GAME

Plainfield Spanked Scotch Plains and Latter Walloped the Former.

Plainfield and Scotch Plains broke even yesterday in two games played on Crescent Oval. The locals won the morning contest by a score of 8 to 4, while Scotch Plains took the afternoon contest by a score of 9 to 4. The morning game was the best of the two from the standpoint of the local fans. Wheeler, of Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, occupied the box for Plainfield, and he held the 'Plains aggregation to seven hits. His work was a feature. Several new faces were seen in the local lineup, and the players worked well together.

The afternoon contest was a poor one, the visitors being able to gather eleven hits off of Montross. The latter seemed to be in poor form and was not able to hold his opponents down, while on the other hand MacLaughlin only allowed five hits and they were well scattered. When Plainfield starts the league season Saturday there will be some changes in the local lineup. Yesterday's scores follow:

'ADELE C' WINNER

M. D. Blair's Entry First in Running Race at the Driving Park.

The Plainfield Riding and Driving Club held one of its most successful race meets, at the driving park, yesterday afternoon and more than 1,000 people attended. There were four trotting and pacing races and one running race. While there was not a large entry list in either event, the horses were evenly matched, making the finish exciting.

The running race was the most exciting. This was seven-eighths of a mile, and was won by M. D. Blair's "Adele C.," in 1:33. "Smug," owned by Joseph Grandle finished second and J. J. O'Donohue's "Good Riddance," third. Rufus C. Finch's "Runch," came in fourth and "Prince Ching," owned by E. W. Windmill was last. The summary:

THE IMPOSSIBLE ACHIEVED

It has seemed like an impossible ideal among automobile manufacturers to produce a really high-class car at $1,000 or $1,100 or $1,200, the price of DE TAMBLE cars, and many people wonder how we have achieved it. Yet it is an absolute fact that using the best materials, following the most approved design and employing only the most skilled workmen, we can produce automobiles and sell at that figure, which are thoroughly comparable in every respect with those sold for $500 more.

We do it by good manufacturing methods, and if you will ask us we will tell you how, as well as save you $500 if you are about to buy a motor car.

The DE TAMBLE is the best car the world ever saw at its price.

We are not ashamed of the fact that we sell our cars for much less than other people, and we are proud of the fact that the quality of the car is unquestionably the equal of the best.

The House of the Whispering Pines

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910, by Anna Katharine Rohlfs

"'Wait,' she whispered. 'Wait till she has had time to get out and go in. Then drive in, too, and help me to find my way into the building after her.'

"And then I knew it was Miss Carmel we had been following. Before I thought it was Mr. Arthur.

"Presently she pulled me by the sleeve. 'I heard the door shut,' said she, and I was a little frightened at her voice, but I was full of my importance and went on doing just as she bade me. Driving in after the cutter, I drew up into the shadows, where the gray mare was hid, and then, reaching out my hand to Miss Cumberland, I helped her out and went with her as far as the door. 'You may go back now,' said she. 'If I survive the night I shall never forget this service, my good Zadok.' And I saw her lift her hand to the door, then fall back, white and trembling, in the moonlight. 'I can't,' she whispered over and over. 'I can't—I can't.'

"'Shall I knock?' I asked.

"'No, no,' she whispered back. 'I want to go in quietly. Let's see if there's no other way. Run about the house, Zadok. I will submit to any humiliation, only find me some entrance other than this.' She was shaking so and her face looked so ghastly in the moonlight that I was afraid to leave her. But she made me a gesture of such command that I ran quickly down the steps and so round the house till I came to a shed over the top of which I saw a window partly open.

"Could I get her up on to the shed? I thought I could and went hurrying back to the big entrance where I had left her. She was still there, shivering with the cold, but just as determined as ever. 'Come,' I whispered; 'I have found a way.'

"She gave me her hand, and I led her around to the shed. She was like a snow woman, and her touch was ice itself. 'Wait till I get a box or board or something,' I said. Hunting about, I found a box leaning against the kitchen side, and, bringing it, I helped her up and soon had her on a level with the window.

"As she made her way in she turned and whispered to me: 'Go back now. Carmel has a horse and will see me home. You have served me well, Zadok.'

"I nodded, and she vanished into the darkness. Then I should have gone, but my curiosity was too great. I wanted to know just a little more. Two women in this desolate and bitterly cold clubhouse! What did it mean?

"I could not restrain myself from following her in and listening for a few minutes to what they had to say. But I did not catch much of it, and when I heard other sounds from some place below and recognized these sounds as a man's heavy footsteps coming up the rear stairs I got a fright at being where I should not be and slipped into the first door I found, expecting this man to come out and join the ladies.

"But he did not. He just lingered for a moment in the hall I had left; then I heard him clamber out of the window and go. I now know that this was Mr. Arthur. But I did not know it then, and I was frightened for the horse I had run off with and so got out of the building as quickly as I could.

"And all might yet have been well if I had not found lying on the snow at the foot of the shed a bottle of whisky such as I had never drunk and did not know how to resist. Catching it up, I ran about the house to where I had left my rig. It was safe, and in my relief at finding it I knocked off the head of the bottle and took a long drink.

"Then I drank again; then I sat down in the snow and drank again. In short, I nearly finished it; then I became confused. I looked at the piece of broken bottle in my hand, took a fancy to its shape and, breaking off a bit more, thrust it into one of my big pockets; then I staggered up to the horse, but I did not untie him.

"Curiosity seized me again, and I thought I would take another look at the ladies—perhaps they might want me—perhaps—I was pretty well confused, but I went back and crawled once more into the window.

"This time the place was silent—not a sound, not a breath—but I could see a faint glimmer of light. I followed this glimmer. Still there was no sound.

"I came to an open door. A couch was before me, heaped with cushions. A long ray of moonlight had shot in through a communicating door, and I could see everything by it. This was where the ladies had been when I listened before, but they were not here now.

"Weren't they? Why did I tremble so, then, and stare and stare at those cushions? Why did I feel I must pull them away, as I presently did? I was mad with liquor and might easily have imagined what I there saw, but I did not think of this then. I believed what I saw instantly. Miss Cumberland was dead, and I had discovered the crime. She had killed herself—no; she had been killed!

"Should I yell out murder? No, no; I could be sorry without that. I would not yell. Mistresses were plenty. I had liked her, but I need not yell. There was something else I could do.

"She had a ring on her finger—a ring that for months I had gloated over and watched as I had never watched and gloated over any other beautiful thing in my life. I wanted it—I had always wanted it. It was before me for the taking now. I should be a fool to leave it there for some other wretch to pilfer. I had loved her. I would love the ring.

"Reaching down, I took it. I drew it from her finger. I put it in my pocket. I—God in heaven, the eyes I had seen glassed in death were looking at me!

"She was not dead; she had been witness of the theft. Without a thought of what I was doing my hands closed round her throat. It was drink, fright, terror at the look she gave me, which made me kill her, not my real self. My real self could have shrieked when in another instant I saw my work.

"But shrieking would not bring her back, and it would quite ruin me. Miss Carmel was somewhere near. I heard her now at the telephone. In another minute she would come out and meet me. I dared not linger.

"Tossing back the pillows, I stumbled from the place. Why I was not heard by my young mistress I do not know. Her ears were deaf, just as my eyes were half blind. In a half hour I was dancing with the maids, telling them of the pretty stranger with whom I had been sitting out an hour of fun in a quiet corner. They believed me, and not a particle of suspicion has any man ever had of me since.

"But others have had to suffer, and that has made hell of my nights. I restored the ring to my poor mistress, but even that brought harm to one I had no quarrel with. But he has escaped conviction, and if I thought Mr. Ranelagh would also escape I might have courage to live out my miserable life and seek to make amends in the way she would have me.

"But I fear for him. I fear for Miss Carmel. Never could I testify in another trial which threatened her peace of mind. I see that, instead of being the selfish stealer of her sister's happiness, as I had thought, she is an angel from whom all future suffering should be kept.

"This is my way of sparing her. Perhaps it will help her sister to forgive me when we meet in the world to which I am now going."

CONTEST

FOR PLAINFIELD PUPILS

The Plainfield Ice & Supply Co. will give a prize of $25 in cash to the pupil of any school, public or private, in Plainfield or North Plainfield, who shall submit the best written advertisement for the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company's business, to occupy a space equal to the space taken by this annoncement.

The judges will be the Editors of the Courier-News and Daily Press. The conditions will be as follows:

The advertisement as written should be sent to the office of the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., with a separate sheet of paper attached, bearing the writer's name, and name of the school he or she attends. Both sheets thus submitted will be numbered by the Company in the order received, and the sheet bearing the name of the contestant will be held by the Plainfield Ice & Supply Co., and the advertisement with the corresponding number will be sent to the judges, so that the judges will have no knowledge of the name of the writer. The advertisement which is decided to be the best will be so marked, and sent to the Plainfield Ice & Supply Company, who will by reference to the sheets in their possession, determine the name of the successful contestant.

The contest will end May 30, all letters received up to midnight of that day being eligible to the competition.

REPAIRING THE BODY.

The wise woman takes this time for repairs. She knows she must to keep her younth and charm.

If her hair is thin and harsh she goes in for a course of regular treatment. This opportunity is seized for crude oil massage, which does the scalp good. While indoors she changes her method of hair dressing to loosen the tension at certain spots; she also lets her hair hang, giving it sun and air. There is nothing like an hour or two of the sun daily to bring back the color lost in the winter.

This is the time for improving the figure. The thin girl can go on a raw egg diet, plenty of milk and sleep; the stout one can begin a hard diet.

Creamed Chicken.

Boil until tender four pounds chicken. When cold cut into small pieces as for salad. Make a dressing of one pint sweet milk, one-half cup sweet cream, one-third cup of butter, juice of one lemon, salt and pepper on point of knife, scant one-half cup of flour mixed smoothly in enough cold milk to be of the consistency of cream, one can mushrooms boiled until tender in the juice. Mix milk, cream, butter, salt and pepper and cook in double boiler. When boiling stir in gradually the flour which has been wet with the milk until it thickens. Strain the juice of the lemon and stir in last. Stir in the mushrooms and chicken, put in a baking dish and cover with finely rolled cracker crumbs. Bake about twenty minutes. Be sure to put in the lemon after the sauce is cooked, or it will curdle.

Rolled Bread and Butter.

There is a knack about preparing rolled bread and butter for tea that not every housekeeper possesses. To roll easily the bread must not be more than a day old, while the loaves should not be more than five or six inches in diameter. Cut the slices very thin with a sharp knife, buttering each time with a sharp knife, buttering each time before slicing. Trim off the crust and roll lightly, pressing just enough to have the folds adhere. If liked, the bread can be spread with a fine paste of shrimp, anchovy, chicken, cream cheese, salad or fig before rolling if watercress is used a wooden toothpick holds it in place in the centre of the roll.

SHE WILL TREAT YOU.

That Is, of Course, If You Are Hurt, For She Is Dr. Anna V. Lubbin, Ambulance Surgeon.

New York.—A $16,000 limousine ambulance clanged up to the doors of the Hempstead hospital, at Hempstead, N. Y., and a pretty young woman, clad in an immaculate white linen suit, jumped off the seat with a medicine case in her hand. In a businesslike way she directed the removal of her patient into the hospital.

The woman was Dr. Anna V. Lubbin, one of the two internes of the institution, which is financed by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont. With the exception of the furnace stoker and the ambulance driver, only women are employed at the hospital.

Dr. Anna V. Lubbin.

"Recently," said the pretty surgeon, in telling of her experience, "we got a call six miles away.

"'Get there as fast as you can,' Mrs. M. A. Morgan, our superintendent, told me. And I did. Four minutes after I had jumped on the seat I was at my destination.

"Of course, in the cold weather we have some mighty unpleasant experiences. Imagine being dragged out of bed at 2 a. m. to answer a call fifty or sixty miles away. That frequently happens, but we get used to those things, and really I am getting so that I don't mind them any more.

"My worst experience was with a man in the alcoholic ward. He shouted and raved and kept the other patients awake. Finally the superintendent decided that he would have to go, and I volunteered to take him to the Kings County hospital. He gave me a hard struggle, but I finally managed to put him in a straitjacket. The rest was easy."

The Hempstead hospital responds to calls from the boundary line of Brooklyn to Montauk Point.

L. W. R. Mulloy, Blinded In Boer War, Intends to Enter British Parliament.

Montreal.—L. W. R. Mulloy, who as a member of the Canadian mounted rifles lost the sight of both eyes from a bullet wound while fighting in the Boer war, was married here recently to Miss Jean Monroe, daughter of a wealthy cattleman of Seattle, Wash. Miss Monroe is an accomplished musician and is wealthy in her own right.

Mr. Mulloy and Miss Monroe became acquainted in London while the trooper was recovering from his injuries, and the union is made the more romantic, therefore, because he never has seen his bride.

L. W. R. Mulloy.

They will make their home in England, where Mr. Mulloy intends entering on a political career. After he lost his sight he took a postgraduate course in Oxford university and afterward stumped England as a speaker on behalf of the Unionists and the imperial preference. He will make an attempt to enter the British parliament.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning June 4, 1911.

Topic.—Lessons from great lives.—VI. Samuel.—I Sam. xii, 1-6, 13-25. (Consecration meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

Samuel was the son of Elkanah and Hannah. Before his birth he was dedicated to the office of a Nazarite, and when he was a young child he was placed in the temple and "ministered unto the Lord before Eli," who was the high priest. It was here that God called him to the prophetic office. About twenty years later the Israelites, under Samuel, subdued the Philistines, and as a result the prophet also became the judge, "and Samuel judged Israel all the days of his life." During these years Israel had peace with the surrounding nations, and Samuel's life was spent in the development of new religious and patriotic ideals among the people. When Samuel was an old man the people demanded a king, and God granted their request. They chose Saul, who was afterward rejected by God, and Samuel anointed David in his place and became his spiritual instructor. Samuel lived throughout eighteen years of the reign of Saul and died in extreme old age. His life was a long and useful one both to his nation and to the world. Noble in character and in deed, his life teaches many lessons that should be an inspiration to all who desire to consecrate their lives to God and to their fellow men.

1. Samuel's life was associated with prayer. He was the son of praying parents and was himself a child of prayer. His name means "heard of God." "The mother names, the father assents, God approves and time confirms the nomination." Prayer pervaded the life of Samuel in all its relations. A praying mother was one of the greatest blessings that God bestowed upon him or can bestow upon any child. "There is a deathless potency in a mother's prayers and tears for those whom she has borne which only God can estimate." And Samuel profited by his mother's prayers. Through her influence and example he learned the blessings and power of prayer. Prayer was the weapon that he used in his only military enterprise. When the Philistines came up against Israel he offered up sacrifices and "cried unto the Lord for Israel, and the Lord heard him" and discomfited Israel's enemies. In all the backslidings of the people he never ceased to pray for them, and his peculiar virtue was believed to reside in his intercession. Let us, like Samuel, live close to God through prayer.

2. Samuel's life was characterized by piety. In his childhood he was consecrated to God and brought up in the service of the Lord, and when a young man God called him to a more definite and specific service. Samuel heard the call and voluntarily consecrated his life to God. Early religious training led to the remembering of his Creator in the days of his youth. And the life of Samuel thus dedicated to God was signally marked by continued piety and faithfulness. It was not a limited service that he offered to God, but a continual one, and hence we find that when he had come to old age piety was still the chief characteristic of his life. "I am old and gray," he says, "and I have walked before you from my childhood unto this day." And in all this walk they could find no instance in which he had been faithless. Youthful piety has a direct tendency to prolong life by producing healthful virtues and assures us one of the most desirable of blessings—a happy and honored old age. Let us therefore consecrate ourselves to God in the days of our youth and render unto Him a lifelong service of pious endeavor.

3. Samuel lived a fearless and faithful public life. He was deeply interested in all the affairs of his people. He feared not to speak boldly to king or nation, and yet in all he was faithful to God and faithful to the best interests of the people. What a testimony to fidelity is the verdict of the people. "Thou hast not defrauded us nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken aught of any man's hand." Every Christian interested in public affairs may well take Samuel as his example.

Christian Endeavor Thirty Years Old.

The Society of Christian Endeavor is now just thirty years old.

It is ready and glad to give an account of itself, says Amos R. Wells, editorial secretary of United Society of Christian Endeavor.

Three decades ago the young person who would or could take part in a prayer meeting was indeed rare, and the welcome for him was still more rare.

Today there are many millions of young people who are able and glad to bear public testimony for Jesus Christ and the faith.

Three decades ago organized religious work by young people was sporadic, sparse, discouraged and discouraging. A few pastors here and there were making a success of it, but these attempts were not finding many imitators.

Today a church without an active young people's religious society is considered to be lacking in an essential and failing of a duty as well as an opportunity.

A Bill Nye Story.

According to the Bookman, Bill Nye once made a short speech at an authors' dinner in London that was much relished by the bookmen present, including the publishers, at whom it was indirectly aimed.

"Just a year ago," said Nye, "I was walking on the principal street of Indianapolis when I met a man whose appearance showed that he was reduced to the very depths of poverty. His clothes were ragged, his face unshaven, his hair long and matted and his feet unshod. As I passed him a look of recognition came into his eye.

"'Nye, old fellow, don't you know me? Don't you know Abel P. Jones, who was your classmate at college?

"'What, Jones! Is it really you? Well, well! What can I do for you?

"'For heaven's sake, help me. I am starving. Lend me half a dollar.'

"I felt in my pockets. They were empty. I had no money myself. But a bright thought flashed through my mind.

"'Abel, I can't lend you the half dollar. I haven't got it. But, look here, I'll tell you what I will do—I'll let you publish my next book.'

"Gentlemen, that was just a year ago, and this month Abel P. Jones sent me an invitation to go to Europe with him in his steam yacht."

Needed an Explanation.

A little boy was often whipped by his father for lying. He usually took it as a matter of course, but on one occasion it seemed to excite him to reflection. After it was all over he stood before his father in a thoughtful way, which attracted that worthy's attention.

"My son," said the father, "what are you thinking about?"

"Father," said the son, "when you was a little boy, did you use to tell lies?"

"No, my son. When I was a little boy I did not tell lies."

"Father," returned the son, "when mother was a little girl, did she use to tell lies?"

"No, my son," replied the father. "When your mother was a little girl she did not tell lies. But why do you ask me these questions?"

"Well," said the little fellow, drawing a long sigh, "it is the most mysterious thing in the world to me that a father who never told lies when he was a little boy and a mother who never told lies when she was a little girl could have a boy that tells as many as I do."

Plaid and Tartan.

Will the southron ever learn that "plaid" is not a synonym for "tartan?" Not long ago an Englishman came into a hosier's establishment in Glasgow and asked a man behind the counter to show him some "plaid ties." The attendant, perhaps wondering what this new and weird article of wearing apparel could be, was completely baffled until explanation elicited the fact that a necktie with a tartan design was required. Dickens, too, is a sinner in this respect, for he makes Bob Sawyer say with regard to whether his political proclivities are "buff" or "blue"—"I'm a kind of plaid at present, a compound of all sorts of colors." Moreover, an English dictionary gives an adjectival meaning of "plaid" as "colored in squares." I've never heard such use in Scotland. Has any one else?—Scottish Field.

Hall Caine's Moonshine.

Authors and artists who have become well known by means of making the moon dance in the wrong houses of heaven are numerous, but we never expected Hall Caine to join the group. Yet in "The Scapegoat," chapter 23, on Israel's return from prison after evenfall, we find that "with a wave of his hand he was gone into the darkness. It was a wonderful night. The moon, which was in its first quarter, was still low in the east."

It was indeed a wonderful night. On no other night since the creation has the moon in its first quarter ever been seen low in the east.—London Star.

Won't Stay Retained.

This notice appears on a Flushing steamboat: "Passengers should obtain a receipt for all provisions taken on board this boat and are requested to retain the same."

Easier said than done. It reminds us of the old limerick:

There was a young man of Ostend
Who said he'd hold out till the end.
But when halfway over
From Ostend to Dover
He did what he didn't intend.
—London Globe.

His Definition.

At a London board school the teacher had explained to the children the meaning of the word "ability." "Now, children," she went on, "what word would express the opposite to ability?"

A sharp faced little boy at the end of the end form bobbed up his head and exclaimed, "Please, teacher, nobility?"—Work and Play.

Jack Knew.

On coming home from the office the father met Jack and Dick.

"What have you been doing today, boys?" he questioned.

"Fightin'," replied Dick.

"Fighting, eh? Who licked?"

"Mamma did," answered Jack.—Exchange.
